2 The Divorce

Anna remained crumbled on the floor as tears rolled down her eyes while Renee's words rang through her head.

She had been with Daniel for two years and even though he didn't love her she had hoped that at least he trusted her and would vouch for her.

But just a little smoke show that Renee had put on and they've all believed her while forgetting all the things Anna had done for the family.

"Ma'am Anna, you really need to leave now," the Butler, Lee, walked up to her.

Anna chuckled sadly, wiping off the tears from her face.

"You also want to get rid of me, Lee. Am I such a repulsive person?"

"No, Ma'am. It's just Daniel and his father has brought out all your bags and they're threatening to burn it if you don't leave right away."

Lee shook his head as he helped her stand up.

Lee has been with the family for a very long time and he has always adored Anna. He knew it was impossible for her to have tried to drown Renee. But no one would ever value the input of a butler so he had kept his thoughts to himself. He stared at Anna as she tried to stand up but wobbled on her feet.

"Let me help you, Ma'am," he said, extending his arm.

Anna took his arm, tears clouding her eyes. He led her to the front of the house where all her bags were tossed out on the road.

"After wasting two years of my life to the Monroe family this is the thanks I get," Anna said, her voice filled with anger.

"If it makes you feel better, I believe you didn't do it, Ma'am," Lee finally spoke.

Anna gave him a grateful look.

"Thanks, Lee."

She pulled out her phone and dialed the number of her only friend, Lily.

Lily picked up on the first ring.

"Don't tell me they've managed to piss you off at the birthday party too," Lily said immediately.

"Of course."

Then Anna hung up and waited for Lily in front of the gate. The house was a bit quiet
