It was just a one night thing, no strings attached, just one night of fun.

She walked herself home since she didn't come with her car, it is such a waste that the guy she had mind blowing sex with left her even though she was so beautiful and alluring.

No doubt he was good, too good.

She had the best sex of her life with a complete stranger, she didn't feel force instead she was pampered.

She entered her house and met her mother already awake doing the laundry. she walked in straight to shower, change her clothes and start preparing breakfast while going through her phone to look at her schedule for her new appointment. she was mentally getting herself prepared for work on Monday.

Throughout the night Faye couldn't stop thinking about the stranger and the fun they had, she kept rolling to both sides of her bed as her mind kept on wandering to his handsome face, strong muscular frame, his gorgeous mouth and that expertise tongue.

"Ugh!!" She groaned, covering her body with the bedsheets.

If they had met in different circumstances she would have love to know him better and maybe this could work.

Who's she kidding? That shit doesn't work!

Not after her ex boyfriend left her for his colleague.

"I should stop thinking about him, it's nothing, just one night of fun. We were just drunk, lonely and needed company"

She just saw him once and they had sex, a mind blowing and unforgettable sex, it's annoying thinking about someone she would never see again with the crazy emotions she was feeling.
