

The Divorced Billionaire Heiress Boss Chapter 1831

Chapter 1831 Protect Him

Even without Eric, there were ways for Grant to get to know Mr. Jensen.

The two companies competed for this project, and it was still not known who would be the winner.

They separated business and personal affairs clearly.

Eric was very determined to win this project. When he entered the door, some of the people who were thinking about the project had already surrendered.

However, Grant would not.

Stanton Corporation would not lose to Ferguson Corporation in terms of strength and reputation.

Grant stood up, glanced at Clayton, nodded, and then followed Eric to leave.

He only said this to ease the tension between Clayton and Eric. to go directly to Nicole.

He wanted to ask Nicole if she had seen Eric, but how could he ask her about it? Clayton felt a little apprehensive.

Did Nicole not remember Eric?

Then if Clayton asked her about it, she would definitely pursue it further. How should he reply then?

For the first time, Clayton felt that a question could be so tricky.

After hesitating for a while, Clayton let it slide. It was not worth mentioning after all.

If Nicole remembered Eric but not himself, Clayton would really go crazy with jealousy Clayton did not even notice the people in front of him who were trying to talk to him.

Someone called out "Mr. Sloan" several times before Clayton finally reacted. He then smiled apologetically.

The other party smiled meaningfully.

"Mr. Sloan, you were so deep in thought. Is it because you're thinking about some big money-making project?"

Clayton looked at the person for a while before he recognized this man to be Samuel Lindstrom from Baltic City.

Clayton only recognized Samuel because Samuel's wife, Lumi Makinen, had been in frequent contact with Nicole during this period of time. Sometimes when they were on a video call, Nicole would ask Clayton to come over and say hello. Occasionally, he would also see Samuel beside Lumi.

In Baltic City, the strength of the Lindstrom family could not be underestimated. Clayton just heard Grant saying that the Lindstroms were interested in that military project, so it was not difficult to guess the reason why Samuel was here.

He smiled warmly and stroked his brow, looking slightly apologetic. "I was thinking about something else. I'm sorry you had to see that, Mr. Lindstrom." Samuel Lindstrom had very devilish features and a pair of charming eyes that could hook someone's soul. Back then, he was also the subject of scandals, but those scandals disappeared after he got married.

He was very capable and took control of the Lindstrom family at a young age. He was also one of the top figures in Baltic City.

Clayton was only familiar with Samuel because of Nicole. Samuel smiled, gently clinked the glass in his hand with Clayton's, then took a sip of wine.

"Everyone else is fighting for the project, but you're here zoning out all alone. You look like you're winning, so I came over to ask for advice. You won't blame me for being presumptuous, right?"

Clayton raised his eyebrows. "Why would I?"

Samuel sat on the side and glanced at Clayton.

"My wife, Lumi Makinen, previously followed you to invest in a project. Although it's not much money, she's very passionate about it. But I think that the prospect of this project is just average. I really can't figure out why you're so optimistic about shared education."

Samuel looked like he was modestly asking for advice, but Clayton could feel a slightly oppressive vibe from him.

The Divorced Billionaire Heiress Boss Chapter 1832

Chapter 1832 Hit the Wall

Clayton bowed his head and smiled. He did not hide anything and said bluntly, "Not every project that I invest in will be successful. It's just luck. That project won't make a big profit. My wife just told your wife about it after she heard me talking about this project back then. In fact, I've already mentioned the risks. We have to be cautious in investment and we shouldn't blindly follow hearsay." When Samuel Lindstrom saw Clayton like this, the irritation he felt in his heart disappeared.

Lumi Makinen, that brainless woman, had always regarded Clayton as a legend in the investment world, so much so that she almost hung up Clayton's portrait at home.

If Samuel did not stop Lumi, that woman would have wanted to change her phone's lock screen to a picture of Clayton.

This showed how obsessed Lumi was.

However, Lumi was not obsessed with Clayton as a man but as the legend that was undefeated in the investment world.

Due to this, the woman who had repeatedly failed in investment simply worshipped Clayton

Lumi even took $200 million at once and invested in the project introduced by Clayton

Although Samuel was not short of that money, he had clearly analyzed the prospect of that project to Lumi. He told her that it was not too profitable, but she did not believe him and even questioned his ability over and over again. How could he not be angry?

Thus, Samuel came over to clarify it with Clayton

He did not expect that this situation was a misunderstanding

Clayton smiled. "How about this? I can explain it to your wife, or my wife can explain it to her too. It might not be too late to withdraw your investment."

Clayton did not dispute, nor was he arrogant. He was very understanding.

Samuel sighed with relief. His collar was slightly open, and he leaned back in a relaxed manner.

"No need. It's good to let her hit the wall. Otherwise..."

Otherwise, she would worship Clayton as a god.

Samuel did not say the last sentence. He only had his own thoughts. She didn't believe me, right? Then I'll just let her lose out! When she fails at Clayton's hands, she'll know who's more credible than! Hmph!

Clayton smiled and did not insist.

After all, even though that project would

After all, even though that project would not make a big profit, it was unlikely that it would lose money.

It was just not that profitable.

"Mr. Lindstrom, why didn't you go and socialize? Aren't you very interested in that project?"

Samuel raised his eyebrows. "Oh, you can tell that I'm interested in that big project?"

"It's not just you."

Samuel smiled casually.

"That's true. Initially, I had a chance to win, but now, I can only rely on luck. Once I saw Eric here, I really lost my confidence."

In terms of strength, they could be considered evenly matched.

However, Eric was from the army and had some say there. Ordinary people did not have this advantage.

Thus, Samuel basically gave up on the thought.

Clayton silently curled his lips. Darkness flashed across his eyes.

Was Eric so terrifying?

When Samuel saw Clayton's expressionless face, he thought, 'Was what Lumi said about the relationship between Eric and Clayton true? If they did not get along, why isn't anything happening now? This time, even if I can't get that mysterious big project, I still can't go back empty-handed! Unfortunately, there's no gossip like I've imagined.

The banquet was very lively with no one leaving before it was over.

It was almost evening by the time the banquet ended.

chutan Laolud othic phono Ninal did