Chapter 17 The Kneeling Woman

Humiliation and anger filled Su Fan's heart, which was simultaneously mixed with an indescribable excitement and thrill.

"Ma, Master..."

He called out, his voice trembling.

"Giggle, giggle, giggle..."

Bai Man laughed sinisterly, her chest heaving dramatically.

Watching Bai Man's wild demeanor, Su Fan secretly vowed that one day he would make her pay a hundred times over for her actions today.

At this moment, Bai Man's phone rang.

"Director Bai, a patient has arrived, the situation is very serious, you need to come quickly..." The call had barely connected when the voice on the other end urged urgently.

"Okay, I'll be right there."

"Come with me."

Bai Man rushed to the car, laughing urgently.

Su Fan quickly followed.

"Remember, you just stay behind me later, don't speak out of turn, and definitely don't make any sudden moves."

In the elevator, Bai Man instructed Su Fan.

Su Fan nodded obediently.

Just stepping out of the elevator, a young doctor in a white coat came up to greet them.

When Su Fan saw him, he was taken aback.

It was the pretty boy he had seen engaged in an affair with Bai Man just the other day at Li Jian's house.

The pretty boy's face still had faint bruises, clearly inflicted by Su Fan and not fully healed.

"You little brat, you..."

The pretty boy also saw Su Fan, and his face turned red with shame and anger as he gritted his teeth, wanting to pick a fight with Su Fan.

"Liu Feng, do you think I don't exist?"

Bai Man coldly glanced at the pretty boy.

The pretty boy immediately shivered with fear.

"Sir, sir, I... How are you together with him..."

"Enough, let's not talk about the past right now. Tell me about the patient..."

At that moment, Bai Man's expression was ice cold and her tone commanding, unmistakably that of a veteran expert—a stark contrast to her frivolous demeanor in the car.

Indeed, women are the best at deceit.

If he hadn't seen it with his own eyes and experienced it himself, Su Fan would never have imagined that the seemingly aloof Bai Man could be so wild in private.

Liu Feng explained.

"An emergency case, a child was in a car accident, damaged their liver and spleen, lost too much blood, it looks hopeless, but the child's mother is relentless, and it's at a standoff..."

"Okay, I got it."

"Su Fan, wait here for me."

Bai Man walked towards the emergency room with a stern face.

"You little brat, I'll settle this with you later."

Liu Feng left a harsh word for Su Fan and followed.

Su Fan didn't want to cause more trouble, but as a doctor, something inside him couldn't be restrained at that moment, and he decided to follow on his own initiative.

Soon, they arrived at the emergency hall.

Cries and shouts filled the air, and patients from all around gathered, making it as bustling as a marketplace.

In the middle of the crowd, a woman around thirty years old was holding a five- or six-year-old girl, covered in blood, and was wailing loudly.

"Doctor, please, save my child, I'm begging you on my knees."

"Please save my child."

Bai Man squeezed into the crowd, flipped open the little girl's tightly closed eyelids, saw that her pupils were fully dilated, then pressed on the child's chest area, feeling the deformed ribs...

Her expression darkened as she stood up and said,

"Parent, there's no saving the child anymore, please take your child and go."

"No..."

The woman immediately roared like a madwoman, holding the child with one hand and tightly grabbing Bai Man's leg with the other.

"Doctor, I'm begging you, think of something, just try, just try to resuscitate her, okay?"

The other patients also echoed,

"Exactly, life is at stake, just try, there might still be a chance?"

"How can your hospital be so indifferent?"

Bai Man's expression softened somewhat; although she was somewhat promiscuous, she was clearly not a venomous woman with a heart of stone.

"Well..."

She looked at her colleagues around her, a group of doctors, each with their heads bowed, clearly unwilling to get involved.

But Bai Man still bit her lip.

"Liu Feng, get ready for the operation..."

"What?"

Upon hearing Liu Feng's words, the pretty-faced Liu Feng panicked, quickly lowered his voice, and spoke to Bai Man,

"Director Bai, this, this child can't be saved, you are on the verge of being promoted to deputy director, don't bring trouble upon yourself..."
