

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free,Chapter 566

566 NO.

Iris could see why the little girl refused to go before they saved her older brother, who was buried under the wreckage of a house. No one noticed this and the fact the spirit of her older brother was not among those people, who died, indicating he was still alive right now.

'My brother...' the spirit of the little girl kept pointing at a ruined house. She sat on Iris laps with sad face. 'My brother...'

"Is there something wrong, luna?" Eron asked, he was worried to see Iris's expression looked so trouble. He tried to glance inside the carriage, but he couldn't find anything that possibly made her upset.

"Can you call a few warriors?" Iris asked, she turned her head at Eron. "There is a little boy buried under that ruin. I think he is still alive."

Eron blinked his eyes in confusion. She had been sitting there and the alpha didn't even allow her to step outside, but how could allow her to step outside, but how could she know about it?

"How do you know about that?" Eron couldn't help, but asked.

However, Iris was not in the right headspace to explain this thing to him, more so, she was afraid the longer they were tardy, they might not be able to save the young boy.

"Can you just do it, please? I am afraid the little boy is injured badly."

"Oh, okay! Right away, luna!" Eron immediately rushed to find three warriors to help him to dig the ruin.

Zephyr, Kian, Ash er and Eron tried to find the little boy, but they couldn't. This house must be in a very poor condition and if they were going to dig all the ruin, it would take them a whole day.

"Are you sure? How did she know about it?" Ash er asked in frustration. They had been digging for more than an hour at this point, but there was still more spot to cover and it would be a pain in the head to do this job by only the four of them. "I don't understand why we are doing this when there are a lot more important things to do now," Asher couldn't stop complaining.

"Maybe she saw the little boy during the fight when the house collapsed," Kian tried to guess.

"Yeah, but it doesn't explain how she knew the boy is still alive," Asher grumbled.

They were thinking because they stood out of Iris's earshot, she wouldn't know their conversation, but unfortunately, they forgot their luna was excellent at reading lips and they were facing her right now.

"Show me where is your brother, okay?" Iris spoke the little girl spirit, who looked conflicted, she seemed to not very sure where exactly her brother's body was. She only remembered the house was collapsed and her older brother tried to protect her, by shielding her body, which was proven didn't work at all. "Come here."

Iris beckoned the spirit to come with her, while she went out of the carriage. She couldn't touch the spirit, but they felt like a gush of cold wind. At the same time, Cane watched darkly when his warrior breathed his last. The warrior was injured so bad, his healing ability and Grace's healing power couldn't help him. Cane held the warrior's hand, while he kept saying about going home to his family.

Once again, Cane was hit with this feeling. He was responsible for the death of his pack member, these warriors, who followed him blindly. Their blood was on his hands, because he was not capable to give the right order and read the situation better.

They should have left this pack when they were attacked the first time and realized there was nothing this pack could offer, but he stayed, he prolonged his time here because he was still trying to figure out how to help these people, but in the end, the cost of it was too great.

The number of the fallen warriors in this attack was not as great when their pack was attacked, but still, facing lost after lost could put you in a dark thought. This was not a feeling that Cane was fond of. "He will be the thirteen," Grace said, as she closed the warrior's eyes, while the alpha still held his hand. Their last count was thirteen.

There were thirteen warriors died during this attack.

Another thirteen lives that was taken because Cane's incapability to lead his people. It stuck with him.

"Hm." Cane didn't say anything anymore and none of them was dare enough to break the silence. He was still in the same position, holding the warrior's hand, until he saw his mate came out of the carriage and his eyes became a little bit darker when he stood up and approached her.

The carriage was protected by Haco's magic, which made it the safest place for Iris to stay, just in case there was another ambush again when they were still in this dire situation.

Cane had ordered Ethan to send a message to Bloody Wolf pack that they needed more people and also commanded to make a perimeter around this area, while they checked on the injured warrior and the Silver River pack member.

"What are you doing? I told you to stay inside," Cane said in dark voice. He used to talk so gently with Iris, thus when he used this tone, it made her flinched. It reminded her of the side of Cane that she didn't want to see. "Go back inside, Iris and stay there." 2

"Cane, we need to check on that collapsed building because there is a young boy there, he is still alive, we need to move quickly." Iris pointed at the ruin that the spirit little girl showed to her. "We need to go there."

"Let someone else check on that, go back to the carriage." Cane heightened his senses, trying to find any danger around them, because he didn't even believe his own judgment right now. "Iris. Go back to the carriage. Right now."

The atmosphere became so tensed and everyone had their eyes on Iris and Cane, as the two of them stood five steps apart, but it seemed, they were so far away from each other. 1 "Cane, you are not listening. The spirit of that young boy's sister is with me now. She died when her brother wanted to protect her when the building is collapsed."

"Ask that spirit to show the exact spot of her brother and you can go back to the carriage," Cane said sternly. The more Iris was standing outside of the carriage, the angrier he became. He didn't know why he felt this rush of negative feeling, it was so nerves wrecking. "Go back." 2

All of the people stopped whatever they were doing and watched the scene between their alpha and luna unfolded. This must be the first time the alpha spoke so sternly at her ever since they returned from the capital city.

And for the fact the luna didn't immediately oblige to the order stunned them as well, especially with a curt answer she gave the alpha.

"No," Iris said firmly. She looked at Cane in the eyes and was able to see the surprised in those dark eyes.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free, Chapter 567

567 I DON'T LIKE YOU RIGHT NOW 1

Everyone was shocked to see Iris's defiant side and Cane was not an exception, even when his mind was not in the right headspace. 1

This was the first time he received a 'no' from Iris so firmly. She tried her hardest to stand her ground and he could see how much she suppressed her fear when he defied him, even so, she was stubborn to back down and oblige him.

Iris balled her fists, she waited for Cane's next respond or what he was going to say when she openly rejected his order in front of his people.

Other alpha would have beaten her to death if their woman was so much as making a refusal to a direct order, especially when it happened in front of the other pack member. It almost like a slap on the alpha's face for having someone challenging their command. Iris realized that too late, but she was desperate because Cane didn't want to listen to her. She bit her lip nervously and when Cane walked toward her, she lowered her head and flinched, as he was getting closer. Would he hit her? 1

She would be lashed if she was dare enough to disregard an order, her body still remembered that, which made her hunched her shoulder and flinched, waiting for the pain, as she closed her eyes.

However, the pain didn't come, instead it was Cane's harsh voice from behind her that made Iris opened her eyes again.

"Where is that boy?!" Cane growled impatiently.

"Ah..." Iris immediately approached Cane with the spirit little girl close to her. She went to the collapsed building and looked at the spirit.

Ethan approached Aliana after such intense moment, they thought Cane would lose it to Iris and do something unforgivable, it crossed their mind because of the look on the alpha's face, even more since what Iris crossed the line too far, it was an unwritten rule for not letting down a direct order from the alpha, especially in public. It was humiliation.

"I think this will be their first fight, right?" Aliana asked Ethan, who was standing by her side. 1

"Yes, I guess so and the luna managed to get out of the predicament unscathed." Ethan frowned. "If it was me, I would have been chewed out by him."

"I don't think the alpha likes the taste of your flesh." Aliana then added when Ethan gave her a look. "I am just saying." 1

The spirit of the little girl looked around the ruin with sad face, as she started to walk carefully, trying to figure out where her brother was.

Meanwhile, Iris appeared only stood by the side, staring at the distance, as if she was thinking of something. Cane stood by her side, yet he didn't push her to prove what she said. It was the other people, who were standing by the side, looked so confused with this. What the luna was doing? Why she didn't move and only stand there after the fuss she created?

"What the luna is doing?" Asher asked Kian in low voice, they had been digging some part of the ruin and couldn't find anything. They couldn't smell another scent but blood in the air, and this scorching hot afternoon didn't help at all for them to keep their cool.

"I don't know." Kian shook his head, but his eyes focus on the alpha and the luna, seemingly there was an invisible tension between the two of them.

After about twenty minutes, the spirit of the little girl stopped roaming around the area and squatted down, as she sobbed softly.

'Zale... my brother is here...' She sobbed.

Iris approached her and Cane moved along with her, even though he didn't say anything. She squatted down next to the spirit. "The boy is here." Cane held Iris's elbow and pulled her up to stand up, so the warriors could dig that spot. The alpha didn't have the same question like the other had, neither he doubted her. He simply disliked the fact she was exposed to danger. 1

And was pretty mad because she defied his order, even more when he couldn't bring himself to use his alpha's voice on her to make her submitted to him. 1

It didn't take long before the warrior managed to find the body of the young boy, he was unconscious, while hugging his little sister. This young boy must be a lowborn, he looked so skin ny and probably around the age of ten to twelve.

Grace immediately came forward and checked on both of them.

Unfortunately, the little girl didn't make it, but the older one would be able to survive, though it would be a different story if they found him later than this.

"We need to burry the little girl, but the boy will survive." Grace shook her head. "Luna, you are right. If we are late to find him, we will not be able to save him."

What Grace said shocked everyone, but Iris already knew about it, so she only nodded at her words.

"See? The luna is right, next time stop complaining. Can't you see how amazing our luna is?" Eron gave a passive aggressive comment, while glancing at Kian and Asher, since the two of them kept doubting Iris. 2

"Oh, shut up," Asher grumbled.

And after they evacuated the young boy, Cane took Iris back to the carriage. He walked in long stride, which made Iris needed to run lightly to follow him.

"We are going to leave right away after we take care of the mess here," Cane said coldly.

"Do you mean we are going to leave now?"

"Yes."

"But, they need our help, Cane."

Cane stopped walking and opened the carriage door widely, indicating for Iris to enter, but seeing her stubborn face made the alpha growled in frustration.

"I don't want to abandon them. They need our help more than anything now, Cane."

"We help them by leaving. Those mutineers caused this because they want us to leave, so we are going to leave." There was nothing to be saved here. Without any benefit, it didn't worth the effort to stay in this pack.

"Are you running away from those mutineers?" Iris narrowed her eyes, she hated it when they were not on the same page, but she didn't agree with how cold Cane could be. 1

"I lost thirteen of my warriors, Iris, so don't talk to me with that tone." 7

Iris lowered her head, she let her emotions got the best of her. She didn't mean to question him, but she didn't want to leave and let these people fend for themselves. "There is no guarantee the Silver Warrior will help these people, Cane."

After all, the Silver Warrior was led by the former beta and gamma, who managed to break free and raise their own force with the former warriors of this pack.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free, Chapter 568

568 DON'T TOO HARSH ON HER

Iris was not sure what she wanted to achieve when she said those words to Cane. She did it in the heat of the moment, she wished for him to know how much his decision had disappointed her, but now when she thought about it again, Iris felt like she was so insensitive. 1

Of course, Cane cared so much about his people, though he didn't show it openly, but she should have known about it in the very beginning and her comment was so insensitive for her to not thinking about his feeling right now. 1

Iris stared outside of the window, feeling guilty, but she couldn't rest her conscience with the thought they were leaving.

It was not that Cane didn't help these people at all, he helped them with the basic thing they needed to survive and even order Grace to heal them, or commanded his warriors to pull the dead bodies and gathered them in one place, so they could give their loved one a proper burial.

However, the alpha wouldn't stay longer than this. He didn't change his mind about leaving.

Feeling guilty, Iris waited for Cane to come into the carriage, since she didn't want to display any defiance in front of his pack member again. Challenging the alpha in public was a crime and Iris was lucky to be able to go out of it unscathed.

However, after waiting for long and when the sun was about to set, it was Aliana, who came into the carriage, instead of Cane.

"You look so disappointed to see me, luna," Aliana teased her. She always had this mischievous smile on her face, maybe because she used to be with children, that's why she used to look happy and positive, even when she didn't even try.

"No, I am not." Iris lowered her head to hide her disappointment.

Aliana didn't pursue the matter further. "We are going now," she said and as if on cue, the carriage started to move.

Iris lifted her head in surprised and looked around. "Where is Cane?"

"Oh, the alpha will bring the rear, just in case there is another attack from the Silver Warrior," Aliana said lightly, watching how Iris's expression fell.

He didn't want to be in the same space like her? Was he that angry with her so he couldn't stand the sight of her? Iris wanted to cry, she had this conflicted feeling.

But when she stared at the window, in hope she could catch a sight of Cane, she noticed something was not right.

"We crossed this path before... are we heading back to the pack house?" Iris shifted her attention to ward Aliana. "This is the street we passed when we were going to leave the Silver River pack."

"Oh, the alpha must have not yet told you about this." Aliana clapped her hands. "He said we will stay for another three days, because there are some warriors that need intensive care and a lot of pack member that got injured during the attack. He opened the pack house's gates for them to come, so Grace could treat them." 1

Iris widened her eyes in disbelief. This was something she didn't imagine would happen. Didn't Cane say, he was not going to stay and would leave as soon as possible? This was unbelievable!

Three days! Cane was actually willing to stay for three more days in this pack and I helped those people!

"Cane said that?" Iris raised her voice and this made Aliana chuckled.

"I think the alpha wanted us to leave this pack because he doesn't want to expose you to more danger, luna." Aliana grinned. "He became so anxious to leave after countless ambush attack, thinking your life might be in danger if we stay here for long." (1

"He wanted to leave because this pack doesn't give any benefit and he only received trouble from the mutineers," Iris corrected Aliana.

"Agreed." Aliana smiled gently. "But, you should have known by now that the alpha loved to mix things up. He is indeed thinking of the benefit, but it doesn't mean he doesn't count you into his consideration. He has a little bit twisted mind." 1

Iris frowned. "Don't talk about Cane like that." 1

Hearing her luna's unhappy tone, Aliana burst into laughter. "You must see your expression right now, luna!"

Iris sulked, she stared at the window, trying to catch a glimpse of a certain black wolf with golden eyes, but she couldn't find the beast, she only got a sight of Lil Thing. The bear looked unhappy because its fur coated by blood.

"The alpha might not show it to you, luna, but he cared deeply with you, or else, he will not listen to you. He knew how much you cared about this pack and didn't want to leave it behind." Aliana took Iris's hands and she shifted her attention toward her. Aliana had the same eyes like Jace and both were so beautiful. "Don't take it to heart when the alpha is being stern with you, because that's how he showed his care." 1Aliana then told Iris about the story when Cane was so mad when Leana was injured during her pregnancy. It was not a big thing, she simply hit her head against a low branch when she walked with her maid, but Cane ordered to cut all the low branches of the trees, inside and outside of the pack house, even the street that someone like Leana wouldn't visit.

"He can be so overprotective." Aliana reminisced the past, while Iris happily listened. She wanted to know more about her mate and how he was before the slavery. What kind of person he was before everything that went down.

With Aliana accompanied Iris inside the carriage, a certain auburn hair didn't feel sad anymore, though it still bothered her because she had not yet met with Cane.

Once they arrived at the pack house again, Iris waited for Cane inside the bedroom, instead of roaming around like she intended to do, because Aliana said the alpha told her to make sure she stayed inside the bedroom. Didn't want to upset Cane even more, Iris obliged him this time, she had defied him more than once today, she didn't want to push her luck with him.

However, Iris couldn't keep her plan straight when she felt so tired and no matter how hard she tried to stay awake, it was already so late and it passed her sleeping hour.

Therefore, when she closed her eyes, she fell into a deep sleep, while Aliana was sitting on the couch, writing a few messages to inform their condition to Jace, so the beta was well informed about their situation.

"You are right, she can't hold back her sleepiness. This is too late for her," Aliana said with a smile when she heard the door was opened and Cane's scent hit her senses before his figure appeared.

"You can leave," Cane said, he dismissed Aliana and sat down on the edge of the bed, next to the sleeping Iris.

"Alpha, don't avoid her like this, she felt so guilty for defying you this morning, don't besaid with a smile when she heard the door was opened and Cane's scent hit her senses before his figure appeared.

"You can leave," Cane said, he dismissed Aliana and sat down on the edge of the bed, next to the sleeping Iris.

"Alpha, don't avoid her like this, she felt so guilty for defying you this morning, don't be too harsh on her," Aliana said before she left. 2

7 1

Vote Fandom Send Gift

Book Badge

The Golden Ticket ranking report for The Alpha: Claimi...

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free,Chapter 569

569 I WILL BE OKAY

Cane entered the bedroom, which he occupied with Iris after he retrieved his bloody cloak from the carriage. He put the cloak down on the table and approached the bed, where Iris was sleeping soundly. 1

Cane didn't say anything when he heard what Aliana said. He stared at Iris's sleeping face, there was a crease between her brows, it seemed, his action really bothered her.

"Leave the cloak, Aliana," Cane said sternly when he saw from the corner of his eyes Aliana was about to take the cloak away because she saw the bloodstain on it. 1

"But, this is dirty and I..."

"Leave it be."

Aliana didn't argue more about it and simply left the bedroom.

"Iris," Cane called her name softly, once Aliana had left him alone with his mate.

He didn't mean to make things difficult for her, but he was not in the right mind, simply there were so many he needed to think through and Iris's presence hindered him from seeing things objectively.

For example, was his sudden decision to stay for another three more days here.

They should have left this pack and not looking back, but the fact they were still here, it meant what Iris said earlier affected him deeper than he wanted. To see her so upset bothered him.

It might be a bad decision to take, but to know Iris would be glad to hear they were going to stay, was enough to offset for him. This was why, he couldn't care too deep... this affected his decision and right now, he needed to focus. 1

"Don't dislike me, Iris." Cane smoothed the crease between her brows. "I have warned you before." 1

Cane had indeed warned her that they would face a situation like this, where she would dislike his decision, but to hear it out loud from her, affected him more than he expected. The alpha leaned over and pressed his lips against hers gently, he lingered for a while before he stood up, took the bloody cloak and left the room, outside there were Eron, Kian and Asher.

"Call Aliana again and told her to sleep inside," Cane ordered one of them. He was not going to sleep tonight, because there was another important matter that he had to take care of and this couldn't be delayed.

This was one of the reasons why his mood was so bleak. Cane looked even more fearful right now, as if his whole figure was shrouded by dark clouds. He looked so dominant and scary. None of them dare to make a small mistake in his presence whenever he was like this.

Not even the gamma...

"Cane, Haco is sleeping. I think you need to let him rest after what happened this afternoon," The gamma said when he was told to call Haco, but he immediately changed his tune once he saw the look on Cane's face. "Right away. I will drag him out of the bed." 1

With that, Ethan immediately rushed to get the sorcerer without trying to help Haco again. He needed to help himself first, right?

Iris had challenged the alpha's order this afternoon in front of so many eyes and Ethan wouldn't be so lucky to be left unscathed like the luna...

It took a while for Ethan to bring Haco to Cane, as the alpha was waiting in the garden, under the pale moonlight, he was sitting on the bench, closing his eyes with his arms folded in front of his chest.

"You can leave."

Cane opened his eyes when he smelled Ethan and Haco's scent, as they came closer to him. He hoped the sorcerer was sane enough to hold a conversation with him, at least, until their business was done.

"Yes, alpha," Ethan said politely, as he retreated after he helped Haco to sit down on the same bench like Cane. He felt so bad to wake him up, especially when he looked so exhausted. He looked so old, as if he had grown older for a few decades by only a few weeks. Did all the magic users like that? Ethan was not sure with the answer.

"What do you want?" Haco asked, he yawned sleepily and tightened the cloak around his body, he felt so cold, even though tonight was rather warm.

"I want you to make it quick." Cane handed over the bloody cloak in his hand and then two magic stones to Haco. 2

The sorcerer narrowed his eyes, he looked a little bit alerted with Cane's request, despite the order was not saying out loud, but he knew what kind of thing that this alpha wanted to be done.

"Whose blood is that?" Haco hated when Cane tricked him just like how he had cursed princess Osana without him knowing it. "One of the royal family again?"

"No."

"Will you tell me whose blood is that?" ①

"No."

"Damn it, Cane. If you want me to end someone else's life, shouldn't I be informed about who it would be?" Haco returned to his old, grumpy self, which something Cane wished for, because this conversation would be hard if he was not in his right mind.

"Just do it, Haco and do it quickly, so that person will not feel any pain."

Haco narrowed his eyes, his brain worked harder this time. "Is this someone close to you? Someone you cared for?" Cane didn't answer the question, but his silence was enough for Haco to know. "Think about this again, don't find yourself regretting this decision later."

"Whatever decision I will take, I will regret it because I can't find a better way." (1

He was going to regret it if he went through with his decision right now, but he would regret it if things escalated to the direction, he feared the most.

When part of your plant was rotten, you cut that part, so it wouldn't affect the other part and caused the death of the said plant. That was what Cane doing right now. 2The part of the plant was too rotten to be saved. The plant might not realize it that it was dying, since the rotten part would spread to the other part of the plan gradually, which eventually became the cause of the death of the plant. That part was too rotten to be saved and Cane needed to cut it off, before it affected the other part.

"Make sure it is a quick and a clean death."

Haco sighed deeply. "I can't understand you, Cane, but then you don't need to explain things to me, because I will forget about it anyway."

"How it feels to forget about everything, Haco?" Cane asked, somehow, he looked genuinely curious, as if he really wanted to know how it felt not to have all of these troubles.

"Well... it's a nice feeling, you only care about things that you love."

"Thing that I love..." Cane repeated it quietly, as he stared at the dark sky, the moon was covered by the cloud and the night was so serene. "I wonder what I will remember, if I really forgot everything..." 1

Haco stared at the bloody cloak and then at Cane. "Are you, okay?" 1

"Hm." Cane nodded. "I will be okay, but not today."

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free, Chapter 570

570 THAT 'THING'

Iris woke up early in the morning and immediately found out Cane was not sleeping in the bedroom, because the side of her bed was still so neat, there was no trace of him whatsoever. She had been so used to wake up to him, thus it felt so strange when she found herself was alone again.

Instead, it was Aliana, who greeted her.

"Don't give me that disappointed look," Aliana said, pouting her lips to feign being angry with Iris for giving her such look. "Don't be too disappointed, the alpha was here last night to check on you when you were sleeping..."

"Why he didn't wake me up? Why he didn't stay?" Iris cut Aliana's explanation. If Cane came over, why he didn't stay and leave immediately?

"Luna, the alpha needs to take care about a lot of things, he changed the plan all of sudden and there were a lot of members of this pack that need to be treated after the attack. I am very sure the alpha really wanted to spend the night with you." Aliana winked at Iris, but it didn't lift her spirit. 1

Iris knew she became so childish and demanded too much, but she couldn't help it, the feeling of being abandoned crept in her heart. She could say, it was not the feeling she wished for anyone to feel. The level of anxiety she felt was insane to think Cane didn't want her anymore.

"Where is Cane?"

"I think the alpha is with Ethan now, they are overlooking this pack and strengthen the territory around the pack house."

"I want to see him," Iris stated, in that case, Aliana couldn't stop her from leaving.

"Okay, but you still need to have your breakfast, okay." Aliana helped Iris to clean herself and get ready for the day.

However, Aliana was clueless with what to do with Iris's hair, aside from styling it into a half bun.

"You don't know?" Aliana was surprised when she asked how to style her hair like the previous day. "Who did it then?"

"Cane did it," Iris said casually, because that was the truth. Before, Hanna would help Iris with her hair and recently, Cane had been such an expert when it came to her hair, he styled her hair better than Iris could. 1

"The alpha did it?!" Aliana was shocked when she learned about it. Ethan must have left this detail in his exaggerated story, or maybe his story was not exaggerated at all. "He did your hair?" 1

Iris looked at Aliana over the mirror in front of her and watched how her jaw dropped in disbelief. 1

"How could you make the alpha do it?"

"I didn't do anything." Iris shook her head.

"When did he start do it for you?"

Iris tried to think about that. "We spent some time on our way back to the Riverside pack and I think he was bored because it was only the two of us, so he did my hair." That explanation didn't help with Aliana's shock, if anything, she became even more speechless. Never she would imagine the alpha was so bored out of his mind and was very idle to learn how to style his mate's hair.

"The alpha must have loved you so much for him to put such an effort." 1

It was a small thing, but you would be able to see how much that person loved you through small things they put their effort into to make your life easier.

Iris grimaced when she heard that. "Cane never said that he loves me," she confided to Aliana. She had never talked about her feeling to someone else, not even with Hanna, because of the way she positioned herself in Iris's life.

Hanna cared for her and there was no doubt in that statement, but Hanna would never be Iris's friend, she would take care of her and always saw her as her 'missy', which with Aliana it was different. 1 Aliana could be a big sister that she had never had and some time, she would be this mischievous friend with wild imagination, which made Iris felt so giddy to hear her crazy thought or how she complained about the warriors and reprimanded them. 1

It felt so refreshing to have Aliana around, while she also taught Iris to know more about the Howling Wolf pack, something that Cane had never done before, since he had a lot of things in his hands.

"Luna," Aliana said gently. "You must havenoticed by now, the alpha will talk more and explain thing into a certain detail, something that he wouldn't do to any of us. Do you know how Ethan threw a tantrum because he said the alpha played favorite, since he always answered your question, but not his?"

Iris giggled when she heard how Aliana was roasting on Ethan so casually.

"The alpha is not good to explain his feeling, but his action must have told you as clear as day how precious you are to him." Aliana ended up put Iris's hair into a half bun. 1

Deep down, Iris knew about that, she felt it whenever Cane tried to make things easier for her and how he compromised a lot. Even though, she still wanted to hear how he said those words, but she thought, she would be content with it right now. Aliana's words lit up her spirit a little bit.

"Oh, luna, I think it will be fine if you were a little bit bold," Aliana said again with this mischievous smile on her lips. "You know that the alpha has been stressed out lately and I think you can cheer him up."

"How?" Iris was listening attentively, if Aliana had an idea how to cheer Cane, she was willing to do anything, not to mention her guilty feeling was still lingering.

Aliana winked at her. "This is the thing that only you can do it," she said secretly.

"Only me?" Iris frowned.

"Oh, luna..." Aliana grimaced when she realized how innocent the luna was. "That 'thing', you can make him feel better."

"What 'thing'?" Iris became frustrated, she narrowed her eyes, became impatient. 2

"Some time, you need to take the initiative. I don't know with the alpha, but I think some men like it." And when Aliana realized Iris still couldn't get it, she lowered her head and whispered to her ear and whatever she said made Iris's face turn red and Aliana had the audacity to laugh at her upon seeing her reaction.

"Aliana!" Iris wanted to cry out of embarrassment, while she didn't stop laughing. 1

"Seraphim, this is my poor great grandson..." Koda didn't waste his time, the moment the Seraphim arrived at his pack along with her entourage after they managed to pass the territory, he immediately took her to his great grandson's nursery room. "He is being cursed by the dark magic user in the palace!" "We just arrived, can't you wait until we take a rest for a while?" Liam protested, but Abby stopped him.

"Let me see your great grandson," Abby said. She walked gracefully, as she entered the nursery room and met with princess Laluna and the baby in her arms.