

Chapter 731

731 ENDLESS WINTER

Now things had escalated like this, Cane didn't have time for a long-winded conversation. What Aliana said bothered him and he wanted to know the truth.

"Cane! Clear your mind! What do you want to do with me?!" Lou immediately opened the window, he was about to escape when he was being dragged back into the room by his legs and to his dread, he saw that black wisp wrapped around his ankle and another black wisp wrapped around his wrist, pulled his body into a starfish position. "Cane! Are you really going to do this?! I will tell Iris if you touched me."

Cane furrowed his brows, he didn't have the energy to deal with his bullshit.

"Cane! No! No! Don't do this! Come back to your senses!" Lou was being loud and noisy, in which Jace, who was outside frowning, but he didn't want to intervene, since Cane didn't call him into the room. "Are you crazy!? Let me go!"

Lou became even more frantic when his mouth was being muffled by the same black wisp and he could feel the fabric of his clothes on his back was being torn, while his body was turned, so his back was facing Cane.

The alpha moved closer and then saw what Aliana meant. He had seen this crest before and this crest could only be seen on the five Holy Knights of the Serafim's sword and yet the same symbol was on Lou's back. It was not like a tattoo, but like a birthmark.

"Don't scream. I want to ask you something," Cane said and he only let go of the black wisp on Lou's mouth when he nodded.

"Cane! How dare you treating me like this!"

"Don't scream." Cane reminded him again.

Lou growled, but he bit his tongue, stopping himself from cursing him out loud. "Let me go!"

"Tell me what is this?"

"What is this? What? I don't understand what you meant." Lou tried to look at Cane, as he was standing a step away from him, staring at his back, which gave him chill. He felt this goosebumps to be stared at with such intensity by man, he wouldn't mind it if it was Iris, though...

"You have birthmark on your back."

"Oh." Lou frowned. "Yeah, I think I did."

"You know the shape of it?"

"I like to see my face on the mirror, not my back." Lou didn't care much about his back, he knew he had birthmark, all the women that he bedded told him that, but he didn't really pay attention to it.

Cane released Lou and he fell to the floor with a thud. The merchant grunted and rubbed his butt.

"Thank you for freeing me," he said sarcastically. "What the hell with your birthmark? How do you know about it?" his first thought was Nala who had told Cane, knowing how infatuated that woman was with him, she supposed to gather information for him, yet she did otherwise? But then Lou remembered the two of them had not yet met for long time.

Lou stood up and faced Cane when he answered him.

"Your birthmark is the same shape like the crest on the Serafim's knights' sword."

"Really?" Lou stood up and went to look at his back on the mirror, but after saying that, Cane carried his baby and walked out of the room.

"We need to go in an hour, prepare yourself," Cane said, as he left.

Meanwhile, Lou was still trying to look at his back on the mirror, as he replied casually. "Yes, yes, yes..." he didn't even realize the alpha used the same tone like when he ordered one of his warriors and Lou seemed to get used with it.

When Cane came out of the room, Zale and Ezra had been waiting for him. No, it was actually the former, since the latter was still afraid to be near him.

"Alpha, my condolence for your loss," Zale said. He stared at the baby in Cane's arms.

"Be ready, we will leave in an hour." Cane went ahead to go to his bedroom with Iris. WW.W.n@v(e)lw@rm.c(e)M

"Alpha, can I meet with Luna?" Zale asked, while Ezra perked up, he was still holding onto Lil Thing, who had not yet woken up, still sleeping peacefully. The creature didn't seem to notice Ezra had been cradling it for days now.

"She is sleeping, you can meet with her later." And with that, Cane closed the door.

An hour later, they were ready to leave for the Howling Wolf pack. Everything went too fast, thus the news about Iris's early labor and the death of one of the babies had not yet reached the Howling Wolf pack. w(w)W.nov@LW@rm.c@m

Iris insisted to carry Rora, while Cane carried Crystal, the baby still very heavy in his arms, it felt like he could drop to his knees, every time he took a step forward.

"Luna, can I see the baby?" Ezra asked timidly, hiding behind Zale's back. His limpid eyes stared at Iris expectantly.

Iris smiled and with the help of Aliana, she bent her body slightly to let Ezra and Zale to see the baby.

"What is her name, Luna?" Zale asked, staring at the baby in awe. The baby reminded him of his dead little sister. He remembered when he saw her for the first time when she was a babe. "She is very beautiful." www.nov@ELW@rm.c@m

"Rora, her name is Rora," Iris replied with hoarse voice. She looked around her and found Cane was talking with Lou, while holding their baby. "Her sister over there is Crystal." www.novelw@Rm.c@m

"I saw her this morning, she is also beautiful," Ezra said in small voice.

Iris nodded, she kissed his forehead. "Yes, she is."

"What are you doing here?" Carla found Kaz and Maria in the Luna's bedroom, they ordered a few people to do something with the room. They prepared two cribs for the babies.

Maria came to her and explained briefly what she was doing. "We still don't know yet about the gender of the babies, but I am sure they must be one boy between the two."

"You are being insensitive, we are facing crisis right now. There are a lot of children and people out there..." but, before Carla could finish her words, Kaz had cut her off.

"You are the one, who agreed to accept them. They are your problem to be solved!" Kaz snapped at her, as he continued to order some guard and servant to décor the entire room with deep blue color and put the crest of their pack on each crib. "Can't you see? The sky finally turns normal, this is a good sign!"

Carla a little bit more and reminded Kaz that he should leave the pack house, but Kaz's influence had ran so deep in this pack, someone as young as Carla couldn't win against him, especially when Maria chimed in.

Therefore, Carla chose to stay away from them and helped with the refugee with Hanna. The orphanage couldn't accommodate more children, it was tricky to arrange their living situation.

In general, the population of children was increased, especially in Riverside pack, where late alpha Gill impregnated as many women as possible and let his warriors to do the same to boost their population, so those children could work in the tunnel.

To get around the problem, all the children on the age of ten had been put in training to be warriors, whether they were boy or girl, with that, they could be more useful in the future, more so, they would know how to protect themselves in time of war like this, so they wouldn't be very helpless.

Amee and Grilla were with Hanna when Carla came over to help.

"I can't make Kaz left the pack house," Carla said to Amee. They were distributing food for the refugee, while the children had been sent to the orphanage this morning.

"It must be hard on you." Amee caressed her head. "I am sorry, I can't help too, Kaz can be very stubborn. Let the alpha deal with him."

Carla looked dejected. "He will be very disappointed that I can't even handle the pack." Though that was what she said, but her mind drifted to Ethan. She wanted to impress him and tell him she had done a great job.

"The alpha will understand." Amee smiled at her.

Grilla, who was listening to Carla's complaint, put the ladle rice to her hand. "Come, help with this. You come to help, right?"

And when they focused on feeding the people, all of a sudden they heard commotion.

"What is that?" Carla immediately rushed to see what was going on and found something that she didn't expect at all.

There they were, the alpha, the Luna and... the gamma, also there were a lot more people came with them. The way they came was the same way like these refugees came.

"It's the alpha!"

"The alpha is back!"

"What is that? Babies?!"

"Are they their babies?!"

"They have twin?!"

There was this uproar when they realized the Luna had given birth, even more when they noticed the two babies in the alpha and the Luna's arms.

This commotion and the way they chanted the alpha and the Luna's name made Kaz and Maria rushed out of the pack house and saw Iris and Cane for the first time after a long time.

"Ah! Is that the Serafim?! The Serafim is here?!"

"And the Holy Knights too!"

People in the Howling Wolf pack greeted her warmly, but all Iris could feel was this endless winter.
