

Chapter 972

972 THE FINAL BATTLE (38)

Abby heard everything. She heard how Elder Rose said that she only loved Ari, the second prince. You didn't even need to use your brain to know that she cheated on her father to be with her lover.

However, Elder Rose condemned her for being with Liam when she didn't even cheat with anyone. The hypocrisy here was very appalling. www.NovelsWorld.com

Did she condemn her because she was born from the man that she didn't love? But, what about her first daughter? Gabriel? Why she treated her way better?

Elder Rose was surprised to see Abby and the way she looked at her, but his main focus right now was Iris and there was an urgent matter they needed to handle.

Meanwhile, Cane didn't seem surprised to see Elder Rose with Iris and when she asked for some time with her, he agreed.

At this point, Iris was too powerful for Elder to harm her.

"I will be with the babies," Cane said.

"Kiss them for me." Iris tiptoed and kissed both Cane's cheeks.

"I will." Cane tilted his head. "Where is my kiss then?"

Iris blushed and it had been a while for Cane to see her blush like this, thus he took the initiative to retrieve his kiss instead.

After Cane left, there were only Iris, Abby and Elder Rose in the empty space near the dungeon. All the warriors stood on guard around them, but they were not too close to listen to their conversation, but not too far, just in case they were needed right away. www.NovelsWorld.com

"Despite everything, the alpha is a goodman. Someone that you can rely on." The tone that Elder Rose used didn't sit well with Iris, since she had told her not to act like that.

"It's not your place to judge. I don't care what you think of him, I don't want to hear any of it." Iris fished out the air magic stone. This magic stone was the only one in this realm, it was made by the first Serafim's last breath. "You can start now."

Abby stared at the air magic stone. She had never touched it before, let alone learned about it. Elder Rose and the other elders had never given her the chance to even take a glimpse of it, but right now, her mother would teach Iris.

Abby felt like this was not her place to stay, thus she chose to walk away. If this would be the end of them, she wanted to be with her baby.

However, Iris caught her hand. "Where are you going?" She frowned. "Stay here. I don't know if she will deceive me or not, I need you to help me."

There was this silence before a smile bloomed on her lips. "Sure."

On the other hand, Cane gave the kisses that Iris entrusted to him to their babies. His firstborn giggled and made baby noise, while his second born only spared him a glance before he fell asleep again.

It was easy to distinguish them, because their second born was smaller than the other and he was a quiet baby, almost never made any sound, unless he was hungry.

"All of you can leave," Cane said. He put down her babies on the bed, side by side, while his firstborn was making noises.

Hanna and Aliana then left the room, but Zale and Lil Thing were still there.

"I said all of you," Cane repeated it again.

"Why? I am the babies' guardian." Zale protested, he hugged Lil Thing. "Lil Thing is here, I will be here too." He showed his stubborn side. "Oh, more so, I have learned your trick with the stone, you need to see this." He tried to buy some time so he could stay a little bit longer.

Cane narrowed his eyes when Zale enthusiastically took out his stone from his pocket, but all of sudden he stopped, his gaze was empty and his eyes shifted into blue color.

"Zale?" Cane frowned. He was alerted when his eyes changed color. It was the same blue like Iris's. He immediately stood up and was about to approach him, but the young boy had shifted into his beast and dashed away from the room without saying anything.

However, it didn't only happen to Zale, because Cedric, Cezi and Lou experienced the same thing. They felt this urge to go, as if there was something that called them, someone... as if this was a duty that they had to fulfill.

"Where are you going?" Ethan frowned at Lou when he suddenly rushed away. They were discussing about the matter in this pack with Jace, but the merchant just left without any explanation.

And miles away from the harbor, amidst the poisonous miasma, someone was staring into the distance, he closed his eyes and breathed deeply.

"It's happening..." Rei sighed. He then shifted his attention back to the man beside him. "Should we go now, Liam?"

Liam didn't answer him, he looked like a person, who was lost in thought. He was not even aware of his surroundings.

At the same time, at the harbor, the chaos had started. The peculiarity of the ocean made all the people felt restless, they tried to figure out what was going on and was panicking because of the uncertainty. They fight started, just like what Cane had predicted.

The shifters and the merchant and also many other people fought to get into the ships, but after two hours of that and the sky had started to turn brighter, it was happening...

It started with an earthquake, but it was stronger than the rest and suddenly there was this huge wave that lifted all the docked ships, this huge wave was akin to waterfall, covered the sky and the shadow of it fell beyond the harbor.

The fight stopped and all the people were shocked, they didn't even know what to do or where to go, it would be too late for them even if they started running away from here. That was it. This was the end of it...

"We are going to die..." It just registered to their mind that they were not able to escape this.

"The water! The water!" One of the merchant pointed his finger to a wall of water before their eyes, it was very high, as if it touched the sky, a large ocean wave.

All of them fell to their knees, accepted their fate. It happened so fast when these immense waves traveled so fast from the opened ocean toward the harbor and then reached the pack.

Shifters and merchant alike, who gathered around the harbor couldn't escape the great impact of it.

However, when these deadly waves close to the pack house, suddenly it hit something, an invisible wall that was strong enough to hold the impact. People rushed closer to the pack house when they watched a wall of water. It almost felt like they were surrounded by the water. It was even higher than the fortress.

People scrambled to get away from it. They were panicking.

But, upon closer look, you would be able to see that the air spirit, Sylph was the reason behind why they were not being washed away by this great wave already.

And of course, behind the Sylph, there was the strong Serafim, who protected them.

"What is going on...?" Abby breathed shakily, as she took a step closer toward Iris, but Elder Rose stopped her.

"Don't bother her! She needed to concentrate! Or else, all of us will die!" Elder Rose took Abby's hand to back away.

There was not enough time for Elder Rose to explain everything to Iris when the earthquake occurred and they realized what was going to happen next. Elder Rose only touched the basic of it and now, Iris had to figure it out on her own.

This was not the first time for Iris to figure things out on her own, she had been doing this, ever since she learned about her ability.

Now with the air magic stone in her hand, she could feel everything clearer. The spirit of the people that died, during this huge wave, the spirit of people and shifters around her. She could feel everyone's spirit. She knew where Cane and their babies were... Aliana, Hanna, Will, Redmond... she could feel them all and knew where they were.

Cedric, Lou, Cezi and Zale went to four different directions, as per Iris's instruction. No, it was not even an instruction, it was the utmost devotion from them. It almost felt like she could control them as she pleased. www.NovelsWorld.com

The four protected a wall of barrier with Iris as the center, it protected them from the giant wave that reached the pack house. They could see how the morning sky was covered by the water from the ocean. It almost like they were living under the water.

Abby could feel how powerful Iris was. She had never felt this immense power from someone else before, not even from Elder Rose when she used the power of the air magic stone.

However, Iris was not only able to feel the spirit from people around her, her power was beyond that. She felt the spirit of the white diamond tiger, Kaz, Maria and people in the Howling Wolf pack and Blue Moon pack.

She could feel Rei and Liam...

Iris opened her eyes and those bright blue eyes looked very lucid. She lifted her hand and flicked her wrist. Slowly, but surely the ocean water was receding, it calmed down.
