

Destined Wife: The Apple of My Eye

Chapter 10 Easy Abortion?

The first day in Lang Family is over. In the following half a month and more, she never sees Lang Ruoxian again. Now she most cares about her baby in the womb. After that, she wants very much to know if Lang Ruoxian is the man who kidnapped her on that day.

“Uncle Lee said you have very good appetite,” Lang Hongyue says to her in the car when she is taking Yan Hua to receive the prenatal medical examination.

Yan Hua’s hands feel her own face. Yes, she does have very good appetite.

Now she not only has access to night snacks. Even more, a dedicated house maid in Lang Family cooks for her. Now it seems she has a round face?

“That’s good,” Lang Hongyue is quite satisfied, “You should sleep well and eat well, just for the baby. Well, has my nephew caused any trouble to you?”

Lang Hongyue came back yesterday from another city on business. But she often called Yan Hua. Probably she was afraid that Yan Hua might run away or might be killed by someone...

“No,” said Yan Hua. For some reason she doesn’t know, Yan Hua doesn’t want to tell what happened on the first night when she came to Lang Family, “He seems to be quite busy. We seldom meet.”

“Well, he is of course very busy,” Lang Hongyue says in a mocking way, “He is new in the company and is busy getting himself established. Are we so stupid as not to know what he is doing these days?”

Before they reach the hospital, Lang Hongyue never stops saying bad words about Lang Ruoxian. Yan Hua just nods occasionally without saying anything except an “Oh” sometimes.

When reaching the hospital invested by Lang Family, the waiting doctor shows Yan Hua in and starts to give her the prenatal medical examination.

“Auntie?” Lang Hongyue, waiting at the door, raises her head just to find Lang Ruoxian approaching her.

She frowns, “Why are you here?”

“I am here to receive the post-surgery medical examination,” Lang Ruoxian looks indifferent. It is known that he received the heart surgery before coming back to Lang Family.

Lang Hongyue continues to frown, “But this is the Gynecology and Obstetrics Department.”

“I saw the car of Auntie downstairs, guessing you must bring the sister-in-law for medical examination. So I just stop by to have a look,” Lang Ruoxian smiles, “Are my sister-in-law and her baby all right?”

Lang Hongyue feels he had strange tone when talking about the baby just now. But before she has deeper thinking, the doctor comes out.

“Lady Hongyue, Madam Hua is very healthy without the pregnancy vomit.”

“Baby?” Lang Hongyue stops him, “What about the baby in her womb?”

The doctor responds quickly, “Also very well. The baby is well because the mother is well.”

When Yan Hua goes out, she finds Lang Ruoxian standing silently behind the doctor. Seeing her, the man nods with his mouth corner curving a little bit.

“...Dabo (meaning “elder brother-in-law”, pronounces the same with “eldest uncle” in Chinese),” she forces herself to say hello.

The man’s smile withers, “Yan Hua.”

Yan Hua does not see him anymore, feeling her mental disorder is about to break out.

Lang Hongyue and Yan Hua leave the hospital. The doctor also goes back to his office, and sees Lang Ruoxian coming in.

“Childe Ruoxian,” he stands up.

Lang Ruoxian shakes his head, “Show me the medical report of Yan Hua.”

“What?” The doctor does not quite understand.

Lang Ruoxian sits down, taking the medical report on the desk, which carries the name of Yan Hua in it.

“Childe Ruoxian, what do you mean?” The doctor asks nervously. He stands on the side of Lang Hongyue and knows some information about Lang Family.

Lang Ruoxian doesn't respond. After reading the report, he asks, “Is abortion easy in the first three months of pregnancy?”
