

Rising from the Ashes (Andrew) Chapter 1159

---- Chapter 1159 "I'm here to meet with Supreme Capital Group, not you," Christina said sharply.

"You declaring anythingdon't you think that's completely pointless?" Aspen gave a sly smile.

"Then you're the one who's confused.

You might not have heard, but Supreme Capital Group is anew company founded by Andrew and me right here in Blumedale.

"You tried borrowing money from your old rival? Christie, looks like you're not doing so well in this city after all." Christina's face flushed bright red with embarrassment.

"What did you just say? Supreme Capital Group was founded by you and Andrew? That's impossible.

The company's registered capital is 50 billion! You and Andrew could afford that? Do you even hear how ridiculous that sounds?" Her composed expression crumbled, replaced by panic and disbelief.

Aspen felt incredibly satisfied seeing the humiliation on Christina's face.

Without saying another word, she pulled out her phone and showed her the company's registration license, Christina took one look, and her face turned ghostly pale, frozen in disbelief.

---- It was realSupreme Capital Group truly belonged to Andrew and Aspen.

How could they possibly have that kind of funding or power? Even Irene and Leroy stood there in stunned silence, their expressions caught somewhere between awe and horror.

"A 50-billion-dollar company? Where the hell did you two get that kind of money?" Leroy asked, eyes wide.

Aspen snorted.

"Get lost.

It's none of your business." Irene, flustered and furious, lashed out.

"Aspen! No matter what, Christina is still your cousinyour family! Why are you acting so.

high and mighty now? If you won't help your family, at least don't rub salt in the wound! Do you even have a heart?" Aspen's voice turned icy.

"Irene, I've seen right through your whole family along time ago.

Pulling the family card now only makes me sick." Irene fumed and lunged forward, ready to strike.

"Mom, stop!" Christina shouted.

She stared at Aspen, eyes filled with suspicion.

"The company is registered under Andrew's name.

50 billion...

Aspen, you're not dumb.

Do you really believe Andrew has that kind of money? Are you sure you're not being scammedcompletely and utterly?" -- -- Aspen scoffed.

"Keep lying to yourself if that makes you feel better.

Let me tell you somethingAndrew's depth is way beyond what you think you know.

And honestly, I should be thanking you.

Your blindness and your games are what gave me this chance to rise." Christina gritted her teeth.

"So you're fully committed to being one of Andrew's people now? Don't you feel the slightest bit ashamed?" A warm, almost unnatural flush spread across Aspen's cheeks as she smiled confidently.

"Ashamed? Not even a little.

You threw yourself at Andrew time and time again, and he didn't even give you the time of day.

But I learned from my mistakes, and now, I've become his right- hand woman.

Who knowsmaybe someday, I'll become the one sharing his bed.

Christina, the man you couldn't win over? T already did.

That's the difference between you and me." The sting of those words made Christina wish she could disappear into the floor.

Right now, Aspen had everything and it was not just more, it was leagues above.

Meanwhile, Irene and Leroy were spewing curses from the side.

But despite their outrage, it was obvious to anyone watching that this greedy, shallow mother-and-son duo was seething with jealousy.

Irene muttered, "Christie, perhaps we were fools to give up on ---- kissing up to Andrew." "Yeah, Christie, maybe we should try again.

That man is a towering force now.

He's unstoppable." Both of them were clearly tempted, ready to switch sides again at the drop of a dime.
