

The First Heir 135

Chapter 135

After they left the clinic, Wynn brought Philip to a cafe nearby and ordered two cups of coffee.

“Philip, now that I’ve lost my job, what should we do?” She said worriedly.

Earlier, she had resigned from her job on an impulse. She was beginning to regret it.

Beacon paid her rather well, and they needed money urgently.

Philip shrugged. “Don’t worry, I’m still here. I’ll make sure that you and our daughter won’t starve,” he said calmly.

“Should I go talk to Chairman Hall?” Wynn asked him, blinking.

That was one of the very few times she asked for Philip’s opinion.

She had this impression that Philip had changed. Somehow, he became more dependable and made her feel safe.

“I think that your Chairman Hall will give you a call soon. He’ll be begging you to go back to work,” Philip said calmly.

Wynn was surprised, then rolled her eyes at Philip. “That’s just your imagination. Didn’t you see just now that I told him I quit in front of his face?”

“Whatever. I’m not going to dwell on it for too long. I’ll just go find another job.”

Philip was silent for a while. “Tell me, Wynn, do you like working in that company?”

“I like it. My colleagues are nice to me,” Wynn said.

She continued talking about her experiences in the company.

Philip listened to her attentively. He then excused himself to go to the washroom and made a call there. Soon, Henry Turner’s voice was heard over the phone. “What can I do for you today, Mr. Clarke?”

“You can proceed with discussing the collaboration between Turner’s Hospital and Beacon. Remember, you only want to negotiate the terms with Wynn Johnston,” Philip said calmly.

Mr. Clarke. I’ll arrange for that,” Henry said subordinates to carry out the order,

currently seething

lover was caught in an affair, and the manager

hell is

that time, his phone

the phone and said angrily, 'Who the hell are you? I told you before, no salesmen! I'm not interested in buying new

a salesman.'" A voice

Henry Turner?

He stood up from collaboration between Beacon Pharmaceutical and Turner's Hospital

Henry Turner, the luminary of the medical world, by salesmen recently and it's been driving me crazy," Derrick explained hastily, "Why did you call me though,

around the bush. "After doing my research on the various pharmaceutical companies in Riverdale,

'Collaborate with Beacon?'

nearly jumped with that his dream collaboration

this finally a

Turner? Are you really going

there's a

you may have. It is my honor to be able to collaborate with Turner's Hospital."

the terms of this collaboration with Wynn Johnston from your company, and I can only the contract signed today if possible. Otherwise, we might go and

'Wynn Johnston?'

it. "Alright, alright, Professor Turner. I'll

the call ended, Derrick

want to sign

he knew

'Oh no!