Chapter 1391

Young Master Clarke?

The woman shuddered and suddenly thought of something!

A few years ago, Nigel had mentioned that person to her. She had never seen such excitement and respect in Nigel before.

To the extent, as long as the name of that person was mentioned, Nigel would involuntarily stand in awe!

“You mean Philip Clarke, that Young Master Clarke?” The woman looked at Nigel in surprise.

Nigel had said that without Young Master Clarke, there would be no Nigel Lambert today!

Back then, Philip had casually given him five billion in start-up capital to unify the entire business sector in Cloudside, which naturally also included the underground forces.

At that time, five billion was really a lot of money!

Nigel also lived up to Philip’s expectations. It only took him five years to have the title of the richest man in Cloudside.

He had also completely integrated the underground market of Cloudside!

In Cloudside, the main business was jade. Large and small jade stores could be seen everywhere in the city of Cloudside.

Philip left the ward. At the door, he met Lydia Jensen who was frantically hurrying over.

At this moment, her face was already full of tears. She was whimpering as she exclaimed, "Brother Philip, it's all my fault I couldn't protect Sister Wynn and little Mila. Boo-hoo..."

Philip swept her into his arms, stroked her head, and said, "It's okay, I'll take care of it. Take good care of your injuries here and spend more time with Wynn, okay?"

Lydia nodded and said, "Yes, Brother Philip. Don't worry, leave Sister Wynn to me."

Philip smiled before leaving the hospital with his men.

At the door, several black Mercedes were already parked.

When Giada heard the words, her hand holding the pot of coffee trembled and some tea spilled onto the coffee table.

However, it was only a momentary distraction. Giada continued to pour the warm coffee and handed a cup of it to Roger very respectfully. She was smiling elegantly as she said, "Old Master, I don't quite understand what you mean by that."

Giada was very flustered at the moment.

Had Roger found out anything?

It should not be likely. She hid everything so well.

Roger stared at Giada's beautiful face for a while before he took the coffee cup in her hand and said calmly, "Stop your hands from shaking. You're the second madam and representative of the Clarke family. I don't care what you do in private. As long as it doesn't impact the fundamental interests of the Clarke family, I'll close one eye. This is my tolerance for you.

"But if you ever think of destroying the foundation of the Clarke family, then the Wallis family will be the first to disappear from this world. Do you understand?"

After Roger spoke, he gazed at Giada's face.

Giada forced a smile and said, "Old Master, you're right. I understand."

Then, Roger left the hall under the escort of Shadow Squadron.

Hearing this, everyone got up, tidied their appearance, and followed Rachel to the most heavily guarded part of the manor—the study.

“My lord.”

They entered the study, saw the lord who was practicing calligraphy behind the white curtain, and greeted him respectfully.

The figure behind the curtain was currently waving his brush profusely. When he was done writing with flair, he could not help laughing and said, “How wonderful! Everyone, come here and have a look. How is my calligraphy?”

Rachel lifted the curtain, picked up the long copybook on the table, and walked over to everyone. She showed the copybook to them.

When they saw the words, everyone trembled and immediately knelt on the ground as they shouted respectfully, “Lord, please forgive our recklessness and ignorance!”

Hmph!

A cold rebuke sounded from behind the curtain.

Chester Ludwig nodded and asked coldly, “How much longer will it be?”

“Almost. Half an hour to go.”

The man in a jacket replied before saying doubtfully, “Master Ludwig, the entire Cloudside is now full of Lambert family’s people. I’m afraid the car will be detained as soon as it enters. Do we need to change the route?”

Chester smiled as a chill flashed in his eyes. He said, “No need. I never planned to go to Country R at all. It was just a bait to lure the big fish here so that it’s more convenient for us to make a move.”

After a moment of silence, Chester turned around and said to the man, "Send my instructions. Tell the people lying in ambush to get ready. Also, tell Dan and the others to wait a mile outside the city. No one is allowed to enter the city without my orders!

"Also, tell the people in Country R to enter the city. Find an opportunity to make the trade in Cloudside.

"As for the little girl, arrange someone to keep an eye on her. There can be no mistakes. That's our trump card to deal with emergencies!"

The man in a jacket immediately replied respectfully, "Yes, Master Ludwig!"

After that, he turned around and left the hotel.

Chester stood in front of the large French window with a deep coldness at the corner of his mouth.

Chester smiled and ordered his subordinates to pour two glasses of red wine for Kinley and Sidney. He raised his glass, saying, "Come on, cheers. Let's wish our cooperation a success."

At the same time, in the mountains about one kilometer away from Cloudside.

A speeding Buick stopped in the rainstorm, its wipers flicking back and forth.

Inside the car, three burly men cursed at the horrible weather.

The man in the front passenger seat had a fierce look on his face. There was a deep scar on the corner of his mouth from getting injured by someone back then.

He was talking on the phone at this moment, nodding while saying, "Okay, I understand."

After saying this, he hung up the phone and said to the rest of the men in the car, "Look for a hotel nearby to settle down. We won't be going to Cloudside."

The subordinates asked in confusion, “Master Lambert, who the hell is that who can make you so respectful to him?”

Nigel turned around, glared at his subordinates, and said, “Don’t ask so many questions!”

Soon, different vehicles sped past, such as Mercedes, Maybach, Bentley, and Rolls-Royce. They were all from the Lambert family’s mansion and company building. They were driving on the main road in Cloudside, heading toward the entrance of the city!

This scene naturally shocked the people of Cloudside!

The pedestrians on the street and the customers who came to Cloudside for jades looked at the luxury cars that weaved through the rain. They were all full of surprise.

“Holy sh*t! Isn’t this the Lambert family’s convoy?”

“Yes, such a grand spectacle. What’s going on?”

“Look, they’re heading toward the entrance of the city. Is it possible that someone important is coming to Cloudside?”

A group of onlookers chatted incessantly!

Such a magnificent pompadour had never been seen in Cloudside before!

Even on the day when Nigel took over Cloudside and became the richest man as well as the leader of the underground forces, the commotion was only half the scale of the one in front of them!

Whoosh!

The tires screeched across the ground, splashing rain all over the place. The cars then stopped at the entrance to the city.

Nigel immediately took the umbrella handed to him by his men, opened it with a bang, and briskly walked over to the second Mercedes.

He stood respectfully at the door of the car, bent over, and greeted, "Young Master Clarke."

The car window rolled down, revealing a young face with a trace of indifference.

This scene appeared in everyone's sight.

However, most people could not see the face behind the car window at all.

Due to the heavy rain and also Nigel partially blocking the view, everyone could only see a general outline.

Very young!

"Gosh, no way! How could a big shot be so young?"

At those words, the entrance of the Lambert family's mansion quickly quietened down!

Only the sound of rain and the occasional muffled thunder could be heard.

Almost all the business leaders and heads of the underground forces in Cloudside standing at the entrance were looking at Chester and his men with hostile cold eyes.

Too arrogant!

This was the Lambert family of Cloudside!

This was Nigel Lambert's mansion!

In Cloudside, who would dare to talk to the Lambert family like this?

Chester Ludwig and Nigel Lambert used to be very close buddies.

However, changes in circumstances had altered their relationship drastically!

The once good buddies had become opposing rivals.

"Haha, Nigel, are you so afraid of me?" Chester said with a smirk.

Nigel frowned, turned around, and stared coldly at Chester. He asked grimly, "What exactly do you want? I believe there's nothing between us anymore."

After not seeing him for 20 years, Chester had become even more unfathomable.
