

The First Heir 1571

Chapter 1571

Almost the instant Philip finished speaking...

Clatter!

Several black modified anti-riot vehicles quickly rushed out from the street!

Dozens of heavily armed combatants wearing black combat uniforms, black berets, and black combat boots jumped down from the vehicles and quickly surrounded the place!

Seeing this scene, everyone was dumbfounded!

Immediately after!

Fitter-patter!

The sound of dense combat boots stepping on the ground was heard from behind!

The crowd looked for the sound and saw dozens of heavily armed combatants in neat rows running from the street. They were all wearing berets and goggles, each holding blast shields and riot batons. They quickly swarmed in!

“Drop your weapons! Violators will be killed!”

“Do not resist and crouch on the ground!”

“On the ground and drop your weapons!”

Very soon, all those gangsters outside the building were pinned to the ground by the combatants who rushed in!

There was no resistance at all!

Webster was still baffled when Philip had already switched on the video application on his phone. He tuned in to the news channel.

"Urgent broadcast! Loyale Group has been exposed to be involved in corruption, exchange of benefits, and huge tax evasion. It's currently being investigated by authorities!"

When this news was broadcasted, Webster felt his head heating up with a surge of blood.

He staggered a few steps back and fell to the ground, his breathing turning rapid.

How could this happen?

Webster had dealt with these problems a long time ago, so why were they being exposed now?

Immediately after...

“From the latest news received, Loyale Group’s largest shareholder, Webster Shaw, has been suspected of gray transactions and will be investigated. Currently, Loyale Group and Mr. Shaw’s private villa have been cordoned off.”

Seeing Philip who suddenly broke in, Martin and Bernard's expressions changed drastically. There was fear and anger on their faces!

"You... How did you get here?" Bernard stammered at this moment, his voice trembling.

There were many bodyguards stationed at the gate. When he looked at the combatants behind Philip, Bernard felt a chill down his back.

What was this situation?

Where did Philip find these people?

Panic!

Bernard was so flustered that he kept casting his eyes to Martin next to him.

Although Martin was also flustered, he still pretended to be calm and shouted solemnly, "Philip Clarke, you're too presumptuous! How dare you break into my villa?! Men, take them down for me!"

Philip shook his head helplessly and said, "So unreasonable."

Then, he said to the captain of the Clarke family's guards behind him, "Take care of this as soon as possible and avoid any bloodshed. Capture those two alive. They're Wynn's uncles, after all."

The captain nodded and replied, "Yes, Young Master Clarke."

After that, the atmosphere became unbearably tense! Martin was so angry that he could not care less and roared, "Take them down for me!"

Instantly, two groups of people broke out in a frightening battle in this villa.

However, this battle soon ended and it was obvious what the result was.

How could these miscellaneous bodyguards Martin and Bernard found compare to the Clarke family guards? They were the elite of the elites, and their skills were naturally extraordinary.

In less than ten minutes, the battle was over. A group of people was sprawled all over the ground, clutching their arms and legs, groaning and howling.

“What...?”

Bernard was extremely scared now. When he saw his brother being kicked away by Philip just now, he felt the fear welling in his heart.

He was originally from a poor family and had never seen such a scene before.

Even if he was given the position of king, he could not comfortably sit on the throne.

Philip turned around and walked toward Bernard one step at a time.

Facing the approaching enemy, Bernard panicked as he stepped back and shouted, “Philip, don’t come over. I was wrong, I admit it. I’ll return the company to you. I don’t want the Villa either.”

Bernard was completely scared. He knelt on the ground with a thud and burst into tears.

Philip raised his hand, thought about it, and put it down again. Then, he walked to the sofa and sat down. He lit a cigarette, took a deep puff, and exhaled a smoke ring. He said, “From today onward, you won’t have any positions in Beacon. Don’t let me see you again. Otherwise, I won’t let you off so lightly again!”

Hearing this, Bernard acted as if he had received a royal pardon and quickly got up to run.

Martin’s face darkened as he said, “Let’s go and see how it is first. If nothing else works, we can only agree. After all, this is our last chance.”

The car left First Palace and drove straight to Cirrus Villa.

Theo was chased after them and reached the door. He glanced at the leaving vehicle and said to his subordinates, “Go after them and keep a close watch. Remember, don’t reveal your presence and you must report the other party’s every movement.”

“Yes, Master Theo!”

The three men quickly drove after the Johnston brothers.

Soon, Martin’s car arrived at the entrance of Cirrus Villa. He gave his name, and the electronic gates of the villa opened. The car slowly drove in.

Inside the lavish lobby, Giada Wallis was in a long beige dress with a mink fleece draped over her shoulders. She held a white Persian cat with different colored eyes in her arms. On the sofa in front of her sat Martin and Bernard.

Vivian nodded and exited the hall respectfully.

Giada stood in the hall and said to herself, "Philip, this is a generous gift from me to you and Wynn. I hope you enjoy it."

Meanwhile, Theo's men had hurried back to First Palace. They ran into the living room and respectfully said to Philip who was sitting on the sofa, "Mr. Clarke, Master Theo, they went to Cirrus Villa."

Vivian took off her wide sunglasses and said directly, "Madam told me to tell you that Martin and Bernard are Madam's people. She hopes you won't make things too difficult for them. Moreover, from today onward, the two of them will have no connection to Beacon Group."

After saying that, Vivian turned around and wanted to leave.

Philip raised his eyebrows and made a sudden movement to grab Vivian's arm with one hand.

Vivian frowned, turned around, and raised her leg high to kick Philip's neck!

Philip stepped sideways and dodged the kick.

"Young Master Clarke, please watch yourself!" Vivian coldly said while turning back around, swaying her hips as she got into the car and left.

Philip chuckled and said, "How extraordinary. I haven't seen her so powerful before. I didn't expect that she would improve so quickly after not seeing her for so long."

Theo had been standing behind Philip and was shocked when he saw Philip suddenly make a move.

The guards of Cirrus Villa had surrounded Philip and 17 at this moment, their faces looking grim.

It seemed that if Philip were to make any aggressive movements, they would swarm over and take him down!

"Young Master Clarke, this is Cirrus Villa, not Arcadia Island. Here, only Madam has the final say."

At this time, the captain of the guards walked out from behind the crowd while dressed in a black suit.

He had a burly figure, a tough face, and tanned skin.

Philip raised his eyebrows and looked over. The corners of his mouth formed a small smile as he said, "If I want to go in, are you going to stop me?"

The captain's face darkened and he replied, "Madam has given an order that she won't be meeting any guests today no matter who shows up. I hope you won't give us a hard time, Young Master Clarke."

"Is that so? From what you're saying, are you going to make a move against me?" Philip's face darkened as he took a step forward and stood directly in front of that captain. Sparks flew as their gazes collided with each other.

Perhaps he was unable to withstand the pressure, or perhaps he was afraid of Philip's identity, the captain said, "Young Master Clarke, I don't dare to make a move against you, but it's our duty to stop you."

After saying that, all the guards behind him put their hands on their waists, ready to take Philip down. and I don't want to do anything to you either.

As a result, Philip's kick was faster than the opponent's and landed squarely on the captain's stomach. The latter flew back, knocked over several people behind him, and fell heavily to the ground!

"I'm not killing you because you're doing your duty! Now, I'm warning you once more, get out of my way!"

Philip was furious. Cold intent and sparks were bursting out of his eyes!

He wanted to go in and ask Giada what she intended to do.

Was she involved in Martin Johnston's incident?

If so, Philip would definitely not let her go!

The captain who fell to the ground stood up with the help of his men, wiped the blood that spilled from the corner of his mouth, and shouted sullenly, "Young Master Clarke, you can't get through today! Take him down!"
