

The First Heir 1641

Chapter 1641

Philip stayed with Wynn in the hospital until the evening. After completing various tests, Wynn was discharged from the hospital and was ready to return to the hotel.

There was nothing serious about her condition but the people around her were too nervous. After all, Wynn was about to give birth.

Philip personally drove the car and did not allow Heath and his men to follow them. After all, Wynn was not aware of his power in Uppercreek. There were certain things he could not tell her just yet.

After the matter involving Beacon and Martin Johnston was resolved and he took Wynn back to Arcadia Island, the time would be almost ripe.

The car turned into a remote lane and they were almost less than two blocks away from the hotel. Suddenly, three vans flanked from the front and back, blocking Philip's car.

Philip was shocked and slammed on the brakes!

At the same time, he reached out to grab hold of Wynn, who was sitting in the front passenger seat. He almost got thrown out!

Instantly, Philip got angry. If not for his quick reflexes just now, an accident would have definitely happened!

A blonde young man wearing a leather jacket with a sleek appearance led four or five underlings out of the van.

More than a dozen people got down from the three vans. They stepped forward, knocked on the car window, and said, "Get out of the car! Hurry up or we'll smash the car!"

"You two, hurry up and get down! Or else, we'll smash the car!"

"Get down now!"

"How dare you disobey Chad's orders? Do you know who Chad works for?"

Wynn's delicate face was pale as she nervously grabbed Philip's hand and said, "What should we do? Let's call the police!"

Philip looked around and said, "Don't be hasty. If we call the police, I'm afraid it'll only anger them. If they smash the car, you'll get hurt"

"What should we do then?" Wynn was so anxious she almost burst into tears.

Philip looked at Wynn tenderly and said, "Wynnie, do you trust me?"

"W-what do you want to do?" Wynn looked at Philip with uncertainty. Although she did not know what Philip was about to do, her heart still shook when she saw Philip's sincere and gentle eyes. She gritted her teeth and said, "I trust you. What are you going to do?"

Philip smiled, took out his phone, and quickly found a number. He said, "Call this person and say that Philip Clarke has run into some trouble. Then, close your eyes."

With that said, Chad raised the long dagger in his hand and stabbed Philip's arm viciously while shouting, "Let me take one arm first!"

They had thought that Philip would crouch on the ground in fear, or simply pass out in fear. To their surprise, Philip did not even dodge. Instead, he smiled oddly at Chad at this critical moment.

Chad's heart jolted! Those were not eyes that belonged to a sheep. Cold, cunning, and contempt for everything. This was clearly a wolf that ate people without spitting out bones!

He must be taken down quickly, otherwise...

As the thought flashed across his mind, Chad's blade took a turn and aimed for Philip's chest instead!

Years of instinct honed by living on the edge of the knife told Chad that if the person in front of him was not killed in time, he would be in big trouble!

However, it was already too late.

Before Chad's blade could touch him, Philip had already dodged the attack and retaliated with a heavy punch on Chad's body!

F*ck, how could this kid be so aggressive? His skills were too awesome!

All of them were thugs who made a living by fighting, but nearly 20 of them could not handle one Philip Clarke.

At this time, a punk quietly snuck behind Philip and raised the steel pipe high to smash into the back of Philip's head.

To his surprise, Philip seemed to have eyes on his back. He unhurriedly dodged his head to the side and lifted his leg, kicking the punk's crotch. Instantly, the punk almost fainted from unbearable pain!

Crack!

Everyone present had a sympathetic expression on their face.

All of them knew this was the sound of shattered balls. The punk who was kicked fell to the ground with a face full of pain while covering his crotch with his hands. His body was hunched like a shrimp, and he could not help rolling back and forth.

After all, no man could bear this kind of pain.

He turned his head and saw a middle-aged man with his hair combed back jogging over while glaring at him coldly.

It was one of the three lords of Uppercreek, Victor Bell!

Master Eight immediately began sweating and lost all his arrogance from before!

Although he was known as one of the four underground kings of Uppercreek, he knew full well that he and Victor were not on the same level at all.

Master Eight was simply a boss on the streets and made a living through gang activities without much of a background. He just relied on his seniority and a large number of underlings.

As for Victor Bell, he had a huge background and owned countless businesses in Uppercreek. His wealth and power made him reign at the top of Uppercreek's underground forces.

In front of Victor, Master Eight was no more than a minion.

"M-Master Bell, what brings you here?"

Master Eight was a little flustered, wondering if the boss behind scenes had not only engaged him but also found Master Bell to thwart Philip.

Before Victor finished speaking, Philip quickly grabbed Victor and pointed behind him.

Since just now, the sounds of fighting had ceased.

Wynn had already rolled down the car window slightly, peeking out to check the situation.

Victor quickly changed his tone when he noticed that. "Oh, he's a relative of Hoyt Luther, the director of the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce! How dare you stop his car! Are you tired of living?"

Hearing that, Master Eight was shocked.

Master Eight was already in his 50s and had always held an average position among the underground forces in Uppercreek.

In terms of seniority, he was considered a veteran with many underlings.

However, in terms of power, he was far beneath Victor. The biggest reason was that he did not have a background in business.

Now, this person he had surrounded was a relative of the director of the chamber of commerce, Hoyt Luther! No wonder Victor thought so highly of him!

If Master Eight knew that Philip was in fact the founder of the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce, he might even pass out.

The elegant woman sitting on the sofa smiled as she looked at Wynn and nodded. Then, she turned her gaze to Philip and said with a smile, "Phil, don't you want to introduce your fourth mother?"

Only then did Philip smile and help Wynn sit down. He said, "Wynn, this is my fourth mother."

Fourth mother?

Wynn was startled as her eyes doubtfully fell on Philip as she asked, "Father-in-law's fourth love..."

Philip quickly cut her off and made eyes at her.

The graceful woman chuckled and said, "It's okay, Phil. What Wynn said is true."

Wynn realized her slip of the tongue and quickly laughed to cover her embarrassment while saying, "Sorry, Fourth Mother."

The woman smiled and took a delicate small gift box from the bodyguard behind her with her jade-like hands. She handed it to Wynn with a smile and said, "It's our first meeting and I don't know what you like, so I just prepared a random gift for you. I hope you don't mind."

Philip leisurely took a sip of tea and said, "What did my dad say?"

"What can he say? He avoided the confrontation all three times, which means you need to solve it yourself," Hazel said and grumbled a little, "I wonder what your dad is thinking. How can you solve such a big matter by yourself? That's the chieftain of the branch family. He represents the entire branch family."

When Hazel said this, she was expressing her worries for Philip.

Philip chuckled and said, "Fourth Mother, do you trust me and my dad?"

Hazel was taken aback and said, "Of course, how could I not trust the two of you?"

“In that case, you can keep your worries to yourself. I know what I’m doing. If the branch family dares to cross the line, the ending that awaits them won’t be pleasant,” Philip said flatly.

Wynn raised her eyebrows, looked at Philip, and said with a faint smile, “No. If you want to tell me, I’m willing to listen. If you don’t want to, then don’t. I’ll wait for the day you’re willing to tell me.”

Philip was taken aback. He looked at Wynn and watched as she played with Mila with her bulging stomach. A strong feeling suddenly surged in his heart.

He walked over, hugged Wynn from behind, and leaned on her shoulder while saying, “Wynn, one day you’ll know that your husband is not a wastrel. On that day, you’ll be the happiest woman in the world. This is what I promise you.”

Wynn smiled, her small fair hand grasping Philip’s big hand. She said tenderly, “I know. All along, I’ve known in my heart you’re not what they say. I’ve been waiting, hoping that this day will come soon. In fact, even if you’re really worthless, you’re still my husband and Mila’s father, do you understand?”

Philip nodded and said, “I understand.”

After being intimate for a while, Philip took Wynn and Hazel out for dinner at a high-end restaurant nearby.

After that, he said to Wynn, "I think it's better to let them know about some things."
