

The First Heir 3311

Chapter 3311

The few people who just tore the beasts apart with their bare hands looked at Philip with hostile eyes.

At this time, Philip was a prized merit in their eyes.

The captain of Draco Corps added, "Philip, I have to admit that you're very strong, and I can't beat you. But the Eight Berserks on the upper floor of the ancient dragon royal family aren't an existence you can easily deal with either."

Philip was ready to fight with the Caelum Sword in his hand.

Philip was not only powerful in elemental talents but had also comprehended the rules of swordsmanship and space long ago. Although he did not know the strength of the Eight Berserks or what was so special about them, he felt no fear at all.

At this time, the eight people unleashed their overwhelming aura on Philip.

Since they were called the Eight Berserks, they must have their own unique traits. However, when Philip was about to attack, he heard a distant voice coming from the fortress.

It was a woman's voice, seemingly chanting in a low voice. The syllables were not clear, but the melody sounded ancient and everlasting.

no one felt anything strange about it. However, Philip's face suddenly changed when he heard the voice. That was because he was very familiar with this voice,

Their actions simply angered Philip more, but they did not know it. They even thought that Philip was surrendering to them.

Only the wood elemental talent had a different idea.

At first, he thought his attack was a success, but he suddenly realized that Philip's fire element was like a parasite to his element.

It was draining his strength. Seeing that the others were fast approaching Philip, he wanted to stop his attack. However, suddenly, he felt a sword across his neck.

"How dare someone with a level 3S wood element like you make a fool of yourself in front of me?!"

This was Philip's voice, and he had no idea how Philip appeared here out of the blue.

Although it was just one word, no one else but Philip could have reacted so quickly at this time.

When Philip finally stood steady, he saw long-awaited sunshine.

This must be the other side of the space gate, a one-way teleportation portal with only one chance to use it.

He realized that this was the same place he had arrived in. This should be the upper floor.

An electronic key appeared out of thin air in his hand, but he did not recognize this key. However, he knew that as long as he inserted the electronic key into his communicator, he would know all the information about the key.

“This place was left to us by the hero back then. Just because Starfire Alliance wants to build a base here, you’re going to chase the descendants of the hero away from here?”

Philip frowned.

He did not know what had happened, but from their conversation, he discerned something.

Starfire Alliance wanted to occupy this land and make them move away. However, he had no idea what the so-called descendants of the hero meant.

In this current situation, he could not go over and ask either.

“What bullsh*t hero are you talking about? If you didn’t have Starfire Alliance to develop various defense systems, you’d have died in the previous turmoil. How dare you speak to me about that useless hero now?!”

Philip had just received the key, and there might be clues left by his mother hidden in this house, so there was no way he would allow them to destroy it.

He quickly used his earth element to build an earth wall right in front of the house. Although this method blocked Starfire Alliance's attack, it also angered that woman.

"I really didn't expect that someone from Montana Alliance would dare to oppose Starfire Alliance. In that case, I don't have to hold back anymore!"

After saying this, she was about to rush toward Philip.

He felt a strong fluctuation of the water element from her.

Several water jets gushed out next to the woman like water dragons and pierced through the earth wall. They circled around and swirled toward Philip.

Seeing this, Philip's face turned cold. He could see that this woman went all out with this move.

Philip knew that since the other party could say that in front of everyone without hesitation, it meant he had noticed something special about Philip.

Philip replied blandly, "I never said that I was a member of Montana Alliance."

Hearing that, everyone looked at Philip warily because the only other people here were those from Starfire Alliance.

Philip looked at Elder Whitmore. He could not explain himself either.

Elder Whitmore said to Philip, "Then who are you? And why did you come to Montana Alliance?"

Although he spoke the words slowly, his tone was heavy. Obviously, if Philip could not give Elder Whitmore a reasonable explanation, something would happen.

Philip said softly, "I came here from the forbidden abyss through a portal. If my guess is correct, this place should be related to my mother."

Elder Whitmore's expression changed.

Looking at the room and furnishings, Philip sighed heavily.

Everything seemed so familiar yet far away.

Philip touched everything one by one. There were many nostalgic things around, such as an old record player.

Philip wiped the player gently and put a record on it. He felt very close to everything here without any sense of unfamiliarity at all, and Elder Whitmore sighed softly at this sight.

“It seems that you have an affinity with this place, but I have to explain some things to you. If you want to gain a foothold on the upper floor, look for me at Montana Alliance.”

After Elder Whitmore finished speaking, he gave Philip a card. Philip looked at the card without speaking and just took it.

Elder Whitmore left and closed the door behind him.

Elder Whitmore’s face darkened.

For a person with an unknown identity to make such a request, he could not help but wonder.

However, Elder Whitmore suddenly changed the subject and said, "Starfire Alliance isn't a big problem, so you don't have to worry about it. Why don't you just stay here at Montana Alliance and get familiar with this place first?"

Elder Whitmore spoke very naturally as if he did not care about Philip's identity at all. However, Philip knew that the other party clearly doubted his identity and wanted to restrict his movements within Montana Alliance.

Even so, Philip decided to go with the flow. Besides, Philip had to gain a better understanding of the upper floor too, so he was not concerned about this arrangement.

"In that case, I'll accept your kindness."

Without further ado, Philip was prepared to stay in Montana Alliance, but Elder Whitmore was obviously worried about Philip and deliberately arranged for someone to keep an eye on him.

Philip merely smiled.

"I think I can give it a try. If I can deal with them, it won't be too late to tell them that I'm from Montana Alliance. If not, they won't know any better. Either way, there's no harm. What do you think, Elder Whitmore?"

Philip tossed the ball to Elder Whitmore's court, knowing that Elder Whitmore wanted to take this opportunity to test his skills.

If he was strong enough, the other party would actively recruit him. If not, the other party might even kick him out.

Perhaps out of respect, he would let Philip leave of his own accord.

Philip had realized the other party's intentions, but he could not care less. It so happened that he would be able to see what the herb was and also get an initial estimate of the strength of these people on the upper floor.

Philip grinned at Commander Graham.

"We just parted ways not long ago, but you've already forgotten me."

Philip's tone sounded a little frivolous as if he was teasing Commander Graham.

How could Commander Graham lose her dignity in front of her subordinates?

"So it's you, you reckless fool. Get out of the way, or I'll make you..."

Commander Graham's face was frosty.

Such friction and probing were not uncommon on the upper floor.

Philip said, "It's impossible for me to get out of the way, but if you want to have your way with me, I don't mind."
