

My Alpha's Betrayal: Burning In The Flames Of His Vengeance

by Moonlight Muse Chapter 6

6. Two Questions

YILEYNA

I quickly turned away, my cheeks burning as I gulped the rest of the coffee down. I felt him move away, so I quickly placed my mug down and stood up, trying not to groan at the ache in my muscles. I slid my arms out of the shirt, holding it firmly as I twisted it around, sliding my arms back in and buttoned it up. I turned back towards him, his arms now spread over the top of the couch as he glared into the fire, his brows creased in concentration.

“Thanks for saving me.” I remarked gratefully, tugging at the sleeves of the shirt and stared down at the ground. I surely must look a sight in these oversize pants and shirt. Now, what do I do?

I sat down on the small couch and pulled my knees up against my chest, feeling exhausted. “You may not have been at their level, but you shouldn’t push yourself to that extent where you cannot even defend yourself, especially somewhere secluded.” “Hmm, I didn’t think that would happen, I just thought to train... I’m lacking in far more than shifting.” I whispered, very aware of his hand near my head on the back of the couch.

“Are you? Or are you allowing others to dictate that?” He asked, tilting his head as he looked at me, his hair almost glowing a gorgeous copper in the light of the fire from the hearth.

“It’s true though, isn’t it? I’m not strong enough. I’m nearly eighteen, but I haven’t shifted...” I glanced into the flickering flames, frowning. “There’s already talk that I may be stripped of my rank.”

I looked up into his gorgeous eyes waiting for a reaction, anything to tell me what his opinion on that was. He looked away and into the flames for a second before his gaze snapped back to mine.

“Who told you?” He asked, making my stomach sink.

So, he knew. He knew the Alpha wanted to make him Beta, I didn’t know why that hurt as much as it did. What was I expecting? For him to care? For him to come and tell me? “Does it matter?” I replied looking down at my knees, unable to hide the bitterness from my voice. “The Alpha only mentioned it a week or so ago. Nothing is finalised, there’s still time.” Each word was like a punch in the gut. The tears that I had been suppressing seemed to be on the verge of breaking their dam.

Still time...

“If he gives you the title, you will take it, because he is your king.” I said, forcing a smile. His face remained emotionless as he looked at me. “No one refuses the Alpha.”

Yeah...

I needed to get out of here... I shouldn’t be here, we weren’t friends... just two people who were always by the princess’ side.

“I’m going to head out, thank you.” I whispered, sounding weaker than I was meant to.
“Yileyna...”

I stood up, staggering slightly, my legs felt like lead and my entire body was aching from the workout.

"I'm going to head back." I walked to the door, my eyes on my shoes. Just like that, the De'Lacor name would vanish.

"You can't even walk straight."

I could smell him behind me. Goddess, he moved so silently.

"I can manage." I replied coldly. "I need no one."

I just about pulled one shoe on when he grabbed my elbow, yanking me back roughly. I gasped almost stumbling, but before I could fall, he slammed me up against the wall.

"What are you doing?" I hissed venomously. "Proving my point. You are not leaving this place until you are up to it." "You can't keep me here!" "Nikolai and Kyson are out there, are you sure you want to go back in this weather all alone?" "I never knew you cared." I shot back. For a moment he stared into my eyes, before he let go of me, letting me fall to the ground. "I don't. Get out." He replied coldly.

I'll do exactly that.

I pulled on my shoes with weak hands, realising if I stepped out into the rain, my shirt would become entirely see-through... I looked around before walking back over to the couch and picking up the blanket that was draped over the armchair.

"I'll return this."

"No one's allowing you to borrow it." And with that, he yanked it from my hold, his gaze dipping to my breasts which were moving far too much without my bra. "If you want to leave, it's going to be like that."

He turned away, throwing the blanket onto the sofa. I was leaving, one way or another. I yanked the door open without another word and hurried out into the rain, my arms crossed over my chest as I became instantly drenched. I didn't glance back and when the door shut, it didn't bother me. The future Beta... Beta Theon. Nice. I knew I was being bitter, but it did hurt. I dragged my feet towards the castle, I needed to speak to the Alpha... Nikolai said I wasn't my father's blood. What did he mean by that?!

I was relieved that I didn't really meet anyone on the way home and when I snuck into the castle, I was glad that there weren't many people around, save the guards on duty. My body was ready to collapse by the time I reached my quarters. I cursed realising my key was in the pocket of my pants. Pants I had left at Theon's, along with my bra... Oh goddess, now what!

I looked down the hall, tempted to go to Charlene, but now wasn't the time to disturb her, I'm sure she was having dinner with her family. I'd ask the head Omega...

Or I'd just wait here... I felt far too tired to go in search of anyone and so I slid down the wall and curled up in a ball, wrapping my arms around my shivering cold body tightly. I'll just rest a little...

I felt someone move me, but my eyes refused to open, in the hazy state of my mind I had a feeling that the scent was somehow familiar as strong arms lifted me from the ground. The sound of a key scraping in a lock could be heard.

Open your eyes, Yileyna... I couldn't, I felt like dead weight as my head lolled backwards, whoever was holding me didn't really seem to care. The familiar scent of Mom's cocoa butter candles seeped into my nose.

Home?

The man's footsteps creaked on the wooden floor.

I managed to crack them open ever so slightly, but I felt like I was somewhere far away.

I wasn't sure.... I was in my house, I could see that from the angle my head was tilted, it was all I saw before my eyes fluttered close once again.

Get up...

But I was far too gone for that, I felt myself being placed on a bed, my bed. Feeling fingers brushing my hair back ever so slowly it almost reminded me of Mom's soothing touch... but it was different. I couldn't explain it...

Comforting but...

And then I heard the door shut before darkness welcomed me back into its folds...

"Seriously, Yileyna, who trains out in the cold like that? We are werewolves, not immortals." Charlene scolded as she motioned with her eyes for me to eat the bowl of soup. "You know I hate soup."

"You don't hate it, you dislike it, but it's good for you. Now, eat." She cajoled firmly. I was sitting in bed, it was the following afternoon and I had slept most of the day until Charlene had shown up an hour ago, banging on my door which was locked, and I had found the key on the floor.

Theon.

It had to be; he must have found the key in my pants... What was he doing looking in them in the first place?

Anyway, Charlene had shown up demanding entrance and had made me take a hot bath, which I won't lie made me feel much better. But the bowl of soup from the head chef wasn't appetising, the truth is, the only soup I ate was Mom's...

I promised her, I'd only eat her soup or none... and somehow, I just couldn't stomach the bowl before me.

"I'm not hungry Charl... please." I pleaded.

She looked down at me with concern in her green eyes.

"What is it, Leyna?" She whispered, sitting down on my bed and taking my hands in hers.

I shook my head, refusing to let my emotions get the better of me. "I only eat Mom's soup." I managed to reply, trying to remain strong. "Oh, darling." She wrapped her arms around me tightly and I rested my head on her slender shoulder, fighting back my tears. "I'll have something else brought right away." "I'm not really hungry." I refused, moving back.

I was wearing a large, oversized shirt that used to belong to Dad. I loved stealing his clothes because they were so comfortable and now that he was gone it was all I really had of him.

Memories... this entire place held memories...

Would I have to move out? "Is the Alpha working today?" I asked casually. "Dad is, as always." She responded.

Maybe once Charlene leaves, I'll go visit him. I needed to ask what Nikolai meant about me not being Dad's daughter...

A light knock on the door to my quarters reached my ears and Charlene jumped up, her ginger hair bouncing around her. "I'll grab it."

I nodded and dropped back onto my pillow once more, looking around my room.

The walls were painted an off white, and the floor was solid wood. My furniture was all wood including my bed. There were paintings on the wall. Some with just quotes, others made by me or Dad, and a few that I had brought from our journeys out of Westerwell; one from when we went on a journey out of our Kingdom of Astalion.

Dad...

Two pairs of footsteps approached, I quickly pulled my shirt down over my thighs just as Theon and Charlene appeared at the door. Charlene was holding a brown bag that clearly contained food.

"You brought food? I never knew the princess's guard was also a delivery boy." I remarked, trying to calm the nerves that erupted inside of me as I sat up. The memory of what had happened at his place yesterday was fresh in my mind.

Our eyes met and I swallowed, seeing his gaze flicker to my bare thighs before he looked back into my eyes and I quirked a brow.

"Seems you're healed." He remarked, turning away and crossing his arms as he leaned against the door frame, as Charlene brought the bag over.

I rolled my eyes almost scoffing, my legs didn't have bruises... I wasn't ready to tell Charlene what happened, but I did want to ask Theon if he was the one who brought me inside.

"Alright eat the sandwich up and there's apple pie."

She unwrapped the items and I took the sandwich, lost in my own thoughts. I needed to talk to the king immediately. Once Charlene had finished fussing over me, I tried not to meet Theon's burning gaze as he stood there before I was finally left alone. Luckily the queen had called Charlene to meet someone or other and both had left but not before Theon's burning emotionless gaze met mine. Once again, I couldn't make out what was going on in that mind of his.

Quickly getting dressed, I left my quarters feeling tired and exhausted. The aftereffect of the rain and training still left its mark and my muscles groaned with every step I took.

I saw a pair of guards walk past and I called out to them. "Excuse me! Do you know where the Alpha is?" I asked.

One of them raised an eyebrow whilst the other one's eyes softened slightly.

"Of course, dear, he's out in the courtyard, he was training but he is done for now." He replied.

The perks of the mind link. That was another one I heard from the people. 'If she had her wolf, she could have prewarned us about the attack.' "Thank you." I replied politely before turning and hurrying down the hall. I hoped the Alpha would be willing to talk because I needed answers.

I reached the courtyard to see him sitting on the steps peeling the skin of an apple, on the stone steps next to him was a bowl of fruit. I glanced around but he appeared to be alone.

"May I speak to you, Alpha?" I asked.

Once upon a time, as a child, I used to address him as uncle, but as I got older I started calling him Alpha and that stuck. More so now that Dad was gone, that connection was also no more. "Sure, what is it Yileyna?" The Alpha turned, his hair framing his face only added to his dangerous look and I lowered my head before stepping down into the grass and turning to face him. The knife in his hand was large, and I watched as he made slices out of the apple. "Speak up."

I blinked and nodded.

"I had two questions, Alpha Andres. Yesterday an Epsilon ranked warrior told me that I... That I'm not my father's blood." I asked, the words hurt even as I spoke them, it still hurt so much.

His face didn't change as he ate a slice of apple, munching into it before putting two more in his mouth.

"Rumours. People want to spread those rumours because you're not living up to your status."

He replied. A wave of relief flooded through me despite the insult that was thrown in there. I was my father's daughter. Of course I was!

But his following words felt like a few punches in the gut.

"But the truth is, all rumours start somewhere... I never saw your mother pregnant so who knows exactly where you're from? Was your mother unable to carry? Did your father have you by a whore? It doesn't matter, he was always adamant you were his as was your mother. Whether I believe it or not they stuck by it... but the truth is, you hold no power to show that you are part of the De'Lacor family."

7. A Word Of Warning

YILEYNA

His words stung. Was he saying that although Mom and Dad said I was theirs, there had been rumours... Meaning there was something there... I looked into the Alpha's hard emotionless eyes, feeling very alone. Sure, he was our Alpha, his job was to take care of his pack, his city... and as King, his responsibilities were far more than that but if even for a second I thought I'd get any compassion from him, I was wrong.

"I understand, Alpha, and that brings me to my second question; is it true that another will take my place as future Beta?"

He leaned back on one hand, eating his sliced apple as he looked up at the sky.

"I need a Beta now, soon. I can't wait for a wolf less pup to shift to take that position. I'm afraid, yes, I will be choosing another." His eyes fell on me once more and I did my best to remain emotionless despite the pain in my chest. I bowed my head trying to force a polite smile. "I understand Alpha, will I be given at least some time to prove?"

"To prove what? You didn't shift when Will was killed in the proximity you were in. I don't think anything will trigger your shift."

That stung. Guilt enveloped me and I knew it was my fault they died...

"I understand. Will I need to move from the castle?"

From my home? My parents' home?

It hurt, so much more than I could express. He sighed heavily, picking up a pear and slicing it.

"Come sit down."

I tried to remain passive as I sat down on the steps a few feet from him, sitting one step lower than he was. He didn't speak as he sliced the pear and peeled the skin of another apple. "I know that place holds sentimental value for you, but they are the Beta quarters. When he takes the position, you are welcome to move to another room in the castle. You won't be asked to leave the castle." He pushed the fruit plate closer to me, but I had no appetite. I picked up a slice of apple out of respect and took a bite.

"Thank you for your explanation, Alpha." I bowed my head and stood up.

I needed to stop feeling sorry for myself, I needed to prove I was good enough, not for the Beta position but for my father, I couldn't let him down. "It's nothing personal, Yileyna." "Of course, thank you once again." I turned, leaving the warmth of the courtyard, the sudden coolness of the halls felt far more chilling than they were. Nothing personal, just the pack laws and rules. In this big world, I was just one more in the throngs of thousands...

The blanket of darkness had fallen over the city of Westerwell and from where I sat on the roof of the Goddess' Citadel, it was the tallest building in the city. I stared down at the bustling streets, lit with lanterns, vendors were still running busy and late-night stalls were as full, as they were throughout the day. The Moon Goddess Festival was coming up soon too. I guess everyone was busy shopping for it. I hadn't thought over what I'd wear, after all usually Mom had my clothes sorted.

Although the majority of the city was part of our pack, there were others who resided here; humans, mages, and fae. Being the middle city, the capital, we were the home to many, but along with that status and privilege, the risk was always heightened.

I ran my fingers through my hair as a sharp wind blew and I turned my attention towards the outer wall. The wall that had been destroyed two months ago had been resurrected and I knew it had been reinforced.

There was still no news on what those rogues had wanted and how they retained that much sanity to think straight and plan something like that. Unless, of course, it's as rumoured – that there is a bigger force at play... I sighed, turning away. The way the streets were thriving below, one wouldn't think we had lost so many... Charlene told me earlier that her training began tomorrow and how I had to be there. It was good for her to train harder; anything could happen... The night of the attack, she had managed to sneak away from that place I had left her, I knew it was so I didn't get in trouble. If anyone knew that she had been there... that I had almost risked her life...

"I'm surprised you're not down by The White Dove." A deep seductive voice, that I recognised, came from behind me.

My heart skipped a beat, I hadn't even heard him approach. My cheeks flushed at what he just said, and I raised an eyebrow. "How do you know I go down to the White Dove?" I retorted not even turning to look at him. What was he even doing here... After what happened at his place last night, I didn't think being alone with him was ideal. "Isn't it where you go often? Clearly getting a free show is the most excitement you will ever have in your life."

I couldn't resist turning and giving him a scathing glare. "Oh please, I could get a man if I wanted one." I declared. Yesterday's events returned to the forefront of my mind, and I felt my stomach churn with distaste. He cocked his eyebrow.

"I highly doubt that." The mockery in his tone was grating on my nerves and I raised an eyebrow in return.

"And you knowing I go down to The White Dove must mean you're a regular there?" A strong flare of jealousy reared within me, but I fuelled my irritation into the glare I was directing at him.

He didn't reply, stepping forward and dropping to the ground, even a simple move like that from him made my heart jolt. He leaned back against the bar behind him, looking at me, a single strand of his hair fell across his forehead and a piece of straw was in his mouth.

Take me right now... 1 "I don't need to go to a whore house to get a woman." His reply came, bringing me out of my daze and making me pout at what I had been thinking. I glanced over at him, true, he didn't need to go to an Omega... I'm sure any woman would happily want him, but then I'm sure he'd love the omega females too... curvy, dainty, yet stronger than humans so that they won't break... Men and women alike loved Omegas...

I frowned as I glared ahead.

"And what did you come here for?"

"I come here often. It's a coincidence that you're here." His cold reply came. Guilty... I found this place when Charlene and I were spying on Theon, although he slipped away later on, I had searched the area until I got to the top of this citadel. "Or maybe not." He added, tilting his head as he looked at me. His sexy eyes making my heart skip a beat. Again. Goddess, I hated him. "It has a nice view." He didn't respond and we fell silent. The passing breeze, the damp ground and the glittering lights of my home city somehow felt.. distant... like I was an outsider looking in. "Did you go through my pants to find my house key?" I asked suddenly. He raised an eyebrow. "The key was on the floor in the bathroom so I thought I'd drop it off, since you could barely walk. Pretty stupid for someone who was almost raped to fall asleep in an empty hallway." Raped. I shuddered at the thought.

"The guards make their rounds..." He gave me a pointed look and I trailed off. It was guards who had tried to rape me. "I didn't think." "You're not a child anymore, and although you shouldn't trust anything I say or do, trust me when I say that many men have their eyes on you." My heart thundered as our eyes met, grey against amber. They say that our eyes are the doorway to our souls, yet just like him his eyes held mystery. One that even I could not break through...

"You're contradicting your own words." I remarked, standing up and trying not to wince at the pain in my body.

"I warned you, the rest is up to you."

I tried not to focus on the way his voice sounded. Goddess what was my problem.

"Because my father's gone, so now I'm open game? Wow, how nice, I think you forget that I'm not even worthy of being Beta. There's nothing beneficial for trying to claim me." I remarked, staring out at the city before I turned away to leave.

I gasped when he grabbed my arm, spinning me around roughly and slamming me against rail he had been leaning against only moments earlier.

"This is not a joke. Grow up, Yileyna, and stop acting like a child." He growled, making my heart thud, his hand wrapping around my throat as he flicked the piece of straw that was in his mouth to the ground.

"Excuse me?"

"This has nothing to do with you being a De'Lacor. It's your physique that's the talk of the fucking town. Keep acting the way you are, and you will get into more trouble than you'll be able to handle."

My heart was thundering with nerves, yet at the same time... the tingles of pleasure that coursed through me at his proximity and the way his hand was wrapped around my throat, sent a sharp jolt of desire to my core.

His chest was almost grazing mine, but it was the anger in those eyes that cleared my mind.

"I'm not acting like anything."

“Reckless and stupid”

A flash of hurt rippled through me, and I frowned.

Was I stupid?

“You don’t know anything about me, Theon, so just leave me be.” I shot back coldly, trying to yank his hand from my throat, but he only tightened his hold.

“Then use that feisty attitude of yours to get free, since you’re strong enough to handle yourself.” His husky reply came, the challenging glint in his eyes only making me glare at him. I clenched my jaw, ready to bring my leg up and hit him where the sun didn’t shine, but it was as if he knew what I was thinking, he forced my legs apart, placing his knee between my thighs, trapping my left leg between both of his.

My chest heaved as I struggled to pull free, trying not to focus on how his body felt against mine.

“Theon, just because you saved me once does not mean you have the right to call me stupid or reckless.” I hissed.

He needed to let me go before my arousal perfumed the air and he found out how turned on I was getting “I’m stating facts, next time, I might just stand by and watch.

Seems like you don’t really care

what happens anyway.”

“Why the hell are you getting so worked up?!” I shouted in anger. He let go of me roughly and I fell to my knees, his jaw clenched as he looked down at me.

“Pathetic.” He walked away, leaving me alone on the roof. I stared at the ground in front of me. Stupid, pathetic, reckless, useless. The list sure was growing. I massaged my throat, knowing his hold would leave a bruise. I had to remember I wasn’t the daughter of a beta anymore, I was just Yileyna, and I needed to grow up. Maybe he was right... maybe I was immature...

I stood up and climbed down, deciding I needed to return home. Maybe it was time I began to look for another place to stay. I wouldn’t take pity and remain at the castle. I’ll leave before I was told to.

Theon was right, I needed to grow up.