

The Kiss 101

Chapter 101

Theo's tall and upright figure, with Ellinor obediently tagging along, made them look super cute together due to their height difference

Yvette was squatting on the ground, bawling her eyes out, her violin was ruined, and she felt terrible about it

She thought that crying would earn her the sympathy of the noble guy who had wiped her tears earlier, but to her surprise, no one came to help her up even after she cried for quite a while.

She looked up to see her Prince Charming walking away

And that hunk was leaving too!

How could he just leave when she was in such a pitiful state?

Yvette quickly got up and chased after him, "Sir, wait up."

Jonah stopped and turned his head with a smile, "Yes? What's up?"

Yvette was taken aback and felt slightly uncomfortable.

Was it her imagination? Her Prince Charming was still smiling, but he seemed much colder than before.

"Um sir, this is your handkerchief. Thanks for your kindness earlier Yvette shyly handed over the handkerchief, hoping Prince Charming would ask for her contact information

However, Jonah just smiled faintly and didn't take the handkerchief, "It's okay. You can keep it."

Yvette's cheeks turned red, and her heart beat faster!

He told her to keep the handkerchief. The texture of the handkerchief was not cheap. Did this mean?

Just as Yvette fantasised about their relationship. Jonah said calmly.

"I wouldn't like to have a handkerchief used by a woman like you"

Yvette was stunned, and humedly tried to explain, "Sir, you must have misunderstood something. I... I'm not the kind of woman you think."

Jonah chuckled, "No? The violin piece just now was not played by you, but you didn't deny it! The violin was ruined by you, but you we're willing to blame others! And now you're playing innocent in front of me? Your actions have made it clear to me that you're not pure-hearted"

"..." Jonah's blunt words expose her scheme, making Yvette feel extremely embarrassed and unable to defend herself.

She thought he was her Prince Charming who liked her, but she was just overthinking it.

Jonah left

Collin walked up to Yvette. "Madam, I checked. The violin is worth 20 grand. Please give me your account number. The compensation will be transferred soon." Yvette couldn't help but get angry. She shouted at Collin: "Twenty grand? My violin is worth a hundred grand! Not a penny less!"

Collin was expressionless, 'Madam, if you insist it's worth a hundred grand, you must provide a purchase receipt or record Otherwise, we'll have to go through legal procedures.'

Hearing the words 'legal procedures, Yvette immediately backed down. She didn't want to get involved in a lawsuit right after graduating from university.

She thought The violin was already ruined, but she couldn't give up on compensation.

She gritted her teeth in dissatisfaction, then honestly gave her bank account number

Today was really her unlucky day all because of Ellinor! It was all Ellinor's fault! She decided to become enemies with Ellinor!

In the car, Ellinor was looking down at her phone.

Theo's deep, cold voice rang out, laced with a hint of contempt, "Ms Mendoza does play the violin quite well!"

Chapter 102

"You're too kind"

Ellinor didn't even lift her head, just casually responding

Theo, hand on his forehead squinted at her. "Did you learn this before?"

His question carried a hint of probing

Because it was unusual that Ellinor could play the violin so well

Choosing Ellinor to be Mrs Blanchet was an accident, but after this accident, he had people investigate her background

The Mendoza family was middle-class, but Ellinor was an overlooked illegitimate daughter, raised by rural relatives since childhood. Her upbringing did not afford her to learn classical instruments.

And just now, at the class reunion, the piece she played on the violin, without seven to eight years of solid practice, couldn't reach that level.

This girl was full of contradictions, making people feel she was not simple

But Ellinor didn't care about the man's scrutinizing gaze, just sulkily looking at the expenditure bill on her phone.

She just paid the bill at the class reunion, and now her wallet was empty, with only over eighty dollars left on her bank card!

And the culprit who made her poor was the man sitting next to her!

The man was still making sarcastic remarks, saying her violin playing was good, really!

The more she thought about it, the angrier Ellinor got, "Mr Blanchet, we're not really married. What I've earned or not is none of your business! After three months, we'll go our separate ways. Why are you asking so much?"

Reprimanded by Ellinor, Theo

frowned, "Ms Mendoza, I just paid the compensation for a violin for you. Why are you so unfriendly to me?"

What's wrong with her attitude? She's been very polite!

Ellinor glared at him, "Mr Blanchet, that violin was broken by you, if you don't compensate, should I compensate?"

Theo's face darkened, feeling misunderstood for the first time.

Ellinor grumbled angrily. "And if it weren't for you, I wouldn't have had to pay for dinner today spending all my living expenses!"

So that's why she was unhappy

Theo raised his eyebrows, and teasingly smiled,

'Ms Mendoza, aren't you happy to have a gathering with your classmates? You're unhappy because you have to pay?'

"Do I have to pay for a gathering? Mr Blanchet, do you think everyone can be as lavish with money as you?"

Ellinor frowned, clearly dissatisfied. "It's not a small gathering of a few people. It's a large class reunion where everyone defaults to splitting the bill. Because of your word, I lost a month's salary! Humph!"

Since they reached an agreement, Ellinor has always been patient in front of him, trying to avoid conflicts.

But today, he saw her getting genuinely angry.

Her resentful look, because of no money, made him think she was cute.

"I'll transfer all the money you spent today to you." Theo calmly said.

"Really?" Ellinor's eyes lit up. She immediately showed him her bank account number and entered the exact amount.

Theo

She reacted really quickly, without any politeness!

Ellinor didn't think she needed to be polite with Theo. It wasn't her money to pay!

Theo jokingly pretended to be her parent, claiming she would pay, and her classmates misunderstood,

If she didn't pay and left, it would look like she's avoiding the bill!

But if she paid, she'll be broke!

Although she still had some money at Chase's, that money was buying her mother's painting, not for spending!

Theo lightly laughed, took out his phone, and transferred the total amount she spent today.

Seeing the money in her account, Ellinor's mood improved significantly

Her previously scowling face instantly relaxed, and she started talking more "Sir, do you know your actions today made my classmates think you're my sugar daddy?" Sugar daddy?

Theo frowned, "What? Do I look like an old sugar daddy?"

Ellinor shook her head

"That's not what I meant! Because you neither look nor are old enough to be my dad, they misunderstood, thinking you're a sugar daddy who's keeping me for some benefits."

After hearing her say this, Theo realized she might have been mistreated at the class reunion. He frowned.

Chapter 103

"So you're playing the violin for them?"

Ellinor said, "You think I want to? Its because some people intentionally spread rumours about the principal and me, causing misunderstandings among most of my classmates Only when I play the violin will they apologize! The principal is an elder I deeply respect, so I have to help him clear things up!"

After hearing this, Theo looked at her sideways, then leaned in closer. "So why aren't you helping me clear things up?"

Suddenly a handsome face popped up Ellinor jumped

"What should I help you clear up?"

As Theo spoke, he leaned in closer

"You need to clarify that I am your husband"

The word husband falling into her ears made Ellinor's heart flutter

Regaining her senses, Ellinor instantly replied with disgust, Forget it! I don't want people to know that I got married so early. I still want to marry the person I like in the future"

Hearing her mention a future husband, Theo sarcastically replied "Really? I'd like to see who dares to marry a woman like you?"

Feeling belittled by him. Ellinor asked unhappily, "What's wrong with me?"

*The replied with an unhappy tone Ms Mendoza is so fierce, you would kiss any random stranger outside
What kind of person are you?"*

Ellinor responded angrily I told you, that was an accident

The driver suddenly hit the brakes Due to inertia, the two of them, face to face, unintentionally leaned in, their lips colliding and then bouncing back...

Straightening up. Theo backed away from her, "Sorry"

He didn't mean to

Ellinor Blushed, she wanted to be angry, but she didn't feel that mad

The awkward part was she had just emphasized that her first time grabbing him and kissing him was an accident, and just now he obviously didn't mean to. How could she

That would only make her more embarrassed

question him

She didn't say anything, only pushed Theo away, furiously wiped her mouth, turned her head, and rolled down the window, letting the wind blow, pretending like nothing had happened

Seeing Ellinor like this. Theo was momentarily captivated

The car stopped, the driver went to check, then came back to report "Mr Blanchet, there's been a car acci dent ahead, causing a traffic jam, f'm afraid we won't be able to pass for a while "

Traffic jams were the most annoying

Theo rubbed his temples, suddenly heard the sound of the car door opening

He turned his head and saw that Ellinor was already out of the car

"Where are you going?"

"There's a subway station ahead. I'm taking the subway home."

Ellinor replied casually, then walked away

There's a traffic jam, she didn't want to sit in the car and wait with him!

After two seconds of silence. Theo also got out of the car.

Collin, who was sitting in the passenger seat, immediately followed, but was stopped by Theo's cold com mand.

"You can leave work how don't follow me"

Collin could only stop "Alright

Watching Mi Blanchet follow Ms Mendoza from a distance, he was a bit worried Theo had never taken the subway before, what if

And did Mr Blanchet have feelings for Ms Mendoza

The traffic near the subway station was also bad, it was jammed

A car was stuck in the traffic, unable to move forward or back

In the car was Sheila and her parents, who had just finished signing a contract with a new company and were happily on their way home after dinner with the manager. Today the Blanchet Corporation's film and television company officially signed her. They not only gave her a high-end nanny car but also promised her a lot of good resources

Sheila was of confidence in her future, she felt that she was not far from becoming an international super star, but the traffic jam was annoying

She stuck her head out the car window to check the traffic ahead but unexpectedly saw Ellinor and a tall man crossing the road!

"Mom, Dad Look, isn't that Ellinor? It's so late, why is she with a man?"

Chapter 104

Arnold and Tracy both looked out of the car window when they heard Sheila's surprised voice

Tracy said, 'Arnold look, that's Ellinor!

I think that's her boyfriend with her. Can you believe a girl like Ellinor is out gallivanting around with a man this late? That doesn't look good, does it?"

Arnold frowned in displeasure. For one, his daughter Ellinor was out late with a man, which was improper. Secondly, he saw Ellinor and the guy heading for the subway entrance

From their angle, all they could see was the man's back or profile, his face was totally hidden.

But they all came to the same conclusion about him.

He's broke

Sheila sighed with feigned concern, "Dad, why has Ellinor picked a boyfriend who still takes the subway! She's not getting any wiser. The guys mom introduced to her all had cars and houses!"

Tracy chimed in, sighing with a victimized air. "Oh well, what Ellinor likes matters most! I think the guy is pretty tall and probably handsome too. I'm just worried he might be too poor to treat Ellinor well"

"How can a Mendoza girl marry such a guy? It's so embarrassing!"

Arnold huffed in annoyance.

Earlier

today, he proudly accompanied Sheila to sign a contract with a big company and had a few drinks with the manager. But now he felt disappointed to see Ellinor's state

Sheila and her mother, Tracy, exchanged a smile. In their minds, Ellinor was just fit for a subway-riding poor guy.

Inside the subway station.

As Ellinor was buying tickets at the automatic ticket machine, Theo stood behind her, watching her operate the machine.

After buying her own ticket, Ellinor turned and left without even glancing at him.

Standing in front of the machine. Theo followed the prompts a few times, then frowned.

Although it was his first time taking the subway, he wasn't so clueless as to not know how to use the ticket machine. The main problem was that he wasn't familiar with the routes and didn't know which direction to buy the ticket for Looking around. Ellinor had long disappeared.

The people lining up behind him were starting to get anxious, urging, "Have you bought it yet? Can you operate the machine or not?"

Theo turned around, and his cold and imposing aura shocked the nagging lady behind him into silence. So he wisely chose to line up elsewhere.

Not wanting to delay others. Theo stepped aside, took out his phone, and called Collin, "Which direction should I buy the ticket for?"

Collin was dumbfounded

He didn't take the subway either, he had no idea

"Just hold on, I'll look it up right away!"

Theo responded with a stern face

Just then, a woman's laughter came from behind him.

He turned around and saw Ellinor leaning against a pillar, watching him and laughing heartily, saying. "Is this your first time at a subway station?"

Theo was expressionless and didn't reply.

Ellinor continued to laugh "Considering you paid for the get-together, I'll treat you to a subway ride! Let's go!"

With that, she threw a subway card at him like a dart

Theo reached out and caught it, taking a quick look at the card between his fingers

So she had bought his ticket along with hers?

She had intentionally hidden to laugh at him

Theo wasn't angry and chuckled lightly as Ellinor walked in

In a while, Collin called back, 'I found it! You should buy

"No need"

Theo hung up before he could finish

Chapter 105

Ellinor walked slowly with Theo towards the waiting area. She couldn't help but laugh again when she saw him hang up on Collin

Theo heard and shot a cold glare at her, "What's so funny now?"

Ellinor giggled. "I was wondering, if you rich folks went bankrupt, would you even lose your basic survival skills?"

Theo frowned. "Are you mocking me?"

Ellinor nodded honestly. "Yup! I got you just standing there clueless in front of the ticket machine on camera. It's perfect for showing grandma back home!"

Theo roared. "Ellinor!"

Ellinor pulled out her phone and showed him the photo, waving it in front of him, "Look, you were hilarious!"

Suddenly, a boy on a skateboard rushed past.

"Watch out!"

Before Ellinor could react, she was yanked aside, falling into a warm, sturdy embrace and narrowly avoiding the skateboarder

The skater glanced back but quickly skated away without stopping

Theo looked down at the woman in his arms who had just been mocking him, 'Ms. Mendoza, were you too busy laughing at others to watch where you're going?' Ellinor couldn't find the words to respond, as she had indeed been very careless

Theo added, "No phones while walking and stay on the inside."

Ellinor put away her phone and obediently moved to the inside, "Thank you, but I'm not deleting the photo!"

Theo snorted, glancing at her, seemingly indifferent about the photo.

The subway was not too crowded at night, with many seats available

Ellinor and Theo found a quiet spot to sit

Perhaps because of Theo's striking looks and his top tier designer suit, he naturally became the center of attention.

Women sneaked glances at him, even men couldn't help but stare.

Theo seemed oblivious, turning a blind eye.

After a few stops, the car was pretty empty.

With the quiet atmosphere, it was a bit awkward.

Ellinor's phone was out of battery. Left without her go-to distraction, she noticed Theo silently staring at her.

It made her uncomfortable.

"Can we discuss something?" Ellinor tried to break the ice.

Theo replied, "Shoot."

Chapter 106

Ellinor seemed to be feeling worn out and said slowly

"I hope you can try to trust me in the future, don't always be on guard, thinking I'd stray to other men. I need some personal space! I've told you that since I've agreed to work with you for the next three months, I won't do anything to harm you before the contract ends. You can rest assured

Theo asked, "Do you think I came to see you today because I don't trust you?"

Ellinor looked up and glanced at the man. "What else? If you trusted me, you wouldn't have stuck around with us all day and kept an eye on me in our booth, it was super awkward for my classmates!"

Theo said lightly,

"Ms Mendoza, we may be business partners, but during the next three months, I will inevitably share so much responsibility for your safety I don't doubt your character, it's the guys hanging around you that I don't trust. Can't you see they're after something?"

Ellinor shrugged off his concerns, "I'm not a fool, of course I can see what they're up to. But I know how to handle it."

Theo snorted. "You know how to handle it, then why did you take the drink they offered so readily?"

"It was just a cocktail!"

Ellinor genuinely thought Theo was overthinking!

"Just a drink?" Theo's eyebrows knitted together in disapproval. "How do you know there's nothing slipped into that drink? You're an adult, shouldn't you know better than to accept drinks from strangers in a messy place like this? Do I need to remind you?"

Ellinor was stunned and caught off guard by his lecture.

Did he see himself as her guardian now after attending her graduation ceremony as one today?

Since her mother passed away, she hasn't had anyone to take care of her.

Her father barely paid attention to her and only cared if she'd embarrass the Mendoza family's reputation.

It had been a long time since anyone had spoken to her in such a caring tone.

Ellinor snapped back, "So, if you offered me a drink, I shouldn't take it either?"

Theo paused for two seconds, then squinted, "Am I the same as the others?"

Ellinor chuckled. You're definitely not like the others! You obviously have no shortage of women, you don't need to resort to dirty tricks to get them, the key point is that.. you're not interested in me, so you wouldn't stoop to such tactics, right?"

Theo replied casually, "Ms. Mendoza seems to understand quite well."

Ellinor snorted, "You're a strange one! One moment you're mocking me and saying no one would dare marry me, the next you're worried someone might spike my drink."

Theo instantly responded, "There are plenty of men in the world, someone might end up liking you."

Ellinor replied, "Well, thanks for your concern!"

Her voice gradually softened

Then, Theo felt a weight on his shoulder, a small head had fallen asleep there..

Ellinor was just too tired and dozed off

She had been tired since the beginning

Theo turned to look at the first girl who dared rest her head on his shoulder, his face expressionless, but he didn't disturb her.

When Ellinor woke up, she found herself lying in a comfy bed.

It was still dark outside

How did she get back?

She tried to recall, but she couldn't remember anything from the subway trip to the Blanchet family's house

Chapter 107

She didn't dwell on it too much.

All she could think about was how she was still in her clothes and had gone to sleep without a shower. She felt gross all over

So she got up, grabbed some clean clothes from her closet, and headed straight to the bathroom

There was steam and the sound of running water in the bathroom. It was warm and humid

Did she forget to turn off the tap when she came back home?

Ellinor walked further in to check the tub and then she saw a man's naked body.

The man showering heard her and quickly turned around. Their eyes met – one set cold and dark, the other shocked and embarrassed Ellinor's sleepiness vanished in an instant. She was wide awake.

She gasped and quickly turned around, "You why didn't you lock the door?"

Theo replied coldly. Ms Mendoza, I believe this is my room. I'm taking a shower in my room, why should I lock the door? Why didn't you knock before coming in?" Ellinor was both embarrassed and angry... You hardly ever stay here. I've gotten used to being alone. How was I supposed to know you were showering?

"I'm showering, and you just barged in. I didn't get mad, and yet you're the one blaming me?"

Fair point!

"Ms. Mendoza, aren't you going to leave? Or are you planning to join me?"

Ellinor scoffed, quickly exited the bathroom, and slammed the door shut!

The scent of soap made her blush. She wanted to forget what she had just seen!

The shock reminded Ellinor of something

She faintly remembered falling asleep on the subway and him not waking her up when they reached the station. Did he carry her back from the subway station?

Thinking of this, Ellinor became even more embarrassed.

She woke up early today for her graduation ceremony, and the day had been full of events. First, she was framed by Veronica, then she had to prove her innocence at the police station, then she had to attend a reunion and was forced to play the violin.

She was genuinely exhausted, that's why she fell asleep on the subway.

The fact that he didn't just leave her alone on the subway was already a big deal!

Then, Theo came out of the bathroom, dressed in a bathrobe, smelling fresh.

Ellinor silently went into the bathroom to avoid the awkward face-to-face encounter.

When she came out after her shower, Theo was already asleep on the sofa.

They had to sleep like this since Marissa was home, and they couldn't sleep in separate rooms.

He slept, and Ellinor went back to bed

The next day

When Ellinor woke up. Theo was nowhere to be found in the room.

She didn't mind, she felt more comfortable when he wasn't home.

As she came out of the room, she saw the Blanchet family's maid carrying a suitcase downstairs.

Ellinor found it strange and asked, "Whose luggage is that?"

Chapter 108

The maid answered "Ellinor, Marissa Blanchet is about to hit the road"

Was Marissa leaving?

Ellinor was worried about whether Marissa had been affected by yesterday's incident with Veronica Blanchet. Then she heard Marissa calling her name in a soft voice.

"Ellinor"

She lifted her head and saw Marissa sauntering over from across the room.

"Granny. I heard you're about to split?"

Manssa smiled gently, sighing. "Yeah, I gotta jet. I need to go look after your grandpa. The stubborn old man hasn't followed the doctor's orders since his surgery He needs me

"Oh, I see" Upon hearing this, Ellinor didn't insist on Marissa staying. "Well, take care of yourself, Granny Watch your step."

Manssa nodded and held her hand gently. "Ellinor, I know you've been having a rough time. Veronica really crossed the line! Don't worry. I'm gonna ship her off to her grandpa's. She won't be a nuisance to you guys anymore"

It's rare to find an elder who doesn't play favorites when it comes to their grandkids, even in the face of right and wrong

Ellinor felt moved. "Thanks for understanding Granny."

"After I leave, you and Theo have to keep your chins up, alright?"

Keep their chins up?

Ellinor was puzzled. She didn't immediately understand what "keep your chins up" meant. Seeing the meaningful smile on Marissa's face, she blushed

She giggled awkwardly, "Don't worry, Granny, we will Marissa laughed. Tll be waiting for some good news then!"

-Sure!

Granny was definitely going to be disappointed. There was absolutely no chance of any good news between her and Theo

By the time Granny comes back, her agreement with Theo would have expired and she would be leaving.

Theo Blanchet sent Collin to take Marissa to the airport.

Considering how kind Marissa had been to her, Ellinor decided to accompany them to the airport.

After bidding goodbye to Marissa, Ellinor came out of the airport. Collin handed her a job application form in the car.

"Ms. Mendoza, Mr. Blanchet knows you'll be looking for a job after college. He asked me to arrange one for you."

Ellinor was surprised. She looked down at the form in her hand, "So what job are you arranging for me?"

As he started the car, Collin replied, "Ms. Mendoza, fill out this form first. After that, I'll have the HR department arrange a suitable job based on your application."

Working for the Blanchet Corporation was undoubtedly a golden opportunity, but Ellinor didn't seem interested.

However, she might be able to break free from Theo's control within the three-month agreement period. She might as well go along with his plan.

After some thought, Ellinor put down the form, 'Nah, I won't fill it out. I'm not picky about jobs. As long as it pays well!"

Collin couldn't help but admire Ms. Mendoza's straightforwardness. He smiled and said, "Alright then, I'll arrange a job for you as soon as possible."

"No need to wait, arrange it now! I have nothing to do back home anyway!"

Alright."

So, Collin drove her to a subsidiary of the Blanchet Corporation.

Chapter 109

Collin had just parked the car when he suddenly got a phone call. His face turned serious in an instant and he said, 'I'll be right there"

After hanging up, he turned to Ellinor apologetically. Ms Mendoza, something urgent has come up and I can't accompany you anymore. Just go in by yourself and look for Manager Fang Tell him I sent you, and he'll take care of you"

Ellinor quickly nodded flashed an OK sign, and then exited the car

Collin sped off in a rush, driving really fast.

Ellinor watched his car pull away and raised an eyebrow wondering if something urgent had really come up. Maybe something happened to Theo?

This was an entertainment company under the Blanchet Corporation Ellinor walked into the lobby and explained her purpose to the receptionist.

The receptionist glanced at her and then called Manager Fang to confirm the situation.

"Ms Mendoza, please follow me

The receptionist led Ellinor to the manager's office

"Ms Mendoza, Manager Fang is currently in a meeting with one of our artists. Please wait outside until they're done!"

Ellinor nodded, "Alright."

After explaining everything the receptionist returned to her post.

Ellinor quietly waited at the door.

Not far away in the break room, two girls were chatting while waiting for their coffee

"Did you hear our company just signed Sheila Mendoza?"

"How could I not know! Sheila is the hottest female artist now!"

"She's definitely hot! But it's mainly because her previous scandal hit the trending list, and then she managed to clear her name these past few days. I really don't know why the company would want to sign someone with a bad reputation like Sheila!"

"Who cares about a bad reputation? She's still very famous! Her value has skyrocketed because of this incident! In this era, no one cares about reputation, as long as you can make money, you're a good artist!"

"Speaking of Sheila, she was here just now. She might be in a meeting with Manager Fang in his office!"

Really?*

The two girls returned to their posts with their coffees.

Ellinor overheard the news and started thinking

So the artist in the office was Sheila.

She saw yesterday on social media how smug Tracy Mendoza and her daughter Sheila were about signing with the Blanchet Corporation.

But she had a hunch that something was off

In the previous scandal video, the woman sitting on the investor's lap was Sheila. Now, it was said to be someone who looked very similar to her. The woman in the video was identified as a web celebrity who had plastic surgery to look like Sheila.

Not only did Sheila gain a lot of attention from this, but she also successfully cleared her name.

This seemingly simple operation of clearing one's name actually required a lot of manpower and financial support. Tracy and Sheila's money alone wouldn't be enough to pull it off.

If Sheila was able to get this much attention, Tracy must have done something underhanded.

At this moment, the office door opened.

The glamorous Sheila walked out of the manager's office with a smile. As soon as she saw the person standing outside the door, her smile froze, and then she frowned unhappily.

"Ellinor, what are you doing here?!"

Ellinor smiled and said, "I'm here to work!"

Chapter 110

"To work? Aren't you a nanny at some wealthy person's home?"

"My employer is hardly ever home. And there's not much to do around the house. So, I thought I'd find a side gig to make some extra dough."

Sheila gave Ellinor a once—over with a mocking smirk on her face. Seeing Ellinor looking for extra work made her laugh, "You need a side gig? Looks like your employer isn't paying you much, huh?"

Ellinor nodded. "Yeah, not much."

"What's up, Sheila? Why are you still hanging around the door? Aren't you supposed to be shooting a magazine cover?"

A friendly middle-aged man's voice came from the office.

Sheila turned her head, giving the man inside a flirtatious laugh, "I was just leaving, but someone's blocking the door!"

"Blocking the door? Let me see who dares block our star's way!"

The manager, Mr. Fang, came out, ready to scold an ignorant subordinate. But when he saw Ellinor standing at the office door, he froze.

He'd worked in the entertainment industry for years and seen many beauties, but he was rarely taken by a woman's looks.

But a girl with a bare face like the one at the door was a rare sight in the entertainment circle.

"You are Mr. Fang," he collected himself and asked her.

Ellinor

introduced herself politely. "Mr. Fang, my name is Ellinor. Someone told me to come see you and said you'd arrange a job for me."

Mr. Fang paused, "Ellinor? So it's you! Come in!"

Collin had just called him to arrange a job for a girl named Ellinor.

Though Collin hadn't specified who this Ellinor was, anyone who had Mr. Blanchet's right hand man, Collin, personally arranging a job for them must be special. He couldn't afford to neglect her.

Ellinor followed Mr. Fang into the office.

Sheila was left at the office door, looking displeased.

She thought Mr. Fang would come out and give Ellinor a piece of his mind!

But not only did Mr. Fang look at Ellinor like a dirty old man, but he also cordially invited her into the office, leaving her hanging!

What the hell was going on?!

Sheila felt uncomfortable So she didn't leave and turned back into Mr. Fang's office

She wanted to see what kind of job Ellinor would be doing

"Ms. Mendoza what kind of position are you interested in?" Mr. Fang asked Ellinor from behind his desk

Ellinor replied, "Anything is fine, as long as it pays well!"

Mr Fang looked at her somewhat regretfully, thinking, "Ms. Mendoza, have you ever considered being an artist? I've noticed you're quite attractive. If you're willing to debut as an artist. I believe you have a bright future"

An artist?

Ellinor frowned, "I'm not interested in that! Are there other positions?"

She was just here to get by She'd leave after three months and had no intention of staying long-term.

Sheila immediately felt threatened when she heard Mr. Fang's intentions to sign Ellinor.

Even though she despised Ellinor and didn't want to admit that she was beautiful. But in this situation, she had to face reality and be on guard.

If Ellinor could also sign with the Blanchet Corporation and make her debut, she might steal her thunder.

No, she absolutely couldn't let that happen!