

The Kiss That Sparked Chapter summary websites

Chapter 1331

Chapter 1331

“No! What’s up? What happened to her?”

Balfour didn’t answer. He thought for a while and asked again, “Ms. Blanchet, can you get in touch with your brother’s friend, Sophia?”

Veronica found their visit rather odd and sensed that something serious was going on. She pondered. “Sophia did call me before looking for my brother, but I didn’t save her number. I’ll have to check if I still have it in my call history.”

Balfour nodded. “If you could, please check.”

“I found it; this is the number. What do you need Sophia for?”

Balfour didn’t have time to explain to Veronica. “Ms. Blanchet, Ellinor left on her own this afternoon; we can’t find her. I suspect Sophia took her. Could you help me call and ask if she knows where Ellinor is?”

What? Ellinor went missing?

Upon hearing this, Veronica was very anxious and immediately called Sophia.

The phone rang for a while before being answered.

“Hello? Veronica.” Sophia’s voice sounded choked up, as if she had just stopped crying.

Veronica asked, “Sophia, where are you?”

“I’m at a hotel; what’s up, Veronica? Any new developments about your brother? Theo’s not dead, is he?”

Veronica also hoped that her brother was okay, but...

“No, I’m calling to ask if you’ve seen Ellinor today. She’s missing!”

Sophia feigned surprise. "What? Ellinor is missing? I haven't seen her. What happened? How could Ellinor go missing?"

"Balfour said that you might have taken Ellinor, so he asked me to call you. Are you sure you haven't seen Ellinor? Ellinor is pregnant now; the child is the only thing we have left of my brother. She can't have any problems. If you've seen Ellinor, you must tell me the truth!"

Sophia replied innocently, "Veronica, I'm telling the truth! I really haven't seen Ellinor today.

Yes, I went to the Howard family's home this afternoon to visit her, but the Howard family didn't let me in, and Balfour even had me kicked out.

Then I saw the Howards take Ellinor to the hospital. I was worried about the baby, so I also went to the hospital, but Balfour stopped me again. I didn't see Ellinor.

How could they suspect me of taking Ellinor away now? I don't even know which ward Ellinor is in. If Balfour doesn't trust me, he can check the hospital's surveillance to see if I took Ellinor away. But the most important thing now is to find Ellinor as soon as possible!"

the

After confirming that Sophia did not know where Ellinor was, Veronica was no longer in a mood to continue talking to Sophia. After hanging up phone, she questioned Balfour, "What's going on? How did Ellinor end up at your place? And why did she go to the hospital? Has she given birth yet?"

Balfour shook his head and replied, "No, she just got a little distressed when she heard about your brother. She and the baby are fine, but she slipped away."

Veronica became anxious. Her brother was already in trouble. If something happened to Ellinor, her grandparents would be devastated.

"What should we do now? Let's call the police! We must find Ellinor; she can't run into any trouble."

Balfour remained calm. "Ms. Blanchet, could you give me Sophia's number? I still have some questions for her."

The Kiss That Free online book summaries Chapter 1332

Chapter 1332

Veronica gave Sophia's number to Balfour.

After saving the number, Balfour muttered a thanks and turned to leave.

Veronica, feeling a bit uneasy, followed him. "Hold up, I'm coming with you guys to find Ellinor."

Balfour didn't stop or wait, but Byran did.

"Veronica, I think it's best if you just stay put. Your grandparents need you most right now. Don't worry, my brother and I will find Ellinor; no doubt about it!"

Veronica looked troubled. "But..."

Byran gently reassured her. "Theo is gone. If you don't take care of your grandparents, he'll be throwing a fit up in heaven."

With misty eyes, Veronica resigned herself. "Alright, I'll wait for news from you guys. The moment you find Ellinor, you must let me know."

Byran nodded. "Sure thing, no worries."

After they left the Blanchet villa and got in the car, Balfour dialed Sophia's number.

"Hello, what can I do for you?"

Sophia sounded pretty chill at the moment. A complete 180 from the meltdown she'd had when Veronica called earlier.

Without beating around the bush, Balfour asked, "Where's Ellinor?"

There was a pause on the other end before Sophia replied, "Oh, it's you, Balfour! Didn't I already make things clear to Veronica? You never let me see Ellinor, so how the hell am I supposed to know where she is now that she's missing?"

Balfour, unlike Veronica, wasn't so easily bamboozled. He asked, "Is 1BCD567 your license plate number?"

Sophia responded coolly, "Balfour, I think you've got your wires crossed. If you're accusing me without any proof I'm not going to be pleased. I'm too swamped with grief over Theo's death to deal with anything else. If I weren't, I'd probably sue you."

Balfour squinted in annoyance. He was at a loss as to how to handle Sophia.

1BCD567 was the plate number Byran noted when he saw Ellinor get into the car.

However, he had already checked the number, and no red sports car matched it.

The road surveillance cameras also didn't pick-up the car, indicating that not only had it changed its plates, but it also took routes that lacked surveillance, making it incredibly hard to track.

After Sophia hung up, Balfour figured it was pointless to call her again and didn't.

Just then, another car pulled up to the Blanchet family's doorstep, and Chase and Ida arrived to join them.

After stepping out of the car, Ida asked Byran, "Was Ellinor with the Blanchets?"

Byran shook his head in disappointment. "We asked around, and Veronica said Ellinor never made it to the Blanchet villa."

Ida furrowed her brows. "Didn't I tell you before? You shouldn't have let her know about Theo before she gave birth. Why can't you guys do one simple thing? If you can't take care of her properly, why did you bring her over in the first place?"

Byran was consumed with guilt. He was left speechless by the turn of events.

Meanwhile, Balfour sat in the car, his face stony and silent as he lost himself in his thoughts.

Chase walked over and lightly patted Ida's shoulder, indicating that she should calm down.

Chase said, "The most important thing now is to find her. If she never went to the Blanchet villa, why do you think she left?"

"Isn't it obvious? She wants to know what happened to Theo."

The Kiss That Read full chapters online Chapter 1333

Chapter 1333

Ida had a sudden realization and turned to Chase. "Are you saying she might have gone to the explosion site looking for Theo?"

Chase wasn't sure. "It's just a guess. We've looked everywhere we could think of. The only place we haven't checked is the crime scene." Though they didn't continue their conversation, they seemed to come to some mutual understanding and quickly ran to their respective cars. Afterwards, Chase's car and the Howard family's car both headed towards the factory in the suburbs that had exploded.

At the same time.

In a small town not far from the Greenhaven suburbs, in a certain bungalow courtyard, Ellinor was tied up and confined in a dirty, small room. The air was filled with the scent of barbecue and cheap beer.

Every now and then, she could hear people outside swearing and telling crude jokes.

Since she was pregnant, the unpleasant smells made Ellinor feel nauseous.

The two men who had brought her here were outside drinking and eating late-night snacks with their comrades, not paying her any mind.

After bringing her here, they locked her in the room and left her alone.

Ellinor's mouth was taped shut, so she couldn't call for help.

She didn't plan on calling for help anyway. In her current situation, making a fuss would only make things worse.

She observed her surroundings while moving her body, trying to use the sharp corner of some debris to cut the rope tied around her ankles.

Suddenly, the door to the hut was kicked open.

“Boss, what’s the point of bringing this chick here? She’s pregnant, so she can’t party with us.”

“All you think about is women!” The silver-haired man disgustingly lifted his chin. “Get lost! I need to chat with her.”

The fat man scratched his head in annoyance and left, closing the door for their boss.

The silver-haired man walked over to Ellinor, who was still tied to the ground. He looked down at her like she was an insect and asked scornfully.

“Remember me?”

Ellinor lifted her head to look at the man, but with her mouth taped shut, she couldn’t answer his question.

The silver-haired man didn’t seem to expect an answer, and he lightly kicked her. “After you ran away that time. Theo had people chasing me for over a year. I almost died a few times. He really cares about you.”

Ellinor’s eyes faltered. She hadn’t known that Theo had sent people after this kidnapper.

The silver-haired man squatted down slowly; his evil eyes, filled with mockery and cruelty, were locked onto her. “I love destroying everything that bastard cares about bit by bit. I want him to suffer.”

Ellinor glared at the silver-haired man, trying to make a sound. She had something to say, but with her mouth taped shut, she couldn’t speak clearly.

The silver-haired man understood her intention. He reached out and mercilessly ripped the tape from her mouth.

Suddenly, Ellinor’s cheek felt a sharp pain. The adhesive material being ripped off her face pulled out her fine facial hair.

He said coldly, “What did you want to say? Say it now.”

Ellinor's eyes were full of urgency. She looked at him expectantly. "Didn't Theo die in the explosion? Why do you want him to suffer? What's the point?" Her urgency was the hope of hearing from this kidnapper that Theo was still alive.

The Kiss That Free online book summaries Chapter 1334

Chapter 1334

The silver-haired man sneered sarcastically. "He's dead' But his death was too quick; he got off easy. So, even if he's dead, I'll torment the woman he cares about the most to make sure he can't rest in peace."

Ellinor took a cautious step back because she could tell that this silver-haired man had no moral constraints and was not joking with her.

After seeing Ellinor step back fearfully, a hint of disdain appeared in the eyes of the silver-haired man. "Scared already? Weren't you quite brave last time?"

Ellinor gritted her teeth silently, not saying a word.

No shit! Last time when she was tied up, she wasn't pregnant, so she had no problem dealing with them.

The silver-haired man chuckled lightly. "Don't worry, I won't torment you now, you should thank the kid in your belly for being useful to me. Once you've given birth to the kid. I' slowly play games with you."

Ellinor frowned in surprise. "What use is my child to you? What the hell are you trying to do?"

The silver-haired man poked Ellinor's belly. "Your unborn kid can help me control all the assets of the Blanchet Corporation. With Theo dead, I can keep this kid to threaten the Blanchet family; this child has great value to me."

Ellinor suddenly understood something and smiled. "What kind of dream are you having? Your plan won't work! The child in my belly has nothing to do with the Blanchet family, even if it did, how could the Blanchet family be willingly exploited by you for a newborn baby?"

The silver-haired man lowered his head and sneered at Ellinor. "Don't you know? After Theo died, Marissa and Putnam made a will overnight already giving all the Blanchet family industries to the kid in your belly."

Ellinor was taken aback after hearing this. "What? Where did you hear this? That's impossible!"

The silver-haired man squinted his eyes wickedly. "How is it impossible? With Theo dead, the child in your belly is his only legitimate heir. If the Blanchet family's property isn't inherited by this child, who should it be passed to?"

Ellinor had never heard of this, and she thought it unlikely that Marissa and Putnam could make such a shocking decision so quickly.

She didn't know where this silver-haired man got his information.

After thinking. Ellinor looked at the silver-haired man calmly.

"I get it. What you ultimately want is the Blanchet family's money, isn't it? There's no need to go through all this trouble. How much money do you want? I can give it to you." The silver-haired man was slightly stunned and looked at Ellinor amusingly. "You'll give me money? How much money do you have? Can you afford it?"

"I can't be the decision-maker for the Blanchet Corporation, but I can control my own affairs.

To tell you the truth, I actually have a few small businesses. If sold, they should amount to a few billion dollars. That's enough for you to live a worry-free life. As long as you let me go, I will give you all the money!"

The silver-haired man stared intently at Ellinor's eyes, trying to spot traces of her bluffing.

However, Ellinor's eyes were firm and calm, with no signs of guilt, which made him begin to believe her.

The Kiss That Read books online for free Chapter 1335

Ellinor spoke again, "Though a few billion is no match for the market value of the Blanchet Corporation, it's still a hefty sum that could afford you a swanky life. Plus, you won't have to squabble with shareholders for shares; you can easily pocket this money."

The silver-haired man pondered her offer for a moment, laughed, and then pinched Ellinor's chin. "You make it sound tempting. If what you say is true, I'll take it. But I'm not settling for just this; I want all the assets of the Blanchet Corporation too."

Ellinor didn't expect him to be so greedy. She frowned and asked, "Mister, what's your name?"

The silver-haired man looked at her scornfully. "Why the third degree? You're not worthy of knowing my name!"

Ellinor calmly replied, "If I'm not mistaken, you should share the same surname as Theo Blanchet, right?"

After seeing the silver-haired man's face darken, Ellinor knew she had guessed correctly and continued, "I guess I hit the nail on the head! You're the illegitimate child of Theo's father from another woman; you resent him for abandoning you and your mother, despise the Blanchet family, and hate Theo even more because he's lived a completely different life from you, am I right?"

The silver-haired man glared at her, his gaze full of anger. "You'd best shut up, or else don't blame me for not being polite!"

Ellinor looked into the silver-haired man's eyes, knowing she had hit a nerve, and that was exactly why he was raging.

But she didn't plan to stop there; she continued, "You should be hating Theo's father, not Theo. What wrong has he done? He never asked for a philandering father. Furthermore, back then he was just a child; how was he supposed to control his father?"

The silver-haired man glared at her.

"Why the hell does he get all the luck? How come he inherits the Blanchet Corporation just like that? We're both sons of the same father, so why does he get to be noble and live a wealthy life while I have to scrape by at the bottom barrel of society? I hate him, I want him dead, and I want the Blanchet Corporation to be mine; only then will I feel at peace; only then can I make up for my mother's suffering!"

When the silver-haired man mentioned his mother, his resentment deepened.

Ellinor was taken aback, seeming to understand the bitterness and resentment in his heart.

"But have you ever thought about it? Even if you really got the Blanchet Corporation, can you manage it? Are you sure you can keep the Blanchet Corporation in the top 100 companies worldwide?"

The silver-haired man gripped her throat tightly. "How dare you look down on me?"

Ellinor felt a bit uncomfortable, but she deliberately smiled at him. "I'm just looking out for you; you don't know how to run a business. Even if you take control of the Blanchet Corporation, it won't do you any good. In no time, the Blanchet Corporation will go bankrupt due to mismanagement."

The silver-haired man angrily said, "Mind your own business! Even if I bankrupt the Blanchet Corporation, I don't care!"

"What's the point of getting something if you can't enjoy it? I don't think your friends know how to run a company either, and you don't have the right connections to help you. If you don't mind, I can teach you as long as you don't harm me."

The silver-haired man looked at her suspiciously. "You want to teach me?"

Ellinor nodded. "To be honest, I got close to Theo before just to use his power to make my life better.

But he's dead now, and I can now only rely on the child in my stomach. I probably won't have much say in the Blanchet family; I might even be discarded by them, leaving only this child!"

"The Kiss That Sparked it All ( Ellinor )" A romance novel or romantic novel

The Kiss That Chapter by chapter summary Chapter 1336

Chapter 1336

“But if I can find a man with Blanchet family blood like you, then I’ve got an ace up my sleeve. We could be a team, backing each other up and climbing to the peak of life. What do you say?”

The silver-haired man looked at Ellinor for a while and then pushed her away in disdain. “Why the hell do you think I would accept Theo’s ex?”

Ellinor didn’t feel insulted; she just laughed.

“Didn’t the Blanchet Corporation also belong to Theo before? You don’t mind taking over the Blanchet Corporation, but you mind his ex-girlfriend?! You should know that I was with Theo because I’ve got my own capabilities!”

It seemed like the silver-haired man was swayed by Ellinor’s words.

He really didn’t know how to run a company, and his buddies couldn’t help him either; he did need a hand.

This chick seemed pretty straight-up, and he could always kick her out when he was done with her.

So, the silver-haired man smirked. “Fine, I’ll keep you around for now. But if I find out you’re playing me, you’re gonna pay!”

Ellinor laughed. “Since we’ve decided to team up, can you untie my hands now?”

A hint of suspicion flashed in the silver-haired man’s eyes. “Why do I need to untie you? Got something urgent you need to attend to? I’ll untie you after you give birth.”

Ellinor raised an eyebrow. “I just need you to untie my hands and give me a pen and paper. I can draw you the power structure of the Blanchet Corporation, which should help both of us control it.”

The silver-haired man looked at her in confusion.

Ellinor laughed. "What? I'm a pregnant woman with my feet tied! Even if you untie my hands, I can't run away. You're afraid I'll escape? Don't you think you're overestimating me and underestimating your big gang?"

Ellinor successfully pissed off the silver-haired man; he glanced at her big belly in annoyance, deciding she couldn't run away.

"Give me your hands!" The silver-haired man said coldly.

Ellinor immediately stretched out her hands.

He noticed her slender wrists as he untied the rope.

It was weird. This chick was pregnant. She was all round and puffy like a loaf of bread, but her arms were not fat at all; they were actually quite slender instead.

After the silver-haired man untied the rope, he ordered her, "Start drawing!"

Ellinor innocently showed her hands. "I don't have any paper or a pen; how am I supposed to draw?"

The silver-haired man stared at her, watching her intently for a while. He then turned around to find paper and a pen.

Suddenly!

BOOM!

Inside the bungalow in the yard, seven or eight young dudes were having a barbecue and drinking, oblivious to the noise.

In the ruins at the explosion site in the suburbs.

About seven or eight cars were parked. Everyone got out of the cars.

Byran looked at the ruins in front of him with his eyebrows furrowed. "This place is totally destroyed. Is it really possible that Ellinor is here?"

Balfour got out of the car, squinting to observe the surroundings. He signaled his men to start searching. Meanwhile, he was also looking for any suspicious clues.

He noticed some unusual tire marks on the ground. Balfour squatted down, using a flashlight to get a closer look. They were tire marks from a car other than theirs. He then looked up in the direction the tire marks were heading.

Chase saw Balfour squatting there, so he walked over and took a look.

He shouted, "Guys, come over and check this out! These tire marks here look pretty fresh. They seem to head in the direction of the town outside the suburbs

The Kiss That Free book summary websites Chapter 1337

Chapter 1337

Ida and Byran joined in to get a closer look.

Balfour dusted off his hands, stood up, gathered his crew, and instructed them to follow the tire tracks.

Then, they each got in their cars and followed the tracks.

Out in the suburbs, at the abandoned factory, the ground was muddy, so any car would leave clear tracks, but when they hit the asphalt road leading to the county town, the tracks disappeared.

They had to stop and rely on the traffic network to check road surveillance and then began filtering out suspicious vehicles.

Since there weren't many cars entering the county from the suburbs at night, they quickly zeroed in on a suspicious van and hit the road again.

Following the route caught on surveillance, they soon found a bungalow in a narrow alley.

A locked iron gate stood in front of the bungalow. They could hear men's voices and smell the barbecue from within.

Balfour, Chase, Ida, and Byran got out of the car and walked into the narrow alley.

They didn't drive over on purpose, so as not to tip off anyone inside with the sound of the engine.

They hid and observed from a concealed spot. All the houses around were dark and quiet. Only one yard was lit, with rowdy sounds coming from inside.

Byran frowned and whispered anxiously, "Balfour, do you think Ellinor went to the ruins looking for Theo and got taken here? There are so many men inside, you don't think they've..."

Balfour's face darkened, and he clenched his fists. "Shut up! Keep it down!"

Byran lowered his head. He knew he should be quiet, but he was very worried about Ellinor. The thought of her being taken by those men made him want to charge in right away.

Ida adjusted her gold-framed glasses. "You guys wait here; I'll try to sneak in."

Chase put a hand out to stop her, coolly saying, "There are too many men inside. If our boss is there, your late-night visit will only alert them."

Ida frowned. "So what do you suggest?"

"Let's watch a bit longer."

Byran couldn't help but ask, "What if they finish eating and then start... with Ellinor?"

Chase was also worried, but for the sake of the boss's safety, he couldn't act rashly. "Let's all keep our cool. Right now, our boss is pregnant. They wouldn't just kidnap someone for sexual desires. There must be another reason as to why they brought her here."

Byran found Chase's explanation reasonable. He nearly forgot Ellinor was pregnant.

Just then, Balfour signaled for them to quiet down.

The other three immediately fell silent.

Then they heard the crude banter of the men in the yard.

“Our boss went into that pregnant woman’s room, right? Why hasn’t he come out yet?”

“Do you think the boss would even take a pregnant woman?”

“He’s the man; he doesn’t care about the woman’s huge belly being in the way!”

“Hahaha...”

“You guys love to talk smack! If he hears you, he’ll beat the hell out of you!”

"The Kiss That Sparked it All ( Ellinor )" A romance novel or romantic novel

The Kiss That Read novels online for free Chapter 1338

Chapter 1338

After hearing this, Balfour, Byran, Ida, and Chase all became pissed off.

They stopped holding each other back, ready for a showdown with those disgusting blokes.

They strode forward, and then suddenly, a tall man blocked their way.

They were on alert at first, but once they got a clear look at the man, they were all dumbfounded.

Then the man strode toward the yard and kicked the iron gate open with a bang.

Upon seeing the newcomer, the henchmen were taken aback.

“You... you... didn’t you croak? Are you a ghost or what?”

Theo asked icily. “Where’s my wife?”

“We don’t know who your wife is! Let’s get him! We’ll hand him over to the boss!” One of the henchmen took the lead.

Theo kicked over their barbecue grill, scattering the hot coals all over the floor. The men yelled in pain as the coals scorched their bodies and faces.

Once they recovered, they all lunged at Theo.

Unbeknownst to them, three more tall men and a woman in gold-rimmed glasses had entered the yard to back Theo up.

Ida adjusted her glasses, bent down, and grabbed one of the downed men. "Spill! Where did you guys take the pregnant woman?"

The man, covered in bruises, spat out a mouthful of blood and replied with a toothless grin, "Inside!"

Ida shoved him away and gave him a swift kick. Once he passed out, she quickly made her way to the cabin.

After dealing with the two henchmen in front of him, Theo also headed for the cabin..

Ida cautiously opened the door, ready for any traps, only to find the heavily pregnant Ellinor straddling a silver-haired man, gripping his collar tightly, and interrogating him.

"Speak! Where did you guys take Theo?"

The silver-haired man was a bloody mess. Ellinor had broken his arms and legs. He had no chance of fighting back.

Ellinor knocked him out with a random object just as he was about to grab a pen and paper. He then received a brutal beating.

But the silver-haired man just laughed at her. "Hahaha, he's blown to bits!"

Ellinor was livid, her voice hoarse from shouting. "What on earth are you blabbering about?! He can't be dead! Tell me where he is, or I swear I'll kill you!"

The silver-haired man, with blood oozing from his mouth and his eyes swollen shut, was still grinning. "Kill me if you want! He's already dead! The cops even took his body away, don't you know? Hahaha, you crazy woman. Why are you going mad over a dead man?"

Ellinor's eyes had turned a murderous red. She trembled with rage and yelled, "You bastard! How dare you insult Theo? Give him back to me! Give him back!"

The silver-haired man's ears rang from Ellinor's punch. It took him a while to recover, then he gritted his teeth and said, "He's dead. Killing me won't bring him back, you crazy woman!"

Ellinor was shaking all over. Since she learned the news, she'd been trying to suppress her emotions and stay calm. But now she couldn't control her feelings anymore. Her heart was about to shatter.

She'd been trying to keep her distance from that man, but she'd never imagined he would die and disappear from the world. She couldn't accept the truth.

The Kiss That Chapter summaries online free Chapter 1339

Chapter 1339

She grabbed the silver-haired man by the neck in a frenzy. "If he dies, you're going down with him!"

The man's face turned red instantly as he gasped for breath.

"Boss..."

Upon hearing Ida's voice, Ellinor loosened her grip and turned around.

Yes, Ida had arrived.

It wasn't just Ida.. Chase, Balfour, and Byran were also there.

They all came looking for her.

But that wasn't the highlight. The main event was that Theo was there too!

Yes, it was Theo.

He was standing right in the middle of them, looking at her in surprise before squinting his eyes, his expression a mix of amusement and disbelief.

Ida approached first. "Boss, don't dirty your hands with this guy. Sit down and rest; the police can deal with him."

Ellinor looked at Ida and then at her hands. She regained her sanity and quickly pulled back her hand.

Being pregnant, she had difficulty standing up. She reached out for Ida's help, but Theo beat her to it and grabbed her hand.

Chase pulled Ida aside.

Seeing that Theo had grabbed her hand, Ellinor instinctively tried to pull away.

Theo, anticipating this, held her hand tightly and looked at her tenderly. "Were you standing up for me just now?"

Feeling awkward, Ellinor replied, "No, I just couldn't stand the sight of him!"

"Oh, really?" Theo smiled, stroking her face with his other hand, trying to comfort her.

Ellinor stared at Theo as she felt his hand gently caress her cheek. Her emotions suddenly collapsed, and tears welled up in her eyes.

The roller coaster of emotions she was feeling was too overwhelming. She thought he was dead, and then he appeared in front of her, as real as he was before.

The silver-haired man couldn't bear it anymore. "Theo, you're not dead?!"

Only then did Theo notice that Ellinor was sitting on another man. Frowning, he picked Ellinor up and gave the man a hard kick.

"You're far from killing me!"

The man was in unbearable pain. Theo's kick felt like it was tearing his insides apart.

The police Theo brought rushed in at that moment, handcuffed the bloodied silver-haired man, and took him away.

At that point, Ellinor seemed to have lost all her strength. She leaned against Theo, too tired to resist. She was completely drained.

She couldn't understand how she managed to hit the silver-haired man, especially when her belly was already so big.

Theo looked down at her pale face, leaned his forehead against hers, and whispered soothingly, "It's okay, I'm fine, don't worry."

"The Kiss That Sparked it All ( Ellinor )" A romance novel or romantic

The Kiss That Online reading sites Chapter 1340

Chapter 1340

Theo quietly held Ellinor and carried her into the car. She then fell into a deep sleep.

She hadn't had a chance to ask him what had happened.

At the police station.

Theo's tall figure stood outside the interrogation room, waiting for the police's verdict.

At that moment, Marissa Blanchet and Putnam Blanchet rushed over to the police station after hearing the news.

Veronica came in and saw her brother, whom she thought was dead. She couldn't control herself; she ran over, threw herself into Theo's arms, and burst into tears. "You're okay?! We thought you..."

Theo gently patted Veronica's head. "It's okay; don't cry. I'm right here, aren't I?"

Veronica looked up at Theo's face as she continued to sob. She was close enough to touch it. "What happened? Why did the police say you were blown up? You scared the hell out of me, Grandma, and Grandpa!"

Theo couldn't say much more in this situation.

"Theo, you little rascal! You must think I've lived too long. You didn't even call home when you were okay. Are you trying to give me and your grandpa a heart attack?" Marissa, supported by a maid from the house, came over while cursing and wiping her tears.

“You little bastard, you even kept this from your grandpa!” Putnam, who was being pushed in a wheelchair by a servant, scolded him sternly, but his eyes were visibly red.

Theo gently pushed Veronica away and came over to them, bending over respectfully. “I’m sorry, Grandpa and Grandma. I’ve made you worried.”

Marissa reached out and pulled his arm, and only after feeling his warmth did she truly relax. “It’s okay as long as you’re alive and well. You can’t scare us like this again. We’re too old for this kind of shock!”

Putnam frowned and hummed, “He wants a next time? If there is a next time, I will really disown this kid!”

Marissa glanced at him. “Can’t you just talk nicely? You were clearly crying at home!”

Putnam frowned. “Who was crying?”

Marissa widened her eyes. “You!”

Theo smiled. He felt relieved and, after a few moments, spoke to Veronica again. “Take Grandpa and Grandma to sit over there for a while. I still have some things to deal with.” Veronica immediately nodded and took her grandparents to the waiting area on the other side of the police station.

Just as Theo turned around and was about to walk down the corridor, a woman suddenly hugged him from behind.

“Theo, thank God! You’re okay! I was scared to death.”

Sophia rushed to the police station as soon as she got the news.

Theo’s face was cold, and he gently removed Sophia’s hands from him. “Thank you for your concern. I’m okay.”

After being pushed away, Sophia didn’t cling to him again but moved to Theo’s front, checking him from head to toe, and only relaxed after confirming that he wasn’t hurt.