

The Kiss 741

Chapter 741

"But you're gonna tie the knot someday, right? You've gotta lock down someone from a well-off family, right?"

What if you get kicked out of their house because you're too lazy to lift a finger or can't handle domestic chores? Wouldn't that be a slap in the face for the Blanchet family?

So, I've put together a little learning opportunity for you, starting with chores at home. I believe you can do it"

"You..." Veronica was gritting her teeth, her face turning as green as spinach. "Ellinor, you're such a sly fox! Hmph! No matter what you say, I'm not gonna do any housework!"

Ellinor wasn't fazed. "Well, that's fine. But we don't need another freeloader in this house. When your brother comes home tonight, I have him take you back to your mom's."

Ellinor knew this was Veronica's weakness from what Theo said this morning when he was barking at her.

Veronica's biggest soft spot was the thought of leaving the Blanchet family's home and going back to her mom's.

She wasn't sure why, but that was all the ammo she needed.

Veronica was on the verge of a meltdown and began shaking with rage. She pointed at Ellinor. "You..."

Ellinor was grinning like a Cheshire cat. "So, are you gonna do it?"

Veronica hated housework like the plague, but she was scared to death of being kicked out by Ellinor because Theo was head over heels for her and would do anything she said.

Damn Ellinor, just you wait! There will be payback one day!

Veronica gritted her teeth and gave in. "Fine, I'll do it! It's just some housework, right?"

"Good, can't wait to see it!" Ellinor flashed a smile, then turned to the housekeeper, Devin. "I'm gonna head out after lunch. As you heard, Ms. Blanchet has kindly volunteered to handle all the house chores. If anyone dares to help her, they're basically giving up their job. I hope you can lead by example and keep an eye on her."

Devin was taken aback by Ellinor's assertiveness. "Yes, ma'am!"

Veronica was fuming and shooting daggers at Ellinor with her eyes.

But Ellinor didn't give a hoot. She strolled upstairs to change into her outfit for the outing.

After lunch, she checked the time and saw there was still a while before Theo would be off work.

It was boring to wait, and she couldn't go back to sleep.

So she went to the Crescent Society.

At the Crescent Society, in the CEO's office.

Ellinor's arrival got Ida Gipson and Chase Larios all fired up.

Chase teased, "Why so happy? Did you have a fun night?",

Ellinor's cheeks flushed a little. She flipped through the papers in her hand and shot him a glance. "Don't you have anything better to think about?"

Chapter 742

Chase shrugged nonchalantly, I'm just curious, that's all. How did that guy win you over?"

Ellinor fell silent.

Ida came over with a cup of coffee and lightly kicked Chase, "Buzz off! Ellinor is busy working, and you're here chit-chatting about nonsense "

Chase was kicked aside. He patted his pants lightly and looked at Ida, feeling displeased.

Ida put the coffee on the desk next to Ellinor, "Ellinor, did you actually patch things up with Mr. Blanchet last night?"

Ellinor struggled to find a response.

Chase rolled his eyes. "Aren't you as curious as I am?"

Ellinor didn't answer their questions. She flipped to the last page of the financial report in her hand, "Hmm, not bad. The financial report for the second half of the year has improved a lot compared to the first half. You two have worked hard. We still have a long way to go in terms of real estate development compared to those established groups."

Ida, as always, was serious about her work. She nodded after hearing this, "Okay, I got it."

Ellinor closed the folder and took a sip of her coffee.

Ida suddenly thought of something. "Oh right, Ellinor, we've finished the design for the new office building for the Blanchet Corporation. They were very satisfied with the final design you provided, and now they've handed over the construction to us."

Ellinor sipped her coffee and pondered for a while, then said, "Okay, I'll handle the construction of the Blanchet Corporation's new building. I'll supervise it personally."

Ida was a bit surprised. She adjusted her glasses and said, "Ellinor, you're going to supervise the construction yourself? The site conditions are harsh, and there is a risk of objects falling on you from great heights, especially since you're pregnant."

Ellinor said seriously, "I know, but I'll be careful."

Ida wanted to persuade Ellinor more, but Chase interrupted her

“Ida, don’t you get it? The Blanchet Corporation used to be just our client, but now their boss is Ellinor’s man. It’s her man’s family business, so of course she wants to supervise it personally.”

Ellinor was taken aback, sometimes Chase really did not hold back.

Ida understood but was still worried, “Ellinor, I can have someone supervise it, you don’t have to go personally

Ellinor didn’t change her mind. She spoke as she waved her hand lightly, “No need; I’ll handle it myself.”

When the Crescent Society Building was being built, Ellinor also personally supervised it.

Although she could hand it over entirely to the construction company, such a huge project might have quality issues, so she wanted to supervise it herself.

If all went well, the new Blanchet Corporation office building would be Theo’s workplace for the next several decades. But no one could predict whether Greenhaven would suffer any disasters in the next few decades.

Therefore, she wanted Theo’s long-term workplace to be safe and sturdy, with no hidden dangers, so that she could rest assured.

Chase suddenly came over, put his elbow on the desk, and pretended to sigh jealously, “Ellinor, I’m starting to get jealous by how much you baby Mr. Blanchet.”

Ellinor came back to her senses. She picked up the folder in her hand and knocked Chase on the head with it, “Can you have some decency? I see you’re getting more and more unruly lately You’re not young anymore; you should act your age! Stop looking for trouble!”

Ida laughed jokingly, “Exactly!”

Chase rubbed his head, “Ida, do you have a right to say that about me? We’re in the same boat; you’re no saint either!”

Chapter 743

Ida shot him a cold look, “Ellinor’s the one moasting you, don’t drag me into this.”

Ellinor was done arguing with them. She checked her watch and saw that there was an hour left before clocking out. She’d just make it to the Blanchet Corporation by quitting time if she took a cab.

She put down her coffee and got up from her office chair, “You guys, carry on with your stuff, I’m heading out.”

Chase asked, “Where are you off to. Ellinor? Aren’t you eating with us?”

“I’m going to pick up Theo from the Blanchet Corporation.” Without turning her head, Ellinor waved her hand and walked out of the CEO’s office

Chase shook his head helplessly as he watched the door close, “Ah... that lovey-dovey atmosphere!”

After coming back to her senses, Ida shot him a disgusted look, "Alright, go back to your office and be jealous there!"

The coffee shop across the Blanchet Corporation building.

Ellinor picked a window seat and ordered a coffee.

She had a clear view of the entrance to the Blanchet Corporation, so she could see Theo as soon as he stepped out.

She hadn't told Theo she was coming because she wanted to surprise him and see how he'd react to her picking him up from work.

How would the straight-laced, serious Theo react when he saw her? She found the thought amusing.

As Ellinor thought about it, a hint of an anticipatory smile appeared on her face.

Suddenly, someone tapped her shoulder from behind.

Who was it?

Ellinor turned around cautiously, only to find a familiar face.

Belinda Wesley collapsed into the seat across from her, panting heavily. She snatched the coffee from Ellinor's hand and gulped it down before saying, "Damn, Ellinor, I'm beat! Chasing after you is no joke!"

Ellinor raised an eyebrow at her, "Chase me? From where?"

Belinda caught her breath, "I've been following you from the Crescent Society. My car broke down on the way, and I couldn't get a cab, so I ran."

Ellinor squinted at Belinda, who was all sweaty. She called over a waiter, "Another glass of ice water, please."

"Sure, just a moment."

When the waiter brought the water, Ellinor looked at Belinda with a steady gaze, "So your car broke down, you couldn't get a cab, and I took a taxi. You should've lost me by then. How'd you find me?"

"Well... I..." Belinda looked guilty. She sipped the ice water to ease her embarrassment.

Ellinor eyed her sharply. "You weren't trying to catch up with me, you were tailing me."

Belinda couldn't come up with a good excuse. She blurted out the truth, "Alright! I admit, at first I was trying to tail you. I lost track of you when my car broke down, but then I realized I was near the Blanchet Corporation. So, I went there to find Theo, but instead, I found you in this coffee shop."

Chapter 744

"Spill it why are you tailing me?" Ellinor asked bluntly, having already had her suspicions. Belinda looked a bit sheepish, "I just wanted to see where you'd go and what you'd do."

Ellinor casually folded her arms. "Why the curiosity about what I'm up to? Care to be a bit more specific?"

Belinda knew her stalking was out of line and felt pretty rotten about it.

But then she remembered she had a reason, so she puffed up her chest and asked, "Ellinor! I saw you coming out of the office of Crescent Society's president. What's your deal with them?"

Ellinor didn't even bat an eyelash as she simply replied, "They're old friends of mine from childhood. Is there a problem?"

Belinda was taken aback, her face a picture of surprise, "What? Ellinor, you're childhood friends with the president of Crescent Society? But didn't you grow up in the boondocks?"

Ellinor looked at her, 'So country bumpkins can't make it big? Is it so weird that a childhood friend of mine made it from rags to riches as a corporate bigwig?"

Belinda quickly waved her hands, "No, no! That's not what I meant; I thought you and the president of Crescent Society..."

Ellinor finished for her. "Thought I was in a romantic relationship with the president of Crescent Society?"

Belinda felt even guiltier, "It's what Collin told me, he said you and Chase from Crescent Society tied the knot, so I just..."

Ellinor fell silent.

There had been a misunderstanding between her and Theo before, which made Theo think she had married Chase.

So, it was conceivable that Theo's right-hand man, Collin, would think the same.

Belinda sighed, looking worried, "Ellinor, did you know? Ever since you left, Theo's been down in the dumps. He's wasting away! Then, when I heard you married another man, I planned to help Theo win you back!"

Ellinor snapped back to reality and smirked, "You planned to help him win me back? How exactly?"

Belinda said confidently, "I was going to get a job at Crescent Society first, then get close to your husband Chase, make him cheat on you and get dumped, then Theo could swoop in, and you'd be back in Theo's arms.

After hearing her plan, Ellinor couldn't help but twitch her lips, feeling utterly speechless.

Belinda really did think differently from normal people.

Ellinor rubbed her forehead, "So how far along is this grand plan of yours?"

Belinda said, "I got hired at Crescent Society and have been working there for a while."

So that was it?

So Belinda worked at Crescent Society; that's why she saw her coming out of the president's office.

Ellinor looked at the naive girl helplessly. Then how did you get close to Chase?"

Belinda shook her head, "Ah! I haven't even gotten close yet. I can't seem to find the chance.

Ellinor, your partner...I mean, your friend. Your friend is hardly at the company and is always busy working. On the rare occasions when I get to serve him a cup of coffee, he doesn't even glance my way!

I'm beginning to doubt myself! is my appearance really that unattractive? Have I completely lost my appeal to men?"

Ellinor breathed a sigh of relief, at least Chase hadn't messed around with this girl.

Chapter 745

She looked at Belinda's delicate face. She was a real looker, but not the sharpest tool in the shed.

"You're great, just not his cup of tea."

Belinda blinked, "Huh? So what's his type then?"

Ellinor said, "You don't need to worry about what he's into. You don't need to try to charm him anymore because me and Theo are a thing now."

Belinda looked surprised. "Ellinor You and Theo are back together? When did this happen?"

Ellinor nodded, glanced at the time, then towards the Blanchet Corporation's front door, "Yesterday."

Belinda said. "So it's just been a day? But making up is a good thing I can breathe easy for now, otherwise, I was worried Theo might fall into depression."

Ellinor responded, "You might be exaggerating how fragile Theo is. Even if we didn't make up, he's a grown man. He wouldn't wallow in self pity"

Belinda said earnestly, "He would' He really would. Ellinor, Theo cares about you a lot; trust me. Without you, he'd be depressed. So, promise me you won't leave him again."

Ellinor still thought Belinda was overdoing it. She propped her cheek on her arm on the table, gazing at the Blanchet Building, lost in thought.

She didn't doubt her place in Theo's heart, but sometimes she felt puzzled.

Their first encounter was dramatic and discordant; she never imagined they'd end up in a romantic relationship.

Belinda suddenly leaned in closer, "Um... Ellinor, since you and Theo are back together, could you maybe help me out?"

Ellinor snapped back to reality, turning to look at Belinda, "Help with what?"

Belinda blushed, "I want to be with your friend, and you seem to know his taste in women. Could you help me win him over?."

"Cough, cough." Ellinor almost choked on nothing, looking at Belinda with confusion.

Belinda couldn't understand why Ellinor was looking at her so surprised; she already felt embarrassed, and this just made her feel more awkward.

"What's wrong, Ellinor?"

It took Ellinor a moment to recover. She frowned, "Nothing, what do you see in Chase?"

Belinda thought of him and unconsciously had a love-struck expression, "He's hot! He smiles a lot, and it's really cute and refreshing. He's patient and always gentle when talking to staff. He's totally my dream guy! Ellinor, honestly, the moment I saw Chase, I was already leaning towards him. If you really married Chase, I would even understand why you dumped Theo"

Ellinor pinched the bridge of her nose, "That's because you don't know the real Chase. I suggest you find someone else, Chase isn't for you!"

Belinda looked confused, "Why? Ellinor, do you think I'm not good enough for your friend?"

Ellinor replied, "No, you're more than enough for him; he's not good enough for you."

She wasn't intentionally belittling her friend. Chase was great in every aspect except love.

Every girl who dated him ended up deeply hurt.

Belinda shook her head. "He's so hot, how could he not be good enough for me? Ellinor, please, could you help me win him over? I really like him."

Ellinor didn't know how to deal with a love-struck Belinda. Just then, she saw Theo leaving the Blanchet Building. Her eyes lit up, like she'd found her savior.

"Belinda, look! Theo's off work."

Chapter 746

Ellinor stood up and dashed out of the coffee shop, afraid that Theo would leave if she tallied.

Belinda glanced outside the window and followed suit.

"Theo!"

Theo was about to get into his car when he heard a familiar voice. He paused and turned around.

He saw Ellinor walk briskly over and then casually jump into his arms like a child.

Theo instinctively held her, cradling her securely in his arms, "What brings you here?"

Ellinor hugged his neck tightly, "Waiting for you at home is so boring, so I decided to pick you up from work."

A hint of warmth appeared in Theo's eyes. "Pick me up? Aren't you sweet?"

Ellinor laid her head on his shoulder and whispered, "Don't you like it?"

Theo chuckled, "How could I not like you coming to pick me up? But you're not supposed to be gallivanting around given your current condition. Just wait for me at home, I promise I won't go anywhere else after work."

Ellinor hugged his neck tighter, she said firmly. "What's wrong with my current condition? I'm just pregnant, not sick! Theo, I'm not fragile. The doctor said moderate activity is good for the baby, so our child will definitely be healthy and strong"

Theo frowned, He wasn't trying to limit her activities; he was just worried about her having any accidents outside. Besides, he was also worried that she might be targeted by those who had ill intentions towards the Blanchet Corporation, which could jeopardize her safety.

Theo held her, stroking her hair gently. He decided not to argue with her for now; they could discuss it properly when they got home.

The security guards on the side were taken aback by the scene. They worked at the company for years and had never seen Theo with such a gentle expression. This was definitely an eye-opener.

Theo glanced at them and then said to Collin, "You guys can knock off work now."

"Understood, Mr. Blanchet."

Collin watched Theo and Ellinor, feeling somewhat moved. He opened the passenger door for Ellinor, then left with the driver.

Theo walked Ellinor over to the car, carefully seating her in the passenger seat. He buckled her seat belt, "Didn't you say you were going to treat me to a meal? Where are we going?"

Ellinor smiled, "I've already sent you the address, we can head there directly."

Theo closed the door for her and then walked around to the driver's seat.

Just as he started the car, someone hopped into the back seat.

Belinda crossed her arms, looking disgruntled, "Theo! You made up with Ellinor and didn't even tell me?"

Theo glanced up, seeing Belinda in the rear-view mirror, "Are you my elder or something? Do I need to report my personal matters to you?"

Belinda immediately burst into laughter, "I've always been worried about you, Theo. I was afraid you might do something rash without Ellinor. If I knew you two had up, I would we breathed easier"

Rash? Theo's expression turned serious, "Now you know, so get out of the car and go home if you have nothing else."

Belinda had no intentions of leaving, "I overheard you're going to have dinner with Ellinor, I'm also hungry, can I come along?"

Theo said impatiently "If you're hungry, go home and eat. Get out of the car!"

Belinda pouted unhappily. She didn't say anything more to the man in the driver's seat; instead, she turned to Ellinor for help, "Ellinor, Theo doesn't want to take me, but you will, right?"

Ellinor fell silent

She was actually a bit bothered because she knew Belinda definitely still wanted her help to pursue Chase.

Chapter 747

Seeing Belinda's adorable face, Ellinor hesitated but couldn't resist. She nodded, "Alright, let's go together then."

Belinda was over the moon with Ellinor's consent. "I knew you'd take me along. Ellinor. Haha!"

Theo's face clouded over as their duo suddenly became a trio. He turned to Ellinor, "Weren't you just inviting me out to eat?"

Ellinor gave an exasperated reply. "Having one more person only adds an extra set of cutlery, Theo. Don't be such a tightwad!"

Belinda chimed in, 'Exactly. Theo! I'm family! Can't believe you're being stingy even with me. You're not even willing to bring me along for a meal?"

Theo gazed at her with a stern look, "If you're coming along, then sit down and behave!"

After being scolded by Theo, Belinda quickly returned to her seat.

Theo stepped on the gas, and the car quickly left the Blanchet Building.

After ordering a few signature dishes, Ellinor passed the menu to Belinda to order.

Belinda had no qualms about adding a few dishes she wanted, and she also ordered drinks.

Once Belinda had ordered, Ellinor took the menu back and handed it to Theo, Theo, is there anything else you'd like?"

Theo glanced at the menu and didn't take it. He scoffed, "Do I need to order anything?"

Ellinor knew Theo was upset. She smiled and said, "Theo, you're the star of today's meal. Of course you need to order."

Theo pretended to be angry, "Oh, you remember that I'm the star? I thought someone mistook me for a chauffeur today."

Theo took the menu and ordered a few light dishes and some soup.

The two ladies had ordered pretty heavy dishes, and Ellinor, who was pregnant, couldn't have anything too spicy.

He was a bit miffed, but he was more concerned about Ellinor's well-being.

Why was he upset?

Because on the way here, Ellinor had been chatting with Belinda, leaving him out.

When they arrived at the restaurant, Ellinor walked in hand in hand with Belinda, not once looking back at him.

Now seated at the table, Ellinor let Belinda order first and only remembered him, the so-called star, at the end.

Ellinor chuckled when she heard the light dishes Theo added, knowing he was considering her. She also didn't miss the displeasure on Theo's face

She was amused that Theo was actually jealous of Belinda.

Ignoring Belinda's presence, Ellinor reached out to hold Theo's face, "Theo, you're overthinking things. How could you be a driver? There's no driver as handsome as you in the world."

Theo's cool and handsome face broke into a smile in a second. He gently patted Ellinor's head, "Who's been teaching you to sweet talk like this?"

Belinda rested her chin on her hand, watching Theo and Ellinor's sweet interaction enviously. Thinking about her single status, she lamented, "Ah, when will I have a sweet romance like this?"

Chapter 748

Hearing Belinda's sigh, Ellinor and Theo turned to look at her, both wearing a hint of worry on their brows

This love-crazy child would be better off keeping her love life on the low

Then, the waiter served up several dishes.

Ellinor loaded up Belinda's bowl, who was spacing out, "What's on your mind? Weren't you hungry? Eat up!"

Belinda snapped out of her daydream and smiled, "Thanks, Ellinor"

Ellinor swiftly served her man next to her, saving this childish fella from feeling jealous of Belinda.

Belinda was quite the chatterbox, her mouth never stopped, even while eating, "So, Theo, have you and Ellinor tied the knot yet?"

The question made both Ellinor and Theo pause.

Turning his head, Theo shot Ellinor a deep look, "Not yet."

Belinda furrowed her brows seriously, "How come you guys haven't married yet? Theo, aren't you afraid that Ellinor might up and leave you one day? You should get a move on with the mamage! You need to keep a tight grip on the woman you won back!"

Theo was speechless.

Theo didn't respond, his face was a mix of emotions. He grabbed the frosty glass of water next to him and took a silent sip.

Ellinor didn't think much of Belinda's words, but Theo's silence caught her attention.

He didn't seem to be planning to marry her?

Belinda assumed Theo was too shy to bring up marriage because he feared rejection.

So she stood in for Theo, throwing the suggestion at Ellinor.

"Ellinor, tie the knot with Theo tomorrow; the sooner the better! No need to drag things out."

Ellinor glanced at the man next to her, who was still sipping water in silence. She pulled her gaze back, casually taking a bite of her food, "No rush."

Belinda looked confused, "No rush? Why not? Haven't you two had enough fun? Why aren't you eager to get married? If I found someone I liked, I'd want to marry him right away!"

Ellinor nonchalantly lowered her eyes, "A marriage document is just a piece of paper. Its only purpose is to protect both parties' assets, making it easier to divide property if a divorce happens.

I don't want his money, so what's the point of us getting married? If we really want to split up, that piece of paper won't stop us.

People who truly have faith in staying together for a lifetime don't need that piece of paper."

"Wow! That's deep!" Belinda was struck dumb, then showed an admiring face, "Ellinor, you're such a boss! I need to learn from you so I can have confidence in love and be able to let go as easily as I hold on."

Ellinor gave a light smile, she didn't say anything more and just carried on eating.

Theo was taken aback by Ellinor's view of the marriage document, his face subtly changing.

He squinted his narrow eyes, deep in thought, then put down his glass of water, staying silent.

The atmosphere started to become a bit odd.

Although Belinda was a bit slow on the uptake, she could feel something was off.

She glanced at the silent Theo, then at Ellinor, who was just eating quietly. She felt baffled, what the heck was going on?

They were just fine a moment ago, why were they suddenly so silent?

Unable to bear the awkward silence, Belinda tried to change the topic, "Well, even if you don't get a marriage document, you guys should definitely snap a set of wedding photos, so you can keep some precious memories."

Chapter 749

"Your wedding with Ellinor was so low-key, Theo. You guys didn't even have a single photo taken!

Aren't you gonna take her for a nice wedding photo shoot now that she's back?"

Before Theo could answer, Ellinor responded, "No need. Theo probably doesn't like to have his picture taken."

Belinda frowned and turned to Theo, "You're not gonna skip wedding photos, are you?"

Theo's gaze fell on Ellinor, saying, "Once in a while, I can handle it."

Ellinor looked at him in surprise. She had thought that the man who didn't want to marry her would also find it a waste of time to take wedding photos with her. She didn't expect him to agree.

Upon hearing that Theo was willing to take photos, Belinda immediately cheered up, "Great! I have a photographer friend, I'll book a wedding photo shoot for you nght now as a wedding gift."

Ellinor was still uninterested, 'Belinda, don't bother, we'll talk about it later."

But Belinda didn't listen and went out with her phone to make a call.

Ellinor sighed helplessly

"So, you don't want to take a photo with me?" Theo's voice was laced with a hint of sarcasm, intending to tease her.

Ellinor was taken aback, she turned her head and gave him a glance, "No, I just don't want to waste your time doing such a boring thing."

Theo gently patted her head, "It's not boring. We should have a photo of us together at home."

Ellinor didn't like the feeling of being oppressed, so she asked. "Then why don't you want to get a marriage document with me?"

After two seconds of silence, Theo softly said to her, "Let's talk about the marriage document later, you don't care about that piece of paper, do you?"

Ellinor looked quietly into Theo's eyes, they were so deep and cold, it was like they had no end.

As she came back to her senses, she gave a light laugh, "Yeah, I don't care about that kind of thing."

Indeed, she didn't care about those formalities, but Theo's inexplicable refusal to get a marriage document with her was something she couldn't accept

Even if she didn't care about the paper, she couldn't pretend nothing had happened with his vague attitude.

She felt a tightness in her chest, and the food no longer tasted good.

Theo served her a bowl of soup, scooped up a bit with a spoon, blew on it to cool it down, and fed it to her, "Don't just eat veggies; have some soup, okay?"

He seemed as if nothing had happened, continuing to care for her as always.

"Thanks." Ellinor took the soup. She didn't let him feed her, and she started drinking it herself.

Belinda ran back excitedly. "Theo, Ellinor, eat up! We're going to take wedding photos after this!"

Ellinor's brows furrowed slightly, "...Now?"

Belinda nodded, "Now is the peak season for wedding photography. All the slots are fully booked, up to three months in advance. I have a friend who specifically reserved a slot for us tonight, otherwise, we would have to wait a very long time!"

Ellinor wanted to tell them to forget it, she didn't feel like taking pictures at the moment.

But Theo spoke before her, "Alright, once she's finished eating, we'll go."

Chapter 750

Ellinor looked at Theo next to her with surprise. Theo wanted to take wedding photos now?

Belinda came back and sat down. Now that she had something to look forward to, the food tasted much better than before.

"Ellinor, I can't wait! You're going to look so pretty in your wedding dress!"

Ellinor slightly furrowed her brows and continued to sip her soup, lost in thought.

How could a guy who wasn't keen on getting a marriage document with his girlfriend still be enthusiastic about taking wedding photos. She had no clue what was going on in his mind!

Belinda's friend's photography studio was a famous and high-end one in Greenhaven. Apparently, many celebrities' wedding photos, portraits, and magazine covers were all shot there.

She purposely didn't tell her friend about Theo's identity, fearing her friend would feel pressured to shoot Theo.

But even so, her friend felt an unprecedented pressure the moment she saw Theo.

His aura was too strong. You could tell he was no ordinary man by just looking at him. He was incomparable to any of the top male celebrities they had served before.

"Belinda, what does this guy do? He's really handsome, but kind of intimidating."

"Oh, him? He's just a regular businessman. Handsome guys tend to have a bit of an aloof aura, don't mind it. Your job is to make him look even more handsome, but most importantly, capture the beauty of his wife perfectly."

"Don't worry! I'm a pro!"

Ellinor and Theo sat on the couch in the waiting area, watching Belinda chat with a very feminine photographer friend for quite a while.

Ellinor felt a bit bored, so she flipped through a photo album on the table.

A bottle of mineral water was handed to her. "Here, have some water"

Without thinking much, Ellinor took the water and took a casual sip before handing it back to Theo.

He received the bottle naturally and took a sip before capping it.

After that, Belinda pulled Ellinor away to pick a wedding dress and do her makeup.

Ellinor wasn't really in the mood for wedding photos, but she thought it would be a good opportunity to hide her slightly visible baby bump.

If she waited till the bump was more noticeable, she would have to wait till after the birth to take photos. So she didn't resist Belinda's requests.

Theo's part was much simpler, he just had to wear different colored suits.

After changing into his first suit, Theo went back to the waiting area, casually flipping through a magazine, sipping his coffee, and waiting for Ellinor to finish her makeup.

"Theo, look!"

Belinda's slightly smug voice came over.

Theo looked up and was met with a vision in white that made his pupils shudder.

Ellinor, wearing a long-tailed wedding dress, was gently led out by Belinda. This was her first time wearing a wedding dress, and she looked a bit shy, her long eyelashes casting shadows on her cheeks.

His eyes were bright, and he couldn't take them off her for even a second.

She was so beautiful that it seemed like she was glowing.

Her makeup and hair were also incredible.

Ellinor was naturally beautiful. Although she rarely wore makeup, she was no less beautiful than those heavily made-up women.

However, dressing up like this once in a while not only retained her daily vivacious cuteness but also added a touch of femininity.

"Theo! Theo? Are you stunned by Ellinor? Belinda waved her hand in front of the man.

Theo snapped back to reality. He looked at Belinda with furrowed brows, "If you're done here, go home!"
