

The Kiss 931

Chapter 931

Belinda Wesley had always been very kind to her, so she couldn't bear to see her get hurt.

After

coming out of the restroom, Ellinor Mendoza went downstairs to return to the living room, preparing to find Theo Blanchet.

Before she reached the bottom of the stairs, she saw the situation in the living room.

Theo had changed seats.

Before she and Belinda went upstairs, Theo was sitting alone on a single-seat sofa, but now he was sitting on the three-seat sofa in the middle. On his left was his good friend Kemp Larios, and on his right was a girl, sitting very close to him.

His change of position indicated that he had indeed gone upstairs.

Ellinor narrowed her eyes. She had to admit that she wasn't very happy to see that girl sitting so close to her boyfriend.

She walked over, her footsteps light. No one noticed her approaching.

The girl seated next to Theo took out her phone, took a deep breath, gathered her courage, and then asked Theo "Mr. Blanchet, can I add you on social media?"

Seeing this scene, Ellinor didn't stop her steps, as she believed Theo would definitely refuse that girl.

However, she heard him answer the girl in a low voice, "Sure."

Ellinor paused in her steps and stood still.

She saw Theo take out his phone, and both of them followed each other on social media.

The girl then blushed and whispered something into his ear. Theo was not evasive and simply listened.

Ellinor stood still for a moment, then smiled slightly. He got tired of her even faster than she expected.

Men were all the same, they liked novelty.

Ironically, she had just praised this man's character to Belinda upstairs.

She overthought things.

She really overthought things!

"Ellinor, why are you standing there? Come and sit!" It was Bartlett Rex's voice. He had just been talking to Jonah Wyton. When he looked up and saw her, he waved at her with a very happy smile.

After Bartlett called her name, Theo also turned his head to look at her with an unaltered expression.

The girl who had just asked Theo for his contact information saw that Ellinor had returned and got up sensibly, as if nothing had happened, and moved to another seat.

Ellinor snapped back to her senses and walked towards them, but instead of sitting next to Theo, she sat next to Bartlett.

This surprised Bartlett a little. He raised an eyebrow and looked for Theo's reaction.

Others present also felt that something was off and looked at Theo.

Theo narrowed his eyes, saying nothing. His face didn't show any emotion. Then he lowered his head to look at his phone.

He was probably checking the profile of the girl he had just followed, right?

Sitting in that position, Ellinor could clearly see the face of the girl who had just asked Theo for his contact information.

The girl looked young and had a pure appearance. Although she wasn't the kind of stunning beauty at first glance, she was still a young and pretty girl that most men would like.

"Ellinor, what's wrong? Why did you come sit on my side?"

Chapter 932

Ellinor yawned sleepily, "No biggie I just noticed that you have a fairly spacious spot here! Mr. Rex, mind if I sit next to you?" Bartlett chuckled, "Not at all, I'm just worried others might."

As he said this, he shot a glance at Theo

Theo didn't look up. He was engrossed in his phone, propping his forehead up with one hand.

Ellinor barely glanced at him before she turned away, reaching for some snacks on the table.

A sci-fi movie was playing on the TV, but no one was watching.

Ellinor slouched a bit, munching on her snacks, her eyes fixed on the changing scenes on the screen, deep in thought.

Jonah perched on the arm of the sofa, chatting with the girls and occasionally joking with Kemp.

The atmosphere seemed relaxed, but an undercurrent of tension was palpable.

Ellinor, I've seen your photo album. You looked stunning in that wedding dress. It's a shame I only got to see the pictures, not you in person," Bartlett poured her a soda, grinning.

Ellinor accepted the soda, expressed gratitude, and placed it on the table, untouched.

Her move caught the eye of the man on the nearby couch. His gaze was inscrutable.

Setting down the soda, Ellinor said to Bartlett, "I'm not all that. Wait till you get married. Then you'll see your bride in a wedding dress."

Bartlett smiled, "Right you are! I hope I get to marry the girl I love. I hope she could be..."

It seemed Ellinor knew what Bartlett was about to say next. She frowned, but before he could finish, Belinda's voice echoed from upstairs.

"Ellinor!"

Belinda called out abruptly. She rushed down the stairs, panting heavily.

"Ellinor...you..."

Breathless, Belinda stopped in front of Ellinor, unable to finish her sentence, her face pale.

Ellinor felt drained. Thinking this was about Chase again, she massaged her temples and said, "I'm not dealing with that. Figure it out yourself."

Belinda looked desperate and said, "No, it's not that! Check Twitter! You're trending!"

Ellinor raised an eyebrow and asked, "Me? Trending?"

With Belinda's words, everyone pulled out their phones and checked Twitter.

Indeed.

#Mrs. Blanchet's college entrance exam results were forged #

#Mrs. Blanchet was a troubled girl#

#Ellinor's college admission was fake#

#The Blanchet Corporation stocks plummet #

#The Blanchet Corporation oppresses the poor #

After reading the trending hashtags, Ellinor frowned slightly. Looking up, she found everyone staring at her with curiosity.

Everyone except Theo.

Theo was still engrossed in his phone, tapping lightly on the screen. He seemed uninterested in the situation.

Belinda asked nervously, "What's going on?"

Chapter 933

Jonah Wyton also asked Elinor. To true what these individuals are saying? if this is the case, the Blanchet Corporation could suffer signifz, and kisses as a result of your actions."

Bartlett Rex also looked at her with concern, Tinot, are you okay?"

Elanor Mendoza didn't answer anyone's questions the stared firmly at Then Blanchet, trying to gauge his reaction, but he never looked up, and there was no response from him

She guessed that the mother and daughter who had caused a scene at the Blanchet family that day probably didn't gain any benefits, so they went to the media to "publicize" those events

However, it was unlikely that a backgroundless mother and daughter would be the only ones to cause such a large commotion. Domestic media also wouldn't dare to casually report on the Blanchet Corporation's affairs. So, there must be other forces at play here.

"Hmm? These trending hashtags are all gone!"

One of the girls in the living room suddenly exclaimed in surprise.

Other girls also took out their phones to check.

"They really disappeared!"

How strange! Suddenly, all the relevant discussions vanished!"

"I can't even find them when I search now!"

Listening to their discussions, Ellinor also looked down at her phone. Indeed, all the hashtags related to her and the Blanchet Corporation had disappeared.

At that moment, Theo put away his phone, gracefully stood up, and looked at Ellinor coldly. "Are you leaving?"

Ellinor felt like he was provoking her.

She frowned, "If I say I'm not leaving, will you agree?"

Theo calmly and firmly responded, "No"

Ellinor rolled her eyes. She knew it would be like this. She didn't want to stay there either, so she stood up. Belinda Wesley saw this scene and came over, asking, "Theo, you guys just arrived, why are you leaving so soon?"

Theo said, "It's getting late. She should go back and rest."

Belinda looked at Ellinor again. Considering her pregnancy, she believed she should rest well,

Although she wanted to chat more with Ellinor, she could only show herself to be more sensible. "Ellinor, you shouldn't go out alone these days. Even though we don't know why those trending discussions were taken down, some irrational netizens will still remember. Online violence is terrifying. You must be careful!"*

Ellinor nodded, "Yes, I will,"

Her wedding photos were placed in an exquisite leather case by Belinda. She handed the case to them for them to take.

Theo took the photo album's leather case and placed his hand gently on Ellinor's shoulder. He bade Jonah and the others farewell, then turned and walked with her towards the exit.

As soon as they got into the car, Ellinor said sincerely, "Theo, I'm sorry"

Theo had just started the car, and hearing her words, he glanced at her and asked, "Why are you apologizing?"

Ellinor said, "Those discussions just now happened because of me, causing negative impacts and significant losses to your Blanchet Corporation. But don't worry, I'm confident I can handle the problems that come next. If the stock price of the Blanchet Corporation can't recover in the short term, I'll find a way to bear all the losses"

The man suddenly slammed on the brakes.

The sound of tires rubbing against the ground was piercing, startling Ellinor,

What was he doing? What just happened?

The man behind the steering wheel turned around, his stern gaze looking at her with anger, "Ellinor, do you know who you're talking to?"

Ellinor was first surprised, then she looked at the back seat and back at him, asking. "Is there a third person

Chapter 934

* lotu barge fantastically wanted for clan. What am I to you?!

Being her mit answer. Hes menaied the fore. Answer my queletten When sint you?

Theme sten ghlasisal, a karvaette erinis sleeting in the ears of his lipe. "We already love a kid, and I'm still just a boyfriend in your eyes?

Filmen hurene fusion the pestin hand to answer

Sekdents. Then lifted for shin gat closer and ely ropped her war, "You didn't call me that in bed

Eloved hill emliansesed Her face huned red, trying to push him away, "What the hell are you doing?"

Then placed her hand on his cheat, preventing her hum pushing hum. He stared into her eyes and asked, "Do you believe I'll blame you for this triviat maiter and make pou pay for it? Ellinor, you continue to treat me Ffm a stranger, but I'm not Inoot was stunned. I just dont want to trouble others?

Others? Then scoffed. In your eyes, I'm either a stranger or one of the others?

Eliner thought his reaction was a bit weird Ever since and Belinda went downstairs, his attitude became strange.

Why the hell are you unhappy?" Ellinor asked.

Thea coldly raised an eyebrow and asked, "Am I unhappy? Or are you not taking me seriously?"

Ellinor frowned, How am I not taking you seriously 7"

Then seemed to be trying as his uneasiness. He rolled down the car window, turned his head to look out, and took a deep breath.

If not for Ellinor being pregnant, he would probably light a cigarette to calm down.

Theo was silent for a while, then scoffed, "Didn't you tell Belinda upstairs that you should be able to come and go freely in relationships?"

Ellinor was stunned. How did he hear that?

She suddenly remembered seeing his back when he was going downstairs from Belinda's

He must have come to find her, but heard her talking to Belinda before he knocked, and then misunderstood?

Before Ellinor could answer, Theo said sarcastically. "That's right, Ms. Mendoza, you certainly come and go freely, and you left without a word last time. Are you planning to leave freely again when you're tired of me

Ellinor smiled bitterly, "I didn't."

For some reason, seeing Theo unhappy because of her casual mature demeanor. That contrast was surprisingly cute ment made her find it somewhat amusing. His angry look completely contradicted his

He coldly said, "You didn't? Then why do you call me your boyfriend? Isn't a boyfriend someone who can be dumped at any time?"

Ellinor frowned. She, too, felt a bit annoyed, so she retorted, "What right do you have to criticize me? Didn't you casually give your contact information to another girl today?"

Chapter 935

Theo paused for a brief moment, turned his head towards her, a hint of complex emotions in his eyes, then pulled out his phone and handed it to her, "Take a look who I gave my contact information to

Since he willingly handed over his phone, she had every right to check it.

Without hesitation, Ellinor unlocked his phone screen

Indeed, there was a newly added friend in his social media app. After the friend request was accepted, the person sent him numerous pictures and a link, but he hadn't responded to any of them.

Upon seeing the pictures and the ad link, Ellinor's face turned awkwardly red.

Theo asked in a chilly manner, "Did you see? That person is Belinda's classmate. She currently works at a high-end hotel that caters to newborns and new mothers. She recently heard from Belinda that you're pregn ant, so she asked us if we would like to reserve their maternity hotel services. She said she could send me some photos of the place first. I thought you might need it later, so I agreed.”

Ellinor stayed silent.

The man continued, slightly annoyed, “Although there’s still some time before you give birth, I don’t know a thing about childbirth. Is it wrong to want to learn ahead of time?”

Ellinor continued to remain silent. How was she supposed to know that girl was hustling for customers?

She just fidgeted with her fingers.

Seeing her like that, the man frowned, stretching out his hand to lift her chin, “Just because of this, you decided to ignore me and sit with some other guy?”

Ellinor pouted, “I thought...”

Theo huffed angrily, “You thought I was flirting with other girls?”

Ellinor didn’t deny it, “Anyone would misunderstand in that situation! I’ll be more careful next time. Sorry, it was my fault this time.”

Hearing her sincere apology, Theo felt a slight sting in his heart. The hand that was holding her chin moved up to caress her face, “I’m not asking for an apology. I just want you to remember, if you ever see me doing something you don’t like, you need to confront me about it. Don’t jump to conclusions.”

Ellinor nodded.

Seeing her admit her mistake obediently, his heart softened. His slender fingers gently grazed her cheek. He praised her like a parent would, “Hmm, you did well today, you remembered not to drink any drinks others give you. Good job.”

He was referring to the soda Bartlett gave her. She didn’t drink it and just put it down.

Ellinor made a face and said, “I just didn’t want to drink it!”

Theo knew she was deliberately trying to argue, so he pretended to be angry and furrowed his brows, “Are you deliberately disobeying again?”

Ellinor chuckled, not talking back.

She was thinking, since Theo was so open today, and said she could ask him anything that was bothering her, she decided to seize the opportunity.

Theo, why don’t you want to marry me?”

Hearing that question, Theo’s expression visibly turned serious. He took a moment before he said, “It’s not that I don’t want to marry you.”

Ellinor raised an eyebrow and said, “Not that you don’t want to? Then why do you always avoid this topic?”

Theo looked at her, seemingly wanting to say something, but then stopped. He thought for a while but ended up not explaining the reason. He just said heavily, "Ellinor, give me some time. Just wait for me a little longer, okay?"

Ellinor could tell he seemed to have some difficulties. Even though she still cared about this issue, she didn't want to push him, so she didn't ask any further, "Alright..."

Chapter 936

The car pulled up in front of the Blanchet family's house, but Theo didn't drive in Ellinor was beat and just wanted to get in, take a shower, and hit the hay. She saw Theo stopping the car at the entrance and asked, puzzled, "Why not drive in?"

Theo pointed ahead, "That's Balfour Howard's car. Looks like he's here for you."

Following his gesture, she indeed saw a car parked down the road.

It seemed like the person in that car had noticed them. The car door opened, and Balfour got out, standing there and staring at them.

Seeing Balfour step out, Theo turned to Ellinor and asked, "Do you want to see him? If not, I can just drive in."

He wouldn't have given Balfour this courtesy if he wasn't Ellinor's blood brother.

Ellinor eyed Balfour, squinting a little, "Since he's here, might as well see what he wants."

"Alright, I'll wait here. Theo gently ruffled her hair.

Then, Ellinor got out of the car and walked towards Balfour.

Seeing Ellinor step out, Balfour's eyes lit up. He walked towards her, his tone gentle, "Ellinor."

Ellinor's expression was flat, "Mr. Howard, what's up?"

Balfour nodded, "It's chilly outside, let's talk in the car."

Ellinor nodded and walked towards his car.

Balfour glanced back at Theo, still in the car, nodding in appreciation for him stopping earlier.

Reaching Balfour's car, before Ellinor could reach for the door, Balfour opened it for her.

Ellinor thanked him and got in.

Balfour got in from the other side.

As soon as the car door closed, Ellinor asked, "Mr. Howard, what's the deal? Spit it out."

Balfour was accustomed to her lack of warmth toward him.

"Ellinor, what's the deal with those discussions online?"

Ellinor guessed he was probably here about that. She replied nonchalantly, "I have no idea."

Balfour looked worried, he asked again, "Is someone after you or the Blanchet family? Are you sure you don't know?"

Ellinor answered, "Someone's probably after me but accidentally involved the Blanchets. Was it you who made those discussions disappear today?"

Balfour did intend to help, but the hashtags were already gone when he was ready to step in.

"Not me. Before I could even think, they were gone. I'm guessing it was Theo."

Ellinor's gaze shifted to the window. She looked at the car diagonally opposite, thinking back to the time at the Wesley family's house.

Chapter 937

As she went down the stairs. Theo was engrossed in his phone, completely ignoring her. He might have done something at that moment.

Balfour warned, "Ellinor, those discussions might have disappeared, but their effects haven't. Be careful and try not to go out these days"

Ellinor nodded, "Thanks for your concern, Mr. Howard. If there's nothing else, I'll get out of the car."

Balfour said. "Wait!"

Ellinor sat back down, "Is there something else?"

Balfour looked at her with a complicated expression and said, "Ellinor, this situation is very strange. Domestic media would never dare report on the Blanchet family without confirmation. After these hashtags disappeared, I had someone investigate and found that foreign media were behind it. This is not just targeted at you, but also the Blanchet family. No matter what, be careful. Got it?"

Hearing the repeated instructions, Ellinor was a bit annoyed. She nodded patiently and said, "I got it. Thanks for your concern."

With that, Ellinor pushed open the car door and got out. Theo pulled up to pick her up, saving her a bit of a walk.

After Ellinor got back in the car, Theo backed up a few meters, then drove through the gate of the Blanchet family's home.

Balfour watched her leave with a complicated look and sighed helplessly.

Quinton, in the driver's seat, turned to Balfour and said, "Sir, don't worry! Mr. Blanchet should be able to protect Ms. Mendoza

Balfour pinched the bridge of his nose, "That's exactly why I'm worried. Their family has a complex social network. Ellinor already sticks out by being with him, and now she's a hot topic online. She won't have a moment's peace."

Quinton didn't say anything. He knew some of Theo's stories. His family and social background were indeed complicated. He just hoped he wouldn't bring any danger to Ms. Mendoza.

"Quinton, have someone keep an eye on this place for the next few days. If Ellinor leaves, notify me immediately." Balfour ordered.

Quinton hesitated, "Mr. Howard, given our relationship with the Blanchet family, it might not be a good idea to blatantly have someone watch their house. It could cause new conflicts."

Balfour frowned, "I don't care. Ellinor's safety is the priority. Do as I say and try not to be discovered by the Blanchet family."

Quinton nodded, "Yes, sir."

Then, Balfour's car slowly drove away.

Ellinor followed Theo into the house. She thought at that hour, Marissa Blanchet and Putnam Blanchet would be resting, but they were still in the living room and didn't look happy.

As she entered the living room, she heard Putnam Blanchet angrily say, "I've lived a long life and I've never been so insulted! Now, one bad girl has ruined the Blanchet family's reputation!"

Marissa Blanchet tried to calm him down, "Cool down. We don't know if what they're saying online is true or not. I don't think Ellinor is a bad girl."

Putnam scoffed, "How do you know she isn't? You've only known her for a few days. Don't you know not to judge a book by its cover at your age? We've only been back for a day and there's already so much trouble. Who knows what will happen in the future! In my opinion, even though Theo and her aren't legally married yet, we ought to order her to leave. Now is the time for the Blanchet family to address the media and make it clear that we have nothing to do with her."

"How could we do that!?" Marissa and Veronica both exclaimed at the same time, looking at each other.

Veronica added, "Grandpa, we can't do something so unethical! Ellinor is Theo's officially married wife. If we kick her out because of some unverified news, we'll be the laughingstock!"

Marissa agreed, "That's right! Veronica is correct. We can't handle this situation like that. Besides, you must have noticed how close Theo and Ellinor are now! Theo would never agree to let Ellinor leave!"

Chapter 938

Putnam slammed on the arm of his wheelchair, looking rather ticked off. "He disagrees? He thinks he's the big cheese around here? As long as the Blanchet family has me, there's no way that whippersnapper can just do as he pleases!"

"You..." Marissa looked worried. She wanted to convince this stubborn old man but was interrupted by a voice from behind.

"I'm sorry, Putnam Blanchet. I've brought negative impact and loss to the Blanchet Corporation and the Blanchet family, but rest assured, I will do my best to restore the family's reputation. I will also do everything in my power to compensate for the losses."

Hearing Ellinor's voice, the fiery Putnam paused, then looked up at Ellinor, his frown deepening.

Marissa and Veronica also instinctively turned their heads.

They saw Ellinor and Theo standing not far behind them.

Manssa was slightly embarrassed, "Ellinor, Theo, when did you guys come over? Why didn't you say anything when you came in?"

Theo nonchalantly said. "We just got here."

Putnam scrutinized Ellinor, "You said you're here to compensate for our family's losses? How do you plan to do that?"

Ellinor remained cool. "I can't prove my unaccomplished things right now, but I can assure you, if I can't fulfill my promise, I'll leave the Blanchet family on my own accord. You won't have to kick me out."

Putnam looked at her determined face, his puzzled gaze deepening. He thought, "This little girl is too cocky!"

But the words that came out of his mouth were, "Fine! I'll wait and see how you pull it off!"

Ellinor nodded at Putnam, then turned to Marissa and smiled slightly. "I'm a bit tired. I'm going up to rest. You guys should also rest early."

Marissa felt sorry for her, so she gently said, "OK, go ahead. Ellinor, Putnam is just a grumpy old man. Don't take his words to heart. I know you're a good kid!"

Ellinor smiled and nodded at Marissa, then went upstairs.

Putnam snorted, "She's got some nerve!"

Theo stood there, looking coldly at him, "Grandpa, you should get some rest."

After saying that, he also followed Ellinor upstairs.

Putnam glared at his grandson. "What's this kid's deal? Does he think I'm nosy?" he thought.

Marissa gave her stubborn old man a glare, "You! At your age, can't you intervene less in the affairs of the kids?"

Putnam scowled. "This matter has affected the entire Blanchet family's reputation. Do you think I want to meddle?"

"Alright, alright. It's late now. Go to sleep! I believe Theo can handle this issue."

Marissa couldn't convince her stubborn husband, nor could she make him listen to her advice. She didn't want to argue anymore, so she pushed his wheelchair back to their room.

Veronica sighed and returned to her room as well.

She would undoubtedly be gloating over Theo's misfortune if it had happened in the past and suspect Ellinor of causing problems for the Blanchets.

Chapter 939

But at that time, she was a bit worried about what was next for Ellinor.

After Ellinor returned to her room, she took off her coat and lay on the bed, hugging her pillow, all tired out. Theo also took off his blazer and casually tossed it on the couch nearby. He unknotted his tie with his fingers, all the while saying in a low voice, "Don't take what Grandpa said to heart. His words might not mean jack."

Hearing this, Ellinor lazily lifted her eyes to look at Theo, "His words don't mean anything? Weren't you the one who listened to him and rushed into marriage in the first place?"

Theo looked down at the girl on the bed and said, "That was a different story. If I hadn't gotten hitched, he wouldn't have agreed to get the surgery"

Ellinor pouted, lightly kicking his leg. "So, your grandpa can still use his life to threaten you, to make you kick me, the troublemaker, out. You're still going to listen to him?"

Theo grabbed her restless little foot, then bent down to climb onto the bed, pinning her under him, "You, you little troublemaker, are my life now. Unless grandpa doesn't want me as his grandson anymore, nobody can kick you out."

He said she was his life.

Because of those words, Ellinor was stunned for a moment, then she laughed with a pretend look of disgust, "I can't trust a word men say!"

Theo pinched her little nose and said, "I can't trust women either. Why did you just say you would leave the Blanchet family on your own?"

Ellinor raised an eyebrow asked, "Don't you believe I can handle all the fallout from this?"

Theo looked down at her, deeply into her eyes, like he was teaching a kid, "I believe you, but what if things don't go as we planned? Are you really going to leave me? How could you say something like that so easily?"

Ellinor blinked and thought for a moment. "Well, if it really comes to that, I'll just take you with me! Would you go with me?"

Theo was slightly taken aback, then a rare warmth spread across his stern face. He laughed and said, "If I go with you, are you willing to support me?"

Ellinor nodded without hesitation, "Sure, I'll support you!"

The man raised an eyebrow with interest and said, "Oh? How are you going to support me then?"

Ellinor rolled her eyes in a sassy manner and said, "At least I won't let you go hungry!"

Theo was amused by her. He affectionately touched her little nose, "Silly girl, I can go with you, but you don't have to support me. Even if I leave the Blanchet family, I can still find other work to support you and our kids. As long as I'm with you, I'm willing to do anything!"

His words were touching. Ellinor was stunned, almost floating on cloud nine by his words, "Um, Theo, you should go take a shower now!"

A spark flashed in Theo's eyes, "Shower together?"

Ellinor frowned warily, "Theo, you're up to your old tricks again!"

"I'm just messing with you. I won't take advantage of you tonight!" After saying this, Theo just leaned down to give a light kiss on the corner of her mouth, then got up and released her, heading for the bathroom he went to shower, Ellinor also sat up and leaned against the head of the bed, checking her phone to see if there were any new updates online.

After

Chapter 940

Nothing big was happening online. Twitter was just buzzing with some entertainment stuff. Theo must have done something to keep things under control.

She had a ton of unread messages on her social media. Ellinor clicked through them one by one

The majority of the unread messages were from Belinda. She was at the top of the message list.

Ellinor opened the chat with Belinda.

The messages were

"Did you guys get home?*

"Ellinor! Your stuff is blowing up on foreign websites again!"

"Someone has brought today's hashtag to a foreign forum!"

"The mother and daughter are live-streaming and accusing you of on a foreign app. They're bawling their eyes out in the live room! Go check it out!"

Then she sent a link.

Ellinor clicked the link. Sure enough, it was the mother and daughter who made a scene that day live-streaming.

The middle-aged woman was crying about the unfair treatment which her daughter received.

Her daughter was just like before, head down, crying.

Tens of thousands of people were watching in the live room. The comment section was buzzing with furious netizens.

[So, this is how the Blanchet family treats us ordinary folks?]

[Damn capitalists']

[Rich people have robbed so many ordinary people of the chance to get a university education! It's so unfair!]

[This is outrageous! The discussion of this matter has been suppressed domestically. We must seek justice for Rosie!]

[Yes! We can't let the heat of this matter die down!]

Then, a user named LuckyBelin gave a different opinion: [Stop talking nonsense! Ellinor hadn't even married into the Blanchet family when she took the university entrance exam. Even if the Blanchet family had the power, why would they help someone they didn't know?]

[Why are you defending the Blanchet family? Are you employed by them?]

LuckyBelin replied: [You people without independent thinking, you're being used, and you don't even know it! Have you ever thought about it? Ellinor was also a poor student from the countryside. Where would she get such power?]

[Haha! We're the useless ones, who would use us? I think you're the one being used. Tell the truth, how much are the Blanchet family and Ellinor paying you to post a message? If there's money involved, let's all make some!]

Another netizen joined in.

[Yeah, yeah! Let me earn some money too!]

Fortunately, another rational netizen spoke up: [I went to high school with Ellinor. I remember she was the school beauty, a very good girl, no scandals, and always at the top of our class academically! She did skip classes a lot though.]

[Skipping classes but always at the top of the class academically, isn't that contradictory? If what you're saying is true, then it suggests Ellinor's academic performance might be faked! If what you're saying is false, then you may be one of those hired to defend Ellinor!]

[I'm just stating the facts I know!]

[Why did Ellinor skip classes? Was she meeting her boyfriend?]

[I think so too! What good student would skip classes at will?]

LuckyBelin [Shut your damn mouth!]