Chapter 571 - East of the Midland Continent

On the eastern side, China had to face North Korea, South Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia.

These six nations had enmity with China not only in the Heaven Awaken World but in the real world as well, and there was often friction at boundaries.

Since there had always been enmity, they would definitely attack savagely this time with cruel methods.

The first to attack was South Korea, which gathered six million players and ferociously attacked.

Similarly, the system main city here went into a neutral defensive status and evicted all of the Chinese players. However, the Chinese players had expected this after hearing about the south, and after hearing that South Korea was attacking, they immediately chose to run.

There were less one million Chinese players here, so it was impossible for them to stop the South Korean army. As such, they could only choose to run.

They contacted the surrounding regions, wanting to resist the South Korean invasion together, but none of the other regions agreed to come and help.

Many people still thought that it was not their problem, as it was not their region being attacked. As such, why would they go through all that inconvenience and trouble to fight with their lives on the line? If they died, they would lose everything and sacrifice a lot of money. Moreover, no one would compensate them, and it would just be them who suffered.

Others' blood heated up, and they wanted to come over. However, they had not made sufficient preparations. Even if they hurried over, the South Korean army would have bathed the region in blood already, so they decided to start preparing defenses in their own region.

The person leading this army was called Bak Seolhyun. Even though she was a woman, she was an important figure within South Korea and had an esteemed status. She was also extremely beautiful and was admired by many South Koreans.

Bak Seolhyun had been quite excited to lead the South Korean army, as this was their opportunity to show the world how powerful South Korea was and have the world prostrate themselves before South Korea.

However, by the time they arrived, they found that most of the Chinese players had escaped, making Bak Seolhyun feel quite disappointed. After all, only by killing the Chinese players could they prove how powerful they were.

However, now that the Chinese players had run off, what could they do?

Bak Seolhyun felt quite unresigned and immediately gave the order to give chase, and they caught 3,000 of the Chinese people who were slower than the rest.

Looking at these 3,000 Chinese players, Bak Seolhyun smiled and gave the order for them to be brought forward.

Looking at the large number of South Korean players around them, the 3,000 Chinese players felt quite fearful and shakily stood in front of Bak Seolhyun.

Bak Seolhyun finally said, "You lowly Chinese people, I'll tell you now – Korea was the origin of eastern culture; you shameless Chinese people claimed that our culture came from you. How shameful.

"You're all thieves who stole what belonged to us, which explains your inferior bloodlines. Throughout history, you were our slaves, and you all have the blood of slaves. Now, you should recognize Korea as your master and that Koreans are greater than you lowly Chinese people. Do you understand?"

"Understand, my ass! How shameless can you be?"

"Is your head alright? You've never studied history before, right?"

"What an idiot! How disgusting!"

Countless people cursed back at her. After all, South Korea was a much smaller country compared to China, and it had always been a vassal to China. Now that its economy had started to boom, it had started to claim that China originated from it.

Bak Seolhyun's beautiful face became cold. Hearing these people's words, she immediately said, "Drag those people out! Behead them all!"

The South Korean players were already quite displeased, and after hearing this order, they dragged those Chinese players out and forced them to kneel. They swung down their sabers, causing heads to fall to the ground and for blood to stream out of their necks.

The remaining Chinese players were terrified, and their faces became pale as their bodies trembled.

"As long as you acknowledge that Chinese people are lowly existences and Korea's servants, as well as that you stole our culture, I'll release you all!" Bak Seolhyun said as she looked at the Chinese players in front of her.

Roughly 2,000 of the 3,000 Chinese players had just been beheaded, and only 1,000 of them were left. Some of these 1,000 Chinese players cursed at the South Koreans, but they were quickly dragged out and killed, leaving only 500 or so Chinese players.

One of them was a weak-looking youth, and seeing the beheaded corpses, he couldn't help but say in fear, "Really? As long as I say all that, you'll let us off?"

Bak Seolhyun smiled as she said, "Of course! As long as you say those things, I'll definitely spare all of you!"

"Alright! I admit that the Koreans are the best and that we're your servants. We also stole your culture!" the weak-looking youth nervously said in a loud voice.

All of the South Koreans started to laugh, and Bak Seolhyun nodded in satisfaction and said, "You can go!"

Hearing this, the weak-looking youth felt delighted and quickly ran away. Seeing him run away so wretchedly, all of the South Korean players continued to laugh – to them, such people were just like animals.

Seeing that someone had been let off, others also quickly started to say, “Korea is the biggest country in the world, and we’re not as good as all of you. We Chinese people stole what was yours.”

“Hahaha...”

Countless South Korean players loudly laughed, and the remaining Chinese players nervously looked around them. Bak Seolhyun nodded in satisfaction and said, “You can all leave!”

The Chinese players felt as if a massive weight had been taken off them, and they immediately ran off. However, some people were unwilling to say those things, so they were executed on the spot.

In the end, out of the 3,000 Chinese players, around 400 ran away in humiliation.

Bak Seolhyun grinned – this was exactly what she had wanted.

Now that most of the Chinese players had escaped, Bak Seolhyun could only change her target to the Chinese indigenous resident villages.

The six million players spread out and found many villages quite quickly.

After breaking through those villages, Bak Seolhyun announced her plan to make the Chinese people slaves. Even though this was not currently possible for the Chinese players, they could at least start with the Chinese indigenous residents.

This was the first time anyone would want to turn Chinese people into slaves and publicly announce it. This made many Chinese people furious, and many of them cursed at Bak Seolhyun on the internet, saying that they were going to attack South Korea. As for whether they really would, that was uncertain.

Chapter 572 - Terrifying Regime

“System announcement! The Ocean Wave Region has been conquered by South Korea, and China’s overall Fate has decreased while South Korea’s overall Fate has increased.”

As countless Chinese players fled from the region, the South Korean players were able to easily conquer this region and turn it into South Korea’s territory.

South Korea was carrying out slavery, continuously catching Chinese indigenous residents and bringing them back to South Korea to serve them as slaves.

Turning to the Japanese side, their methods were even crueler, making countless Chinese players incredibly furious.

The person leading the Japanese army was Oda Kamiya, the descendant of Oda Nobunaga. Because he was the descendant of Oda Nobunaga, he was greatly respected by countless Japanese people.

His performance in the early stages had been quite outstanding, but following the rise of Great Qin, his performance had seemed to become worse and worse. In actuality, it did not actually become worse, but compared to Great Qin's Legatee, he seemed like nothing.

He had taken a great blow, so he had disappeared with his demon blade for a while. After the shift in Fate, he had found his opportunity to reappear.

He saw Great Qin's Legatee as his greatest opponent, and after suffering the Fate backlash, although it was unclear whether he was alive or dead, at the very least, he would be grievously injured. After all, no ordinary person could survive a backlash from the heaven and earth Fate – this gave him an opportunity to rise.

Before, they did not dare to invade China and would at least prepare for a long time before actually invading. This was because many people feared Great Qin's Legatee. He had felt greatly threatened as well. As such, factions from all over the world had worked together to try to destroy Great Qin.

Now that Great Qin had used up all of its Fate, it was in an extremely weak state, and Great Qin's Legatee had also been heavily injured. Without the threat of Great Qin, the other nations felt that it was safe to invade.

Now, some changes had happened to Oda Kamiya – his eyes had become completely blood-red, and there were two fangs in his mouth, making him look like a savage monster. This new Oda Kamiya had obtained an even greater power.

This time, he led ten million Japanese players, giving off a terrifying aura as they madly flooded into China's territory. However, the Chinese players in that region had long since heard about this and all fled.

Even if he wanted to, Oda Kamiya was unable to catch any Chinese players, making him feel quite furious. He had been extremely excited while coming, but he had not been able to kill a single Chinese person.

Finally, Oda Kamiya turned his gaze to the Chinese indigenous residents and gave the order to find villages.

Very soon, because they had so many people, the Japanese players found many indigenous resident villages. Oda Kamiya was unwilling to let off any of the Chinese indigenous residents, who spoke the same language and had the same customs as the Chinese players.

Even though they were not real Chinese people, but they would definitely be part of the Chinese nation in the future. After the Heaven Awaken World devoured the real world, there would be essentially no difference between these indigenous residents and players, so Oda Kamiya did not plan to spare them.

As such, Oda Kamiya gave out cruel orders to the Japanese players.

Countless Japanese players lewdly grinned as they rushed into villages and killed all of the men, elderly, and children before leaping at the women.

“Sir, please don’t harm my family. I surrender! I’ll kowtow to you!” Seeing that there was no way to stop the Japanese players, many Chinese indigenous residents didn’t want to see their families hurt, so they could only choose to surrender.

They were not players and would not be able to respawn after dying; if they died, they would remain dead without any opportunity of revival.

Oda Kamiya looked at an honest-looking middle-aged man kowtowing before him as he sobbed, begging Oda Kamiya to let off his family.

Oda Kamiya only coldly smiled as he swung his demon blade, slicing the middle-aged man in two as blood spurted out from both ends.

Warm blood spurted onto Oda Kamiya’s face, but he did not feel any guilt. Instead, he felt incredibly refreshed and happy; to him, all Chinese people deserved death.

He turned to look at the middle-aged man’s wife and saw that she had decent looks, so he grabbed her and pressed her against the ground. He disregarded her crying and pleading and ripped off her clothes before starting to violate her in front of everyone.

The Japanese players laughed as they searched for other women. The regions that they found did not have too many women, so it was usually 20 or so men surrounding a single woman.

Moreover, even older women and younger girls were violated as well.

The older women could endure this, but many of the younger girls, whose bodies had not even matured yet, died because of being forcefully violated. However, many Japanese players did not even let off their corpses and continued going.

Following this, the Japanese players did not kill these women and instead brought them out – by now, their eyes were completely empty, and their bodies were covered with fluids.

Oda Kamiya wanted to bring these women back to Japan, as he wanted to enforce a woman slave regime, making all women from China slaves to be used to satisfy the lust of the Japanese players.

They would be kept in cages, and any Japanese player could go in to violate them for free however they wanted. It would even be fine if they died.

Some high-quality female slaves would be kept as pets with ropes tied around their bodies, and they would crawl around naked. They would also be used to fulfill the lust of the Japanese players.

The Japanese players did not even see these female slaves as people, and because they saw them as animals, they did whatever they wanted to them.

It was a pity that they could only do this to indigenous residents, as players could easily commit suicide without suffering a true death. After the Heaven Awaken World devoured the real world, perhaps they would be able to do this to actual Chinese women as well.

The Japanese players did not hide their aim either, publicly declaring their intentions to set up this female slave regime, turning all Chinese women into their slaves to play with.

This caused even more Chinese people to feel furious. Even though these indigenous residents were not players, they were still part of China, and seeing their own people being trampled on, there were naturally many people who were enraged.??( Updated by BOX NOVEL.COM)

This was especially so for Chinese women, who felt incredibly furious and wanted to bite the Japanese players to death.

One of China's most powerful factions, Flower Moon, prepared to make a move against Japan. Right now, they just wanted to do two things: defend against Japan and get their people back from Great Qin.

Great Qin had not only taken their Fourteenth Sister but also their Twenty-Sixth Sister, making Flower Moon's members quite angry. Flower Moon's members were given their numbers based on when they joined Flower Moon, so it was often possible to have people who were younger with higher-ranked numbers.

Chapter 573 - Continuous Invasion

"System announcement! The Dead Tree Region has been conquered by Japan. China's overall Fate has decreased while Japan's overall Fate has increased."

This region was naturally easily conquered by Japan, and the other nations to the east of China, North Korea, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia also attacked.

Out of those four nations, the Philippines was the most powerful, and it often had conflict with China about territory. As such, both sides had been eyeing each other with enmity for quite some time.

However, they were not as arrogant as Korea or as perverse as Japan, and their invasion was much more direct and bloody, like the invasions in the south.

There were ten million Philippines players gathered together, forming a terrifying army. They flooded into a region, wanting to kill all Chinese players.

The region that they invaded had roughly one million Chinese players, and most of them had heard about what was happening, so just like the players from the other regions, they chose to escape. However, a small portion of people decided to remain to counterattack against the Philippines players. Even though they knew that they would die, their blood was incredibly heated, and they lost their rationality.

If they had stayed rational, they would have chosen to run away and not resist. After all, fighting would not bring them any benefits and would only cause them heavy losses, and they held no advantage. As such, not choosing to fight and running away would at least preserve their interests.

When they had allied together to destroy Great Qin, because of the various benefits and rewards, they had disregarded everything and passionately joined in. However, there were simply no benefits to defending against this invasion.

Those who stayed behind were filled with passion and recklessness, preparing to give it their all to prevent their nation from being invaded. They did not want China's glorious name to be sullied by anyone.

However, out of the one million Chinese players, only 150,000 people remained, and the result was obvious: there was no hope of 150,000 players facing ten million players.

The two Chinese system main cities also went into a neutral defensive status and evicted all of the Chinese players. After losing the protection of their system main cities, the 150,000 players decided to use the terrain that they were familiar with and fight with guerrilla tactics.

However, reality was cruel – the guerrilla tactics only had a slight effect on the Philippines army, and because of the disparity in their numbers, the massive ocean of people quickly surrounded the Chinese players.

The surrounded Chinese players started to ferociously counterattack, but they were annihilated by the Philippines army in just an instant.

The Philippines players had also captured some of the Chinese people – they had not surrendered but were forcefully taken captive.

The leader of the Philippines army, Eduard, used horrifying torture to reduce the Chinese players' morale and make future battles easier.

As such, all of the captured Chinese players died horrible deaths – they were skinned, hung on trees, and had honey spread all over their bodies. This resulted in countless bugs biting at their bodies, causing terrifying screams to resound throughout the region.

After successfully taking over this region, Eduard let the Philippines army to the next region.

The three other nations were slightly weaker – North Korea only sent four million people, Indonesia sent five million people, and Malaysia also sent around five million people.

The three of the nations joined together because not only did they not have many people, but their battle power was also lower than other nations.

If it wasn't for so many other nations invading China, they never would have dared to do such a thing. It was only because there were so many nations invading China that they decided to also join in and obtain some benefits.

Their plan was quite successful – they advanced from three different directions and surrounded the region, making it so that their attack was not any weaker than a big nation's. Not a single Chinese player dared to stay behind, and they were able to easily take down three regions.

“System announcement! The Spring Peace Region has been conquered by North Korea. China's overall Fate has decreased while North Korea's overall Fate has increased.”

“System announcement! The Scarlet Region has been conquered by Malaysia. China's overall Fate has decreased while Malaysia's overall Fate has increased.”

“System announcement! The Doju Region has been conquered by Indonesia. China's overall Fate has decreased while Indonesia's overall Fate has increased.”

The nation system announcements seemed to stab into every Chinese player's head, and only now did they realize how severe the situation was. They quickly reacted and did not dare to stay passive anymore.

After putting together some arrangements in the Heaven Awaken World, Zhao Fu decided to return to the real world as the information he had in the Heaven Awaken World was not very complete. As such, he could only go back to the real world to seek more information.

Zhao Fu knew that the shift in Fate would cause China to become a big piece of meat that everyone would want to take a bite out of. The situation in China was quite dire, so he had to go back to the real world and gather information on the overall situation.

After his consciousness returned to the real world, that feeling of pain and weakness once again assaulted his mind and body. It seemed that his body in the real world had also suffered the Fate backlash and become incredibly weak. Zhao Fu had expected this, but because of the Phoenix Qi, he was still able to do some simple things.

Zhao Fu called Mu Guilin in and asked him for some intelligence, and he also heard that some people wanted to meet him, such as the family leaders, Flower Moon's people, Feng Shiyu, and the White Lotus Society's people.

Zhao Fu understood what they wanted, but he did not want to see anyone right now – without even thinking about it, he knew that all of them had come because of those system announcements.

After all, the system announcements had revealed that Great Qin had expended all of its Fate and that Great Qin's Legatee had suffered a Fate backlash – now that such a big thing had happened, they all felt incredibly concerned and wanted to know how Great Qin was. However, with how weak he felt, Zhao Fu decided that it would be better to not meet them.

One reason was that it was inconvenient for him to talk while feeling so weak, and the other was because it might raise suspicions.

As for why Flower Moon's people wanted to find him, Zhao Fu was not sure why they had come, so he did not want to meet them either.

After looking through the intelligence reports, Zhao Fu understood the situation in China, and he had never expected it to be so bad. A trace of anger appeared on Zhao Fu's face after reading about what the foreign nations had done. Since Great Qin was part of China, this was like slapping Great Qin.

Great Qin was at the northern region of the Midland Continent, and because of its presence, the invasions from the north were relatively milder, as the foreign factions were afraid of a bloody retaliation from Great Qin. Moreover, because of everything that had happened in the north, it was quite difficult for the Chinese players to stop their invasion.

Before, Zhao Fu had only heard about the situation in the north, and now that he knew what was happening all around China, he knew how severe the situation was.

However, the northern side, the southern side, and the eastern side were not as intense as the western side.

Chapter 574 - Western Side

On the western side, China had to face Pakistan, Tajikistan, Ukraine, Afghanistan, India, Nepal, Bhutan, and Myanmar – eight nations in total.

One of them was China's biggest opponent, India. Its population was close to China's, and it would most likely surpass China's in the future. Right now, India's economy was not as developed, and its GDP was much lower.

Comparatively speaking, India's capital was like a small city in China – it was evident how far behind India's economy was. Moreover, India was a country with many religions, and many of them forbid abortion, which contributed to the boom in population.

On the other hand, China's population had been greatly restricted since recent times, and even though the Chinese population was greater at this moment in time, it was likely that India would surpass it in future, especially as its economy developed.

Apart from population, India was also a threat in terms of culture and history – India was also one of the four ancient civilizations, and it had a Clan Armament and a few famous Dynasties.

If it wasn't for the fact that India had been invaded so many times throughout history, its Fate would have been massive.

Currently, China was currently being invaded on all sides, and the outcome was like what had happened to India throughout history.

Putting aside the other nations, just India alone gathered 30 million or so players and split them into three armies. These armies gave off shocking auras and easily plowed through three regions.

The leader of these armies was the Legatee of the Maurya Dynasty, Shama. He not only had the Nation Armament Pillars of Ashoka, but he also brought India's Clan Armament with him.

Anyone could imagine just how terrifying this was – moreover, apart from India's invasion, the western side of China also had to face another seven nations.

“System announcement! The Dudo Region has been conquered by India. China's overall Fate has decreased while India's overall Fate has increased.”

“System announcement! The Start Source Region has been conquered by India. China's overall Fate has decreased while India's overall Fate has increased.”

“System announcement! The Grand Light Region has been conquered by India. China's overall Fate has decreased while India's overall Fate has increased.”

“System announcement! The Earth Path Region has been conquered by Ukraine. China's overall Fate has decreased while Ukraine's overall Fate has increased.”

System announcements continuously pierced into Chinese players' minds; it was as if all of China's territory was being broken through. Even though China's territory was many times larger than other nations', it could not afford to continue to lose territory like this. After all, more territory meant more Fate, and after having so much territory taken, it was a heavy blow to China.

However, the situation would not continue like this; China had fewer people in the boundary regions, and they had not been prepared at all, resulting in them being slaughtered.

However, things were different now – the government was calling all Chinese players to defend against the invasion, and with the government leading the players, the players were much more likely to participate.

Moreover, the government made announcements to help the ordinary people understand that there was no chance for peace talks and that China had no retreat now. They had to either fight or be slaughtered.

This forced many of the people who didn't want to participate to fight – they did not want to be killed for nothing, so they had to be united and defend against the enemies together.

The Hundred Schools of Thought and the various sects were also quite willing to participate – right now, it was a national crisis, and these people were all incredibly patriotic. They didn't have the ambition to conquer the world, but they would not let anyone invade China.

The government also made appointments to meet with the Dynasty Legatees and various Nation Legatees, sincerely asking them to help.

The Dynasty Legatees and Nation Legatees were willing to help because if foreign nations invaded China's territory, the ones who would be hurt the most would be them. As such, it was only natural that they would help; otherwise, if China's Fate decreased, it would be even easier for other nations to kill them.

The government also shamelessly asked Great Qin to help and sent an invitation to the Ying family. Even though they knew that they would not be able to invite Great Qin's Legatee, they asked Zhao Fu to go, telling him to put aside the conflict and hatred between him and the others and to unite together to fend off the invasions.

Hearing this, Zhao Fu couldn't help but coldly laugh; they had allied together to destroy Great Qin many times and done all sorts of things to suppress it. They had even called it an evil demon, yet they were asking for help now. Zhao Fu did not even bother looking at the invitation and had people return it.

At the same time, this invasion was not something that Zhao Fu could fend off by himself. China was being invaded on all sides, with hundreds of millions of people in total, so what could Zhao Fu do?

Could he summon the Six Paths Demon Images again? However, the four Guardian Beasts definitely would not allow this, and it would be very difficult for Zhao Fu to summon them again – after they had been killed last time, he had left a mark on their bodies, and they would be reluctant to be summoned again.

Could he ask the Sky Desolation Azure Dragon? That was even more impossible – this was an important historic moment, and the Guardian Beasts only cared about the preservation of the Heaven Awaken World. Even if China was destroyed, it would not care.

Zhao Fu did not have any methods anymore; now that Great Qin's Fate had been completely expended, he did not want to do anything big and harm Great Qin's foundation.

Some people were worried that Great Qin would take revenge at a time like this. However, whenever people had done such a thing throughout history, the nation had always perished, as this was incredibly stupid. Even though it would feel quite refreshing, the conclusion would be quite tragic.

In actuality, this invasion was quite beneficial to Great Qin – China’s Dynasty Legatees and various other factions could not continue to attack Great Qin, as they had neither the time nor the energy. Otherwise, they would have been able to gather countless ordinary players, and Zhao Fu would only be able to turtle up within the Great Qin City.

Of course, it was quite difficult for many people to gather in the northern region of the Midland Continent, as the northern side had been heavily wounded by Great Qin. Now, each region only had roughly 1.5 million players.

As such, Zhao Fu did not have to worry about them joining together and using ordinary people to try to destroy Great Qin.

Moreover, this was also good for Great Qin because after joining together to destroy Great Qin, the rest of China was being invaded – this was the punishment that they deserved. If it wasn’t for the atrocious acts of the foreign nations, Zhao Fu would have been quite happy about this.

By having the rest of China fight with the foreign factions, they would wear each other out, decreasing their battle strength. This was quite good for Great Qin, as it would be much easier to destroy them in the future.

As such, Zhao Fu decided to not participate – he was unable to help much, and by sitting still, Great Qin would benefit.

Even though China’s territory was being invaded, the rest of China had long since effectively banished Great Qin. However, Zhao Fu still thought of himself as Chinese – this was something that he could not change. Whether it was Great Qin or his bloodline, Zhao Fu belonged to China.

Chapter 575: Counterattack

As such, as a Chinese person, Zhao Fu felt quite angry about these invasions, but he would not participate. After recovering and becoming more powerful, Great Qin would take revenge.

Seeing that Great Qin did not intend to participate, the Hundred Schools of Thought could only sigh. If Great Qin was willing to help, their forces would become much stronger – just the name of Great Qin alone was enough to scare many people.

The government and Dynasty Legatees did not mind too much though; the government hoped that Great Qin would join, as more people meant more power, but even if Great Qin did not come, they could not do anything to force it.

The various Dynasty Legatees and factions hoped that Great Qin would not participate so that their fame and reputation would surpass Great Qin’s. After they all recovered, they would once again go suppress Great Qin. They had already been able to heavily wound it this time, and it would not be able to endure such attacks many more times.

Following this, many factions and countless ordinary people joined the defense against the invasions; even though they had been annihilated at the beginning, the situation was different now, and China was able to start to counterattack.

At the southern side of the Midland Continent, countless Chinese players were led by the School of Mohism's Zhan Houlong, flooding into a region and using logs, dirt, and rocks to create a very long defensive wall, and he prepared many fatal traps.

The traps were all quite simple, but they were effective. They would be able to cause many Russian casualties and injuries.

When Oleg entered this region, he was forced to stop and did not give the order to advance. Even though the Russian army had a slight numbers advantage, the Chinese side had the advantage of terrain, and if they recklessly advanced, they would suffer heavy losses.

Oleg took out his map and found that the surrounding two regions either had tall mountains or had treacherous terrain. He could either advance or retreat and attack from a different region. However, if they retreated, they would definitely be chased down by the Chinese players, making the situation quite disadvantageous for the Russian army.

However, if they advanced, they would suffer heavy losses, so he could only wait for now. More and more Russian players gathered, preparing to break through this defensive wall in one go.

They could only wait here for now, and Oleg coldly harrumphed – he had never thought that the Chinese players would be able to respond so quickly.

The Chinese side could not carelessly attack either.

Currently, the Chinese and Russian armies were in a stalemate, and neither side was willing to make the first move. More and more Russian players came in from behind, while the Chinese side continuously fortified their defenses while they waited for more people to come.

Elsewhere, the Mongolian Cavalry was incredibly terrifying, charging like a massive river and destroyed everything in its way. Before the Chinese side could create a defensive wall, they had been swept away by the Mongolian Cavalry.

The Mongolian army was mostly comprised of Cavalrymen, and they were incredibly fast. They all had incredibly strong battle intent, and if they were to clash directly, the situation would be quite disadvantageous for the Chinese side. After all, their battle intent was much weaker, and they did not have any warhorses to engage in a direct battle.

The leader of this army was called Hong Chang, and he was from the School of Military. He was somewhat famous, and he decided that since the Chinese players were unable to create a defensive wall, they could only change methods.

As such, he ordered people to set down countless chains and spikes as traps. At first, the Mongolian players were unaware and charged at the Chinese players with the same momentum as they always had.

Because of their continuous victories, they had become somewhat complacent and thought that Chinese players were all extremely weak. As such, they fell for most of the traps.

Bang, bang, bang...

Countless warhorses were tripped by the chains, causing them and their riders to crash to the ground, killing many people. Many horses' legs were broken, and most of the people at the back still had not realized what was going on and continued charging onwards, and they were also tripped. In just an instant, countless players and horses crashed to the ground, resulting in many casualties and injuries.

Some other horses stepped onto the iron spikes, bringing them massive pain and causing them to lose control of their bodies. They were unable to pull the spikes out of their hooves, causing them to either lay on the ground or run madly.

These traps caused the charging Mongolian army to instantly stop. They looked at the Chinese players ahead furiously and felt that these tactics were incredibly underhanded; they did not dare to fight directly, and they instead used these tricks and schemes.

The Mongolian army's greatest asset was their warhorses, and now that there were so many traps to counter them, the Mongolian army's sharpness and momentum had been stopped.

Now, their battle power had decreased by half; just by stopping this charge, the Mongolian army's threat became much lower.

Now that the Mongolian army did not dare to recklessly charge anymore, the Chinese side began to build a defensive wall and set up more defenses. Facing this Mongolian army, they would have to focus on defense – unless the Chinese side had a large number of Cavalry or high-cultivation Archers, they would not be able to mount a proper counterattack against the Mongolian army.

Otherwise, with how weak the Chinese battle intent was, as well as no feasible way to engage in battle, they would definitely lose to the Mongolian army.

Turning to the Kazakhstan army, most of their army was comprised of Infantrymen, so they were relatively slower. The person leading the Chinese army against them was called Liu Canfei, and he had quite a lot of experience.

Because the Chinese side did not have much time, they were only able to gather roughly five million players while the Kazakhstan army had seven million players. The Chinese side was much weaker; after all, there was a difference of two million players.

So as to make up for this difference, Liu Canfei decided to split the army into three teams and have them launch sneak attacks. Even though they did not have many people, if their attacks were successful, they would be able to send the other side into chaos and would be able to deal a big blow to them and force them back.

They quickly set the plan into motion – Liu Canfei baited the Kazakhstan army, causing the Kazakhstan army to advance when it was suddenly pincered by two teams from the sides.

Instantly, blood started to fly everywhere as battle roars sounded out. The smell of blood started to spread, and in the end, the Kazakhstan army retreated with 500,000 casualties while the Chinese side retreated with roughly 100,000 casualties.

Of course, the Kazakhstan army only temporarily retreated roughly 100 kilometers and set up defenses to defend against the Chinese side's attacks, and the army waited for more players to arrive.

The Chinese side did not dare to attack either because the other side had a numerical advantage and had defenses now, so they would definitely lose if they attacked. As such, the Chinese side also started to build defenses.

The situation in the south became a stalemate, with none of the sides willing to attack. More and more players headed to those regions, which would make the battles more and more intense in the future.

At the eastern region of the Midland Continent, the Chinese side also counterattacked against the South Korean and Japanese armies.

South Korea was not a very big country, and it did not even have a Nation Armament; their arrogant performance from before had just been for show, and they were not as powerful as they seemed.

Chapter 576: Descended Deity

The commander of the Chinese army facing off against South Korea was a historical General. A Nation Legatee happened to be nearby, so they decided to hand command to him.

The Chinese side had gathered 4.5 million or so players, while the South Korean army had six million players. Even though the Chinese side had 1.5 million fewer people, their battle intent was incredibly strong as the things that the South Korean army had done were simply too infuriating.

They dared to enforce slavery and make Chinese people slaves – this humiliation would cause any Chinese person to feel furious. They didn't have any power before or the strength to resist, but now, they had formed a large army.

As such, there were many Chinese people who wanted to take revenge against this South Korean army, resulting in high morale on the Chinese side. They did not want to defend at all and wanted to directly attack.

They did not use any special methods or tactics – they simply gathered together and formed a massive flood that gave off a terrifying aura as it swept towards the South Korean army.

The South Korean army had not entered the region for too long, and facing so many Chinese players charging at them, they did not back down as they had wanted to kill Chinese players this entire time.

They also gathered together and gave off a massive aura as they also rushed at the incoming Chinese army.

Boom!!

The two floods of people collided, resulting in a massive sound. The Chinese players furiously yelled and swung their weapons, while the South Korean players had fierce expressions as they also attacked the Chinese players.

The battlefield was incredibly chaotic, and blood continuously flew everywhere as pained cries continuously sounded out. The sound of weapons clashing was deafening, and people unceasingly fell.

“Charge! Kill all of these shameless South Koreans!” a masculine young man yelled as he cut down a South Korean player in front of him and stepped on the corpse.

This boosted the Chinese side’s morale, and many people felt their blood start to boil. No one on the Chinese side felt any fear, and their fighting became even bolder and more reckless.

The South Korean players also yelled, “South Korea is invincible! Kill all of these Chinese players!”

The battle between the two sides became even more intense, and the cold glint of steel continuously flashed as blood flew everywhere. The sound of roars and wails did not stop at all, and corpses now carpeted the ground.

In the end, the South Korean army lost three million players and was forced to retreat. Even though the Chinese side lost 3.6 million players, because more Chinese players were continuously joining, they were able to force the South Korean side into retreating.

The South Korean army withdrew to the boundary region and started to set up defenses, waiting for more South Korean players to join up with them. The Chinese side did not give chase and also started to construct defenses to defend against future invasions.

Turning to the front against the Japanese side, they did not use any tactics either and directly engaged. Because both sides had roughly the same fighting power and morale, both sides suffered heavy casualties over the course of the battle.

However, the Chinese side was able to stop the Japanese side’s invasion and greatly suppressed their arrogant attitude, showing the Japanese people China’s strength.

Following this, the two armies continued to face off, waiting for more reinforcements to join them.

Because many people had gone to defend against the South Korean and Japanese armies, there were not as many people to face off against the Philippines army, so they could only passively defend.

The Philippines side had many people, but their battle force was not very strong. The Chinese side had already finished constructing defenses, and even though they had fewer people than the Philippines’ side, they were still able to stop the Philippines’ invasion with their defenses.

After attacking a few times and finding that they could not break past the defenses, the Philippines army could only temporarily give up and wait for reinforcements.

As for the invasions from Malaysia, Indonesia, and North Korea, China went into a defensive status as most players had gone to resist South Korea, Japan, and Indonesia. As such, they could only defend for now, and even though there were many people hurrying over, it would take them some time to arrive.

Fortunately, the Malaysian, Indonesian, and North Korean armies were not very strong, and their battle intents were not very strong either. As such, they did not attack after the Chinese side had built up defenses. Instead, they retreated to the boundary regions to clear them out.

The situation on the eastern side had calmed down, but the battles against South Korea and Japan were still incredibly intense, and all of the battles were quite large-scale.

China had to deal with five countries in the north: Myanmar, Thailand, Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia.

These five countries were not very powerful, but they were not weak either. They had historically been vassal states of China, but they had always been quite reluctant and displeased about this.

These five countries now wanted to reclaim their honor. They not only invaded China for the territory Fate and other benefits, but they also wanted to prove that they were not inferior to China and would not remain under China.

However, with the terrifying Great Qin nearby, they did not dare to be too audacious. This was especially so because Vietnam had already lost a region to Great Qin, so they were more cautious than other countries and was especially worried about Great Qin attacking it.

After being heavily wounded many times, the northern side was much weaker than the other regions, and the situation was much calmer. The Chinese side built up defenses, and the five nations did not dare to carelessly attack.

They were primarily afraid of Great Qin; otherwise, with China's northern forces, it would be quite difficult for them to stop those five nations.

This allowed the rest of China to let out a sigh of relief. Because the situation in the north was quite calm, they could focus their resources on the other sides of China. The northern factions that had been heavily wounded were also able to let out a sigh of relief.

The place where the battles were most intense was the west side. Of the eight countries, seven of them were quite easy to defend against because they were not very strong and did not have much Fate or many players.

However, India's invasion was quite terrifying. Their leader, Shama, possessed both a Nation Armament and Clan Armament, making him seem like a god. Wherever he went and fought, the weather would change, and he now led an army of 40 million Indian players, which was 10 million more than before.

All of the Indian players had powerful battle intent, as their leader was like a descended deity, and they were fighting under the command of this god.

Even though China gathered a lot of its forces in the west and created a sturdy line of defense, they were still continuously sent into retreat by the Indian army.

By now, India had already conquered five regions and formally passed the boundary regions, stepping into China's actual territory.

China could only continuously send reinforcements to the west side, resulting in incredibly intense and tragic battles. Every hour, hundreds of thousands of players would die, causing blood to dye the ground and creating a horrific scene.

Chapter 577: Second Year

However, after India conquered a sixth region, they stopped advancing. They did not dare to go too deep into China's territory because once their path of retreat was cut off, they would be completely doomed.

Moreover, because of Great Han in the west, Great Qing in the northwest, and Great Tang in the southwest, who had used Boundary Medallions to stop India's immense momentum, they had to stop.

Because of this, the three Legatees' reputations shot up, and they were celebrated by countless people as heroes and won their respect and praise.

After the situation with India calmed down, the rest of the western front also calmed down.

Finally, all four sides around China gradually stabilized, and they had temporarily defended against the invasions, beating back many of the nations. All sides built up defensive walls and continued to wait.

However, the Chinese side would not be able to take back the boundary regions for now.

Turning to War Points, there were two types. The first was the War Points unlocked from the first stage of the Chaotic World, which were obtained from conquering villages.

The second stage of the Chaotic World gave all system main cities Chaotic World Stone Steles and gave War Points for killing people from other nations, and they would be recorded on a person's stat page.

Killing someone from another nation usually gave 100 War Points, and after the shift in Fate, foreigners killing Chinese players would now receive five times that, while Chinese players would only receive two times that for defending against the invasion. Just from the rewards alone, they were at a disadvantage.

War Points could be used to exchange for all sorts of items – City Creation Stones, equipment, and skills could all be exchanged for, and the highest grade was Epic grade. As such, War Points were extremely valuable, and the rewards were not inferior to the rewards from festivals.

Most of the ordinary players who had invaded China had done so for those rewards, while the Legatees who had invaded mostly did it for Fate. After all, the more territory a nation controlled, the more Fate it would have.

After looking through all of the information, Zhao Fu understood the current situation in China. He had no idea how long this shift in Fate would persist for, and the battles between China and the other nations would also go on for a while.

After going through the information, Zhao Fu entered the Heaven Awaken World again. According to the calendar, it was now the second year of the Heaven Awaken World. Spring was returning, and the ice gradually melted away. The warm sunshine falling on people's bodies made their hearts feel warm again.

By now, Great Qin's population had risen to five million people, and it had 720,000 soldiers. Virtually all of these 720,000 soldiers were Stage 1 soldiers; there were 560,000 surviving soldiers who were already at Stage 1, and there were also the 100,000 captives and the remaining soldiers from Battle City.

Ge Nia had also convinced the old City Lord to allow Battle City to join Great Qin. The old City Lord was an intelligent person, and after hearing about the outcome of the battle, he was happy to agree.

He had already given the position of City Lord to Ge Nia, as well as all of the rights and responsibilities. The only thing he was concerned about now was his residents, and now that Great Qin was rising up and had promised to view Battle City's residents as its own subjects, he was only too happy to agree.

However, he had a single requirement, which was to keep the Arenas. He only had ten or so years to live, and the Arenas were his only hobby.

Zhao Fu accepted this condition, as the Arenas were a specialty of Battle City. Originally, Zhao Fu did not plan to keep the Arenas, as they resulted in many casualties and would reduce Battle City's fighting power.

However, after thinking about it, Zhao Fu decided that keeping the Arenas would be good too – Great Qin needed some bloody things that would help the residents become more accustomed to fighting. Those who belonged to Great Qin had to be able to fight.

At the same time, Zhao Fu did not disregard education. Now that Great Qin's population had reached five million people, Rising Qin Academy was unable to fulfill the needs of the population, so Zhao Fu ordered people to set up a few more academies.

The military was used to expand the kingdom, but only educated ministers would be able to administer it well. A nation could not lack either of the two.

Historically, Great Qin's military was incredibly ferocious, but its ministers were quite incapable. Zhao Fu did not just want to establish an empire with a powerful military. Instead, he wanted one that was well-ruled and educated.

Even if the world was spiraling into chaos, Great Qin only had one goal, which was to unify the surrounding five regions. If they could unify those five regions, Great Qin would become much more powerful.

There was also the matter of the Basic City. Great Qin had long since fulfilled all of the conditions to level up to a Great City, and it had only been lacking a Basic City.

There was also something else important, which was that Great Qin had finally found a way to harm players in the real world.

Zhao Fu had happened to find two things called Void Ink and Void Paper, which he had not paid much mind to. After all, their descriptions were just that they could create special talismans. Moreover, they were both quite expensive; combined, they were worth 300 New Year Points.

There were many things that could be redeemed in the Exchange Stone Stele, and Zhao Fu had not thought that they would be very useful. However, upon seeing those things, the golden dragon had suddenly said that they could be used to create Reality Harming Talismans.

Reality Harming Talismans could transfer injuries in the Heaven Awaken World to the real world. If they attached these talismans to weapons and used those weapons to kill players, the players would die in the real world as well.

However, these were low-grade talismans and would not be able to injure those with a large amount of Fate, as the damage would be resisted by their Fate.

However, these talismans could still hurt ordinary people, which was still very good. This meant that Great Qin did not have to fear the masses of ordinary people anymore – before, they did what they wanted relying on their ability to respawn, but facing true death, very few of them would dare to continue.

On the fourth night of the New Year Festival, Great Qin had obtained two billion New Year Points, and he had only used up 300 million buying a General Fate. With the remaining 1.7 billion, and with their gains from the fifth night, they had 3.5 billion New Year Points.

Zhao Fu spent three billion New Year Points on buying Void Ink and Void Paper, which could create 30 million Reality Harming Talismans. This meant that Great Qin would be able to kill at least 30 million ordinary players.

What's more, these talisman papers were not single-use items. Instead, they could be used three times. This meant that Great Qin could kill a maximum of 90 million players with these talismans. The golden dragon also mentioned that they could create Talisman Weapons, amplifying the effects of the talisman papers by four times. That would mean Great Qin would be able to kill 360 million players.

With that sort of terrifying figure, who would dare to make Great Qin an enemy? The population of the world was only seven billion, and with the ability to kill 360 million people, that was like killing an entire country.

If all Chinese people had a Talisman Weapon, they would be able to easily repel those invasions. All of the other countries would be scared out of their wits and would immediately retreat.

Even India, a powerful country, would not be able to face against them. Killing a million of them would not make them feel much fear, and even killing ten million would not either. However, killing 100 million would cause India to collapse even in the real world.

Chapter 578 - Village Compass

This was quite exciting, and Zhao Fu couldn't help but grin. Great Qin did not need to worry about the threat of ordinary people anymore. Now that one of his biggest problems had been resolved, Zhao Fu was able to relax.

However, did he want to use them to resolve the invasions? Great Qin had the power to do so.

Zhao Fu thought about it before sighing and deciding not to participate. The other factions fighting each other was beneficial to Great Qin because they would not pay any attention to Great Qin. Great Qin could use this opportunity to stealthily develop.

If China started to wholeheartedly resist the invasions, Zhao Fu could help China resolve this crisis. However, after so many operations to destroy Great Qin, Zhao Fu's heart had become cold.

However, battles between nations reduced the strength of humanity overall, and an even more dangerous crisis was approaching.

Zhao Fu was unable to care about the whole world, so he could only grab this opportunity to quickly restore Great Qin as soon as possible in order to guarantee that Great Qin and Great Qin's subjects would not be harmed.

With the remaining 500 million New Year Points, in order to increase the speed at which they conquered villages, Zhao Fu exchanged for items called Village Compasses that could point to villages within ten kilometers.

Even though it was only ten kilometers, which did not seem like a large area, they would be able to save a lot of time. This was because they could tell if there were villages nearby, and if there weren't, they could immediately leave and look elsewhere.

These Village Compasses were quite expensive and cost 10 million New Year Points per compass. In order to clear out the five regions faster, Zhao Fu bought 50 of them.

Right now, with their forces, clearing a region would take at least a month, and clearing the four other regions as well would take at least another six months. It was simply too long.

Now, Great Qin returned to clearing out the Forest of Horrors, and with the ten or so City Lords controlling the situation, the soldiers split up into teams to sweep through the region.

A week later, all of the snow and ice had melted, and green sprouts and buds started to appear on the ground. The world once again seemed full of life.

Great Qin had cleared out roughly two-thirds of the Forest of Horrors, and they only had one-third left to clear before unifying the Forest of Horrors.

There were not many changes to China's situation at the boundary regions – each side would launch attacks at the other side, but the situation still remained at a stalemate.

However, Zhao Fu also received a piece of good news, which was that within the regions that Great Qin was going to unify, they had found a Nation Legatee.

The Legatee was the Legatee of Northern Qi, which was one of the lewdest dynasties of China. The Emperors would often rape married women and do shameful things like sharing women with fathers, sons, and brothers.

This not only applied to their concubines but to their official wives as well. These things were not just occasional happenings but part of the norm. At the same time, the rulers liked to take the wives and daughters of ministers and officials, and they sometimes even had their way with them in the imperial court. Some Emperors even went to the imperial court naked.

Apart from the lewdness of the dynasty, the politics were incredibly corrupt, and half of the time Northern Qi was in power, China had been incredibly lawless. Everyone did as one wanted, and people killed others at their own whims. The rulers killed whoever they wanted to kill, and after being killed, their bodies would be dismembered. Some people were executed by being boiled within the imperial court, and it was as if the rulers were not satisfied if they did not kill people every day.

Sometimes, many people were killed every day. In order to please the Emperors, the ministers would hand over many death-sentence criminals to the Emperor to execute.

Moreover, they lived extremely luxurious lives and disregarded the suffering of the common people. They constructed large palaces and used countless people as manpower.

Also, two of the Northern Qi Empresses voluntarily went to become prostitutes in order to gain fame and pleasure. Many gentlemen and scholars went to seek their services – it could be seen just how licentious this dynasty was.

China only had one dynasty that was like this, and it was referred to as the most bestial dynasty in China's history.

During the political disturbances in the Northern Wei dynasty, general Gao Huan took control of the Northern Wei dynasty and installed a puppet Emperor. After he died, his son Gao Cheng took over, but he was assassinated by a slave. His younger brother, Gao Yang, rose to the throne, got rid of the puppet Emperor, and established Northern Qi.

Northern Qi had six Emperors in total, and it was destroyed by its enemy, Northern Zhou, lasting 28 years in total.

It would have been surprising for such a dynasty not to be destroyed. For it to last less than 30 years, it was a fairly short-lived dynasty.

However, as a dynasty from the Wei, Jin, and the Southern and Northern Dynasties, it still had quite a lot of Fate, more Fate than the later vassal states.

Great Qin required Fate right now, and if they were able to conquer Northern Qi, Great Qin would recover a lot of its Fate. This would also help heal Zhao Fu's injuries, so Great Qin definitely had to conquer Northern Qi.

After Great Qin had conquered the other Nation Legacies, Northern Qi had cut off relations with the rest of the world and hidden away. Great Qin had searched for it for a while, but they had not been able to find anything or receive any information about it.

It was purely by chance that they had found it this time. When Northern Qi had risen to a Basic City, it had caused some abnormal signs, which were noticed by a lost player, who had found its location.

After finding Northern Qi's location, the player was incredibly delighted. After finding his way back, he contacted Great Qin and sold this information for 10,000 gold coins.

Spending 10,000 gold coins to obtain the precise location of a Nation Legacy was incredibly worth it, and Great Qin was too happy to make this transaction.

Since Northern Qi had been able to rise to a Basic City, it seemed that it was doing quite well. Conquering Northern Qi would fulfill Great Qin's requirements for leveling up to a Great City, which was killing two birds with one stone, making Zhao Fu feel quite happy.

Right now, Basic Cities were not as important in and of themselves to Great Qin. Great Qin would be able to easily conquer even system main cities now, as Great Qin now had 20 City Lords, which did not include Zhao Fu, as well as 720,000 Stage 1 soldiers.

Zhao Fu immediately gathered his forces and headed towards where Northern Qi was. Because it was a Nation Legacy, Zhao Fu decided to go there himself as well.

However, because his body was still quite weak, he needed Xianru to support him. He did not need to worry, as Ge Nia had returned and was acting as his personal bodyguard. Within the Legacy Land, no one would be able to harm Zhao Fu.

Without having to make any plans, Great Qin directly sent out its entire army, giving off an immense aura as it surrounded China's most bestial dynasty.

Chapter 579: Northern Qi's Legatee

Northern Qi's Basic City was situated in a basin with only one entrance and exit, and it was hidden quite well, making it quite difficult to find.

Its population was roughly 100,000, and it had 30,000 soldiers, including a few thousand Stage 1 soldiers. It was one of the most powerful factions in its region.

After all, the largest player factions only had 60,000 to 70,000 people, and having a few hundred people with Stage 1 Cultivation was already very good.

It was a pity that it was facing Great Qin. Great Qin quickly got rid of Northern Qi's surrounding villages before tightly surrounding the city.

Everyone within Northern Qi City felt incredibly panicked when they saw the dark ocean of people gathered outside, and they could not build up any thoughts of resistance.

There were at least 700,000 people outside, and all of them had at least Stage 1 Cultivation. Why were there so many Stage 1 soldiers? Just what faction did they belong to?

All of Northern Qi's residents felt a sense of crisis, and they knew that they would not be able to stop this faction's attack. As such, all of them looked incredibly scared.

Powerful auras shot into the sky, causing the air to seem to freeze. Northern Qi City's residents felt their bodies sink, and they could not even stand steadily.

All of these people in the air were City Lords – Northern Qi was doomed! Everyone's faces became ashen, and the situation within the city started to become chaotic. Now, they had no chance of victory at all – just the 20 or so City Lords alone were enough to slaughter their Northern Qi City, and they would not be able to retaliate at all.

"Surrender, you have already lost. Don't pointlessly struggle – if you enrage His Majesty, I'll slaughter all of you!"

Bai Qi stood in the air and spoke with his cold voice filled with killing intent. His voice traveled through the entirety of Northern Qi City, and everyone heard it clearly.

A handsome, pretty-looking young man in white came to the city wall with a group of people and seriously looked at the 20 or so figures in the air, feeling incredibly shocked and powerless.

Northern Qi's Legatee deeply breathed in before saying, "I never thought that Great Qin, after being heavily wounded, would still have such power! Right now, all of China's major factions are uniting to defend against the invasions, but Great Qin is starting up internal conflict. Aren't you afraid of all people hating and ridiculing you?"

Northern Qi's Legatee knew that they had no chance at victory, so they could only try to appeal to justice, hoping for a chance at survival.

Bai Qi coldly harrumphed, "Do you think Great Qin would care about such things? You people will be slaughtered by Great Qin sooner or later. I'll ask you one last time: do you want to live or die?"

Northern Qi's Legatee felt quite angry after hearing Bai Qi's condescending words. However, Northern Qi's forces indeed seemed incredibly pitiful and weak compared to Great Qin's.

Moreover, Great Qin had a way to bring people from the real world into the Heaven Awaken World. Even though they could only do this for a small number of people, it was perfect for dealing with Legatees like him. This meant that there was a possibility of a true death. When he thought of death, Northern Qi's Legatee felt quite worried.

Did they have to just surrender like this? Northern Qi's Legatee felt quite reluctant, as he had wanted to restore Northern Qi and fulfill his family's desires by establishing a powerful nation.

However, now that things had come to this, they could only choose to surrender or die.

Zhao Fu looked at Northern Qi's Legatee from the back of the army and waited for his decision. It would be best to obtain a Nation Legacy without any fighting.

"Your Majesty, this person not only has Dragon Qi, but he also has a large amount of Phoenix Qi!" Xianru said as faintly smiled.

Zhao Fu felt quite surprised at he looked at Xianru curiously. He couldn't understand how a man could have Phoenix Qi.

Xianru couldn't help but lightly laugh and say, "Your Majesty, haven't you realized it yet? That person is a woman!"

Hearing this, Zhao Fu couldn't help but feel surprised – Northern Qi's Legatee was quite handsome and pretty-looking, but he had never expected her to be a woman.

After all, this was not heard of before – Northern Qi's Gao family had an extremely handsome and pretty-looking man, the Prince of Lanling. It was said that his looks were enough to make countless women go crazy, so he wore a mask every day.

Boom!!

A gray pillar of light rushed into the sky, causing it to tremble as an explosion rang out. Countless traces of gray dragon qi condensed in the sky, causing the weather to change and for a powerful aura of might to form.

"Roarrrr!!" A dragon's roar sounded out as a 100-meter long gray dragon appeared in the sky, giving off a powerful aura as it rippled out like a gust of wind.

It seemed that Northern Qi's Legatee had made her decision. Bai Qi also gave the order to attack and destroy Northern Qi. With Great Qin's current strength, conquering a Basic City like this would only result in a few thousand injuries and casualties.

Great Qin's army, which had been waiting, gave off a terrifying aura and flooded towards Northern Qi City like a tsunami. Black arrows filled the sky, giving off a sharp aura that seemed to be able to destroy everything, and enveloped Northern Qi City, making it so that not a single person dared to reveal themselves.

Boom!!

Colorful City Lord Seals rose up out of Great Qin's City Lords' bodies and floated above their heads. The City Lords waved their hands, sending the City Lord Seals shooting into the sky.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Explosions sounded out as the City Lord Seals gave off a large amount of light and formed gigantic orbs of light, giving off an even more immense power.

The massive orbs of light gave off powerful auras of suppression and linked together as they descended towards the gray dragon.

In just one exchange, the gray dragon was locked down by the 20 or so orbs of light in the sky. The gray dragon continuously struggled and resisted, but it could not move at all and could only reluctantly and furiously roar.

Now, Zhao Fu did not even have to do anything when facing off against another Legatee. With how many City Lords Great Qin had, it was incredibly easy to suppress a Legatee's Fate Dragon.

It was not just suppressing her strength but also suppressing her Fate as well. After all, each City Lord Seal contained an immense amount of Fate.

Northern Qi's Legatee's face fell – she had never thought that Great Qin would have such powerful methods to be able to easily suppress her Fate Dragon. She shouted as a gray jade seal with a dragon engraved on it appeared from her body, giving off an immense aura.

Zhao Fu saw that Northern Qi's Legatee wanted to still struggle for a bit, so he lightly said, "Make sure you keep her alive!"

The 20 or so City Lords all heard this and nodded, turning into rays of light and shooting towards Northern Qi's Legatee. The battle finished incredibly quickly.

It didn't take too much effort for 20 or so City Lords to fight a Basic City's City Lord, so the battle concluded incredibly quickly. It could only be called bullying.

Northern Qi's Legatee saw that she had no chance at winning, so she had wanted to commit suicide. However, she had been captured. She was then fed a Reality Fruit, fusing her body in the real world with her body in the Heaven Awaken World.

After being captured, the battle immediately stopped, and those in Northern Qi City decided to surrender.

Chapter 580 - Northern Qi

After Great Qin's army took over Northern Qi City, Xianru helped Zhao Fu into Northern Qi City's City Hall, and he sat down in the main seat. Zhao Fu looked at the handsome, pretty-looking woman kneeling in front of him, who had a trace of blood leaking out of her mouth and looked quite wretched.

After capturing Northern Qi's Legatee and taking over Northern Qi City, Zhao Fu had wanted to conquer and relocate Northern Qi City, but this Legatee had suddenly changed her mind and decided to submit to Great Qin. She expressed that she was willing to do anything and hoped that Great Qin would preserve the name of Northern Qi as opposed to destroying it completely.

Having a nation submit was better than destroying it, as it would be able to continuously provide Fate to Great Qin, and they would be able to use that nation's historical Generals.

Zhao Fu did not have to think about it too much to agree, but he did not give her a Lordship. Instead, he had her come up and lifted up her chin. Seeing that she did not have an adam's apple, it seemed that she really was a woman.

Apart from checking for an adam's apple, there were other methods, but seeing that Northern Qi's Legatee's chest was quite flat, there was only one other way. Since he had already confirmed that she did not have an adam's apple, there was no need to go so far.

Northern Qi's Legatee, who was called Gao Li, looked at the pale-looking young man in front of her. After seeing those blood-red eyes, she felt an instinctive fear, and she had long since heard of his mighty name. Every day, she had been worried that he would attack.

After Zhao Fu lifted up her chin, Gao Li's body froze, and she did not dare to resist. After all, Zhao Fu could do whatever he wanted to her now, as her life was within his hands. Now that he had taken over Northern Qi and captured her, Gao Li could only submit to him out of fear of him acting cruelly.

Zhao Fu took his hand away and slightly smiled as he said, "I can not destroy Northern Qi, but you must become an Imperial Concubine!"

"Mm!" Gao Li did not feel very surprised – after all, she had heard of Great Qin's Legatee's lustful ways, and she could only nod.

Zhao Fu looked at Xianru, who handed over a sheet of paper with Gao Li's name written on it. Zhao Fu then summoned the Imperial Ruler's Seal and gave Gao Li the title of Imperial Concubine.

This was the second time that Zhao Fu had met a female Nation Legatee. Even though Wu Qingniang was the first one, with the Zhou empire's history, Zhao Fu was not surprised. However, he was quite surprised that Northern Qi's Legatee was a woman.

This was because most of the Legatees were male, and female Legatees were quite rare.

Right now, Gao Li had both Dragon Qi and Phoenix Qi, and because she did not have a constitution like Wu Qingniang's, upon being made an Imperial Concubine, all of her Dragon Qi was converted into Phoenix Qi. The amount of Phoenix Qi that a Legatee had was simply immense.

After the Imperial Edict turned into a ray of light and entered Gao Li's body, countless traces of gray dragon qi rose out of Gao Li's body, and the gray dragon within her body started to go through changes – it became a golden color and gradually dissipated before a golden phoenix appeared.

The golden phoenix within Gao Li's body flapped its wings as an immense wave of Phoenix Qi rushed out of her body.

Zhao Fu's pale face looked a bit rosier – after all, the amount of Phoenix Qi that Gao Li had was more than what Sun Hanxiang and Wei Qing had combined. As expected from a Nation Legatee.

After seeing this, many people gasped – they had all thought that Gao Li had been a handsome, pretty-looking man, and after hearing that Zhao Fu wanted to make her an Imperial Concubine, they had been incredibly shocked. They wondered why His Majesty had all of a sudden become interested in men!

Looking at the Phoenix Qi rising up out of Gao Li's body, everyone realized that this handsome, pretty-looking man was actually a woman.

“Your Majesty, we didn't find any historical Generals or any historical Generals' corpses, but we found a few historical figures!” a soldier came up and reported.

Zhao Fu felt a bit surprised – how could they not have any historical Generals? Even if they were killed, surely their corpses were still somewhere! If they could find them, they could take them back and refine them for Innate Talent Blood Crystals.

Gao Li sighed and said, “Your Majesty, Northern Qi doesn't have any historical Generals, only historical beauties.”

“Not a single historical General?” Zhao Fu asked.

Gao Li nodded, feeling quite annoyed towards her Legacy.

It was indeed China's lowliest dynasty; there were not any historical Generals, only beauties. Zhao Fu was quite surprised at this, but he realized that this was only natural.

However, he did not mind too much as he needed their Phoenix Qi, so he said, “Bring them in!”

The soldier nodded, after which six peerlessly beautiful women walked into the hall. Not only their looks but their demeanors were also incredibly attractive.

Northern Qi was quite capable to be able to collect these six beauties. They were not inferior to the women on the Ancient Beauty Rankings at all.??U.p.dated by b o x n o v e l . c o m

The first was called Lu Lingxuan, and she was 26 or 27 years old and had extremely good looks. Her skin was snowy white, and she had an elegant figure and a very domineering demeanor. Her gaze seemed quite deep and sharp, making her seem like a woman with ambition, and she was silently weighing up Zhao Fu.

After Zhao Fu heard about this, he felt that his reputation had taken another blow and couldn't help but feel a bit wronged.
