

The Lord 941

Chapter 941: Dao Eye

The ground continuously trembled as cracks appeared in the sky. A wild gale whistled as lightning bolts madly descended. Countless creatures instinctively ran for their lives, but found that there was nowhere to run to. They could only cry out in terror and despair, creating a horrifying scene.

At that moment, all of the heaven and earth source energy gathered to one place, and all Spirit Light players were forcefully kicked out of the Heaven Awaken World.

The massive amount of heaven and earth source energy continuously gathered, forming a hazy figure. It was difficult to see that figure's likeness, and one could not tell if it was man or female, old or young, but it gave off an extremely powerful might. This might cause all creatures to kneel as if it was as powerful as an entire world.

This was the manifestation of the Spirit Light world's consciousness, and it would only appear during the most dangerous time for a world. Now that Zhao Fu had unleashed power that could destroy anything, the world's consciousness was forced to personally descend.

Looking at Zhao Fu within the pillars of light, as well as the space around him collapsing, the world's consciousness did not hesitate to act.

Boom! Boom! Boom! Boom...

Shocking explosions continuously sounded out throughout the entire world, and an extremely terrifying battle was about to unfold. The heavens and earth fell into darkness, and even the players who had been kicked out of the Heaven Awaken World still looked terrified. The feeling of despair still remained with them, causing their bodies to feel cold.

Only after a few days were they able to enter the Heaven Awaken World again. The Spirit Light world had been greatly ravaged, with countless trees and boulders lying about and gashes all over the ground.

Some people could not help but head towards where the center of the battle had been, and the sight was simply too shocking and horrifying.

The sky was covered by thick, dark clouds, and 1,000 or so regions had been burned to nothing. There were still traces of a black aura rising up from the ground, and all life there had been exterminated. There were deep abysses in some places and valleys in others. In fact, oil leaked out of the ground in some places, making it look like an apocalyptic scene.

One could only imagine how terrifying the battle had been. Anyone who had remained would have died without a doubt, trampled on like ants.

However, in the end, it was a victory of the Spirit Light world, or else the consequences would have been even more severe. That person could actually fight with the world's consciousness; just what sort of existence was he?

Following this, Great Qin's Legatee's name resounded throughout the entire Spirit Light world. It was the first time most of them had heard of this name, and they still felt some chills when they remembered his power. It completely surpassed anything that they knew.

Even though he had been forced into retreat by the world's consciousness, the four Guardian Beasts had almost died and had been heavily injured. Fortunately for Kamen, he had run quite quickly, or else he would have died. However, he was also on the verge of death, and this was the same for the World Protectors of the other worlds.

Most importantly, that person had killed countless creatures in over 1,000 regions. It was difficult to estimate just how many people had died, and even now, their cries still filled those regions.

Now, the entire world listed Great Qin's Legatee as their greatest and most dangerous enemy. All those who belonged to the Spirit Light world were determined to kill Great Qin's Legatee. He not only took away their Primogenitor Statue but did such a thing to their world.

The most important person in all of this had already returned to Great Qin. This was mainly because of the golden dragon, because without it, Zhao Fu would have remained in the Spirit Light world until he died.

After returning to Great Qin, Zhao Fu was also heavily injured, and his aura was quite weak. Luckily, this time, the Imperial Physicians Pavilion had the Revival Pill. Li Si immediately ordered people to use the Revival Pill, and Zhao Fu's injuries quickly recovered.

There was also the Emperor Phoenix Statue, which poured a large amount of Phoenix Qi into Zhao Fu's body, helping with his recovery greatly. It was about half the effectiveness of the Revival Pill.

Finally, the Flower Fairy also helped heal Zhao Fu, causing Zhao Fu to regain consciousness in just a few days, though his aura was still incredibly weak.

By now, Zhao Fu had already returned to his original state, and his eyes had become normal again as well. The splits in his pupils had also recovered.

Zhao Fu was not sure what had happened back then; after being nailed against the mountain, Zhao Fu's consciousness had been pulled into a boundless darkness, and his body had been controlled by his bloodline. It was mainly the Death Race's bloodline that had taken control.

That was why it seemed like Zhao Fu had died, because the Death Race was made up of Undead creatures, and Zhao Fu's bloodline was a top-tier bloodline among the Death Race.

Because his body was taken over by the Death Race bloodline, his three Fate Stars sensed that he was in enormous danger, so they broke free from Zhao Fu's control and released their most powerful energy. At the same time, the demon god Divinity within Zhao Fu's soul also affected his body, giving him pure destructive power.

Now, Zhao Fu sat against the headboard of his bed, eating some healing medicines while listening to the golden dragon describe what had happened. When Zhao Fu's pupils had split, that was when Zhao Fu had broken the Life Restriction, entering the Dao Eye state.

All living creatures had the Life Restriction; it determined a person's lifespan, a person's innate attributes, and a person's talent. One's lifespan and talent were all determined by one's Life Restriction.

Even though this could be changed through other external things, such as longevity pills or spirit medicines that could increase one's Grade, that was merely making changes, not breaking the Life Restriction.

Zhao Fu had entirely broken free from his Life Restriction. From now on, Zhao Fu would no longer be bound by that and could even become a god or a demon. It was even possible that he would not maintain his human likeness and could become a monster.

Now that he had broken his Life Restriction, he was no longer bound by anything, and his path forwards became uncertain.

Moreover, the Dao Eye was something gained from breaking the Life Restriction. It was a power that was extremely close to the Dao. It could see through the power of all things, and no illusions were effective against it.

Zhao Fu had never thought that such a thing would happen. What made Zhao Fu extremely angry was that he had been unable to use the world's energy, resulting in him being completely suppressed by the nine others who were using world's energy. Otherwise, if he had his world's energy, even if he could not defeat them, he would have at least been able to run.

He had heard from Flower Moon that the reason he had been unable to use the world's energy was because of certain people, and they had provided a list of names. It could be said that the reason he had been injured so heavily was because of those people. Zhao Fu coldly harrumphed – he would kill all of those people in the future, even if they wanted to surrender.

Finally, there was the Primogenitor Statue. Everything had begun because of it, and all of these things had happened because countless people had tried to snatch it.

Chapter 942: Blood

The Primogenitor Statue was the absolute most important item to the Spirit Light race, and it was extremely powerful. It surpassed anything people could even imagine, and it indeed had the power to bring the Spirit Light race to a new age of glory; this showed just how important it was.

The Primogenitor Statue was an ultimate treasure birthed by the Spirit Light world, and it was created by the primogenitor of the Spirit Light world. It was said that the Spirit Light primogenitor created everything in the world, like a true god.

For example, China had legends of Pangu separating the sky from the earth, while the west had stories of God creating all creation. This Primogenitor was on a similar level; it could be seen just how powerful this Primogenitor was.

However, compared to China's legends, the Spirit Light world's Primogenitor was a real existence, and his body had turned into a statue that had become the Spirit Light race's ultimate treasure.

Its first use was that it could greatly increase the Spirit Light race's power. This sort of power was a bloodline power, increasing one's innate attributes and causing their overall power to become stronger.

Most importantly, the Primogenitor Statue was not limited by numbers; this was not raising the strength of a few hundred million or a few billion people but raising the entire Spirit Light race's power. This statue could increase the entire world's power, and such things were incredibly rare.

Moreover, it gave a great boost to strength; it could cause the Spirit Light race's innate strength to reach Stage 0-9. In other words, without even doing anything, those who were born would have Stage 0-9 strength and would not have to painstakingly reach that level like other people.

As such, this Primogenitor Statue was incredibly important to the Spirit Light race. With its power, the Spirit Light race's strength would surpass that of even the world before it.

Apart from this, it could also gather the Heaven and Earth Spirit Qi and could even forcefully absorb other worlds' Spirit Qi into its own world.

This would cause the Spirit Light world's Spirit Qi to become even denser, resulting in Cultivation speed becoming faster, while the Spirit Qi in surrounding worlds would decrease, resulting in their Cultivation speed becoming slower. This would make them stronger while making their enemies weaker.

Because the Primogenitor had the power to create an entire world, the third ability was that it contained a Primogenitor Domain, and Spirit Light people who Cultivated within it could comprehend higher-grade power.

The fourth ability was the Primogenitor Statue's own terrifying power. Even though the Primogenitor had lost a lot of its power after dying and turning into the statue, its strength was still greater than the eight Aquatic Beast Kings combined. If one unleashed all of its power, it would be a world-destroying killing machine.

With these four abilities, if the Spirit Light race obtained it, it would definitely lead them to a new glorious era.

However, only people from the Spirit Light race could use this Primogenitor Statue, so even though Zhao Fu had it, he was unable to use it. This was quite heartbreaking, and its only use was to suppress the Spirit Light race.

The Primogenitor Statue was formed from the Primogenitor's body, and it was incredibly important to the Spirit Light race. It could give the Spirit Light race all sorts of benefits, but now that it had fallen into an outsider's hands, it could greatly suppress them.

For example, Zhao Fu had obtained a Reversal Talisman in the past; if he reversed the Primogenitor Statue's effects, it could greatly suppress the Spirit Light race, and this was something that they could not escape or avoid, as the suppression came from their bloodlines.

If Zhao Fu changed the attributes of this Primogenitor Statue and used it on the battlefield, all Spirit Light people's strength would be reduced by 60%; if someone had Stage 1 strength, that person's strength would be reduced to Stage 0-4.

A Stage 0-8 soldier would be able to kill ten or so Stage 0-4 people easily, and a Stage 1 soldier could kill dozens of them without any problems.

With such a great reduction of power, just how big of an advantage would they have? A single Great Qin soldier could fight against forty or fifty Spirit Light people, and if Great Qin sent out one billion soldiers, they would only be able to contend with 40 or 50 billion people.

With this Primogenitor Statue, it would be incredibly easy to deal with the Spirit Light race. As such, even the world's consciousness did not want it to fall into someone else's hands, as it simply suppressed the Spirit Light people too much. With this item, Great Qin would find it quite easy to destroy the Spirit Light world in the future.

Moreover, even though the Primogenitor Statue could only be used by outsiders to suppress the Spirit Light race, Great Qin had the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation, and perhaps they could refine it and give those four abilities to Great Qin. If that was the case, Great Qin would be the ones ushered into a glorious era.

The thought of this was incredibly exciting, as those four abilities were incredibly powerful.

The golden dragon had a greater understanding of these things, and Zhao Fu immediately asked it for advice. After all, ordinary refining methods would not work.

The golden dragon did not hide anything and answered Zhao Fu's questions in detail. Zhao Fu found that even though it was possible to refine the Primogenitor Statue, it would be incredibly difficult, much more difficult than refining a Nation Armament.

This was because a Nation Armament was formed by Fate, and Fate could change or fuse with other Fate. For example, if a nation devoured another nation and formed a new nation, their Fates would fuse; if a nation split, the two new nations would have different Fate as well.

As such, using the other Nation or Dynasty's Fate, combined with Great Qin's Fate, it was possible to refine another Nation Armament so that Great Qin could use it.

However, the Primogenitor Statue was different, because the core of the Primogenitor Statue was the bloodline. Zhao Fu did not have the Spirit Light race's bloodline, so he naturally could not use it. The golden dragon's method was to change the bloodline by instilling it with Great Qin's bloodline.

However, this process was incredibly difficult, as the Primogenitor Statue possessed the Primogenitor's bloodline. Replacing it would require the bloodline from almost everyone in Great Qin, forming a new bloodline that would be able to replace the Primogenitor's bloodline.

However, there were many uncertainties, and perhaps the Primogenitor Statue would be destroyed or its attributes lowered. Of course, there was a chance it could become even more powerful.

The key thing was time. Great Qin currently had five billion or so people, and the bloodline they fused together would take 600 years to completely refine the Primogenitor Statue. After all, the Primogenitor Statue had been nourished by the Primogenitor's bloodline for thousands of years.

The only way to speed up this process was to get more people. If they had more people to form a more powerful bloodline, the speed at which they could refine the Primogenitor Statue would be faster.

Zhao Fu did not even know if he could live for 600 years; if he couldn't, he could only leave this to future generations. The only way to obtain more people was to quickly expand. If they could unify the human world, they would be able to form a much more powerful bloodline.

Zhao Fu first ordered people to dig a massive, rectangular pool of blood. It had to be at least 100,000 meters long, because the Primogenitor Statue's true length was 100,000 meters long. It was more than ten times bigger than the Aquatic Beast Kings.

After digging the pool, they would collect blood from everyone in Great Qin, regardless of race and status in Great Qin. Because they had such a massive population, this was not something they could do in a short amount of time.

During this period of time, Zhao Fu took the Primogenitor Statue to the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation. Now, what he needed to do was leave a Blood Imprint on it.

This would be done by using Zhao Fu's blood to engrave a magic seal on the Primogenitor Statue. Using Zhao Fu's bloodline as the main bloodline, Great Qin's countless bloodlines would fuse together to form a new bloodline, which would replace the Primogenitor's bloodline. This would allow Zhao Fu to freely control the Primogenitor Statue.

Another benefit to engraving a Blood Imprint on the Primogenitor Statue was that he could place the Primogenitor Statue in the blood pool and pour some blood every day. As long as the amount of blood did not decrease, the Blood Imprint would automatically refine the Primogenitor Statue. That way, they would not need the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation to continuously refine the Primogenitor Statue, as they still needed the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation for many other things.

Zhao Fu placed the palm-sized Primogenitor Statue onto the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation and activated the formation. An intense light appeared as a formless energy brought the Primogenitor Statue into the air.

Zhao Fu slashed his palm and forced out his purest essence blood, which was red with a trace of gold. Under Zhao Fu's control, it flew towards the formation and turned into a blood mist as it fused into the magic formation.

The Heaven and Earth Refining Formation started to give off immense blood-red light, and the Primogenitor Statue in the air was surrounded by blood-red light that started to enter the statue. The Primogenitor Statue gradually started to give off blood-red light similar to that of the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation, and a magic formation similar to the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation appeared on the forehead of the statue.

After this blood-red magic formation appeared, the Heaven and Earth Refining Formation gradually stopped, as the Blood Imprint was complete. Now, Zhao Fu just had to wait.

A few days later, the massive blood pool had been dug out, and blood was poured in. Zhao Fu placed the Primogenitor Statue into the blood pool and restored it back to its original size, beginning the refinement process.

Now, they had to obtain more people in order to refine the Primogenitor Statue faster. Zhao Fu could not wait 600 years.

15 days had passed, and in another 15 days, the real world would be devoured by the Heaven Awaken World. During this time, Zhao Fu continued to have his soldiers clear out regions and construct the Great Wall.

Originally, Zhao Fu did not want to make a move against any factions, as they had not stabilized the northside yet, so attacking such a factions would be quite unwise. However, things were different now.

Within a concealed room, Zhao Fu sat on a chair as he looked down at a kneeling man who spoke with a Japanese accent. His attitude was incredibly servile, and he reported things to Zhao Fu as Zhao Fu listened and thought deeply about what he was saying.

As Great Qin cleared out regions to solidify their position in the northern side, the other direction in the Midland Continent were quickly building defenses. None of them dared to take Great Qin lightly, and they now had four lines of defenses.

The first was a Void Zone that spanned ten regions. Just moving an army through those ten regions would take at least a year.

The second was a Sky-Sealing Great Formation that prevented anything from flying in the sky. The various countries had spent a large amount of money for this, and even 10,000 City Lords would not be able to destroy this formation. This was to prevent Great Qin from launching any air attacks.

The third was underground formations. After seeing Great Qin take down the four other countries, they invested in underground protection to prevent Great Qin from digging tunnels and entering their territory without being detected.

The fourth was a Great Wall for their final battle. They had set up countless restrictions here, because if the first three lines of defenses all failed, they would have to fight a decisive battle with Great Qin. Victory and defeat would be determined in that battle.

With defenses in the sky, ground, and underground, the various countries were quite secure. They now had an impregnable aura as they prepared to face Great Qin's ferocious attacks.

However, this time, they had failed in terms of people, and this was the purpose of this meeting. The person Zhao Fu was talking to was Japan's ambassador, who represented 70% of the top-tier factions in Japan who wanted to submit to Great Qin. They would secretly open up a path to help Great Qin unify the eastern side of the Midland Continent.

"Why are you doing this? What do you all want?" Zhao Fu asked in an imposing manner. People always had a motive when doing things, and 70% of the top-tier factions in Japan wanting to submit to Great Qin was no small matter. They were not stupid and definitely had a goal.

That person knelt with both knees on the ground and bowed incredibly low as he said with great respect and sincerity, "Great Qin's Majesty, no one can stop you from unifying the world, and this world will be yours sooner or later. Submitting to Great Qin is renouncing the dark and seeking the light, and we are thinking about finding the Japanese residents a good ruler. We hope that you will give the residents a safe and prosperous life."

Hearing this, Zhao Fu could not help but lightly laugh; before, these people had been saying that Great Qin was evil and that he was a cold-blooded and licentious ruler. Now, they were claiming that they were renouncing the dark and seeking the light, and he had become a good ruler.

However, Zhao Fu understood the situation in Japan right now – they were lacking in resources, and it had become a place where the strong devoured the weak. Anyone who had strength ruled those who were weaker, so they preferred people with strength.

Now that the real world was about to be destroyed, they understood that no matter how good their defenses were, they would not be able to stop Great Qin in the end. As such, they came to submit beforehand.

Their requirements were quite simple, which was to preserve their large families and Legacies. In the future, the Japanese people would become part of Great Qin and receive the same treatment as ordinary subjects of Great Qin.

Back when the four countries had resisted, Great Qin had lost many people, so he had been furious and made all players from those four countries the lowest class of resident. They had to make contributions to increase their status, and he was now surprised to find that this had brought positive effects.

This matter was quite important, so Zhao Fu did not believe the ambassador so easily. Only after collecting intelligence and making sure of this would he believe these factions. With these factions' betrayal, Great Qin could easily take down the entire eastern side of the Midland Continent, which would bring massive gains. As such, Zhao Fu agreed to their requests for now.

Hearing that Zhao Fu was willing to agree to their requests, the ambassador felt incredibly happy and kowtowed in gratitude.

Chapter 944: Six Countries

There were six countries to the east of China: North Korea, South Korea, Japan, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia. Even though there were many of them, none of them were especially powerful, and they did not have much strength to resist.

The closest country to Great Qin was Indonesia. It had 250 regions and roughly 50 million people. Next was Malaysia with 200 regions and roughly 40 million people, then the Philippines with 350 regions and roughly 80 million people. Further away was Japan with 300 regions and roughly 100 million people, then South Korea with 200 regions and around 40 million people, and then finally North Korea with 150 regions and roughly 30 million people.

In total, the six countries had 1,450 regions and around 340 million people. There were also four Nation Armaments from four of the countries:

Indonesia: As the primitive society developed and trade and transportation across the South China Sea became more common, the Indonesian people visited more and more islands, bringing their culture with them. It was roughly around 200BC that the country 'Yavadvipa' appeared.

Yavadvipa was outside the boundary of the Han dynasty province in Vietnam, which was where modern Indonesia was. During 131AD, it sent ambassadors to China to establish friendly relations.

Malaysia: Brunei Darussalam was the most prosperous Empire in Malaysia's history. In the 13th Century, it governed 14 provinces with tens of thousands of people living in the capital. It was a slave-owning society with clear classes, and its economy was primarily focused on agriculture. The residents obtained their salt from boiling seawater and fermented their own wine from millet, living simple lives.

In the 14th Century, the central government set up a unified administration for the treasury and tax collection. At the end of the 14th Century, it submitted to the Majapahit Empire, and at the start of the 15th Century, it submitted to the Malacca Sultanate. Soon, it regained independence and became a Sultanate.

At the start of the 16th Century, the fifth Sultan, Bolkiah, caused the sultanate to become more powerful. Apart from most of Kalimantan Island, most islands south of the Philippines belonged to Brunei, and this was called their 'golden era.'

At the end of the 16th Century, because of internal strife, the sultanate went into decline, and western colonizers began to invade. In 1888, it became a British protectorate.

Philippines: The Barangay alliance was the second wave of Malay people to come to the Philippines through boats, and the area where set up was called Barangay. Barangay was the foundational society of the early Philippines.

Each Barangay was made up of 30 to 100 families and differed in numbers, and they were headed by barangay chiefs. The barangay societies were made up of nobles, free citizens, and slaves, and due to the requirements of development and war, various barangays formed alliances, forming a nation with slavery.

Japan: There had only ever been one nation in the history of Japan, and it had always been a monarchy. Even though its regime had been overthrown many times, Emperors always existed and had never been abolished.

Since the first generation of Emperors was established in 660BC, the line continued until now, which can be said to be quite miraculous.

Japan's Nation Armament was quite special, as it was not only like a Nation Armament but also like a Clan Armament; it was something in between. Moreover, it was made up of many components, which included the sword Kusanagi, the jewel Yasanaki no Magatama, and the mirror Yata no Kagami.

Those four countries all each had a Nation Armament. As for South Korea and North Korea, they used to be one country but only recently split into two countries. Because their territory was quite small and did not have much Fate, due to the split, they were unable to form Nation Armaments.

There were 1,450 regions and 340 million players in total, but those figures were nothing to Zhao Fu. In the face of true death, all would submit to Great Qin; that was how it had been with the previous four countries. After all, it was better to live a bad life than have a good death.

As such, their main obstacle was the system factions. In the 1,450 regions, there were 4,500 City Lords and a force of 450 million Stage 1 soldiers. However, they were not all gathered together, as most City Lords still maintained their neutrality.

Zhao Fu wanted to quickly take down the six countries and then attack the rest of China from behind, taking down 2,000 Chinese regions in the east in one fell swoop.

The eastern faction had 2,000 regions and 6,000 or so City Lords, as well as 600 million Stage 1 soldiers. However, they were scattered in different places, and some would help players defend against Great Qin, while others would not; they were not unified at all.

If Great Qin took down the eastern side, Great Qin would be able to unify the northern side and eastern side of the Midland Continent. That would only leave the western side and southern side, and there would be nothing more to worry about.

In total, the eastern side of the Midland Continent had 3,450 regions. Wanting to devour so many regions required a massive appetite.

Zhao Fu first gathered his various subordinates to discuss this matter. If they succeeded, Great Qin would take a big step in unifying the Midland Continent. After unifying the Midland Continent, Great Qin would make a move against the other Continents.

Seeing their four lines of defenses, the eastern factions were able to relax. The sky, the ground, and underground and all been sealed, so no matter how powerful Great Qin was, it would be impossible to break through all of these defenses quickly. As such, they felt quite confident.

After all, Great Qin had suffered defeat twice because of similar tactics, though the second time they had ended up succeeding because of the tunnels they dug. Now that they had prepared defenses for the sky and underground, there would be no way for Great Qin to make it through.

Now, they needed to send some people to patrol those areas. After all, they did not need everyone to wait there; when Great Qin attacked, those on patrol would let the rest know, and they would have enough time to arrive.

Moreover, everyone knew that Great Qin was currently clearing out regions and building a Great Wall. They had not even stabilized the northern side yet, so it was unlikely they would suddenly attack.

It was now the end of summer, and a bright moon hung in the sky, illuminating the dark blue night sky, with a few stars around it.

“Bro, do you reckon we can stop Great Qin? Great Qin is rising so quickly, and now that the real world’s going to be destroyed, if we die, we’ll stay dead. What should we do in the future?”

A few people stood on the Great Wall, and one of them felt quite worried and could not help but voice these worries, feeling quite helpless.

A bearded man laughed as he replied, “Of course we’ll be able to stop them. Do you really think we’ll be destroyed by Great Qin? There are six countries allied together; last time, Great Qin was lucky and took them by surprise by digging tunnels. This time, we’ve made complete preparations for our defenses.”

Chapter 945: We’ll Never Submit

“Great Qin will never be able to break through; I’m confident of that. However, the future will be quite uncertain and we’ll have to take things one step at a time. One thing’s for sure though – we’ll never submit to Great Qin. It’s an evil faction and also part of China.”

Hearing this, the person who had asked the question nodded and said, “Great Qin really is evil. I heard they made those who resisted into the lowest class of citizen and give them horrible treatment. Now that our defenses are so secure, it’s like we have an incredibly firm castle. We don’t need to fear Great Qin, and our countries are also working together with the other Continents. I'm sure we'll be able to withstand Great Qin."

At that moment, someone else said, "I wonder how Great Qin was able to develop so quickly. It's like Great Qin's Legatee found some sort of cheat and used it to unify the northern side of the Midland Continent. His threat is so big, and we're only able to defend against him by uniting together. If we had the strength to destroy Great Qin, that would be great."

Another person could not help but laugh as he said, "If we had that strength, we could charge into Great Qin's Palace and take all of their treasures and the top-tier beauties that Great Qin's Legatee has collected. That would make my entire life worth it."

Hearing this, everyone else laughed.

Within the darkness, a group of Japanese people led 15,000 City Lords from Great Qin silently across the four defensive lines. Because Japan had contributed much in the construction of those defensive lines, they had been able to leave open secret passages, allowing Great Qin to stealthily make it through.

After making it through, 100 or so Japanese people were already waiting. They were the leaders of the top Japanese factions, and seeing Zhao Fu arrive, they knelt with both knees, their heads almost against the ground as they called out incredibly respectfully, "We greet Your Majesty!"

This was to be commended – even the factions that Great Qin had conquered had not been so respectful, and Zhao Fu had a trace of a smile on his face as he said, "You may all rise!"

The Japanese people all got up, and a white-haired elder smiled as he said in a flattering tone, "It's truly my eternal honour to personally see Your Majesty. No matter what Your Majesty tells us to do, we will pledge our loyalty to Your Majesty to the death."

Zhao Fu lightly laughed as he said, "When Great Qin attacks, your factions can attack the other countries. If you can make any contributions, We will reward you handsomely."

The elder and the others smiled and bowed in thanks, seeming incredibly servile.

Following this, Great Qin started to act. The other countries had no idea that Great Qin had already entered their territory, so Great Qin could launch surprise attacks and destroy the six countries in one go. After destroying the defensive lines, they could let in a large number of soldiers.

After this, they could attack the east side of China's territory from behind. Even though the east side of China had some defenses, they were the same defenses back when China had been invaded by other countries. Now that their attention was on China, most of their defenses were between Great Qin and themselves, and they did not have much defenses against the other countries.

Because they had a mutual agreement with the other countries to defend against Great Qin together, they did not want to unnecessarily waste resources there, which made things easier for Great Qin.

The six countries had 1,450 regions in total and about 4,500 City Lords. Great Qin brought 15,000 City Lords and the eight Aquatic Beast Kings. Moreover, Zhao Fu did not bring the entire army, leaving some of his forces behind in case anyone attacked.

The system factions were their greatest obstacle. Zhao Fu ordered the 15,000 City Lords to disperse and sneak into the various system factions to attack simultaneously at an opportune moment.

Of the four Legatees, Zhao Mo and Elise could each deal with one, and Bai Qi and the others would deal with one while Zhao Fu himself would take care of one. The eight Aquatic Beast Kings' bodies were massive and were suited to causing destruction and chaos, making it easier for Great Qin to take down the six countries.

It was late at night, and it was deathly silent. Suddenly, cries sounded out as flames burst forth. Screams and howls pierced through the night as countless people ran for their lives or vigorously resisted, and the six countries fell into complete chaos.

"Great Qin has broken into the six countries!" This news shook the entire world, and countless people were awakened from their sleep. After hearing about this, countless people's expressions fell. They had never thought that Great Qin would suddenly attack, and it was not attacking the countries one by one but taking them down simultaneously.

The strategists' expressions were all quite unsightly. They could not understand how all of these defenses had been completely useless against Great Qin. If they really were useless, then it would be incredibly easy for Great Qin to attack the central area of the Midland Continent, as the ones who Great Qin's Legatee hated the most was them.

Following this, they heard that when Great Qin attacked the six countries, most Japanese factions did not even resist and instead helped Great Qin attack the other countries. They were simply taking the side of the enemy.

The Japanese factions' abnormal actions caused the strategists to immediately realize what had happened. It was not that the four defensive lines had been ineffective but that Japan had betrayed everyone else. Now, they could tell Great Qin's goal, and they immediately cried out, "Hurry and defend the east side!"

Countless factions now realized Great Qin's goal, causing the eastern side of China to fall into panic. Countless factions now gathered towards the eastern border.

The eight Aquatic Beast Kings rampaged within the six countries, unrestrainedly causing destruction and slaughtering the panicked people. The four lines of defenses had already been destroyed, and Great Qin's army quickly arrived through teleportation channels. Many Cavalrymen rushed in all directions, starting to take over the regions.

Great Qin's sudden attack dealt heavy blows to the six countries' system factions. Under Great Qin's 15,000 City Lords' attacks, 1,500 of the 4,500 City Lords had already died. The remaining ones had been forced into submission by Great Qin's ferocious attacks. Now, the countless player factions were also in chaos and could not put up any meaningful resistance.

Elsewhere, Zhao Mo had turned into his 100 meter tall Demon Sovereign King form, his claws giving off immense demonic qi as he killed the Yavadvipa Kingdom's Legatee. The Nation Armament and City Lord Seal powerlessly fell to the ground.

"Roarr!" A pained and mournful dragon's cry sounded throughout the eastern side of the Midland Continent. A massive violet dragon struggled before gradually dissipating into traces of violet qi and disappeared.

Finally, a system announcement sounded out, piercing into the minds of the Indonesian people – all of the Indonesian regions had been conquered by Great Qin. Indonesia had perished, and all of its Fate had been absorbed by Great Qin.

This caused all of the Indonesian players to fall into despair. Their minds went blank as they tried to figure out what to do. Now that Indonesia had fallen, what could they do? They evidently could not resist Great Qin; were they going to be slaughtered by Great Qin?

They were not the only ones in this predicament. Soon, four more system announcements sounded out: South Korea, North Korea, the Philippines, and Malaysia had simultaneously perished, causing all of their players to fall into panic and despair as well.

Chapter 946: Three Great Devils

At that moment, a voice sounded out like a light in the darkness, comforting their weak and afraid spirits.

“Great Qin’s Majesty has ordered that all those who submit to Great Qin will become ordinary subjects of Great Qin. Those who joins Great Qin in attacking China will not be forced to bring their real bodies into the Heaven Awaken World; after the real world is destroyed, you will all be rewarded greatly.”

Great Qin had methods to bring people into the Heaven Awaken World en masse, so they would either submit or die a true death. Hearing that they would become ordinary subjects of Great Qin, not the lowest rank, and that they could even gain rewards, most people did not hesitate to submit.

“I’m willing to join Great Qin and work for Great Qin!” a person yelled, and many people followed. No one dared to resist Great Qin, and many of them already started to see themselves as part of Great Qin.

Zhao Fu did this to deal with the eastern side of China. They already knew that Great Qin was attacking the six countries, so countless factions were rushing over. If they gathered too many people, Great Qin’s plan to take down the eastern side of China would fail. As such, Zhao Fu changed his plans and decided to use the six countries to attack China.

This was quite a strange situation. After all, Great Qin was part of China, yet it was ordering these six countries to attack China. Only Japan had not been destroyed, as most of its people had already surrendered. The six countries formed six armies, ferociously attacking towards the eastern side of China with wild abandon.

After all, Great Qin had promised rewards, and they would not die true deaths. As such, it was best to use this opportunity to contribute to Great Qin. If they wanted to make contributions in the future, they would be putting their actual lives on the line.

There were not many factions gathered at the eastern side of China yet. After all, none of them expected the six countries to surrender so easily and follow Great Qin's orders to attack China.

As the two sides fought, the Chinese side cursed at the six countries, saying that they had no backbone or any shame. They had been working together with the Chinese side incredibly closely to resist Great Qin, and now they were desperately attacking, helping Great Qin achieve its evil goals.

Now that the six countries had submitted to Great Qin, they of course defended Great Qin. They responded loudly, saying that they were now loyal to an enlightened liege and that Great Qin's Legatee was the true Mandate of Heaven. He would one day unify the Midland Continent, and they were simply following the heavens' will to punish those who resisted Great Qin.

The battle between the two sides was incredibly intense, but the six countries had an advantage in numbers. They were already ready to fight and were incredibly close, while the defending forces had been caught unawares, and there were still factions on their way.

Moreover, they had not even set up proper defenses and found it incredibly difficult to put up any meaningful resistance.

Moreover, there was a big difference in their battle intent. The people from the six countries had lost their countries and had no other choice but to submit to Great Qin. If they took this opportunity to make contributions while they did not die true deaths, they would not have to worry about the future. How could the Chinese side's battle intent compare to this?

Japan's final Emperor had been unwilling to submit to Great Qin, so Zhao Fu had personally killed him. Japan's three sacred treasures, the Kusanagi, Yasanaki no Magatama, and Yata no Kagami had all fallen into Zhao Fu's hands. The only reason Japan had not been destroyed was because there was still a faction that had not been destroyed.

This faction was called the Hundred Ghost Night, and it was the faction that Masanori Hano had established. Zhao Fu gave off a terrifying aura as he stood above her Devil City.

As a world Legatee, Masanori Hano had great strength. Because Zhao Fu was the World Protector and she was a world Legatee, both of them could use the human world's energy. However, in this sort of situation, neither of them could use it, as they were facing each other.

Masanori Hano stood in the air, looking at Zhao Fu with a complicated gaze, and three figures giving off powerful devil qi stood behind her.

The first had two horns, a wine pot on its back, and looked quite handsome – this was Shuten-Douji. The second figure was dressed in armor and had a pair of crow's wings and a long nose. Its face was quite savage – this was the Greater Tengu. The third was an incredibly enchanting woman who had nine tails – she was Tamamo-no-Mae.

These three were Japan's Three Great Devils, and there were many legends of them. Their head was Shuten-Douji.

Zhao Fu looked at Masanori Hano and said gently, as he had a good impression of her, "Hano, you're not a match for me. Japan has mostly submitted, so there's no point in you resisting like this. If you're willing to submit to Great Qin, I will treat you well."

Masanori Hano felt quite complicated. Japan had already fallen, and there would no longer be 'Japan' in the future. She was the final resisting faction, and she felt quite deeply towards Japan. She was not quite willing to let it just perish.

However, the three devils behind her were quite intelligent. After all, it was not just Japan – all countries would fall in the future, and Great Qin's rise was simply unstoppable. As such, they tried to convince Masanori Hano to submit.

Based on the fact that her relationship with Great Qin's Legatee was not bad and that she was a Legatee, she would be able to obtain a good position in Great Qin. As such, this was the best choice.

Masanori Hano started to be swayed, and with the persuasion from the three devils, who she was quite close with, she decided to agree in the end.

Now that the final faction had submitted, Japan finally perished. The six countries had all fallen, and the eastern coastside had now been unified. Now, it was time to attack the eastern side of China.

With the six armies ferociously attacking, the defending Chinese factions could not last very long. Even though there were more factions heading over, Great Qin's forces were also rushing over, and they were faster.

When Great Qin's army and the six armies joined together, they broke through the eastern side of China's defenses and gave off a massive momentum as they charged forwards.

The Chinese factions could only continuously retreat. In the end, due to their desperate retaliation and the various traps they had set up, they were able to stop Great Qin at the Pomelo region. Three-quarters of the eastern side of China had been taken over by Great Qin, and with the regions from the six countries, about 90% of the regions in the eastern side of the Midland Continent now belonged to Great Qin.

Taking into account the possibility of factions from the other directions attacking, Zhao Fu stopped advancing and shifted from the offensive to the defensive. The other factions from other directions started to attack Great Qin but could not change much. The six countries had already fallen into Great Qin's hands.

Chapter 947: Demon Blade Muramasa

Great Qin's army and City Lords went and suppressed those who were attacking, stabilizing the situation. Zhao Fu started to go through the gains from this operation. In total, they had obtained 6,500 Great Cities and 1,500 Cities.

Most of the Great Cities had come from the six countries, and almost all of the Cities had come from them as well. When Zhao Fu ordered the six countries to attack China, the Chinese side had continuously fallen back, and they had almost made it to the central area of China.

If it wasn't for the strategists predicting that they would not be able to hold the eastern side of China, setting up defensive lines outside the central area, it was possible that Great Qin would have conquered the central area as well and even made it to the western side.

The end result was quite ironic: The other Chinese factions had tried to destroy Great Qin, which was a part of China, and now Great Qin was using other countries to harm the rest of China.

However, the Chinese factions had worked together with foreign factions while Great Qin had conquered them.

With the Chinese side continuously falling back, many factions hurriedly relocated their Cities. As such, Great Qin's gains in the eastern side of China were quite little. However, they were still able to conquer 3,100 regions.

In total, they had obtained 6,500 Great Cities, 1,500 Cities, 3.5 billion people, and 500 million Stage 1 soldiers.

Now, Great Qin's overall population was 8.5 billion people, and it had 900 million soldiers. Of these soldiers, 820 million were Stage 1 soldiers, ten million were Stage 2 soldiers, 1.8 million were Stage 3 soldiers, and 60,000 were Stage 4 soldiers.

They now controlled 6,820 regions, one Marquisate City, three Barony Cities, six Capital Cities, 15,070 Great Cities, and 4,421 Cities.

Great Qin's strength once again massively rose, and now they once again had to properly incorporate these people and regions. They would not be able to attack other factions for a while, as they had brought in simply too many people this time – almost one-third of what Great Qin already had. If they staged a rebellion, it would be quite difficult to deal with.

There was also the issue of the regions. Great Qin already had 1,000 regions to clear, and now there were another 3,000 regions to clear out. This was no simple matter, and with the construction of the Great Wall, it would take at least a year to complete all of these things.

In order to stabilize the people, Zhao Fu first gave out rewards; all those who had contributed were rewarded, regardless of if they were players or indigenous residents.

The six countries had performed quite well this time, and this was especially so for the Japanese people. They fought incredibly vigorously while also shouting Great Qin's praises, which Zhao Fu found quite strange.

The people from the six countries now belonged to Great Qin, and Zhao Fu made them ordinary residents, making them feel quite relieved.

In order to celebrate this victory, Great Qin set up a massive banquet to reward those who had participated. In contrast, the factions at the central area of China had incredibly dark looks on their faces, looking at the people around them in suspicion. After what had happened with Japan, everyone found it hard to trust each other.

If someone did the same thing as Japan and Great Qin attacked, they would completely fall apart. Great Qin now occupied the northern side while also having control of the eastern side. Almost half of the Midland Continent now belonged to Great Qin, making it much harder to resist them.

As such, these factions could only discuss how to prevent something like this from happening again, and the strategists once again started to think of plans.

As for the leaders of the Chinese invasion from before, Great Qin had already executed those people, and their families' factions had all been destroyed. Their family members could only struggle to even live.

There were now 20 or so women kneeling in front of Zhao Fu who came from those families. Two of them were quite exceptional: one of them was Bak Seolhyun, the person who had led the South Korean army and said that Chinese people had stolen Korean culture.

Now she, her mother, and her little sister were like pitiful little beasts, kneeling on the ground. There was another person who seemed much more dignified and composed. This woman was a Japanese woman and was dressed in a red kimono. Her long black hair fell to her shoulders, and she held a saber as she knelt on the ground.

She was Oda Kamiya's older sister, Oda Mina. As the descendant of Oda Nobunaga, Oda Kamiya had been quite famous during the earlier times. However, he had been surpassed by others, such as Masanori Hano and the last Emperor.

As the person who had led Japan to invade China, Zhao Fu showed no mercy to him. Oda Kamiya did not intend to submit to Great Qin either; after Great Qin broke into his city, Oda Kamiya committed seppuku using the demon blade Muramasa.

The saber that Oda Mina now held was Muramasa. Even though it was in its sheath, it gave off a sense of evilness.

Zhao Fu grabbed with his hand, and the Muramasa flew into his hand. Zhao Fu drew the saber, and a massive wave of evil spread out. The blade gave off an incredibly cold light, making people's hairs stand on end. The saber was now a Saint Armament; it had most likely killed many people.

Zhao Fu was not very interested in this saber. However, Zhao Sha seemed to be very interested in it, so Zhao Fu gave it to him as a reward.

Zhao Sha had immense potential, and Zhao Fu wanted to take all opportunities to nurture him. Before, when Zhao Sha had obtained the Assassin Legacy, he had used a dagger because it was more suited to assassinations. Now that he had Muramasa, he could fight directly against others.

After taking care of everything, Zhao Fu went over to Oda Mina. He was somewhat interested in her, and he wrapped his arms around her, causing her face to go red. She knew what was about to happen, but for the Oda family, she had to properly serve this man.

Oda Mina lightly hugged Zhao Fu back, gently resting her head against his chest. Zhao Fu hugged her and took some other women into the Refining Pavilion.

After a wave of indescribable sounds, Oda Mina helped Zhao Fu put on his clothes again, and Zhao Fu walked out, marvelling at how good the Japanese women had been.

At the same time, Zhao Fu took the four Nation Armaments and prepared to refine three of them into Great Qin's Nation Armaments. As for Japan's Nation Armament, Zhao Fu had asked the golden dragon about them, and the golden dragon had said that the three items were quite special. They were like normal weapons but were also like Nation Armaments and Clan Armaments.

If Zhao Fu refined it like a normal Nation Armament, he would not be able to utilize them to their full potential and would ruin their value.

The golden suggested Zhao Fu to turn the three items into true killing weapons. They would not be used by Zhao Fu but by the Primogenitor Statue. After all, the three items had similar attributes to the Primogenitor Statue.

The method was to put the three items into the Primogenitor Statue and fuse them together, being baptised by Great Qin's bloodline together.

Chapter 948: Great British Empire

The results of this fusion between the Primogenitor Statue and Japan's Nation Armament would be an incredibly powerful killing machine, one that would shake the heavens and earth and cause even godly spirits to tremble.

However, if Zhao Fu wanted to unleash its full effects, he would have to completely refine the Primogenitor Statue. Since the three items had fused with the Primogenitor Statue, they would only be reborn together with the Primogenitor Statue and could only be used together with the statue.

Boom!!

A massive explosion sounded out as a massive cauldron formed in the air. Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Philippines' Nation Armaments flew into it and were refined by a formless flame. Their previous auras were wiped away, while Great Qin's Fate flowed into them, causing them to go through changes.

Indonesia's Nation Armament was a circular shield made of bronze, and there were pictures of ancient Indonesia fighting engraved on it. Great Qin's Fate caused the aura of killing and conquering to become even more intense.

Malaysia's Nation Armament was a small boat that looked quite ordinary, but it gave off a very powerful aura. Some black dragon inscriptions appeared on the boat, making its aura more noble.

Finally, the Philippines' Nation Armament was a spear. After Great Qin's Fate fused into it, the spear became jet-black and gave off a heavy and mysterious aura.

After refining these three Nation Armaments, Zhao Fu placed them next to the Great Qin City's City Heart. Now, Great Qin had ten or so Nation Armaments. Zhao Fu went to the blood pool and fused Japan's three items into the Primogenitor Statue's chest, which happened quite smoothly.

After taking care of these matters, the only things left for Great Qin to do was clear out regions, construct the Great Wall, and assimilate the new people.

Two days later, another massive piece of news shook the world, and this was perhaps related to Zhao Fu – the Spirit Light race's real world had been devoured in advance, and all Spirit Light people had been brought into the Heaven Awaken World.

Because the human world was about to be destroyed soon, Zhao Fu felt quite curious about this, so he obtained some information to understand more about this matter.

Originally, the Spirit Light race had not received any system announcements about their world being destroyed, but after that massive battle, they suddenly received notice that there were only seven days until their real world was going to be devoured. It seemed that the effects of that battle had been quite great.

The Spirit Light world was the first to be completely assimilated into the Heaven Awaken World, and this was quite disadvantageous for them. Fortunately, unlike the human world, there was not a massive rift open between it and another world, so other worlds would not invade so easily.

After all, with one side risking a true death and the other side being able to revive, the side that died true deaths would be at a great disadvantage. As they fought on, their numbers would grow smaller and smaller, while the other side could continuously revive; at most, they would just become weaker after reviving.

It was a pity that the Dark Demon world was between the human world and the Spirit Light world; otherwise, Zhao Fu would have taken this opportunity to invade the Spirit Light world. This would have relied on the players.

The Spirit Light world was now in a completely defensive mode. They had set up a large number of defenses at the boundaries, because their world had already been destroyed. Once the Heavenly Domain Boundary disappeared, the previous world and other worlds would immediately invade. They would be doomed without any defenses.

As such, they felt incredibly hateful towards Great Qin's Legatee, who had caused the destruction of their world to happen earlier.

Moreover, all living creatures in the Spirit Light world had been sent into the Heaven Awaken World; this included even beast, bugs, and fish. However, the specifics were unknown.

Now, Great Qin continued to divide the various alliances. When Great Qin unified the northern side of the Midland Continent, many people had considered joining Great Qin. Now that it possessed nearly half of the Midland Continent, it had an even greater advantage.

Moreover, now that Great Qin was about to unify the Midland Continent, the other Continents no longer just gave some slight assistance. After Great Qin unified the Midland Continent, their Continents would be in danger, so they started to become even more united and even started to attack Great Qin a few times.

What Zhao Fu did not expect was that another Kingdom had appeared in the human world.

On June 14, a dragon roar sounded throughout the entire human world. The weather changed as the Heaven and Earth Fate roiled. The sky in the west was covered by a golden glow, filled with a holy King's aura, making people want to submit.

Even Zhao Fu, who was in China, could clearly feel this power. Golden snowflakes floated in the sky, painting a majestic and beautiful scene. Creating a Kingdom was incredibly important to the human world and could cause all sorts of abnormal signs.

At a certain place in the Western Continent, countless people knelt as golden light descended from the sky. A golden dragon gave off a massive aura as it circled in the sky, and on a Heaven Prayer Platform, a beautiful, confident woman stood wearing a silver knight's dress, holding a gold sword. The scene was incredibly grand and holy.

This person was Tina Pendragon, and the Kingdom that she had established was called the Great British Empire. It had 320 regions and was a Level 3 Barony.

Everyone in the world knew of Tina Pendragon's name, and she was called the most legendary woman in the world. No one could compare to her, and all women dulled in comparison to her.

First, she was of noble birth and the descendant of the legendary King Arthur. From the beginning, she had been respected by various western factions. Moreover, her confidence, sense of justice, and bravery made countless people infatuated with her.

Next, her power was one of the most powerful in the human world. As the head of the eight Legatees, she was only below the World Protector; it could be easily seen just how powerful she was.

Finally, her peerlessly beautiful face made it easy for any man or even woman to fall in love with her.

Compared to Great Qin, which was bloodthirsty, ruthless, and evil, Tina Pendragon was virtuous and treated people kindly. She ruled with benevolence and only conquered as a last resort. She walked on the path of kindness and holiness, while Great Qin walked on the path of tyranny.

Both paths had their advantages and disadvantages; the path of kindness definitely developed slower than the path of tyranny. However, those on the path of tyranny had many enemies, while those on the path of kindness had very few enemies and attracted many learned people to join them.

As such, most people who joined Tina Pendragon joined her voluntarily. She very rarely conquered through warfare, and those who submitted to her were very loyal. This was completely different to Great Qin, who was fighting every day; anyone who did not submit would be conquered.

That was the difference between the path of kindness and tyranny. With Zhao Fu's personality and Great Qin's Legacy, it was impossible for Zhao Fu to walk the path of kindness.

Chapter 949: Three Gold Coins

The Ying family's family leaders came to find Zhao Fu with warm smiles, asking him about joining Great Qin. Zhao Fu assured them not to worry; after they entered the Heaven Awaken World, there would be people to receive them.

After hearing this, the family leaders grinned in satisfaction and left, excitedly waiting for the final hour to come.

Zhao Fu did not have much to do, and he also waited for the end of the world. At that moment, Ying Xi came to find Zhao Fu, making Zhao Fu feel quite surprised. He had not seen her in a long time; ever since he had become the proxy family leader, he had barely seen her.

"Zhao Fu, is Wu Qingniang alright these days?" Ying Xi looked quite thin and pallid, and she was slightly frowning.

Hearing this, Zhao Fu could not help but think about Wu Qingniang and Wu Zetian lying weakly on the bed, and he smiled as he replied, "She's doing well!"

"Has Great Qin's licentious Legatee laid his hands on her?" Ying Xi continued to ask.

After all, how could any woman who entered Great Qin be doing well? There were countless women, because every time Great Qin's lascivious Legatee conquered a nation, he would take all of its beauties.

Zhao Fu was not sure how to answer this, because he had laid his hands on Wu Qingniang a long time ago, and he was 'Great Qin's licentious Legatee.'

Seeing that Zhao Fu was not saying anything, Ying Xi thought that Great Qin's Legatee really had forced himself onto Wu Qingniang. She felt quite angry and glared at Zhao Fu as she said, "Zhao Fu, how could you do this? Qingniang has always chosen you to be her man and formed a relationship with you; how could you give your own woman to Great Qin's Legatee?"

Zhao Fu did not know how to reply because he was Great Qin's Legatee. Could he tell Ying Xi that he was Great Qin's Legatee? It was the final day, but Zhao Fu still wanted to hide it until the real world was destroyed. All of them would understand after entering Great Qin.

"It's not like what you're thinking; I'm taking care of Qingniang and she really is doing quite well. You'll understand after you enter Great Qin." Zhao Fu could only say that for now.

After hearing this, Ying Xi's expression became better, and she lowered her head as she asked in a small voice, "What is the Great Qin Legatee like? Is he really that bloodthirsty and licentious?"

Zhao Fu felt quite startled before remembering how the Ying family's family leaders had talked about giving Ying Xi to Great Qin's Legatee to be his Concubine. She seemed quite reluctant, and seeing that she had helped him in the past, he said, "Don't worry, I'll do my best to ask the Legatee to drop the matter about you."

Ying Xi looked at Zhao Fu in surprise. This was something that she had been worried about all along; she did not want to be kept in Great Qin's Palace every day and be toyed with by Great Qin's evil Legatee. Even though she was part of the Ying family, Ying Xi did not want such a thing to happen to her.

However, Ying Xi could not help but think about the family leaders' words – she had to think of the Ying family and her parents first.

After all, it was not just her but the six women with the purest bloodlines being sent to be Great Qin's Legatee's Concubines. Only by establishing relations with Great Qin's Legatee would the Ying family have a firm position in Great Qin.

When she thought of this, Ying Xi's smile dimmed as she shook her head and said, "Thank you, but there's no need. I was just asking if Great Qin's Legatee was as terrifying as the rumors say. Is he really... like that to women?"

Zhao Fu did not quite understand, but there was no way he was going to talk badly about himself, so he shamelessly said, "His Majesty is actually a good person; those rumors are all false. He's kind and treats people well, especially Great Qin's officials and subjects. He's deeply loved by all of Great Qin's people, and he also has a good temper and isn't very arrogant. He always modestly discusses with his subordinates, and..."

After Zhao Fu rambled on for quite a while, Ying Xi looked at him with a doubtful gaze. From what Zhao Fu had said, Great Qin's Legatee was a man any woman would fall for.

After all, Great Qin's Legatee, who Zhao Fu described, was not only incredibly good-looking, but his bearings were extraordinary, and he was extremely kind. He was gentle to women, and there were countless women obsessed with him.

Zhao Fu had been incredibly shameless and said almost everything good that could possibly be said about a person, making it seem as if Great Qin's Legatee was the best man in the world.

Seeing that Zhao Fu was still going, Ying Xi stopped him and said, "Alright, you don't have to continue saying good things about him. In actuality, I'll be happy if he's even half as good as you are. I'm truly envious of Qingniang being able to find someone she likes and being able to be with him."

Even though Ying Xi cut Zhao Fu off and did not really believe his words, she felt much better and did not feel as melancholic.

Looking at Ying Xi, in the end, Zhao Fu could not help but say, "You don't have to force yourself; if you really don't want to, I can ask the Legatee to not take you in. You don't have to worry about the Ying family; the Legatee has never thought about getting rid of the Ying family. I can promise this on my life."

"Really?" Hearing that Zhao Fu was so willing to help her, Ying Xi felt quite moved. Tears danced in her eyes; after all, everyone had been forcing her to become Great Qin's Legatee's Concubine, and she had felt quite helpless.

Zhao Fu sincerely nodded. After all, he was Great Qin's Legatee, and this was within his control.

“Thank you so much, Zhao Fu. I never knew that you were so important to Great Qin’s Legatee to be able to persuade him as to such a thing. I’ve really underestimated you. I’m sorry for being so arrogant before. I’ve realized that the biggest mistake I’ve made is giving you to Qingniang,” Ying Xi said sincerely.

Zhao Fu lightly laughed as he said, “Let bygones be bygones; I’m only alive because of your protection back then. Otherwise, I would have been killed by the Li family already.”

Ying Xi laughed as she nodded, and after chatting for a bit longer, Ying Xi happily smiled as she left.

Following this, Zhao Fu turned on his computer for the last time. The internet was down, but he had received a few messages from a few days ago.

Their Class President had sent his address in the real world, telling them to go and find him if they weren’t doing too well; there was no one else as warm-hearted as him. The Class President Zheng Dong was in the southern area of the Midland Continent. Zhao Fu wondered how he would react when Zhao Fu unified all of the Midland Continent. He was unable to send any messages now, so he could only laugh to himself.

There was also Wang Yue, Zhao Fu’s deskmate in high school, who Zhao Fu had helped in the past. He had sent a message, saying that his luck had been pretty good and that he had obtained three gold coins. He wanted to give the money to Zhao Fu and asked what Zhao Fu’s address was.

If Zhao Fu told him that he lived in Great Qin’s Palace, he wondered how Wang Yue would feel. Of course, Zhao Fu did not care about three gold coins at all; with his status now, he did not even care about millions of gold coins. However, he appreciated Wang Yue’s personality.

Chapter 950: Three Gold Coins

NOTE: THIS CHAPTER IS OUT OF ORDER; THIS ONE IS CHAPTER 950, NOT 949.

The Ying family’s family leaders came to find Zhao Fu with warm smiles, asking him about joining Great Qin. Zhao Fu assured them not to worry; after they entered the Heaven Awaken World, there would be people to receive them.

He always modestly discusses with his subordinates, and..."

After Zhao Fu rambled on for quite a while, Ying Xi looked at him with a doubtful gaze. From what Zhao Fu had said, Great Qin's Legatee was a man any woman would fall for.

After all, Great Qin's Legatee, who Zhao Fu described, was not only incredibly good-looking, but his bearings were extraordinary, and he was extremely kind. He was gentle to women, and there were countless women obsessed with him.

Zhao Fu had been incredibly shameless and said almost everything good that could possibly be said about a person, making it seem as if Great Qin's Legatee was the best man in the world.

Seeing that Zhao Fu was still going, Ying Xi stopped him and said, "Alright, you don't have to continue saying good things about him. In actuality, I'll be happy if he's even half as good as you are. I'm truly envious of Qingniang being able to find someone she likes and being able to be with him."

Even though Ying Xi cut Zhao Fu off and did not really believe his words, she felt much better and did not feel as melancholic.

Looking at Ying Xi, in the end, Zhao Fu could not help but say, "You don't have to force yourself; if you really don't want to, I can ask the Legatee to not take you in. You don't have to worry about the Ying family; the Legatee has never thought about getting rid of the Ying family. I can promise this on my life."

"Really?" Hearing that Zhao Fu was so willing to help her, Ying Xi felt quite moved. Tears danced in her eyes; after all, everyone had been forcing her to become Great Qin's Legatee's Concubine, and she had felt quite helpless.

Zhao Fu sincerely nodded. After all, he was Great Qin's Legatee, and this was within his control.

"Thank you so much, Zhao Fu. I never knew that you were so important to Great Qin's Legatee to be able to persuade him as to such a thing. I've really underestimated you. I'm sorry for being so arrogant before. I've realized that the biggest mistake I've made is giving you to Qingniang," Ying Xi said sincerely.

Zhao Fu lightly laughed as he said, "Let bygones be bygones; I'm only alive because of your protection back then. Otherwise, I would have been killed by the Li family already."

Ying Xi laughed as she nodded, and after chatting for a bit longer, Ying Xi happily smiled as she left.

Following this, Zhao Fu turned on his computer for the last time. The internet was down, but he had received a few messages from a few days ago.

Their Class President had sent his address in the real world, telling them to go and find him if they weren't doing too well; there was no one else as warm-hearted as him. The Class President Zheng Dong was in the southern area of the Midland Continent. Zhao Fu wondered how he would react when Zhao Fu unified all of the Midland Continent. He was unable to send any messages now, so he could only laugh to himself.

There was also Wang Yue, Zhao Fu's deskmate in high school, who Zhao Fu had helped in the past. He had sent a message, saying that his luck had been pretty good and that he had obtained three gold coins. He wanted to give the money to Zhao Fu and asked what Zhao Fu's address was.

If Zhao Fu told him that he lived in Great Qin's Palace, he wondered how Wang Yue would feel. Of course, Zhao Fu did not care about three gold coins at all; with his status now, he did not even care about millions of gold coins. However, he appreciated Wang Yue's personality.
