

Chapter 77

The next few days...

Time seemed to pass by slowly these last few days. I was healed and felt much better. Strength wise, the doctor approved everything to resume as normal except for shifting. Inside, I still felt like a part of me was missing. I guess that was true though. I wrapped a robe around my body and walked outside to our private balcony. The cool air greeted me as the wind blew, caressing my skin and sending a shiver down my spine. Goosebumps traveled across my arm as I sat down on the little chair. I listened to the birds singing their morning songs as my eyes closed, leaning my head back against the brick wall. I heard the door open and close as Everest walked outside.

"Good morning, my love. Everything okay?" He asked softly, sleep still hanging in his voice.

"As well as it should be." I opened my eyes and looked up at him.

He smiled down at me. "Would you like to shower with me? Before they arrive?"

"When are we expecting them to arrive?" I let a yawn escape as I talked.

"They said that they should be here around eleven or somewhere around there." He offered his hand to help me up.

I took his hand and allowed him to lead me into the shower. He untied my robe, kissed me softly on the mouth, sliding the robe off of my shoulders. The robe hit the ground and pooled at my feet, stepping out of it and away from the robe as he pulled me into the already running shower.

"You had this going already?" I smiled at him.

"I was going to take one, regardless if you wanted to join me or not." He grinned and winked at me.

He lathered up some soap and began running his hands along my shoulders, rubbing gentle yet firm circles with his thumbs against my skin. His hands moved down along my back slowly, massaging them gently as he went down. His hands flattened against my bottom, gripping it in his hands.

An audible "Mmm." sound of approval was heard and a smile crossed my face. His hands traveled back up my back, to my shoulders and along my collar bone. His hands slipped down to my breasts as he pulled my body back against his own. He massaged them both softly and tenderly. I bit my bottom lip as my eyes closed. My head was resting against his chest as his fingers played with my hardening n*s. He dipped his face down into my neck, kissing and biting softly.

"I can smell your arousal." His voice was gruff sounding against my ear.

I pressed my ass back against him and felt how hard he was for me. "I see you're rock hard and ready." My voice was low and seductive sounding. "Please." I begged him.

"Please what?" He bit my mark, his hands sliding down further.

"F*k me." I breathed and I could feel him smile.

"Even through all of this water, I can feel how wet you are for me." He inserted a finger, causing my hips to roll against him, a moan escaping my mouth.

"I need you." I managed to get out between moans as he kissed my bare shoulder.

He turned me around and leaned down, his hands snaking around to lift me. Our lips crashed against one another as our tongues entangled with the others, exploring one another's mouth. My legs were wrapped tightly around his waist as he stepped out of the shower. Water dripped on the floor, leaving a wet trail behind as he made his way to our bed. He laid me down gently and moved on top of me. Using the strength of my legs, I flipped us, which brought me to be on top of him. He had a surprised look on his face and I grinned down at him.

"Let me love you." I told him when I felt him tense up, thinking he was about to flip me back to lie back on the bed.

He nodded his head with a sly grin as his hands traveled around, moving slowly up along my waist, his fingers sending electric pleasure waves through me. His hands made their way to my breasts, holding them in his hands. His thumbs moved over my hardened n*s as I leaned down to him. My lips found his kissing him quickly before moving away and down his chin. I nipped at his skin as I kissed his chest, moving downward.

My hand gripped his throbbing member gently, as my mouth lowered down on it. His hands went to my head, grabbing a fistful of hair and guiding my head up and down on his ck. He let out a growling moan as his hips pushed upward, pushing his pulsating ck deep into my throat, causing a gagging sound. He pulled me up to him as he sat up, kissing me, biting my bottom lip in the process. My hand reached between my legs, taking him in my hand, guiding him to my entrance. I slowly eased down on him, a small gasp passing out of my mouth. He growled as his hands moved to my hips, gripping them tightly. He slammed me down into him, our hips grinding against one another.

He moved, flipping us, leaning over the top of me. He leaned down, capturing one of my breasts in his mouth, sucking and softly biting my n*c as he pumped in and out of me. My claws extended and dug into his back as our movements with one another fell into sync. I moaned as he moved a hand in between our bodies, rubbing my bud, causing my body to move erratically under him. I felt my body begin to reach my climax.

He pumped into me harder as my legs were tightening around him. I let out a screaming moan as he dipped his head down to my ear. He kissed it softly as he whispered in a deepening sultry voice, "c*m for me, my love."

Between his voice and his mouth now closing around his mark on me, I came. His last thrust into me was hard as he made a grunting moan as he filled me up. "Fuck." He breathed as he looked down at me.

I gazed up at him and, before I knew it, his mouth was on mine. The kiss was soft, gentle, and long. He laid down next to me and brought me into his arms. I cuddled up to him, his arm wrapping around me, my head moving to lie against his chest. It was quiet and the only thing that could be heard was our breathing and the sound of his heartbeat. His free hand wrapped around me and moved up and down against my skin slowly. I closed my eyes and lay with him for a little while.

He moved and kissed the top of my head. "We should get cleaned up before they arrive."

"Mmm, okay." I smiled and lifted my head to look down at him. He was smiling up at me, his hand reaching up and pushing the hair away from my face.

We got out of bed to take our showers. We were dressed and out of the door in around an hour. We walked down and picked up a granola, a banana, and water. We were sitting at the table eating our small snack when one our guards walked in the room. He bowed his head until he was acknowledged by Everest.

"Go ahead." Everest finished up his water and looked over at the guard.

"They just crossed into the Kingdom. They should be here in a few minutes." He bowed his head again, exiting the room.

"I guess we should be there to greet them, yeah?" I looked over at Everest, who nodded.

We walked to the main entrance of the castle, Trevor meeting us there. I gave him a small hug and straightened his shirt some. "You look very nice."

"Thank you." He smiled.

"Don't be nervous." I told him and he took a deep breath.

"I am a mixture of nervousness and excited at seeing Bryan and Taylor." He grinned at us both.

"We are too bud." Everest placed a hand on his shoulder, gripping it softly.

We walked outside and took our places at the top of the steps. I could hear their vehicles roaring through the streets as they got closer. Trevor was fidgeting next to me with Everest on the other side with a cold expression on his face.

"I wonder if Bridget is traveling with them or staying home." Everest linked me.

I had hoped that she would stay home and just send Daniel and the kids, but something told me she wouldn't allow Bryan and Taylor to stay without a fight. Everest and myself were hoping that it wouldn't come to that. I had a feeling it would.

We watched the vehicle come to a stop as we descended the stairs. The doors of their vehicles opened and Bridget stepped out of the vehicle with an expressionless face. Her gaze met mine and hatred crossed her face. I glanced over at Everest, who raised a brow at me.

This was going to be a fun time. Absolutely thrilling.

"Trevor!" I heard the squealing sounds of his little brothers and they all ran to one another, hugging and loving on each other. I smiled as they made their way to us, hugging our legs. We returned the hugs as Bridget and Daniel approached us. Bridget greeted Everest warmly and turned to me and made a curtsy "My Queen, you look well. More well than others."

"Whatever do you mean?" I asked.

"My dear, please." Daniel warned her and she flashed a fake smile.

"Oh nothing just stating that some of our territory is still hurting." She commented.

"We are very well aware," I told her.

"Are you?" She questioned.

"Enough of this!" Everest growled at her, causing them to both shrink back and away from us. "Anything further I will put you into the cells!" He warned her.

"Of course, your majesty. I am very sorry." She bowed her head to him.

Trevor was glaring at his aunt. "Aunt Bridget, if you are going to be nasty, you can just leave."

She gasped. "I will do no such thing." She seemed shocked.

"Then for the love of everything just stop!" Trevor let out a growl.

The kids hid behind us and I sighed heavily. "We have the same rooms set up for you both." I looked at them "Except the boys, they have their own room on the same floor as Trevor."

I turned and walked them inside. Trevor followed behind us as I was holding onto Bryan and Taylors hands. I showed the kids to their room and they excitedly ran in. I had it all decked out with the latest toys and games.

"Is this all for us?" Taylor turned to look at me.

"It is." I smiled.

"Sweet!" Bryan did a happy dance before yelling at Trevor. "Come here Trevor, look!"

"I will leave you all to catch up. If you need me, let me know." I smiled and walked out of their room.

I was on my way to the conference room to discuss the kids' future when I heard Daniel and Bridget having a hushed argument. I stopped listening to them. I knew I shouldn't have, but she seemed to have an issue with everything that was going on.

