Chapter 884

Chapter 884 Like A Kindergarten

Kingsley, Jonathan, and Shaun apologized to Jesse,
“Sorry, Jesse. Does it hurt?”

Smiling, the little girl shook her head. She did not mind it in the slightest because she knew it was a gesture of affection.

“You guys have to stop doing that to Jesse!” Gavin exclaimed.

After walking up to Jesse, he stroked her cheeks dotingly and blew on them.

“Jesse, does it hurt?”

“It doesn’t hurt, Gavin!” Jesse grinned from ear to ear.

“Gavin, you know how to care for others now!”

Kingsley teased Gavin as he tousled the latter’s hair.

However, Gavin dodged it and pulled Jesse over to play with the others.

“Jesse, you’d better stay away from them. Otherwise, they’ll pinch your cheeks until they swell,” he exhorted his sister solemnly.

“Got it.” Jesse bobbed her head obediently.

That sight amused Kingsley and the rest.

Chuckling, Arissa turned to look in the children's direction. "Sweethearts, you can only play for a while more. It's bath time soon!"

Zachary, who was sitting in the small car, raised his head and answered, "Got it, Mommy!"

He was driving Tim around the living room to teach him how to play with the small car.

The other children then continued to play.

Arissa grinned as she watched her children playing around. Hmm... Why do I feel like I'm in kindergarten now?

"Boss, your house is becoming more and more like a kindergarten now," Kingsley commented as he munched some snacks.

In fact, Shaun and Jonathan felt the same, too.

"Those who know nothing will definitely feel that once they step into the house." Jonathan chuckled.

Benjamin swept his gaze across the playing children before glancing at the trio.

"It's lively to have a lot of kids around."

The three men smiled in response.

"You sure are prolific, Boss!"

It was evident that Kingsley was envious.

Jonathan, on the other hand, found it amusing. "Boss, your six children may be more popular than you if you bring them out."

At that, Benjamin quirked his thin lip, feeling proud as the children's father.

"If it weren't for the fact that we're not allowed to make their existence public, they would have long been trending online," Shaun concurred, nodding.

Arissa shared their sentiments. Even taking four children out will place me in the spotlight, not to mention six children.

Shortly after, Edwin emerged from the kitchen, holding a tray with beef jerky and a bottle of wine.

He poured each of them a glass of wine.

"Come on. Let's have a drink!"

Benjamin gently knocked his wine glass on the coffee table, signaling the others to have a drink.

Kingsley and the rest picked up their glasses and clinked them together.

Arissa, however, could only have a glass of plain water as a courtesy.

"Mrs. Graham, your medicine is ready. Should I bring it over here for you, or do you wish to have it in the dining room?" Edwin asked.

"I'll have it in the dining room." Arissa flashed him a smile.

Benjamin took the glass from her hand and urged, "Hurry up and take your medicine."

Nonplussed, she could only leave with Edwin.

In the dining room, Edwin put the medicine on the table. "Here you go, Mrs. Graham."

"Thank you." Arissa sat down and took her medicine. Meanwhile, Jonathan glanced at the duo before shifting his gaze to Benjamin and asking, "Why does Arissa need to take medicine?"

"It's to condition her body," Benjamin replied.

"Arissa sustained some sequelae due to inadequate recovery after childbirth, so she has to condition her body for a period of time," Shaun chimed in to offer an explanation to Jonathan.

Hearing that, Jonathan nodded and took a sip of wine. This can also be regarded as one of Danna's misdeeds.

"Jonathan, are you ready for the case?" Benjamin suddenly asked.

"We already have all the evidence and only need to wait for the trial now." Jonathan nodded.

"Who's their lawyer? Make sure you don't give them any chance to find loopholes." Kingsley reminded him.

"It's someone I know, but that person is no match for me. They won't even get the upper hand." Jonathan was confident.

Shaun heaved a sigh. "Women are so scary when they get wicked. I wish we could close the case tomorrow."

Kingsley nodded in agreement. “That’s right. We should never offend women and schemers!”
Both Shaun and Jonathan chuckled upon hearing that.
