Chapter 889

Chapter 889 On Your Wedding Day

Jasper looked at Benjamin. “Is Mommy sleeping in again?”

“Yes!” Benjamin responded before bringing them down the stairs. Gavin’s eyes gleamed, and he shot a glance at his father.

“Daddy, did you drink a lot last night?”

Benjamin was stunned momentarily. “What makes you say that?” he inquired, staring at him. “You reek of alcohol!” Gavin grumbled in disdain.

At that, the man lowered his head to take a sniff of himself. I don’t smell anything. “I showered just now!” Benjamin protested.

Gavin’s eyes lit up instantly. “Are you saying that you didn’t shower last night?”

Benjamin fell silent. I fell asleep last night, so how could I have showered? Besides, I was busy this morning...

Upon meeting his son’s sparkling eyes, he pinched his cheek. “Yes! I fell asleep last night!” Gavin sighed and said, “Doesn’t that mean Mommy had to endure the smell throughout the night? No wonder she's sleeping in!"

Nodding, Oliver concurred, "Mommy must've had a bad night's sleep because of that!" The boy even shot a look of disapproval to Benjamin and added, "Mr. Graham, you must shower before going to bed from now on. Otherwise, you'll stink!"

Jesse pinched her nose and chimed in, "That's right! You'll stink!" Having been disdained by the kids, Benjamin hurriedly promised, "From now on, I'll shower before going to bed."

He quickly caved in because he knew he had too much to drink the night before. Usually, when he went out for drinks, the first thing he would do upon returning home was to take a shower.

It was simply because he could not stand the stench. However, he drank at home the previous night, not to mention with Kingsley and the rest. That was why his germaphobia was not triggered.

Benjamin and the six children walked down the stairs. It was a heartwarming scene to behold. Darius, who was reading the newspaper on the couch in the living room, beamed lovingly when he saw them walking down the stairs. With his eyes crinkling, he beckoned to the children.

“You guys are up! Come over and let me hug you!”

The kids ran to him at once. “Good morning, Grandpa!” “Good morning!” Darius hugged them and pecked them on their cheeks dotingly.

In a caring tone, he asked, “Did you guys sleep well last night?”

“Yes!” The kids nodded. Right then, Benjamin approached Darius and greeted, “Dad!”

“Hey!” The latter glanced at him and looked upstairs.

“Is Issa not up yet?”

“She’s still sleeping,” Benjamin answered flatly. Darius froze momentarily before his face broke into a grin.

“Let her enjoy her sleep.”

“Sweethearts, let’s have breakfast!” The old man then stood up and took the school bags off the children’s backs. Jesse held

Darius’ hand and asked cutely, “Were you waiting for us to have breakfast together, Grandpa?”

“I was!” Darius lowered his head and smiled at her.

Benjamin followed them and instructed Edwin not to let anyone wake Arissa up from her sleep.

“Yes, Mr. Graham!” Edwin responded smilingly. Zachary frowned as he kept feeling that something was amiss. “Why is Mommy always sleeping in?”

“Eat your breakfast!” Benjamin served him some food to distract him.

After that, he turned toward Edwin and asked, “Are Kingsley and the rest awake yet?”

“No, but Ethen and Jack left early in the morning,” Edwin replied.

Benjamin nodded and ordered, “When they wake up, prepare food for them.”

“Yes!” Edwin went to the side to wait on the kids.

Darius sized Benjamin up. Noticing that the latter had a good complexion, he asked smilingly, “You aren’t suffering from a hangover, are you?”

“No.” Benjamin swept a glance at his father.

“Although you’re young, you still have to watch out,” Darius exhorted.

Hearing that, the children looked at Benjamin and Darius puzzledly. What are Daddy and Grandpa talking about?

“Okay. Let’s dig in!” Benjamin responded and started eating his meal calmly.

All of a sudden, the decoration of the master bedroom recalled to him, so he paused and tilted his head to look at Darius.

“The room is nicely decorated!” he remarked.

Overjoyed, Darius beamed and exclaimed, “It’s going to be a lot better on your wedding day!”

Edwin was filled with anticipation as well. Mr. Graham is finally married.
