THE NIGHT WE MET.

the little things?
the little moments?
they aren't little.

DAVINA ROYCE GREW up with fairytales and Disney, with the knights in shining armors and damsels in distress. She liked the story books, liked the thought of someone saving the world. That's why she loved the Avengers. A league of superheros dedicated to saving the world; together. It even motivated her to move into an apartment only about across the street from the Avengers tower with her best friend, Asher Brinley. It had always been her dream to meet one of them, but in all her years of living there, she had only seen them walking in and out of the building very briefly. And the joy of seeing the bright lights inside the place during a party.

Brinley thought she was crazy, wishing to meet one of them. That it could never happen. But one night, a er a particularly long shi at the flower shop she worked at (yes, it could be challenging work especially near Valentine's Day), Davina thought she would stop by the bar close to her apartment. It seemed that night everything changed, for in the bar was an outstanding looking superhero she had seen on her TV and dreamed of sometimes. The subject of those dreams not needing to be known, though. Wanda Maximo .

She didn't think anything, thought that seeing her once and having the briefest of conversations wouldn't lead her anywhere. Because while she had dreamed of meeting an Avenger, she never thought she would become friends with one of them. And then maybe something else.
