

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 34

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 34-As soon as Audrey stepped off the plane, she called Hugo. "How's Aunt Anne?" Hugo didn't dare to reveal the truth. He replied hesitantly, "She's... still in surgery." After hanging up, Audrey was too anxious to wait in line. She hastily hailed a cab outside the airport.

The driver softened upon noticing Audrey's red-rimmed eyes and her request to send her to the hospital.

He offered words of comfort, "Is a family member in the hospital? Don't worry.

We'll get there quickly. The roads are clear at this hour." "Yes," Audrey responded. Her grip on the phone turned her knuckles white.

Hugo waited for her with an umbrella at the entrance to the hospital. As he paced back and forth, he rehearsed how to break the news of Anne's passing.

No matter how gently he put it, it wouldn't ease Audrey's pain.

Before Hugo could find the right words, Audrey's cab pulled up.

When she emerged, Hugo hurried down the steps. He held the umbrella over her head.

"The surgery isn't over yet?" Audrey asked, panicked. She slammed the car door and rushed towards the hospital. "Which floor is the operating room on?" "Audrey!" Hugo's steps faltered as he reached out to grasp her arm.

She turned, her eyes brimming with dread. Her body was tense like a drawn bow. "Which floor?" she asked again. Her voice broke.

Hugo swallowed hard. He gripped the umbrella handle tighter before speaking, "Audrey, the doctors did everything they could... They couldn't save her. Anne passed away before you landed." Audrey's mind went blank.

paid her The sound of rain on the umbrella was the only thing she could hear.

Her legs weakened as if all her strength had been drained from her body. Tears filled her eyes, but she didn't dare to blink.

“Which floor is Aunt Anne on?” “She’s been moved to the morgue.” Audrey turned and stumbled into the hospital, nearly missing a step.

“Audrey!” Hugo reacted quickly, steadying her.

He led her inside the building. He explained as they walked slowly.

‘Anne stayed in Sheysea to meet Nathan. She went to Emerald Garden, where he was dining today. On the way there, a truck swerved to avoid a little girl chasing a balloon and collided with an oncoming car. The car then lost control and mounted the sidewalk.

That’s how the accident happened.” Audrey couldn’t even begin to visualize the scene.

She numbly followed Hugo into the elevator. When they reached the morgue, she stopped at the door. Tears streamed down her face as she clutched her clothes tightly.

“Okay,” Hugo answered, opening the door for her.

In the cold stillness of the morgue, Anne lay under a white cloth.

Audrey’s legs felt like they were filled with lead, but she forced herself to move closer.

Her throat rolled with emotion. She gently grasped Anne’s cold hand and pulled back the white cloth.

Anne’s pale face appeared before her.

“Aunt Aunt Anne!”

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 35-Audrey sobbed hysterically. Her throat was so sore that she could barely utter a word.

“Aunt Anne...” Tears streamed down her face. She didn’t hold back any longer. She broke down and lost control. She hugged Anne and cried loudly, “You promised to make me chicken lasagna and egg salad!” She didn’t want Nathan! She really didn’t want him! All she wanted was for Aunt Anne to be alright Hugo stood outside the morgue. His eyes reddened as he listened to Audrey crying uncontrollably.

They had grown up together. He hardly ever saw her cry.

Even when she woke up in the hospital and found out that Nathan had lost his memory and fallen in love with someone else, she wiped away her tears and said she would bring his memory back. She had never broken down like this before.

Hugo thought Audrey was cold and unfeeling, just like others said. She always seemed calm, no matter what.

He waited outside the morgue for almost two hours. When the sounds of crying stopped, he walked to the door and gently pushed it open.

Inside, Audrey sat slumped next to the table where Anne lay. Her hair was messy and her eyes were red and swollen.

She leaned her face close to Anne's cold and lifeless hand. She looked numb and dazed as if she had lost all feeling.

Hugo was about to enter the morgue when he heard Amelia's voice coming from the direction of the elevator.

"Be nice when you see Audrey. Aunt Anne was her foster mother. You shouldn't have pushed her no matter what..." Amelia dragged Nathan out of the elevator, even though his arm was in a cast.

Nathan was getting impatient. He shook his right arm hanging in front of his chest.

"My arm wouldn't be broken if I hadn't tried to save her. I had to push Anne! She was pulling at me.

"Nathan!" Amelia stopped and glared at him. "Anne was hit by a car and died!" Nathan's lips pressed together tightly. In the past, he would have retorted sarcastically, sneering that he hadn't caused the car to crash onto the sidewalk.

Maybe it was the guilt of drugging Audrey that night gnawing at him. Perhaps it was knowing that Audrey might have taken her own life if she hadn't met him.

He now understood why she clung to him so desperately for the last two years.

It wasn't as sordid as he had thought.

He didn't argue with Amelia.

"Alright, alright..." Nathan softened his voice when he saw her stern expression.

He pinched her cheek. "I get it. Don't be mad..." "Stop it!"

"She wanted to be alone." Hugo closed the door gently. He looked at Nathan, but hesitated to speak. "I've never seen Audrey so upset before." Nathan stopped in his tracks and frowned deeply.

"Nathan, you should go back to your room!" Hugo said in a low voice, "If Audrey finds out you pushed Aunt Anne, I'm afraid "You're being ridiculous, Hugo!" Nathan's face was filled with anger that he couldn't hide.

Suddenly, the morgue door burst open.

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 36-Hugo and Amelia turned around.

"Audrey!" "AIL Audrey!" In the dimly lit corridor, Audrey's face was pale. Her bloodshot eyes fixed on Nathan.

"Did you push Aunt Anne?" Audrey's voice was hoarse and chillingly cold.

"Audrey! It wasn't intentional. Anne kept trying to show him a photo and pulled at him, so Nathan pushed her away. They were on the sidewalk. Nobody could have predicted that a car would crash into the sidewalk!" Amelia quickly explained.

She gripped Audrey's arm and continued, "Nathan saw the car coming and tried to pull Anne out of the way. He couldn't save her and ended up breaking his own arm. He didn't mean to ..." Audrey wasn't listening to Amelia's explanation. She was only thinking about her earlier words, “But if you hadn’t pushed her, the car wouldn’t have hit Anne.” Flames of grief and anger almost burnt her to ashes. Tears streamed down her face as she felt a wrenching pain through her body.

She shook off Amelia’s hands and rushed at Nathan. She slapped him.

The slap used all of Audrey’s strength. Nathan’s head snapped to the side by the force of it. His ears were ringing. He was completely dumbfounded.

“Nathan Franklin! Give me back Aunt Anne!” Audrey screamed as she pushed and hit Nathan repeatedly. She cried hysterically.

After using all her strength for the slap, her hits were weak and hardly caused Nathan any pain.

Audrey broke down and repeated her plea to bring Anne back. She was in so much pain that she thought she was being burned alive.

Anne wouldn’t have stayed in Sheysea City if it hadn’t been for her. Anne wouldn’t have gone to see Nathan, and the accident would never have happened.

Audrey had never regretted falling in love with Nathan so much. If she hadn’t, none of this would have happened.

Hugo wanted to stop her, but Amelia held him back. “Let Audrey vent her anger.

It might be good for her!” Nathan took a few steps back and let Audrey hit him. He felt his cheeks burning.

His temper was on the verge of flaring up.

Realizing Audrey was almost out of strength and swaying, Amelia quickly stepped in. She grabbed Audrey, who could cry no more. “Audrey, stop hitting him...” Tears streamed down Audrey’s face as she got really mad. She shook off Amelia’s grip.

Amelia was wearing high heels. The force of Audrey shaking her off twisted her ankle. Hugo held her to stop her from falling.

At the same time, Audrey bumped into the wall. Her hair was a mess. She screamed, "Get out! All of you! Get out!"

ca Amelia endured the pain and tried to stop Nathan. "Don't treat Audrey like this!

Have you forgotten your promise?" "Nathan, let go of her!" Hugo reached out to shield Audrey.

But before he could reach her, a big hand grabbed Audrey. The hand pushed Nathan away, leaving him looking bewildered.

He gazed at the girl leaning on him. She could hardly stand up.

He said, "Audrey, you're Harper's sister. Now that Anne has passed away, you need to stay strong."

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 37-"Get out! Just go!" Audrey cried out.

Her whole body was trembling. Her eyes were bloodshot, like a demon from hell.

She glared at Nathan and waved her arms weakly. "Go away!" Ryan looked at Nathan. "Do you need Mr. Franklin to ask you to leave?" Nathan glanced at Ryan, whose face was cold and stern. Seeing the coldness in Ryan's eyes, quickly took Amelia's hand and walked away. Before entering the elevator, he couldn't help but look back at Audrey.

"It's been a tough day for you. Go home and rest," Ryan said to Hugo.

Ryan understood the situation. Hugo had taken care of everything when Anne had the accident.

Hugo didn't want to leave when he saw Audrey collapse into Ryan's arms.

Julian gestured to Hugo to leave. "Mr. Stewart... "Please do your best to comfort Audrey," he said. After all, Ryan and Audrey were relatives. Audrey would probably listen to Ryan.

Hugo walked to the elevator, then turned back to see Ryan gently stroking Audrey's head. He whispered something to her. Audrey clutched his wool coat tightly and buried her face in his arms, crying uncontrollably.

"Call me if anything happens," Hugo told Julian.

"Okay." Julian kept the elevator door open, waiting for Hugo to enter.

Julian watched as the elevator doors closed. He stood still, waiting in the elevator lobby.

The funeral home staff arrived. Although Audrey was exhausted and overwhelmed, she gathered her strength to clean Anne's face and bod and changed her clothes.

Audrey followed them to carry out the necessary preparations. She cried as she filled out the paperwork for the transfer of the body.

When it was done, she sat on a bench under a streetlight. She held the hospital bill and death. certificate in her hands and sobbed hysterically.

Ryan stood next to Audrey. He was holding an umbrella, shielding her from the drizzling rain mingling with the dim yellow light.

After a while, Ryan crouched down. He gently stroked her head and held her in his arms.

"I was wrong, I really was..." Audrey sobbed and muttered, "I shouldn't have gone back to the Franklin family with Nathan. I shouldn't have been with him. I was wrong, I really was..." "Julian," Ryan called out.

Julian ran over to them, and Ryan handed him the umbrella. Ryan then carried Audrey into the car.

By the time they got back to the villa, it was daytime, Even though Audrey was exhausted and asleep, her tears never stopped. After putting her on the bed, Ryan noticed his shoulder was completely wet He sat by the bed, watching Audrey as she mumbled in her sleep. He raised bis hand to brush away the hair sticking to her face.

He eventually stood up and closed the curtains. Then, he turned off the bedside lamp and walked out of the bedroom.

“The driver was a novice. He just got his license not long ago. It was an unexpected accident.” Julian said in a low voice, “There was no foul play.”

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 38-Ryan couldn't sleep all night. He had a tired look on his handsome face, and his eyes were red and bloodshot.

“Is Ms. Audrey alright?” Julian had worked with Ryan for many years. He knew everything that Ryan knew about Audrey. This was the first time he had seen her so emotionally broken.

Ryan didn't answer. He just handed the tablet back to Julian. “You've worked hard. Eat something and get some rest.” After calling Diego to explain Audrey's situation, Ryan carried his clothes into the guest have a shower.

bathroom to When Audrey opened her swollen eyes, everything seemed blurry. She grasped her head, feeling like it was about to explode.

Everything felt like a dream. A dream where ... Aunt Anne was gone.

When she realized she was in the master bedroom of Ryan's villa in Sheysea City, she finally remembered. Aunt Anne really was gone.

She blinked softly, and tears streamed from her swollen eyes. She quickly wiped them away with her hand and got up. She checked under the bed for her shoes.

Ryan was right. Harper was too young. If she couldn't be strong during this difficult time, Harper would be terrified. She was Harper's older sister. She had to take care of Anne's funeral arrangements and plan for Harper's future.

After searching for a long time, she couldn't find her shoes.

“You're awake.” Ryan had dozed off on the sofa, but woke up to the sounds of Audrey moving around the room. He walked to the bedroom door and handed Audrey the slippers Jess had brought up before bed.

Audrey clutched the bedsheet tightly with both hands. She had mixed feelings about the situation.

She had told Ryan that she didn't want them to have any further contact in the future. As Ryan was an adopted son of the Lambert family, she was afraid people would notice and learn about her birth mother's past.

Gossip had the power to drive a person insane. She didn't want her birth mother to go through that again.

But if Ryan hadn't shown up at her most helpless and distraught moment, she might have considered a tragic end with Nathan when she learned that he had pushed Anne.

"I'm sorry." Audrey sobbed as she apologized to Ryan. She closed her eyes. Her tears fell like broken strings. "I'm causing you trouble again." "Audrey, you're a relative from my original family. It's only natural for me to step in, and it won't affect the Lambert family." 2/2 Ryan crouched down and helped Audrey put on her shoes. He then looked up at her. "You don't need to avoid me." But they had slept together... It was her fault. She had persuaded him to sleep with her when she was drugged.

"I got it. If I encounter something beyond my ability, I'll ask for your help."

Harper was worried that Anne hadn't replied to her messages or answered any of her calls.

After calming herself down, Audrey called Harper. The phone connected quickly.

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 40-"Harper.

The sound of tapping came from the other end of the call.

Harper couldn't speak so they primarily communicated through messages.

When they were on a call, Harper responded by tapping on the microphone.

"Aunt Anne... and I will be back tonight." Harper was alone. Audrey wasn't ready to tell her about Anne's passing.

"Tap, tap.

Audrey couldn't hold back her tears any longer. She told Harper, "I have some things to take care of. I'll hang up now." "Tap, tap." After hanging up, Audrey forced herself to eat something.

At the dining table, Julian told Audrey about the surveillance footage. Nathan had pushed Anne, but when he saw a car speeding towards the sidewalk, he had tried to pull her back. He broke his arm trying to save her.

Julian initially hadn't wanted Audrey to watch the video, but she insisted.

In the video, Anne had a photo in her hand, and was clearly trying to get close to Nathan. The video had no audio, so Audrey couldn't hear Anne's words. From her expressions, Audrey understood that she was pleading with Nathan to look at the photo.

With teary eyes, Audrey didn't watch the video to the end. She looked away when the car drove onto the sidewalk, and Nathan reached out to pull Anne away.

She paused the video on the tablet and closed her eyes. She covered her face and couldn't hold back her tears any longer.

Ryan took the tablet away and put a cup of hot milk on the table beside Audrey.

He then turned to give it to Julian. "Get Louis Farrel from the legal department of our Sheysea branch to handle this matter. Anne's daughter is still a minor. Try to get more compensation.

"Okay!" Julian replied. "I've already booked the flight tickets. We leave at 10:30 am and arrive in Jorstton at 12:25 pm. From there, it's about a 90-minute drive to Eastville." Hearing Julian's words, Audrey pressed a tissue against her swollen eyes. She said with a nasal voice, "I'll go back to Eastville on my own." Noticing Ryan watching her, she spoke slowly, "Aunt Anne has no relatives other than me and 2/2 Harper. She was trafficked to Sayeno Town because she was tricked by a friend.

So, she didn't have many friends over the years. It'll just be me and Harper at her funeral.

"As for the car accident compensation, I appreciate your help. If we can get more, it will help Harper's future." Audrey knew Ryan was very busy. A lawyer could handle the car accident compensation, so there was no need for Ryan to accompany her to Eastville.

“Okay...” Ryan picked up his coffee cup. “Let Julian accompany you.” “Julian’s skills would be wasted if he comes with me. I can go alone. Just have the driver take me to the airport.” Audrey seemed to have found a way to interact with Ryan. By turning down his offer and asking smaller favors, she made it difficult for him to refuse.

“Alright.” Ryan nodded and put his coffee aside.

Ryan stood in front of the window of the second-floor study. He watched the car drive away. He told Julian, “Cancel it.” Julian, arranging the schedule on his tablet, looked up in surprise.

Ryan added dismissively... there’s something urgent at the Sheysea branch.”

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 39-Audrey found it laughable that Nathan had posted her photos merely to threaten Amelia into staying.

“Ugh, what a jerk!” Azure expressed her disdain.

“Seriously, these kinds of guys are the worst!” “In these situations, it’s usually the women who suffer!” Audrey’s colleagues didn’t probe into her identity further. Instead, they started ranting about such despicable men.

Audrey looked up at the TV again.

In the program, Donna spewed harsh words. The host, Ian, coughed twice to interrupt Donna. He said, “After our investigation, it appears that your mother has indeed passed away.

Before Ian could finish, Donna cut him off.

Now that she’s gone, he has no relatives left! Audrey is a girl and a shameless one at that! She’s definitely unreliable!

grandfather. It’s Anne and Audrey who are eyeing his grandfather’s wealth. They grandfather is old now, all alone...” “You’re speaking nonsense!” Anne, visibly upset, pointed at Donna. “Audrey hasn’t been in touch with her grandfather in years. She’s afraid of reopening his old wounds. You’re clearly after Audrey's grandfather's house, and you want him The discussion in the restaurant exploded, "They really are after the old man's wealth!" "You can tell from that old lady's words she's definitely eyeing it.

"It could also be a Lambert rivalry over their grandfather's estate.

Lambert, and had a phone. conversation with him. To protect Mr. Lambert's privacy, we've altered his voice. Let's listen." "I don't want to see either of those children." George Lambert's voice, even altered, sounded very cultured. "Thinking of them reminds me of the torture my daughter endured, and how she died on the operating table. My wife died of grief because of my daughter.

"The Yeomans are animals. They're living evidence of my daughter's suffering. I wish they would leave me in peace for the rest of my life. When I die, all my property will be donated to a foundation for rescuing trafficked women and children. That's my decision." The phone call ended there.

The audience seemed to understand.

In this case, although the children were not at fault, their existence was a testament to the crime. It was only natural that the elderly man didn't want to see the children born out of his daughter's tragic circumstances.

The family tried to leverage their blood relation to George to claim his property.

"What do you mean he's give the property to others?" Wayne yelled with The audience's perspectives were refreshed.
