

Chapter 75

"Erin! Where are you going too?" Derrick asks, standing up, eyes on his mate. Erin looks at him, chest heaving with ferocity.

"Where else? Didn't you just hear what she told us? What he told us?" She snaps angrily, her omega wanting to take over and snap Melissa's head in two.

"We should plan carefully before doing anything," Alex speaks up and Erin hisses loudly, running her hair back, her face red with anger.

"Why? It's been two days! Two freaking days since Ana disappeared. Should I continue to stay here and come up with a fucking plan till I can find my child?" She snaps angrily.

"Listen, I understand your frustration and pain but doing something irrationally will not solve anything." Alex continues, looking at Amelia for help. Amelia looks away, her bottom lip caught between her teeth.

Erin laughs, it's emotionless and void of anything. She looks back at Alex, her eyes turned hollow and empty.

"I am bringing my daughter back regardless of what you say. You either back down and let me go or you can come with." She stomps out of the room, her scent bitter and rusty.

Derrick stands up too, grabbing his phone and keys. Alex looks at him, eyebrows raised up. "Where are you going too?" He asks. Derrick doesn't stop, he only quirks his eyebrows at Alex.

"You must be out of your damn mind if you think I'll allow my mate to go there alone. You can stay back and manage the pack right now. I need to bring back my daughter." He says, looking at Amelia for a bit before storming out of the office.

Alex watched with stormy eyes then turn to look at Amelia. "Do you also support this?" This irrational act?" He asks irritably.

Amelia stands up, arms crossed against her chest. "The girl just tried to poison that guard. She confessed Beta Noah gave her the substance. The guard just told us there is a cottage outskirts the blue moon pack and he believes Ana is there. Tell me, Alex. Would you keep still knowing your child is in danger?" She asks, rolling her eyes when he goes silent.

Alex opens his mouth, hesitating slightly. "Still, it's only customary he—"

"Give it up, Alex. If you were given the opportunity to bring back your pup, you'll grab it in a second. Don't police others." She says then walks out of the office, leaving him to himself.

Erin and Derrick left with a few guards, driving towards the cottage the guard had described. Erin could only pray to the moon goddess that her child be found safe and sound.

~

"Alpha has asked to see you, your highness." The maid says head lowered as she knelt, not daring to look at Melissa.

Melissa stops brushing her hair, she looks at the maid through the mirror, eyebrows raised. "He did?" She asks, surprised. She and Liam haven't seen each other since yesterday morning when she left for Yinat's cottage. When she got back from the place and even faked going to see the doctor. She still didn't hear from him.

She smiled, holding her flat tummy affectionately. Well, it seems like the news of her pregnancy is just beginning to set into his ears.

She smiled from ear to ear, her cheeks glowing. She turns to the maid. "Tell me, what does the occasion look like? Does he look happy?" She asks curiously, tilting her head sideways as she waited for a reply.

The maid hesitated, not knowing what to say exactly. "Um.." she trails off unintelligently.

Melissa groans, rolling her eyes. "You're useless, get out of here and tell him I will be there soon." She says. The maid nods, attempting to stand up when she remembers.

"Alpha Liam has asked for you in the pack hall." She informs again then nods before walking out of the room.

Melissa frowns, wondering what Liam could want to say that he'd call her to the pack house. Does he want to give her something worthwhile? After all, she has his child. That has to be it. He is trying to butter her up after realizing she has his pup. Typical Liam. He did the same thing when she was pregnant the first time and now, he is doing the same thing.

She smiled, setting her hair properly, she applies a bit of blush to her cheeks, adjusted her dress properly, and stands up. She knew a day like this would come which is why she has been waiting. Patient and enduring everything. All for a day like this and it's here. Liam has finally come to his senses.

She smiles, trying to mind-link the beta to tell him the good news, except she's unable to. It's like he turned off his receiver which is weird. Noah never does that. It doesn't matter though, not now when Liam is going to gift her something for bringing his heir into the world.

Melissa steps out of the room, looking back and forth. She doesn't see a single maid or guard in sight. It's weird but she gets it. It's an important occasion that even Liam had to ask for her to come to the pack hall. Melissa gathers the length of her dress in her arms and walks gracefully towards the pack hall, her heart beat thumping harshly in her chest. She could feel it, deep inside her bones. Whatever it is, Liam wants to give her, is something she'll never forget. Her smile spreads widely on her face, she takes a final step to the door and stops, heaving deeply, she drops her dress, folding her hands gracefully like she used to do.

She lifts her hand, pushing the door open, and steps into the pack hall. "Your majesty." She voices out without looking up, her smile still wide, she doesn't take a step forward from the door, head lowered like a shy bride.

"Look up, Melissa, and come closer, will you?" Liam's voice had her smiling again. She nods and slowly looks up.

The first thing she notices is how full the pack hall is. It was crowded with the pack members and even Noah who she couldn't get through to stood there, watching her, his eyes filled with something she cousins discern.

The second thing she notices had her knees buckling up, her legs staggering backward slightly, mouth parted in shock.