

The secret 16

Chapter 16

Lucian frowned and an annoyed look flashed in his eyes.

Am I seeing things again? I wouldn't mind if it's just once or twice, but this has been going on for two days straight. I've been seeing his figure in different places. But the silhouette only passes in front of my eyes without leaving a trace.

He couldn't help but snort coldly before looking away.

I must be going crazy. That's why I'm thinking of her again.

Meanwhile, Cayden had been waiting off to the side for some time. Seeing that Lucian didn't move his feet, he asked carefully, "Mr. Goodbye, our client has been waiting for a long time. Aren't we going in?"

Lucian closed his eyes for a moment and collected himself before calmly answering, "Come on."

With that, he entered the building on his long legs.

Cayden followed close behind him.

When Roxanne and Colby reached the private room, all the employees of the research institute were already there.

Colby let her sit in the front seat, while he took the one next to her. After settling in, he introduced her to the crowd: "I'm sure many of you have met Dr. Jarvis today, but I'd still like to introduce her to all of you."

They all turned to look at Roxanne, who nodded in greeting.

"This is Roxanne Jarvis. You can address her as Dr. Jarvis. Perhaps she is not familiar with this name, but I am sure that everyone is familiar with the name that she used abroad. She is Professor Lambert's best student, Janet."

Everyone in the room was stunned to hear her name. It took a while for them to come to their senses, and their eyes were instantly filled with respect.

Janet was a name that everyone in the medical industry knew. In fact, it would be safe to say that her name was well known abroad.

After all, she possessed great medical skills from a very young age. It was rumored that she inherited eighty percent of Harvey's abilities. She was basically a role model for the younger generation.

During all this time, the employees thought that Janet was a serious-looking academic with glasses and short hair.

To her surprise, she was a beautiful woman.

After coming to her senses, some of her admirers quickly stood up.

Are you really Janet? I really admire you. I have read all the theses you wrote when you were abroad. You really are my idol!"

"It's an honor for us to be colleagues with you, Janet!"

The crowd started giving compliments, all looking extremely sincere.

After exchanging glances with everyone, Roxanne smiled. "Thanks for the compliments, everyone. Let's toast to a fruitful collaboration."

With that, she lifted the glass from her.

The others also raised theirs and downed their drinks in one fell swoop.

Roxanne acted extremely friendly without any arrogance, causing all the employees to admire her even more.
