

The Truth 431

Chapter 431 Second Commander

Ten days ago -- Right after Robin collapsed

Devastating chaos...

Panic struck everyone inside and outside the dome.

Everyone inside rushed towards Robin, and everyone outside ran wherever their feet took them.

No one understood what happened with Robin, they didn't know how to react or how to help him, they just ran to him out of pure instinct, but that wasn't even the most confusing thing at that moment...

They were met with something more strange, the army that had been besieging them for hours and seemed that they had sworn to die with them today, no longer exists!

The whole army that had millions of soldiers was nowhere to be found, they scattered in panic and never looked back!

But no one issued an order to pursue them as they would in any other case, it was not the time... the most important at that time was to know what happened to Robin, so everyone stood in their places looking in the direction of where he fell, hoping for the best...

Only after Caesar announced that Robin's heart was still beating, everyone breathed a sigh of relief and sat down, as if their legs that could carry mountains could no longer carry their bodies...

Only the life and flame forces remained standing next to the dome, supplying energy to it until all the holes were blocked, after which they sat down as well.

As long as the dome is filled with flame energy and life energy, it can theoretically function and protect itself until that energy is completely exhausted. Now, for the first time since its creation, the life forces or flame forces no longer have to supply energy, they can finally catch their breath and rest their bodies, which acted as a corridor for the energy between energy pearls and the white flame dome for long hours...

However, they sat next to the dome, to provide it with energy if those creatures came back again... The extreme exhaustion and shock of what was happening around them at least did not make them forget this task.

After being assured that Robin is still alive and taking him to his assigned tent to make the necessary examinations on him, all the army generals decide to meet to decide what will happen to start from this point.

And just as Robin had expected... No two agreed.

Victoria said that they should seize the opportunity of the humanoid white creatures' retreat and come down from the hill, then march in any direction and destroy any enemy fortification they found in their path... But everyone said that leaving their defenses and moving the army again to an unknown place might get them into deeper trouble as they didn't know anything about this world and didn't know if they even had fortresses!

Old Gu however demanded to stop everything and stay in their places until Robin woke up and he decides what to do. Backing his words with the fact that it was clear from Robin's shout earlier that he knew something they did not know, and that he at least harmed the leader who controls those creatures, otherwise they would not have retreated so quickly, so it is wise to wait and listen to what he had to say before making any move...

But the rest said that they don't know when Robin will wake up, rather they don't know if he will ever wake up again, how can everything be stopped and wait for something so unknown? and the leader of these creatures was indeed harmed by Robin, wouldn't it be better to turn into attacking rather than staying without purpose?

As for Elizabeth, she demanded that they remain in their places and continue with the war of attrition plan, provided that the opportunity of this peace be seized and the division of Divine Blacksmiths and Rune Masters complete their work in strengthening the defenses... But the rest objected that this would be equivalent to turning their precious resources into waste.

Those humanoid white creatures fled in panic and didn't even look back, would they even come back? what if it was established the defenses only to find out they wouldn't be attacked again? What is the use of a fortress if it is not attacked? Establishing the protection energy dome array and the metal wall isn't cheap!

As for Caesar, he demanded that the army be divided into five divisions and deployed in random directions to draw a map of the area in which they are located and expand their area of control, making a small kingdom for themselves... But everyone refused, saying that they were under pressure to this degree while they were with each other, so what would happen if they dispersed and got attacked again?

This meeting lasted for about two hours after Rubin's fall...

Other than Old Gu, Elizabeth, Victoria, and Caesar, there were still about ten other top-level sages who had a very high status in their respective empires... Each of them hold on to their views and refused to take a step back, some of them even threatened to take his troops and start implementing his own vision.

Not because they wanted to split up on purpose or wanted to rebel against the True Beginning Empire, or because they wanted to defy the oath they swore to Robin... but because they deeply believed with all their senses that their vision and reasons were the absolute truth, and they were certain that if they followed their plans they would bring victory to the Golden battalion and show their worth to Robin!

Everyone in this room has the ability to rule Empires, some of them have already ruled empires for hundreds or even thousands of years, if one of them thinks something is right, why should he compromise and accept someone else's opinion? If only talking could reach a conclusion that simple, Planet Jura wouldn't have been divided until Robin came along...

There was no glimmer of hope that the meeting would result in anything.

Until suddenly Caesar changed the subject completely and demanded the appointment of a temporary second commander-in-chief until his father woke up.

Everyone calmed down for the first time in the meeting, then they sighed and nodded in agreement with Caesar's words. If the discussion continues in this direction, the army will disintegrate and each of them will take his men and do what he sees fit... This is not something that any of them wants to see, and certainly not something Robin would tolerate when he wakes up!

One person has to make the decisions until Robin wakes up and that person has to be the only one responsible for the results, whether positive or negative.

Caesar was delighted when he saw this, but he soon gently furrowed his eyebrows again, ready for another long round of struggle until they chose the new leader.

But to his surprise, the selection of the new leader did not last more than ten minutes, and everyone, without exception, chose Jabba!

Even Jabba, who had been sitting quietly in one corner of the tent without saying a word from the beginning, opened his eyes at the last of them in obvious shock

Everyone justified their decision that Jabba had strength equivalent to a peak Sage Realm expert and thus had the qualifications, some said they choose him because he was His Excellency's only disciple and the one who understood him the most, and others gave different reasons...

But deep inside, everyone knew the real reason, which was that Jabba had no military power behind him.

Victoria, for example, has water forces, Old Gu has fire forces, and even Caesar has control over the entire Burton family's forces, so if one of them controls power, the position of that group will rise above the shoulders of others and disturb the balance...

The second problem is if one of them took the lead and made bad judgment then they can't remove him from authority anymore because he will have his men protect his newfound power... Third and last, they knew each other and no one wanted his old rival to be his superior.

Only Jabba, who has nothing but himself, can take this role.

And although Jabba also understood this quickly and that they chose him for his political weakness rather than his strength or status, he sighed in the end and agreed. There is nothing more important than helping the army pass through this critical point.

Just like that Jabba, who was just sitting on the sidelines awaiting orders, suddenly has command of an army powerful enough to conquer worlds...

Chapter 432 The Second Wave

Immediately after it was agreed that Jabba would temporarily take command of the army, everyone looked at him, waiting for his decisions, but their attempt to influence him could be seen in all of their eyes, each of them still wanting Jabba to choose his point of view!

Jaba sighed seeing this while thinking, 'What a troubled situation you left me in, master...'

He knew that even after being chosen as a leader, the journey would not be without obstacles, so the idea of choosing him mainly was because he had no power backing him, so in their heads, they were already ready to disobey him if their ideas on how to command the army conflicted greatly.

So after much thought... he started shooting order after order.

First: He ordered them to continue working on the metal wall and the energy protection dome array, and even gave the Rune Masters and the Divine Blacksmiths full support from all available members of the Golden Battalion, not only that, he ordered that the Rune Master need to work on the energy protection dome array so that it would cover the entire hill as Robin commanded, and not cover the area they control at this moment!

Justifying this that even if they are not attacked again, it is necessary to establish a permanent headquarters on this planet, and what would be a better headquarters than the place they knew and fought over already? Also, the hill is large and can accommodate several million people that can live on top of it full time, of course not to the extent of establishing a city, but establishing a huge camp on top of the hill that will support the entire army of Planet Jura will not be a problem at all...

Second: Taking advantage of the time granted by Robin's sacrifice and starting to explore their surroundings by sending teams from the Wind Forces in different directions, making each squad has only 10 soldiers to limit losses.

Third: After finishing the metal wall, the Divine Blacksmith Division shall immediately start working on a Space Portal!

Jabba's decisions were well received and satisfied everyone's suggestions in one way or another. He did not take an attacking position and at the same time did not sit idle. It can be said that it was perfect.

The only one who didn't like the decisions was Victoria, who wanted to move the entire army to make the best use of the situation and attack Planet Greenland randomly, but she didn't say anything... Everyone else agreed with Jabba's decisions, if she tried to make a fuss alone now then she would be considered a rebel, even leaving that aside, if she can't convince Caesar to do the same then she couldn't do anything even if she had the power, it can be said the Burton Forces and the Water Forces are tied in the same boat and would do anything together...

And with this, the implementation of the second commander in chief's decisions began immediately.

The Divisions of Divine Blacksmiths and Rune Masters returned to work, and a large number of members of the Golden Battalion joined them to help build the metal wall or make the metal bases of the energy protection dome array... And Peon began organizing the Wind Saints from the Burton family for several small squads to go out and explore and map the area around them

As for the rest of those who did not have work, they contented themselves with completing the construction of the camp, taking care of the injured, and relieving themselves from that harsh battle.

Three days passed after that in the blink of an eye...

During these three days, the wind squads made a survey of the area surrounding the hill at a depth of ten kilometers in all directions and drew an accurate map of potential water and food sources, strategic zones, and so on.

But the strange thing about the reports is that several wind teams presented in their reports that they saw some of those humanoid white creatures doing seemingly normal things like plowing lands and planting trees and irrigating them, and they even watched them talking to each other peacefully as normal human beings -This was something very strange for them after they saw with their own eyes the suicidal desire and illogical behavior of those creatures previously-

But what really shocked Jabba and the rest of the generals was that every time one of the wind squads witnessed something like this, or they spotted any group of humanoid white creatures in the vicinity, those creatures would pounce on them immediately after a few seconds!

It's not as if someone saw these wind squads and then told his comrades and attacked them, no, but without warning, they all start running or flying towards wind squads which were perfectly hidden, and soon that team finds several other groups of the humanoid white creatures coming towards them from all directions to surround them!

This was one of the reasons why the wind teams were not able to fully explore the area around the hill, although the army of humanoid white creatures seemed to have disintegrated or disappeared after Robin fell that day, after the ten-kilometer mark, the incursion is considered impossible due to the density of the numbers of these creatures, it was guaranteed that you would be spotted and attacked if passing by them after the ten-kilometer mark...

But also during this period came the first good news that the Golden Battalion had heard in days... The metal wall was completed!

Initially, it was estimated that the Divine Blacksmith Division would take about a week to finish, but this was considering the harsh conditions at the time.

But now, with this period of peace and with the help of the entire detachment of the Divine Blacksmiths Legion, a 40-meter-high wall stood blocking the road at the neck of the hill in just two and a half days!

At the same moment they finished it, the nearly five thousand Divine Blacksmiths went to work on the metal structure of the Space Portal.

As for the Rune Masters Division, they had also finished the first and second parts of the Energy Dome's array, now an area twice as large as the area that was under the protection of the White Flame Dome was now under the protection of the Energy Protection Dome's array, and they started to complete more parts of the array towards the top of the hill, following the plan to cover the sky of the entire hill!

But this period of peace did not last long.

On the fourth day, soldiers from the Wind Forces came running towards the hill from all directions in panic, some of them listed with severe injuries, and whenever one of them reached the dome, he shouted that the enemies were coming.

Quickly after, the army of white humanoids approached again.

The ground forces were about double the numbers who fled, about 5 million, their huge numbers and their spread covered the ground as far as the eye could see!

However, even this majestic scene did not attract everyone's attention for more than a few seconds, as the scene in the sky was much much worse.... The flying white humanoids increased in number from 25,000 during the last time they saw them to 60,000 now.

Chapter 433 Instant Results

The sound of swallowing saliva echoed over the hill and became more common than the sounds of birds that were screaming in terror everywhere, everyone began to look around in panic as they watched the approaching hostile army

They narrowly escaped death from the first battle after His Excellency intervened in a way that caused the dispersal of those humanoid white creatures, but after only four days they returned with double their previous numbers while His Excellency was still lying half dead?!

But at that moment Jabba's brows, which were deeply knotted, relaxed a bit, then began to rise them until a look of astonishment formed on his face instead of troubled fear, and then he spoke loudly, "Look at their faces."

"Hmm?" Everyone stopped looking around in panic and started to focus on the faces of the humanoid white creatures more, and soon their fearful features changed like what happened with Jabba

The eyes of these creatures are no longer empty and full of angry-looking veins as before... It now contains beautiful green pupils!

And they no longer saw that desire to fight to the death either, but for the first time, they saw various emotions evident in the eyes of those humanoid white creatures... Some of them seemed excited about the battle, some of them seemed curious and some of them seemed afraid of not coming back alive.

Now, for the first time, this fearsome enemy is beginning to look like an ordinary army!

But not all of them are like that...

Jabba and the rest of the generals quickly managed to spot around 500 individuals scattered among the army of humanoid white creatures with those blank eyes and fierce features, and those blank eye individuals were clearly placed in command positions.

"It seems that whatever Master did at that time is still in effect..." When Jabba saw the scene in front of him, his features finally turned into a smile.

The rest understood him too, what they are seeing now is definitely related to Robin's shout that day!

They do not know what this means or what happened exactly, but it is clear that Robin did something that harmed the enemy and changed his strategy, and that is enough!

No, it was more than enough, thanks to Robin's intervention the fearless blank-eye individuals were reduced from a few million to a few hundred of them, if they still can't take them head-on, then face do they have to come here thinking about invading another planet?

Soon the generals spread this news among the golden army to boost their morale and then began spreading them out and making defense plans

Today he is destined not to take the same course as the first battle.

First: Because the number of enemies has multiplied, whether it is the land forces or the arial forces, they were both at least double the previous army, but this is understandable, they got hammered the previous time just as they landed, it only makes sense that the leader of those creatures managed to rally more troops after four days

Secondly, It seems that they have returned to being more human-like in some way, the blank and fearless attitude doesn't seem to exist anymore which is a huge factor.

Thirdly, and most importantly... the defenses established by the Divine Blacksmiths and Rune Masters have not yet been tested!

"Sibar hey!" One of the blank-eyed white humanoid leaders raised a sword made entirely of wood and signaled to begin the attack.

Everyone atop the hill furrowed their brows and raised their weapons, ready for another grinding battle...

The Burton family saints all gathered on top of the wall on Jabba's orders to kill anyone who tried to climb it.

The earth-shattering attack of more than five million soldiers came quickly, and with tremendous momentum moved the pebbles from under the feet of the soldiers of the Golden Battalion and made fear infiltrate their hearts.

But everything went calm again when they reached the wall!

The first batch of white humanoids came to a complete halt when they reached the 40-meter-tall wall, just looking up with wide open mouths...

Some of them tried to throw some weapons at the wall a few times, they seemed somehow assured that their weapons would be strong enough to do something to the wall

But when the weapons fell to the ground without making a scratch in the wall, it seemed that they gave up and started exchanging puzzled looks among themselves!

The blank-eyed commanders tried to force the army to rush towards the wall more than once and stand on their comrades' bodies to get through it, but the rest of the white humanoids took a step back instead.

The features of their faces seemed as if they were saying, 'Stand on our comrades' bodies? are you crazy? What will happen to the brothers below? won't they be squashed to death?'

This strange and unexpected situation tied the tongues of the Burton family saints who just looked at each other and lowered their arms, not knowing what to do...

As for the situation in the sky, it was completely different. It was a real battle, just as was expected.

The 60,000 saints and sages immediately launched an attack when they approached a certain distance from the hill at the orders of a few blank-eyed individuals... Although most of the attacks were not half as powerful as before, the combined attack of the 60,000 saints and sages seemed as if it was ready to harvest all the lives over the hill!

The few dozen blank-eyed Saints and Sages among the Saints and Sages looked excited for the first time besides their ferocity, they would finally achieve some results.

This attack would be enough to deal huge damage to the Golden Battalion, especially since they noticed that the annoying White Flame Dome that suppressed them earlier, was no longer there!

VROOM

All 60,000 attacks vanished before landing on the hill...

It was not destroyed or dissipated.. Rather, it looked like a small rock that fell into a lake, it just disappeared after making a few vibrations in space.

The blank-eyed individuals were not convinced by what they saw and ordered another round of attacks... which ended in the same way.

However, this time their attacks did not disappear completely, but some of them bounced back at them again and severely injured 6 saints!

Not only that but hundreds of high-speed black arrows started shooting at them from below, dropping many dead and wounded.

This was the effect of the Energy Protection Dome's array... It has patterns of several major laws that enable it to absorb damage up to a certain extent, and with them the Law of Life that enables it to redirect the energy it absorbs as it sees fit, and most importantly, it prevents any attack coming from above from bypassing it, But it does not prevent attacks coming below

Meaning, they can't reach the hilltop land no matter how hard they try, but the Sages of the Golden Army can hunt them down as they please from within the array!

The new and incomprehensible situation for the Saints and Sages of the white humanoids forced them to quickly retreat, ignoring the blank-eyed individuals' cries that told them to continue pressing.

Whether it is on land or in the sky, the battle that seemed about to destroy everything stopped a few minutes after it started.

Chapter 434 A Challenge

Seven days after Robin's fall...

The few days after the second wave of attacks by the army of white humanoids did not witness any peace, nor did it witness any large-scale battles either...

The ground hordes standing still in front of the wall nor the rapid retreat of the saints and sages lasted long. Under their blank-eyed superiors, the white humanoid army advanced again, but with greater caution this time.

It was clear that the blank-eyed white humanoid creatures tried a lot to motivate the ground hordes to get over the wall, and indeed some of them did it under pressure and began to climb, but all of them fell to the ground again without full bodies, adding to the terror within the ground hordes as they looked at the Golden Battalion members at the top of the wall in awe...

Therefore, the first few rows of the ground hordes began searching in the wall for any loophole that they could exploit to pass it, or for a weak point that they could attack and make a hole using it...

A blank-eyed white humanoid even began to gather those at the top of the Knighthood domain and make them attack certain areas in the wall to weaken it.. but to no avail.

These desperate attempts became a kind of entertainment for the Burton family saints who were busy betting on what would happen next and which spot they would attack, or whether some new fool would try to climb the wall...

But the officials among them furrowed their eyebrows... The movements of white humanoids currently have become completely normal, and it can even be said that they are experienced in wars and how to bring down defenses. They weren't bad at this, The wall designed by His Excellency Rubin was just a very harsh test for them, the original wall in designed to receive an Emperor level attack with ease, even if this one is the weaker version, it is still not something a top-level Sage can take down easily, much less a few knights!

How could such an experienced army be afraid?

It was very clear from their eyes that they were remembering the events of the previous battle that lasted for hours... the battle in which a handful of the Golden Battalion personnel died after taking down millions of them!

From fearless idiots to terrified veterans... The change is too fast and too big!

The second strange thing is that when one of the saints targeted one of the blank-eyed white humanoids below and thoughtfully killed him... Another random individual from among the white human creatures turned fierce, his pupils disappeared, and he took a leading spot in the front rows as if nothing had happened.

This process was repeated and thousands of blank-eyed humanoids were hunted, but they always reappeared. It was found that there are always 327 blank-eyed humanoids lurking among the ground hordes, no matter how many of them were killed they will always reappear.

The strangest thing is that the rest of the white humanoid creatures would obey the new blank-eyed humanoid as if nothing happened...

A minute ago your comrade is next to you just trying to survive and a second later he's your boss who will tell you to advance and kill yourself in battle... This scene amused the Burton saints a lot actually and started placing bets on where would the next blank-eyed humanoid appear before they kill him again.

But of course, the entertainment did not stop them from reporting all these important events and observations immediately to the generals and to the second commander-in-chief, Jabba.

As for the Saints and Sages of the white human creatures, they were even more careful... Some of them would advance once in a while to hurl some precision attacks at separate areas of the Energy Protection Dome's array to test it out and then flee back quickly before the dome sent back the attacks or before the Sages of the Wind Force fired black arrows at them.

The powerful new defenses that protected the hill, along with the awe of white humanoid creatures and the restoration of their natural fear of death as living creatures, made life easier for Jabba and the Golden Battalion greatly

Even with more than double their previous number, the threat was halved!

The battle this time was not a quarter of the intensity of the first, although it continued for several days. Rather, it can be said that this was not a battle in the first place!

Although the siege around the hill was so tight that even an ant could not get out or enter the hill, life on top of the hill was actually very relaxed...

With so much food in their Space Rings and so many seeds that life forces could turn into fruit trees, no one feared starving to death.

The battle was taking place and the siege was intensifying, but on top of the hill, the youths were busy treating the six thousand sages, preparing food, and playing betting games!

Of course, not everyone was so lucky... Elizabeth and the Plant Forces were still suffering badly because there is no array to protect them from underground attacks, it can be said that the Plant Forces are the only ones at war right now.

But even the pressure on them was not that severe, after all, no saint or sage of the enemies dared to get too close to the dome to enter the appropriate range of attack...

...Ten days after Robin's fall...

Half of the ground hordes of the humanoid white creatures retreated and hurried in a northwest direction.

When Jabba heard the report, he was about to order an investigation of the situation, but then an even stranger report came to him...

On that same day, the sixty thousand Saints and Sages of the humanoid white creatures appeared together and stood at a safe distance from the hill, then sent ten Saints near the Energy Protection Dome Array.

Those ten saints started shouting and making a few gestures with their hands... Sign language could be said to be universal, everyone up the hill quickly understood that these ten people were asking for a challenge.

"This is obviously a trap, we can't send our men out of the Energy Protection Dome Array!" Old Gu spoke with knotted eyebrows, " Most likely they just want to kill a few saints from our side to boost their confidence."

"kill a few saints from our side to boost their confidence? I don't think so, they already killed more than a thousand from our side... but I agree with Old Gu, we should ignore them." Victoria nodded and said coldly

"Maybe they want to keep up busy to forget about their group troops' withdrawal? maybe they don't want us to attack them as they retreat..." Elizabeth added

Hearing this, Jabba remained silent for a long time as he looked up, and then finally said, gesturing at Caesar, "Let us follow along with them for now."

Caesar nodded and immediately selected ten of the Burton family's saints and sent them to accept the challenge...

But he had no time to stand up and watch what was going on.

At this moment, someone came to tell him that His Excellency Robin had woken up...

Chapter 435 Tactical Withdrawal

Meanwhile--

After Caesar returned from Robin's tent and was assured that he had activated the Soul Replenishing Technique, his eyebrows furrowed as he watched the battle taking place between the Twenty Saints...

The White Human Saints were not blank-eyed, they showed the excitement of a good fight and fear when facing a strong attack. They communicated with each other a lot by shouting in their language

It was apparent that the fact that they were not blank-eyed did not weaken them at all, On the contrary, they showed great creativity in their attacks and high-level cooperation between them, even after the fight began for about a quarter of an hour, there was no clear winner

For Jabba and the rest of the high-level generals in the golden battalion, the most interesting factor to look at in battle were the wooden weapons they carry...Immerse Yourself in the Storyverse: N♡velBjn.

The ten Saints of the Burton family gave up the full-body golden armor of their own free will before exiting the dome to have a fair fight, but they also took their Golden divine weapons with them, so it can be said that their attack power is still close to its peak.

However, their golden divine weapons weren't able to take the initiative against those wooden weapons, and they even seemed to be somewhat equivalent!

This not only surprised the members of the Golden Battalion, it even surprised the spectating human white creatures!

The long battle that took place between Alexander and the six thousand sages against more than twenty thousand saints and sages of the humanoid white creatures was somewhat dependent on survival, there was no time to compare weapons, techniques, etc., And even one of them sensed something abnormal there was no way to make sure of it, only now the suspicions of both sides were confirmed, it was clear on their features that each side wondered how the other side could possess weapons equal in strength with their own!

The second thing that everyone began to pay attention to was how pure and powerful the other side's Law Techniques were...

So far, several major laws had emerged from both sides, but the Burton Saints side had always been the winner in the test of strength and purity of laws, except for one major law... The Plant Law!

It is the only law that has reached the perfect stage and is almost identical to the perfect major plant law that Robin handed over to Elizabeth that day...

In second place were the minor laws related to Earth Path and Wind Path, its purity level was extremely high, at least it was higher than that of the Four Empires before the appearance of Robin.

Other than that, the rest of the laws are full of serious impurities, especially the laws related to the Fire Path and Thunder Path, they all looked like the laws the Baron Families of the Black Sun Kingdom were using back then, no, even worse!

The fact that these laws have reached a sufficient level that makes the user a saint or a sage is in itself a great achievement, and even important news that must be conveyed to His Excellency Robin that such trash techniques can make someone a sage!

"...It can't be that this is just an ordinary challenge really, huh?" Caesar asked after a few minutes, unable to detect anything abnormal

How is it possible that those creatures who were seeking to exterminate them suddenly have enough brains to start challenges and open ways of communication? This doesn't seem logical at all... Is it possible that their leader gave up and decided to find out more about the aliens that appeared on his land?

At this moment Jabba smiled and replied, "Your vision is too short..."

"Huh?" Caesar looked towards me, opening his mouth

"Sometimes not everything will meet the eyes, you have to look for them on your own... Ignore the battle, buddy, spread your spirit sense as far as possible and focus on what is happening in the background," Jabba advised

"Hmm?" Caesar looked back at him and did as Jabba says, and quickly his eyebrows sank down again...

There are many saints and sages of the humanoid white creatures slowly withdrawing and hiding behind the backs of their fellows that covered the sky with their large numbers, then slowly descending down to the forest under the cliff, and then running in the other direction quickly under the cover of the thick trees... They were all running towards the North-West!

"What is happening exactly?!" Caesar asked with apparent anger, there was something behind their backs and it can't be good!

"It seems to be a plan to withdraw a large part of their main forces without our noticing. The withdrawal of the ground forces can be ignored since they are almost useless after we built the wall, we can just brush it off and say that they simply returned to their day-to-day work to reduce the burden of feeding and sheltering such a massive army... But withdrawing part of the main forces which are the Saints and Sages is something else entirely, it will definitely arouse our suspicions, and tempt us to make a move against them if we saw them retreating, so they are trying to divert our attention to other things while secretly withdrawing, during the past quarter of an hour a few dozen Saints have left already... As for the reason, I don't know~" Jabba shrugged and replied in a low, calm voice.

Then, he continued, "Actually, this plan isn't bad at all... They approach us in full force showing off their true numbers, then slowly withdraw as we focus on the mini-battle, If it weren't for the powerful souls that were given to us by Master's Soul Strengthening Technique we wouldn't be able to detect what was going on in the background, and wouldn't we be able to observe the detailed numbers of their forces, we would just go with the flow and watch their techniques and weapons as we try to further communicate with them... Unfortunately for them, we have Master on our side and they don't."

Caesar returned to look at Jabba, not knowing what to say... He spoke as if discovering them through the spiritual sense was something self-evident, but he had watched the situation just like Jabba for a few minutes and it did not occur to him to spear his senses that much focus on the people in the background, who would do this? Probably of all those present, only Jabba thought about this point

This is not the first time that Jabba has shocked him with one of the decisions or procedures in which he sees his adoptive father's shadow...

'What is the difference between me and Jabba? Experience... Intelligence... Thinking outside the box? ...If my adoptive father had not found me as an infant and had to choose between me and Jabba to be his first disciple of choice, who would he have chosen?' Caesar sighed resignedly at the thought of this, and asked again in a low voice, "Such a large withdrawal plan means that they are up to something, and most likely a very large number of them will slowly take off... Then what to do now, Second Commander?"

"Nothing... For now at least ~" Jabba gave a big smile and said

Chapter 436 Heading For A Stroll

The mini-battle was extremely fierce, but that did not last for long...

After another ten minutes, the first saint to fall in the battle was a humanoid creature, then another, and then another...

The wide experience of the Burton family soldiers, which they gained from the ten-year war against the Flame Empire made them get used to the techniques of their opponents much faster and make the suitable arrangements

And while the golden divine weapons and wooden weapons seemed very close in durability and power, the attacking and defensive measures in the golden divine weapons made the difference, and then the great gap between the quality of the heavenly law techniques between them and the humanoid white creatures drove the final nail in their coffin.

It can even be said that the fight, which stayed in balance for about half an hour, was due to the fear of the unknown as each side played it carefully fearing what the other side had in its arsenal

The other reason is that the saints of humanoid white creatures focused on defense and avoidance most of the time.

But after the killing of seven Saints of them, their defense and avoidance plan no longer worked, and the remaining three Saints withdrew quickly, ignoring the shouts of blank-eyed superiors, which clearly indicated that they were not satisfied with their return.

Some blank-eyed individuals even chased those three and beat them until they were on the brink of death!

The region fell silent again, it was clear from the charged atmosphere and the expressions on the faces of the Saints and Sages of the humanoid creatures that they did not plan for the fight to end in their loss, or at least with such a humiliating result and great speed, this was evident in the tactics of the ten Saints who focused on defense and avoidance most of the time

When Jabba saw this, he smiled and gestured for the other 10 Burton Saints to take off their armor and step outside the Energy Protection Dome Array... It was he who gave the challenge this time!

And as if cold water was poured on them, Jabba could feel clearly that all the humanoid creatures relaxed quite a bit, especially the blank-eyed individuals, their features took a good curve for the first time... All of them had foolish smiles on their faces as if they were achieving a great victory

Caesar noticed this and asked in astonishment, "JA-- Ahem, Second Commander, Do mind if I what the hell are you doing exactly?!"

He did not know why those humanoid creatures were running away in the background and why, but it was logical that the enemy have to be stopped if he was planning to do something, but Jabba's arrangement now seemed as if he was satisfying the blank-eyed plan and helping them!

Jabba smiled as he watched the Burton Soldiers prepare to start the second fight, then said, "We are already besieged by millions of enemies, what worse could happen to us if those saints and sages retreated? Even if they just stand up and retreat now, how and why might we stop them? Do you want us to step out and fight them to stop them from leaving? What is the use of the Energy Protection Dome Array then? Wouldn't that be exactly what they want? With the advantages of greater numbers and the ability to fly in their favor, we will not have a chance in a direct fight. The most we can do would be to force them to retreat, but they are already retreating now without a fight!! ...Honestly, I still don't know why are they retreating, But they are reducing the number of troops surrounding us and giving us a better chance of survival, why would we stop them? We should help them! There is something you must always remember, little brother, if you see the enemy make a mistake, it is foolish to stop him."

Caesar raised his eyebrows when he heard this, then nodded several times and returned to watch the second fight, which very soon became the third fight... then the fourth...then the fourteenth...

After the twenty-first fight, verbal tension took place between the Sages of humanoid creatures. It was clear from their signs towards the corpses and the wounded that the verbal fight was due to the successive losses that they had to bear.

This verbal fight quickly developed into a huge conflict, which quickly ended as over twenty thousand Saints and Sages broke away from the main army in anger, and then just dispersed, each person going in a different direction.

If Jabba and the rest of the generals of the Golden Army had not been aware of what was happening in the background, they might have believed what had just happened, but they knew with certainty that what had just happened was a game to increase the speed of the army's retreat, it seemed that their leader thought that retreating secretly in the background is no longer worth the huge cost his army had to bear...

But Jabba ignored this as well and accepted the request for the match again from one of the empty-eyed individuals who seemed angry, it is clear that he wanted to compensate for the successive losses they had suffered and restore the dignity of their race, or this is what he was trying to show at least

And Jabba agreed...

The fights continued again without problems, and the retreating process actually still continued in the background all the way until the forty-three fight

After that fight, the total number of saints and sages of the white humanoid creatures besieging the hill settled at 20,000.

After reaching that specific number, the frequency of requesting and approving fights decreased, and the saints and sages of the white humanoid creatures tried to hide in the woods at the bottom of the steep cliff so that their real numbers would not be spotted by their enemy eyes

Gradually they returned to laying the siege as if nothing had happened.

When Jabba saw this, he smiled and returned to camp, then gave an order to all the members of the Golden Battalion to sleep well for the rest of the night and meet tomorrow morning again in the same place...

The next day---

Jabba came out of his tent, yawning and groaning as if he had had the best night's sleep in months, then smilingly strode up the hill with his big hands behind his back, nodding continually all the way in greeting.

The Golden Battalion had rested and had already assembled at the top of the hill as they were ordered, all holding their helmets with one hand and looking at the second commander, Jabba, making his way between them.

Finally, when he reached the most distant point under the protection of the Energy Protection Dome's array, he took a few more steps and continued forward until his fingertips were already out of the steep cliff, then finally turned around to face his army of nearly fifty thousand saints and sages, spreading his arms at the sides, and smilingly shouted, "It must have been hard for you guys to stay in one place all these days, today I decided to take you all for a walk towards the north-west!"

Chapter 437 Humans

"Watch out, a new attack wave is coming from above!!"

boom boom boom

"Ugh!"

"A group of two hundred white humanoids has split off from the main bloc and is heading to the left, prepare to engage!"

"Yes!!"

BOOM!!

"Damn it, Jabba, I pray you have a good explanation for this decision of yours, you all be wold accountable in front of His Excellency when he wakes up!!" Old Gu shouted in a fit of anger

Three hours ago Jabba announced that he would take the army and head in a northwest direction and before anyone could figure out the reason behind his sudden decision, or anyone else could object, Jabba threw himself from the top of the cliff and engaged directly the enemy Saints and Sages camped below the steep cliff.

The rest of the gathered army could not stand and watch their Second Commander being surrounded and killed, so they jumped after him, and a great battle began down the cliff.

The enemy saints and sages camped at the bottom of the cliff were surprised by the sweeping attack descending on them from above. This was the first time that the golden battalion moved into the attack instead of crouching down and defending desperately.

It was a scene similar to the jumping of white humanoids on the golden battalion when they first arrived on Planet Greenland, but the difference this time was that the jumpers were not ready to commit suicide, but rather descended to kill!

This is in addition to the fact that for the first time since the invasion of Planet Greenland began, the numerical balance was in favor of the Golden Battalion!

With a number approaching forty thousand saints and sages, compared to only twenty thousand or so on the other side, in addition to the advantages of the complete divine body armors and better law techniques...

The battle below the cliff quickly turned into a one-sided massacre...

The saints and sages of the white humanoids wasted more than a whole day implementing a plan for a silent retreat, and more than four hundred of them were killed during the individual battles to implement that plan, but with that everything went in vain... It turned out that the enemy understood what was going on and took advantage of their Numerical advantage to launch an all-out attack, what kind of luck was this?!

The twenty thousand white humanoid saints and sages could do nothing but fly away from that massacre, they didn't get away though, but all flew into the air and rained down the golden battalion with attacks from above, taking advantage of the fact that the golden battalion would not dare to fly, and indeed none of them flew behind them...

But that was not their intention from the beginning anyway.

After fighting for about half an hour and forcing all the Saints and Sages of the White Humanoids to fly back, Jabba advanced with all his speed towards a northwest direction, with the rest of the Golden Battalion behind him...

Not because they want to, but because the cliff they jumped over is so high and steep, it is almost a 90-degree angle, and as they can no longer fly up to their place on the hill, nor can they climb the cliff with their hands and feet because they would be easy prey for the attacks of the flying enemies!

Old Gu and a few other people at the top of the sage level decided that they would accompany Jabba for a few kilometers just to make sure he was safe on his mission, whatever it was, and then they would come back up the hill from the normal route as they had climbed it the first time, cutting through the two and a half million white humanoids ground army on their way...

But at least it's less dangerous than following Jabba and going Northwest where the saints and sages of the white humanoids gather, who knows what they will find there?

What if they found hundreds of thousands of those Sages and Saints gathering to kill them? What if they found the one who sent these thunderbolts? Or maybe everything is a trap and they are moving to their deaths!

Every alarm in their heads told them that they absolutely should not go in this direction!

But they quickly changed their minds and followed Jabba further and further, until two and a half hours had passed and they were still with him running through the trees in a northwest direction... The reason? The Madness of white humanoid Creatures!

They had thought that those creatures would breathe a sigh of relief after they moved away for a few kilometers and go bombard the half-empty headquarters above the cliff, but the truth was that the 20,000 White Humanoid Saints and Sages followed them all the way, raining down attacks on them with panic evident on their faces!

'If you see something that hurts your enemy, do it' This is one of the laws of war, and as long as the enemy does not want them to go in this direction, then they must go!

This was an understanding that all the members of the Golden Battalion reached as they moved forward, not one of them asked why we didn't turn back yet, they fell silent and just continued forward behind Jabba.

But the air attack was very strong... Although their numbers are much less and their strength is weaker, they have the advantage of flight, every now and then Jabba and his men have to stop to send some attacks and break up the ranks of the enemies, but they quickly regroup and complete their aerial attacks again

After two and a half hours of continuous running and clashing with the enemy who bombarded them non-stop from above, their forces were almost completely exhausted...

The only one who was still enjoying what was going on and attacking the flying white humanoid creatures with full force and rushing forward with fervor was none other than Victoria, what was happening now was exactly like her suggestion after Robin went unconscious...

Ass for the rest, although they were still moving forward without complaint, some fear began to unavoidably creep into their hearts

They now see that moving in this direction angers the white humanoids so they do it, that's understandable, but what if they don't reach their goal before their energy is completely exhausted? What if they found themselves in the middle of nowhere with no power to fight back or shelter to protect them?

This is why although old Gu began to understand the reason for Jabba's advance in this direction, and tacitly agreed with him until this moment, he did not hold himself from placing all responsibility on him again...

"Of course, I will take responsibility in front of my master, don't worry, just keep moving forward, I have a feeling that we will strike it big this time!" Jabba smiled and replied while still lunging forward.

Another hour passed...

The panic of the Saints and Sages of the white humanoids became too apparent, especially the blank-eyed people who began to carry out suicide attacks, descending from above and blowing themselves up in the midst of the Golden battalion formation, causing heavy injuries.

These ruthless tactics left several deaths among the Burton family's saints... but aside from taking a second to collect their corpses, no one stopped.

"I see the light, we are about to get out of the woods, get ready to stop and execute the defense formation number three right after that!!" Jabba shouted loudly

He entered one of the forests on purpose a while ago to reduce the attacks from above as much as possible and this indeed worked, but after leaving it the suicide and coordination attacks will return even fiercer, while most of the golden battalion members are already exhausted, so the best way would be to take a Defensive formation for a short time and then continue the march after that

"Here we go, set up the defensive formation after Three, Two, and One--- Hah?!" Jabba raised his hands and almost gave the order to execute the formation, but immediately after coming out of the thick woods, he saw something strange that made him lose his voice.

Not too far away, he saw a huge battle...

A battle between millions of white human creatures against... Humans!

Chapter 438 Annihilation Battle

BOOM

bzzzzzt

Jabba seemed to have no control over his lower jaw which dropped after seeing the sight in front of him, and he was not alone... Old Gu, Victoria, and the rest of the top-level Sages in the front rows also stood with open mouths staring at the bizarre sight in front of them.

The milky white humanoids who have drained them out since they set foot on this planet are now embroiled in a colossal battle and one that seems to have been going on for several hours as well...

Their enemies are not monsters or human-like beings like them, but rather... Humans!

They do not have a specific uniform, but they wear clothes woven from wool threads and traditional metal armor... And whether facial features, bodies, or auras, almost everything about them is almost identical to the people of Planet Jura!

The battle includes an army of 3 million foot soldiers and about 40 thousand saints and sages on the White Humanoids' side, compared to two million foot soldiers and around 50 thousand saints and sages on the Humans' side.

The human army was following a tactic similar to what Robin decided after he saw the thunderbolts as not all of their Sages and Saints were flying, but almost rather half of them, meaning that there are currently 40,000 white humanoids against 25,000 humans in an air battle, while the rest of the Sages and Saints of the Humans are on the ground helping the ground forces and sometimes support their air forces with upward attacks!

Another thing worth noting is the other creatures on the battlefield...

For example, the aerial battle was not exclusive to the Sages and Saints on every side, but there are swarms of millions of insects that look like bees attacking the white humanoids' side!

Those insects were not very strong individually, but with the size of an adult man's fist, coupled with their huge numbers and their concentration in attacking only the Saints of the White Humanoids made them a constant and serious threat, although each attack of a Saint of the white human being could bring down hundreds or even thousands of them, their presence and constant disturbance tipped the scales in the aerial battle towards the humans by a fine margin...

There were also other ground beasts resembling rhinoceros' used by humans as mounts, and other giant beasts loaded with equipment and supplies and carrying nests for the insects, and even other beasts the size of dogs but they are very fast and make a difference on the battlefield, and many more!

Although the numerical balance was clearly tilted towards the White humanoids, the battle was almost even!

And most important of all this is that the numbers of the blank-eyed individuals were very few...

If all those white humanoids were all empty-eyed and attacked them the same way they attacked the Golden Battalion, then all these tactics the humans were employing would not have been of any use, and that battle would have ended immediately after it began with the destruction of the two armies, but the white humanoids now are fighting and retreating like any normal army, this is what Bring the battle to the balance it is in now.

A balance that seems somewhat frightening...

If the battle continues at the same pace, it may take days to end, and it may even end with the loss of one army, but the other army will have to withdraw because of the damage it received!

It was easy to predict what would have happened if more than half of the army of white humanoids had not been busy surrounding the Golden Battalion all along...

"What is going on here?!" One of the Wind Force Sages muttered, his eyes wide open

This did not look like a battle for land or authority, the huge scale and thick killing intent spoke volumes about how important this battle is for both sides, they seemed like treating it as a species annihilation war of some sort!

Jabba did not know how to respond, rather he did not expect this in his wildest dreams...

Ever since he knew the plan of the Sages and Saints of the white humanoids to retreat and he immediately decided to follow them...

He thought, 'What is that important that enforce for the leader of those creatures to withdraw more than Half his army when they are fighting to the death against alien invaders?!'

Whether there is a problem facing the leader of the White Humanoids then he has to make use of it, or that person is concocting a plan then he has to go see it and destroy it before it starts... Whether this or that, he had to follow them!

However, he deliberately waited all night and gave them enough time to leave a great distance between them, why? Because the Saints and Sages who had not left would definitely chase after them when they came down the hill, and he did not want the Saints and Sages who had withdrawn earlier to come back when they heard that they were being chased, if this happened this then it would have put them in an awkward situation where they would attack from the front and the back, not even a new White Flame Dome would protect them from the combined attacks of 60,000 Saints and Sages then!

Although he had taken precautions before issuing the order to pursue, he was fully prepared for something unexpected to happen that might destroy the entire Golden Battalion, nevertheless, he took the risk and ordered action... but not in his wildest dreams did he expect to see what he was seeing now!

boom boom boom

Since Jabba came out and the front ranks of the forest hadn't even had two seconds yet, but in those short two seconds they received thousands of attacks from above, the White Humanoids chasing after them seemed furious and feeling like a failure because they couldn't stop Jabba and the rest along the way, so they ignored their exhaustion and increased the pace of the attack...

Had it not been for the fact that the back ranks of the Golden Battalion had not yet left the forest completely and were still defending desperately and sending counterattacks, those attacks would have caused enormous damage.

Those fierce attacks awakened Jabba and the rest of the generals from their resistance and they were about to enter that defensive formation to deal with the attacks coming from above, but at that moment a voice came from the direction of the battlefield:

"Saem De Lach!"

Jabba sensed an excited tone in that shout and even some joy, he couldn't suppress his curiosity and looked towards the battlefield again trying to find the source of the sound...

It was one of the human Sages, looking in turn at Jabba and the rest with eyes full of shock and delight, and most importantly, it seemed from his look as if he understood something.

"Saem De Lach!"

"Saem De Lach!"

After that human sage's shout, the rest of the human saints and sages began to look in the direction of the Golden Battalion with the same gaze and repeated the same shout, then the human ground forces followed suit.

Quickly, the humans began a strong wave of attacks with their high morals, pushing back the white humanoids and gaining the upper hand!

Chapter 439 Attack

"So that's how it is... That's how it is!" Jabba muttered with his eyes wide open, "Those humans look a lot like you guys of Planet Jura, if you give them the golden armor, there won't be any difference between you, that's why those white humanoids didn't hesitate to attack us when they first saw us, because they thought you were their local enemies!!"

"This..." Old Gu, Victoria, and the rest exchanged glances upon hearing Jabba's words, this was very possible, it could even be said that there was no other explanation.

When an army from another planet comes to you, the first thing you will try to do is try to communicate to know who they are and what they want, and whether there is any hope of resolving the matter peacefully. What fool would try to attack the newcomers directly? Even if he managed to kill them somehow, wouldn't that have earned him eternal enmity with the other planet without even knowing why? This was one of the most inconsequential things that occupied the minds of all the members of the Golden Battalion

But Jabba's words now finally put their minds at ease, No wonder they did not try to make peace, and No wonder they attacked directly without words, That was because there was no need to speak! When you see an army battalion of your sworn enemies inside your land, Do you think they have come in peace? If butting it to this perspective, Their reaction was very natural!

"Bad luck... Of all the planets in existence, and of all the places where we can land safely, we landed in a place where the locals thought we were their old enemies. What kind of luck is this?" One of the Sages of the Burton family spoke while shaking his head with a half smile, Fate was playing with them!

"Who knows if they are locals or not..." Old Gu shook his head, "I can't help but think that one of the two races we see now is an alien race, like us, and most likely they are those Humanoids!"

"This..."

boom boom boom

"...Is this a problem though?" Jabba suddenly spoke with an excited facial expression, ignoring the successive attacks that were still raining down on them.

Old Gu and the rest furrowed their brows when they heard Jabba's words, but they just looked at him, waiting for him to finish.

"Those white humanoids, and most importantly, their leader, they most certainly think we are their historical enemies, meaning we are Greenlandic humans in their eyes... Now look over there, what do you see?" Jabba pointed towards the huge human army in front of them, "Look at their features, it's clear that they are excited to see us, not one of them is looking at us in surprise or shock but it looks like we are their lost brothers from years ago. They don't look stupid to me, but for some reason, they also don't seem to think that we are strangers from this planet..."

"You mean..?" Caesar muttered in astonishment

Jabba gave a big smile and spoke, "The misunderstanding that occurred made everyone think that we are locals, no one treats us as invaders from another planet, you all know what this means to us?!"

Everyone opened their eyes to her last, how could they not know? They came with a small army to protect Robin as he would be trying to establish diplomatic and commercial relations with the leaders of this planet.

According to Robin's declaration, all he wants is to benefit from the planet's accumulated experiences and unique resources in strengthening his army. He did not come to kill blindly.

But that is easier said than done, who would feel secure when dealing with an alien army? At least there will be a few battles before the locals are convinced they have to bow their heads, and even then the two parties will never feel at ease.

As for directly invading the world and subjugating it under the True Beginning Empire, this is even more difficult. It will be a devastating war that will last for years and perhaps decades and exhaust the resources of both sides. This is not something that Robin, who is striving to strengthen his own army before the invasion of Nihari, would want!

That is why everyone was frustrated when they thought that their identity had been revealed before Robin achieved a foothold on Planet Greenland because that meant they would have to take the path of direct warfare to subdue the planet!

But if everyone thinks of them as locals, then...

When Old Gu thought of the huge possibilities that could be exploited with their new status, he looked towards Jabba respectfully, then sighed and asked, "Heh~ What is next, Second Commander?"

But Jabba didn't respond directly, he just kept watching the battle in front of him for a few moments before calmly replying, "...Starting a large-scale battle like this right after our appearance is definitely not a coincidence, and I'm certain that the humanoids didn't issue, even if they are brain dead they wouldn't start a war while they already have one inside their lands,

...It seems the humans somehow knew that there was a battle going on within the territory of their enemies and that is why they decided to seize the opportunity and penetrated into their lands... And now appeared in front of them coming from within the humanoids territory, while those white humanoids raining attacks on us on top of that, all that gave them the answer they were looking for, they now know that we are the ones who gave them this opportunity, they know that we are the enemies of their enemies"

" the enemies of their enemies..." Victoria muttered in a low voice

When Jabba heard it he giggled loudly, "Yes, the enemy of the enemy is a friend, how can we let our friends face the enemy alone?"

Then, with a wave of his hand, a huge golden war hammer appeared. He pointed towards the enormous battlefield in front of him, and said one word, "Attack."

Chapter 440 Awake

Inside the imperial tent-- On the steep hill

"...Have you heard the latest news?" One of the girls inside the tent broke the silence and spoke, although her gentle features barely gave the impression that she was in her early twenties, the symbol on her golden shield clearly said that she was a Saint of the Life Legion!

"You talk about Jabba's actions? Yeah, who hasn't heard about it yet? He's too reckless..." Another Life Legion Saint replied as he poured himself a pink liquid into a cup.

But another mature-looking woman next to him moved her hand and gently slapped the back of that male saint's head, "You are a soldier, don't talk about the second commander like that in his absence."

"Argh, Aunt Lindsay, why did you do this?! It's not as if someone is going to hear us here..." That saint scratched the back of his head and spoke annoyed, "Secondly, how do you see his actions? He took most of the army and left without giving reasons, they have been away for three days now, Who knows what happened to them? Why didn't he wait and defend the hill until His Excellency woke up and makes his own decisions? It is him we are following, not that 3 meters tall alien! He is only a disciple of His Excellency but he acted as if he was our true leader!"

"En, I also support Brother Peterson in this, The second commander took forty thousand soldiers from the Golden Battalion and left in haste. There was no one left to defend His Excellency if something happened... Currently, there are only the 5 thousand wounded sages on the hill, and only less than four thousand soldiers that can be relied upon, but even these are mostly life forces and plant forces! ...and of course the bodies of the 1,500 deceased who have been killed in battle since we arrived on the planet. How can we defend His Excellency with this number of forces if a new raid comes?" The girl with delicate features spoke in a low voice

The woman called Lindsay was silent for a moment and looked at the ground, not knowing how to respond.

It is true that the situation on top of the hill has remained secure since Jabba and the forty thousand Golden Battalion members left, that's because all the hostile White Humanoids' ground forces around the hill withdrew and headed northwest after them, currently, the hill has no enemies surrounding it!

This, however, does not guarantee that other troops may not come to attack them again at any moment.

The Energy Protection Dome Array and the Metallic Wall presence are the only factors that assured them a little, but can those two defensive lines protect everyone on the hill forever? No.

Especially the Metallic Wall which is a shadow of the original design, if the enemy Sages concentrate their attacks on it, they will surely destroy it!

The 5,000 sages who had been affected by the lightning strike had been extensively treated under the supervision of the Life Law from Lady Zara personally, except that they were still not in the best condition

And even though there were approximately 10,000 other individuals on top of the hill, namely the Divine Blacksmiths Division and the Rune Masters Division, their combat capabilities are very limited...

Secondly, even regardless of this and that, what is happening with those 40,000 soldiers? All the saints and sages of the white humanoids immediately followed them, and all the ground forces quickly followed as well, did they have to battle all these things head-on!? What if they were trapped there without the Energy Protection Dome Array and the Metallic Wall to take cover behind?

"...The forty thousand soldiers can die, we ourselves can die, we can easily be replaced, and new Burton Family members will step forward and continue to spread the family glory with His Excellency for eternity... But the problem is who will protect His Excellency if we die here? His Excellency Robin Burton must not die here no matter what!!"

But Lindsey finally replied in a low voice, "Don't worry about these things, His Highness Caesar Burton also went out with the immediate commander. If he feels there is a threat to His Excellency Robin's life he will certainly lead the rest of our kin back, Every Burton family member knows his priorities! ...Our family members not coming back until now means that they see that It's better for them to stay there."

The other girl and young man looked at each other and then towards the ground and did not respond. Indeed, Caesar Burton, the adopted son of their family icon, is the only person they can trust at the moment, but they cannot even contact him to find out what is going on...

Although all the forces of the Golden Battalion have sound rings, they cannot communicate with the rest of their relatives from the Burton family to find out what is going on. It was forbidden to use sound rings randomly so that the other side does not get distracted during a battle, for example, and to stop the secret information from spreading among the soldiers, as even if they were all elites and mostly family members, some secrets must stay secrets in a war zone...

So they were informed that the use of these rings is limited to sending an extremely urgent report to the generals or receiving orders from their superiors.

Although they cannot communicate with their relatives, they are not completely oblivious though.

General Elizabeth Trent didn't jump after Jabba that day and stayed behind willingly to lead the defense of the hill, and she said more than once that she is in constant contact with the rest of the generals who left and that the situation is good and that they do not have to worry... But the problem is that she did not say anything else, for example, why this number of members of the Golden Battalion left, or what is happening abroad, or when they will return, everything that happens abroad remained something shrouded in mystery...

"No need to worry... they are all capable people... As long as the situation is stable here, they are certainly in a good position wherever they are... Otherwise, we would have been hammered already..."
A weak voice suddenly broke the silence

"Hm, you are right, If they brock our guys out there then they would definitely try to eliminate us by now, but that doesn't mean they will stay okay, right? we saw the White Humanoid Creatures' forces and know what are they capable of, they are not something that 40k of our troops can handle alone, and---" Lindsay gently nodded and started muttering as she looked at the floor, then raised her head with raised eyebrows and looked around, "Wait, who said that?"

The girl and the young man also looked puzzled and shook their heads, they also didn't know who spoke just now

"Heh~ None of you looked towards me, Have you all lost hope that I will wake up one day or what?" The sound came out again, accompanied by movement this time, Robin who was lying on his bed for almost two weeks had sat up!

"Y-- Your Excellency!!"
