Chapter 631 Orphan Blood

?*Deep inhale*

"Hooo~" Robin let out a long exhale as he looked towards the horizon and put his hands behind his back, "I have to admit, it's a completely different place out here. No wonder they call it *Orphan Blood*, In addition to the huge number of orphans and widows left behind by the existential war here, the place itself is suspiciously bloody... I wonder if the nature of the world of this world affected the population, or is the bloodiness of the population that affects the nature of the world?"

Since Robin's last step outside the space portal, he was immediately preoccupied with the current events. He had no time to spend contemplating his surroundings, only now did he have this opportunity.

Unlike the blue sky on both Jura and Nihari planets, and the light green sky on planet Greenland, the crimson color was dominant here.

In the sky, there are six small crimson suns moving quickly, They appear in a bloody twilight and disappear after several minutes in a sunset before reappearing again randomly. The clouds were also affected by the color of the sky and the sun, so they took on a dark red shade. Of course, the general atmosphere and even the soil were not spared from this irritating color.

As for the trees around the city walls, they were full of thorns instead of leaves, and the ground exuded a dark sap that Robin had never seen before, but it was clear that the soil was not suitable for growing anything edible.

"Just by looking, I can see resources and minerals that are supposedly scarce In Jura, Greenland, and Even in Nihari Planets lying everywhere here, but I can also understand the way this world works, where the strong literally eat the weak... This place is destined for bloodshed, there is no safety or stable system of governance in an environment where the laws of Bloodlust and Chaos are common, it's a miracle they still have the tribal system." Robin shook his head as he looked around and saw Amon and Sakaar approaching and floating in the air next to him.

Amon, who was completely healed, asked hesitantly, "The laws of bloodlust and Chaos... Emotions like bloodlust have laws, Lord? And even Chaos is governed by a law?"

"Everything is governed by laws, Amon. You yourself are a moving mass of laws." Robin showed a slight smile, "Have you never thought that there are places you go to be happy and other places that make you sad? These places have the laws of those emotions accumulated to a certain extent, and it seems that this is what happened here as well, but in this case, Bloodlust has taken over throughout the planet, you have to be extremely clear-headed to be able to ignore this type of sensation and choose reason instead of bloodshed."

"Then why didn't the Lord create any techniques for the laws of emotions? The Lord created hundreds of techniques until today.." Amon asked again

Robin laughed, "Why would I make a technique for emotions? Increasing the bloodlust, anger, and all those negative emotions without really increasing strength means creating suicide soldiers and reducing these types of emotions creates insensitive people that are no different between them and stones. There are certain things that should not be tampered with and should be left as they are because there is no point in messing with it, the laws of emotions are one of them." Then he furrowed his eyebrows slightly, "And there are other laws that even if I wanted to tamper with them, I can't. Until this moment, I thought that Death was the only law that gave me this warning to back off, but today the law of Chaos took second place."

"To this degree?" Amon asked again, Sakkar seemed to be listening carefully as well

Robin smiled and looked around for a bit, then pointed towards a small purple tree near the wall, "This tree over there is full of life and is still young, but the Law of Chaos is starting to accumulate on it. Something is going to happen very soon. Let's see together."

After a few seconds

*Swoosh*

The tree left its roots and flew upwards until it disappeared over the horizon.

"Haha well that was very random, I thought it was going to weather or something." Even Robin couldn't suppress his laughter

"This is what's happening then?! We thought the locals wanted to confuse us with these strange events. A few days ago, the water well caught on fire!" Moren came floating over and approached Robin, accompanied by a number of Demon kings and Emperors

Even Flora, who was floating in the air with a stray gaze, her eyes seemed to have come back to life again as she listened to Robin.

She is a local and knows this type of chaotic event to the point that it has become a reality and should not be questioned. This was the first time she heard anything about the law of Chaos.

"What you saw and experienced is nothing but a slight interference from the Law of Chaos, just a simple disturbance to this world. According to what I see, the Law of Chaos interferes with other laws and influences them to work in a strange and illogical way, but the proportion of the Law of Chaos here is still within the reasonable limit and If this law were to increase even a little bit, it would become impossible to live here." Then he clapped once, "The important thing is, I intended to stay here for a while to conduct some research in this world, but it seems that this will not be possible. The chaos here will double the time needed to complete anything important. It is better for me to return to Greenland."

"So fast, my lord?" Amon's voice sounded sad

Robin nodded, still looking around with his golden eyes, "You don't need me for the next while. Just stay near the space portal to protect it and send reasonable hunting parties as promised to collect food for the Demon Kings. Try to increase the number of Emperors among you to as many as possible within five years. Oh, and be prepared to protect yourself against a surprise attack at any time, because I do not imagine that they will keep the five-year pact for too long."

"Hmph!" Flora bellowed angrily but did not add another word

Moiraine nodded but did not agree completely, "We will prepare as you ordered, Lord, but there is no need to worry too much. As you saw, Aru accepted the agreement and left, this means that he will most likely keep his promise."

"..." Sakaar didn't say a word but nodded

Robin raised his eyebrows slightly and looked at Sakaar, "Oh? Even you vouch for your enemy's truthfulness in a life-or-death situation like this? He seems to be a more interesting character than he seems. But that doesn't change my will, even if he doesn't do it, there are many others."

"Yes, my lord." Moren and the rest of the Demons Kings nodded

Then Robin returned to looking at Flora with a half smile, "Have you ever dreamed of leaving your world before?"

Chapter 632 Greed

?Central Continent-- The hidden space portal in the forests

*Bzzzzzz*

"The space portal on the other side has been activated. Prepare to receive the arrivals." The guards around the gate stood and took defensive positions, while a number of other weak ones approached the space portal in a submissive manner to help carry anything that came out of that space portal or perhaps treat the injured.

"Who? Who is coming? Is the lord back?!" A young demon started jumping and looking at the space portal excitedly, and he was not alone, currently, there are tens of thousands of demons of different ages around the gate!

Less than an hour ago, the Lord came here to check on the situation, then he used the portal to go to the farm planet. This news spread like wildfire among the demon families, and a large number of them came to the portal to see the Lord for the first time, but all these events did not take more than a few minutes, and when most of them arrived they were found that the lord had already left for the farm planet

But this did not prevent more and more demon families from gathering here to hear a description of His Excellency from those who saw him and more news about that legendary person

The person who gave them the ability to hear, speak, and use soul sense after they were handicapped, the person who protected them from the oppression of the Nihari giants after they drove them like livestock and killed their cubs while they slept like insects, the person who allocated half a continent to them to be under their control and helped them build a society after they were traveling a stray in the form of small families consisting of a few hundred individuals, and many other things that the Lord changed in their lives!

Many things that they will never forget even if they try... Robin's solutions to them were techniques that can be practiced when the demon reaches a certain level of strength and intelligence, it was not a radical solution, therefore all their cubs are still born without the sense of sight and hearing, and thus they also cannot speak. When their parents see them like this, they will automatically remember their race's painful past, and they will remember the person who pulled them out of it when they use his techniques on their cubs... So even after the Lord left more than an hour, large numbers of demons were still flocking to the gate's vicinity until this moment!

"You are dreaming? The magnificent Lord has just left. I bet he knew about the siege on the farm planet, so he went to them to help. He will definitely stay for months or even years to help our fathers and ancestors win, and he will definitely do it! The lord is invincible!!" A skinny demon shouted, raising both hands

"But at least one of our warriors will come and tell us about what the lord did, right?"

"Look, someone has come out!! ...Is it a human?"

"Is he one of the Rune Masters?"

As the crowds began to guess who this was, the space portal guards fell to their knees, "We salute the Lord and welcome his safe return."

"Lord! It is truly Lord!!" That young demon shouted and quickly knelt down, accompanied by his family and those around him

As for the skinny demon, he fell to his knee and hit his head on the ground, "The lord has returned, this means we have won the war! The lord is invincible!! The lord is almighty"

"We salute the Lord"

"We salute the Lord"

Robin nodded contentedly towards the large crowd in front of him and began waving at them kindly and muttering in a voice that only the person standing next to him could hear, "It is good to know that the new generation of demons still appreciate what I did for them."

As for the person who came out of the space portal to him, Flora, she was not in the mood to listen to Robin's words, since she stepped outside the space portal and was looking around in shock, "This... this..."

"Hehe, I wonder, does your shock come from the fact that you are experiencing entering another world for the first time? Or because there are millions of demons on the other side of the space portal? Or perhaps you now understand that your siege all those years was useless and that the demons can bring whatever food they need from here to stay alive?" In front of Flora's gaze, Robin couldn't help but laugh

Flora herself had no answer to this question

Everyone on the Orphan Blood Planet knows well about the metal arch, how demons who approach it disappear, and that there are demons who come out of it from time to time, but they thought that this metal arch led to the interior of the earth, or even to hell!! Where, for example, will these barbaric creatures that only know how to shed blood come from?

The Orphan Blood Planet, with its six red suns that give it its crimson color, its high temperature, the absence of almost any agricultural crops, and the presence of all those warring races... Isn't it itself considered hell? How can the people of that world imagine a hell worse than the one they live in?!

And they did, they were able to imagine that hell from which the demons came... A barren, dark place that: Did not have their bright suns, their rivers that could be cleaned and drunk, nor their trees whose sap could be drunk, this is why they gathered together and decided to protect the bounties of their world from those horrible demons!!

But...

But she was met with a clear blue sky and gentle golden sunshine, a breath of fresh air, and the soothing sound of rustling leaves when she extended her soul sense just a little and found a running river of fresh water and a large number of weak beasts that could be easily hunted, she even found huge sea beasts being dismembered at this moment, and each sea beast corpse was enough to feed thousands of people for weeks!

It even found vast lands planted with different crops to feed domesticated beasts and an entire agriculture system is based on white creatures that resemble humans, but they are not human.

This place... Is it paradise?!

And in this bliss do millions of demons live? Although she had not spotted any Emperor among them, there were undoubtedly tens or even hundreds of thousands of sages and saints here!

"You.. live in this place...? And we.. we..." Flora muttered she felt like she wanted to cry bitterly, but she held back her tears. Do those dirty demons live in a place like this, but they are still not satisfied and come to kill them??

Robin understood some of her questions and stopped waving at the demons, "Yes the Demons live here, even on Nihari Planet they had very close natural conditions, but do the natural conditions amount to every thing? Do you think that if you had lived in this world, your situation would have changed? Maybe your food shortage problem would have been solved, but it is impossible for you to live in peace. You would have killed each other anyway to taint the soil with blood and the rivers turned red. I do not fault you personally, but according to my experience, this is the case with all intelligent beings. Planet Jura only had humans, and yet they found any trivial reason to shed each other's blood, such as the appearance of a metal mine or that a noble wanted a new piece of land... There is no justice in these matters, there is only greed for what is available, and even ant colonies are ready to kill each other in exchange for a piece of candy!"

"You are the last person to talk about justice!! You saw our world, if you are so smart, then tell me, who among us should invade whom?!" Flora's already red eyes became redder as she stared at Robin with obvious hatred

"ROOOAAARR!!!" Tens of thousands of demons felt Flora's hatred and killing intent toward their lord, so they stood ready to tear her apart.

But Robin raised his right hand and motioned for them to calm down, then pointed at Flora, "Even a Level 42 Empress would not survive an angry mob that includes millions of Law Users, and I don't want to lose an important research subject like you. Come with me, we will go to a quieter place."

After these words, Robin flew up, and Flora could hardly control her nerves and flew after him

A number of senior demons tried to accompany them, but Robin refused and told them to stay where they were, then he continued flying towards the west, accompanied by Flora, alone.

Chapter 633 Eden of Blood

?A few hours later-- Central Continent-- The Imperial Capital

"Haah~ hey, I'm going to take a nap." One of the guards standing atop the high city wall yawned

"Tsk~ Last time you said you were going to go pee and you were gone for an hour, now you say nap, who knows how many hours you'll be gone!" The other guard was sitting on a chair, putting his foot on another chair, and in his hand was a small dagger that he was throwing up and down to pass the time.

"And what is the problem with that? It's not like I'll miss anything. Come on man~ Cover for me if the supervisors pass by here, I just need two hours! And I'll cover for you when I come back and let you do whatever you want." That guard started poking his friend in the shoulder

"You cover me and I cover you? Are we here to guard or to play you clown?" The other guard was fed up and hit his colleague on the stomach with the backside with the dagger

"Ouch!! Brother, what's your problem? The entire planet has been united and everyone in the city is either veterans who spent years at Greenland or members of the Burton family who receive the best cultivation and resources, This city is literally a huge military barracks! And not far from here lies the headquarters of the demons and you know how high their loyalty to His Excellency. Who would dare attack this place? I don't even know what we're guarding the city against, I feel like we're stealing the city by taking this salary!"

The other guard stood up and was about to argue with him further, but a voice from afar answered on his behalf, "Haha, I don't blame you for thinking this way. This place was actually built to be a fortress, but we still need to be aware of the danger of beasts. Until this moment we still do not know anything about the beasts and how strong they are, and I don't believe that the beasts that do not need to cultivate in order to strengthen themselves not have a few members that can threaten the safety of the city, there might even be beasts as powerful as an Emperor hiding here or there that we haven't heard of yet."

"Who's there?! ...Your Excellency?!"

"Your Excellency!!" The two guards quickly gave the military salute

"Rest." Robin landed comfortably, and behind him was a woman more than two and a half meters tall

"Your Excellency, please give us a few minutes. We will inform the city officials of your arrival!" The two guards bowed down, and because of his extreme tension, he forgot that the dagger was still in his hand til this moment

Robin nodded, "Alright you can go, but I want to stand alone with this miss for a while before I come down from the wall myself or give you the signal to approach. I don't want anyone to come to me after you, okay?"

"Yes, Your Excellency!!" The two saluted again and retreated

"...This was not a tone of fear but of respect. This is quite rare for a murderous tyrant like you." Flora's voice came from behind Robin

Robin smiled and did not respond to her sarcasm, but rather pointed towards the huge city in front of them, "Tell me... What do you see?"

Flora looked around slowly... The high towers pierced the sky, the gardens scattered everywhere the clean artificial rivers that ran through the city, the shops full of goods and entertainment centers full of children, the open air cultivation grounds where young people competed, guards wearing shiny golden armor roaming the streets to ensure security. In it, adults and kids in the streets treat each other with love and respect, and even the challenges between them are friendly in which no one is injured. Why not, when they are all relatives of His Excellency or descendants of great warriors who fought under his banner? In addition to the beautiful atmosphere and abundant food...

Everything here seemed new and thriving, everything seemed perfect, wherever she looked she seemed to see: "Eden... This is Eden." Flora mumbled, a few drops of tears falling from her eyes without her realizing it, but then she quickly wiped them away and looked at Robin with anger in her gaze, "How many lives did you take to build this place?"

"I don't know, But for the sake of the conversation let's say tens of millions." Robin responded with a frown without the slightest change in his voice, "Greed blinded the people of this world... When I showed the things I can do they attacked my city, destroyed it, killed most of my family members, and indirectly caused the death of my wife and the torture of my only biological son. But the one who had the last laugh was me as you see... I united the entire planet through a sea of blood and in the end, I reached this result that you see now, cool huh?"

"Cool? You are a monster!"

"Eh? Ahahaha." Robin couldn't help himself and laughed out loud, "I can sense 17,000 different law shards in levels 41 and 42, It seems that you were unable to find 9,000 saints and sages like the Bull Head and had to add thousands of knights to fill the gaps. You alone used 17,000 cultivators to get to this power! Let's assume that you were forced to sacrifice all of them in order to gain power and achieve peace, isn't that what I did too? Please don't be a whore and talk to me about honor!"

"How does this compare to that? We're fighting for our lives!" Flora shouted excitedly

"And I'm fighting for everyone's lives!" Robin replied firmly, then turned to look into her eyes, "Secondly, don't you do the same thing every day? At least my war here was clear. They attacked me for what I had, and I killed them for my revenge and for the sake of uniting the planet under my authority, but you killed and ate each other because of what? Because you look different? This food shortage issue is trivial, you can simply raise domestic beasts and eat them or just stop reproducing like rabbits, but hating the different races has simply blinded you all! At least I managed to unite my planet after the bloodbath and now we are pointing our swords at other planets, as for You are not even capable of dreaming of this type of unification! Look into my eyes and say that you would not have washed your planet with blood if you had known that the result would be true unification."

Flora almost argued again, but she quickly closed her mouth and looked at Robin with a cold gaze, "...What is the reason for this conversation? You don't need to explain anything to me, I am but a mere hostage."

Robin looked into her eyes for a few seconds before returning to watching the city with his hands behind his back, "...I don't know either. Maybe I'm still trying to justify myself for invading your planet, or maybe I've taken pity on your talent and want you to be more than just a hostage."

Chapter 634 Knowing the limits

"More than just a hostage in what way? You said that you intend to use me to conduct experiments on the Emperors, or are you going to break your promise now? I know that I am just a hostage in another world now, but you still need to know your limits!" Clear killing intent flashed in Flora's eyes

Robin raised his eyebrows for a moment before he started laughing, "Hmm? Haha, your thinking has gone too far. You are not my type, so don't worry about anything perverted. I also know that there is something between you and the young bull called Aru. This is evident in your gazes and his screams. I honestly don't know how a love story arose between two people of different races on a hellish planet like this, but it is clear that it actually happened somehow. I will keep my promise, I will perform some experiments on you without humiliating you in any way, and you will return to your world after five years."

"It's good that you understand!" Flora calmed down a little, "Thinking about it... What's the deal with these experiments? Don't you have dozens of Demon Emperors under your command? And they all use the fourth stage of the laws as well, why me? What kind of experiments are you going to conduct on me? I will remind you again to know within limits."

"Demons are a race that I have not fully understood yet. During your fight against Amon, I realized that I would not be able to understand the energy pathways in his body any time soon, and even if I did I would be able to replicate it for humans, but you... as a descendant of humans, I can see through you easily. During your short fight, I was able to deduce several things already." " Robin returned to looking at the dazzling city in front of him, smiling, "The experiments will be simple. You will carry out fourth stage attacks in front of me in the manner I ask, That's all. You can continue doing this until the five years are over and return to your beloved, as long as you don't want anything more, of course~"

"Descendant of humans? I am a descendant of red flame dragons! Don't compare me to your worthless race, your kind was there at The Orphan Blood World but were all wiped out before I was even born! " Flora looked down with eyes full of hatred and derogatory. "Secondly... No one would want anything from a little thug like you."

"A little thug? A little one at that?!" Robin turned to face Flora, "You mentioned knowing my limits more than once as well, wait a minute... You don't think you can kill me at any time, do you?"

Flora didn't answer, but maintained a derogatory look at him, a bit of killing intent flashing in her eyes again.

"Hahaha, so this why I've been sensing your killing intent ever since we left Demon City. I thought you were just hating me so I didn't care. Were you thinking about whether you should kill me or not? Maybe the only thing stopping you from trying was your fear of the demons' reaction when they found out!?"

"Isn't this the truth? What keeps you away from death is one slap from me... Don't think that your little trick in the face of Aru's attack will scare anyone. You were definitely hiding some kind of gear, but that kind of gear will not help you against a physical attack!" Flora tilted her head and crossed her arms in front of her plump chest, the confidence evident in her words

And she was really confident of killing him. The only problem is what Robin mentioned, which is that the demons now know about the weak point of the Orphan Blood World. If the news of the death of their *Lord* reaches them, they will certainly not leave anything without taking a bit out of it! This idea terrified her even more after she saw the millions upon millions of demons behind the space portal, ready to storm in at any time!

So Robin's death is literally at her hands, she just doesn't see much point in doing so, not yet at least...

But she does not rule out cutting his throat if Robin tries to do something he shouldn't.

"Haha.. huh.. eh? Why do I feel like you're not joking?" Robin's laughter calmed down little by little until it stopped completely and a look of stupefaction covered his face instead, "Do you think that a weak person will unite this world? Do you think that the demons who forced you to sacrifice your own people will volunteer to serve me because they are good-hearted?!"

Flora stared into Robin's eyes for a few seconds, then looked him down and up before raising her right shoulder.

"Arghhh..." Robin held the bridge of his nose and shook his head in that condescending manner, "I can't continue working with you when this is your idea of me, otherwise you will always think that you have more options other than obedience. I have to change your view of me first."

"I'd like to see you try." A challenging smile appeared on Flora's face, and her slouched stance also turned into a defensive one

Robin shook his head and sighed, then looked around, until finally, he pointed in a certain direction, "See that dagger over there?"

"Hmm?" Flora looked in that direction, even with her sharp eyesight as a level 42 Emperor she had to squint a little to determine what Robin was referring to.

It turned out that Robin was pointing towards the two guards whom he had ordered to leave a short while ago. The two guards were at the beginning levels of Saint's Realm, and under Robin's permission to inform the leaders of the city, they flew away as fast as they could to carry out the order. They had already traveled several miles and had approached the main command center in the city. As for the dagger that Robin mentioned, it is the dagger that the guard was playing with a while ago and is currently tied to his waist

"Yes, I see, what about it? Why did you suddenly change the subject--Eh?!?!" Flora's mocking tone suddenly changed as the scene in front of her also changed

A moment ago, she saw the backs of the two guards flying quickly with the dagger on the waist of one of them, but now she saw Robin floating in front of her with his right hand behind his back and his left hand holding a blade. That blade was touching the pupil of her right eye.

That blade... It was the dagger attached to the guard's waist

The dagger, which was more than 6 kilometers away.

*CLICK* *click* *click*

At this moment, a ringing sound came from under Flora's feet. She automatically looked down without moving a muscle and found metal rings on the floor, all of them precisely cut and from the same point. At first sight, she recognized them. They were the six metal rings that were adorning her ears.

"Keh!!" Flora wanted to scream, but no sound came out, and her body, the body of a Level 42 Empress, froze in place.

Her mind stopped working at this moment, but even if it worked at full efficiency, what could she do? If Robin extends his hand a little longer, the dagger will pierce her eyes and destroy her brain... Is she supposed to gain speed and run back? Use speed to win against a person who traveled a distance of more than 12 kilometers back and forth and cut off her six earrings with precision as if he was cutting cheese, and then found enough time for himself to strike a flashy pose in front of her eyes?!

Robin left her for a few seconds to comprehend the situation before he continued in a cold tone while still staring into her eyes, "Listen carefully, woman. I am a person who loves absolute power without a partner. If you want those five years to go as promised then this will be the last time you challenge me or even hear a tone that I do not like from you... Tsk~ I had to sacrifice the 35th Foundation for this nonsense! If I feel you disrespecting me again, what will be cut off will not be the six rings, but your neck, your heart, your two eyes, your liver, and your Spinal Cord. Then I will return to the Orphan Blood Planet and I WILL bring two or three other Emperors back to replace you, Was that clear?"

*Gulp* "...Understood."

Robin's cold features turned into a gentle smile again, and then he turned the dagger in his hand so that the handle was now facing Flora's eyes, "Good girl, return this dagger to its owner. We don't want him to think we stole it, right?"

"...Yes."

Chapter 635 The Imperial City

?*swoosh*

*Shh* *Shhh*

Flora suddenly appeared in front of the two guards, forcing them to stop with difficulty, "Ah! What do you want from us?!" The scene of Flora, when she was standing loosely behind His Excellency and giving him derogation gazes in front of them, was still stuck in their minds, so her appearance now prompted the two guards to take a defensive position.

Flora didn't say anything... She didn't seem to hear anything!

Her eyes were stunned and her face looked like a mixture of fear and shock, so she just gently threw the dagger at one of them, then with a *swoosh* she disappeared from in front of them and headed towards the wall to stand behind Robin again.

"What's wrong with this big woman?" The guard remained in a defensive position until Flora moved away to a safe distance. Only then did he relax a little and look at the object she threw at him. "...Damn, isn't that my dagger? ...It is my dagger! why isn't it on my waist?!"

"Oh? You never leave this thing on your side, did you forget it on the wall when you saw His Excellency?"

"...Maybe? I don't know, I can almost swear it was tied to my waist! Phew~ It's good that he came back to me, maybe I should thank her later... Let's go!"

It was not long before a crowd of old people appeared. They all approached until they stood at a safe distance from the wall and waited until Robin permitted them to come closer. When they arrived, they all bowed and began to introduce themselves. They were all either elders from the Burton family or advisors and senior officers who participated in the climax of the Greenland War

Through a few questions, Robin was reassured about the situation in the imperial capital, its residents, the method of preparing the new generation of young people, and the available education methods. After he was reassured about the basics of life and food resources in the city, and that his research and development team had opened another *Sky Opening tower* for them here so that they could help to constantly develop the city, He decided to leave for Greenland to begin his research on Flora.

But the crowd in front of him did not take this decision lightly, "Your Excellency, what will the residents of your city say when they learn that their Emperor came to the wall and did not take a step inside? Please at least come and take a look at your palace!"

It didn't take the elders long to convince Robin to waste some time in the city and then *visit* his imperial palace which he had never seen before.

This was the first time that Robin entered his imperial city as well, the city that was built with all the riches of the Jura Planet after the Unification War to be a symbol of power and authority, and it is clear from the designs of everything he sees that its city builders took this point into account.

In addition to the high towers that suggest strength and the widespread green spaces that inspire peace with their artificial waterfalls, even the residential areas are dramatic palaces!

At each corner, there is a thick metal rectangle the length of an adult man, the children would place their hands on it for a moment and say something and then go back to racing or doing challenges. When Robin asked about it, he found that these are tablets that can withstand ten thousand Oaths. They were presented by the elders of the city to the public, and at the beginning of every year the runes on the tablets are destroyed, and then new runes are redrawn to be reused.. He even found statues of himself at every crossroads!

In front of the Imperial Palace, even Robin raised his eyebrows, marveling at the genius of the design and the luxury of the construction

The palace was surrounded by a hollow metal fence and beautifully trimmed trees. Since Robin crossed that metal fence, he had to fly for several minutes over vast green spaces and artificial lakes before he reached the palace building!

As for the palace itself, it was in the shape of an octagon, with a huge dome above it. Its color was milky white, without a speck of dust, and it had a strange shine under the sun as if it were made of pearls. Robin knew immediately what stone was used in this building. It was one of the hardest minerals on the planet, but it was not used in making weapons because reforming it is very difficult. The fact that they were able to find this amount of this specific mineral is a miracle in itself. When he asked the elders, they told him that they had bought a quantity of Nihari to complete the construction.

The palace is surrounded by eight smaller buildings, all of which are octagonal as well. The elders explained that these buildings were intended for servants and guards who were chosen at the highest level.

The palace was completely isolated from the city, and the guards and servants were told not to make any unnecessary noises, they could even be evacuated altogether with a signal from Robin, so Robin no longer needed to hide underground to have some privacy.

However, the elders led him to see a network of underground basements. This network of basements took up the entire area of the palace and almost a quarter of the area of the green spaces around it, making it a small underground village! Robin tried to send his soul sense to scan the network of basements and create a map of it in his mind, but he failed to penetrate it, and when he asked, he found that it was one of the properties of the stone designated for building the basements.

Robin soon learned why that stone was chosen for construction. The map of the basement network showed a huge room in the middle, fully equipped for research if Robin insisted on being completely isolated, but it also showed the locations of many well-secured rooms, and between those rooms, there was a huge maze. It was a prison from which there was no escape!

When he asked them what this was, they told him that it was prepared in case he wanted to bring some things or some people to conduct experiments on them, so that each subject had its own room.

When Robin heard this he burst out laughing, "Hahaha nice, it would be a waste if I didn't put it to good use, well then, I'll try the palace for a few days!"

Even Flora, who remained silent, felt a shiver in her back... Doesn't this mean that she will be the first subject of experiments here? Should you be honored by this?

After a few more tours of the palace and the exchange of some respectful words, the elders left Robin alone in the palace with Flora.

"Haaah~" Robin sat on his huge throne in a huge hall that can seat tens of thousands of people, then smiled at Flora standing in front of him, "Alright, here we go, what are you waiting for? I want you to ignite everything you see using the fourth stage of the Fire Law! Hahaha."

Chapter 636 The burning ashes

?Two years later--

Residence of the Governor of the Ancestral Continent (formerly the Palace of the King of the Black Sun Kingdom)

"What do you mean production decreased again?!" The person sitting at the governor's desk stood up and hit his desk with his palms

It was not known whether that *person* was twenty or fifty years old. His features were young, but his forehead was full of wrinkled lines from knitting his eyebrows. His eyes were strong and focused, but the skin around them was dark, and their whites were full of red lines due to the lack of sleep. His hair was black and went down to his shoulders, but the white hair had begun appearing from overthinking, his fingers with which he hit the desk are tight and strong, but their tips are bloody and uneven, a sign that he is eating them to relieve his anxiety.

A fifty-year-old man standing in front of him spoke quickly and agitatedly, "Your Highness Alfred, please calm yourself down. I went to the talisman workshop in the City of Burning Flowers myself to confirm that perhaps there had been an accident that had caused them to delay, but they said that some of the rune masters had taken a vacation and that was why production had decreased."

"Production has decreased by 80%. Did all the rune masters over there decide to take vacations at the same time? And that happened the moment we asked for production to increase as well?!" Alfred's shouts became more intense, "What about the divine smith factories I asked you to visit?"

"Since the person in charge of that area, Saint Peter Burton died under mysterious circumstances and all the divine blacksmith factories are working as they please, every time I visit one I hear that some of them are sick, some of them want to spend time with their families, and others are demanding salary increases." The man in his fifties looked away sadly, "And not only the blacksmith factories and rune workshops, but the strikes and production disturbances have reached the beast farms, quarries, and search teams for ink supplies. Almost everything related to military equipment has been paralyzed since the request from the shadow swords to increase production!"

"A disaster. This is a complete disaster..." Alfred felt that his leg could no longer support the weight of his body as he collapsed in place

When Billy Burton decided that sitting behind a desk was no longer suitable for him and that he wanted to go to work as a general, he found no one better than Alfred Marley to be his successor. Firstly, because there is no living member of the Burton family who has experience in administration since almost all the elders died in the siege of the ill-fated Jura city, meanwhile Alfred received administrative training worthy of a king, and secondly, because the Marleys took a strict oath to serve Robin, and of course, Alfred's loyalty to Robin was tested and it cannot be doubted.

When Alfred heard the news that he had been chosen to be the ruler of the entire Ancestral Continent, he felt extremely proud and swore that he would do everything in his power to live up to His Excellency and prove to him that he had done nothing wrong by keeping the Marley family alive!

But...

"I wish I had refused... Oh, I wish I had refused..." Alfred scratched his head with his uneven nails until they turned crimson.

"Governor... What do we do now?"

Before Alfred could shout that he didn't know, another voice spoke in the room, "Leave us alone."

"Keh!" When the man in his fifties heard this artificial sound, he knew that one of the shadow swords had arrived, so he turned and quickly left the room.

As for Alfred, he did not move, but rather the scratching of his head had begun to get tougher, "Another shadow sword... what now? You came to tell me that I am a failure again? Do you all think that I do not already know this? Go and tell the superiors to bring in another ruler, I have had enough!!"

"Alfred, it's me.." The shadow of a handsome, long-haired young man emerged from the darkness directly in front of Alfred.

Alfred raised his head, "Theo? You're back...?!"

"I wasn't supposed to come back..." Theo's reply was simple but meaningful enough

Alfred returned to putting his head in his hands, "I understand... The reports of my failure reached you and made you abandon your mission in which you spent years, then you came yourself to remove me from my position or even imprison me, right? I knew it was a matter of time... I am sorry, I should not have accepted this responsibility, The other five continents are all running perfectly because I am not their ruler. I am a waste of air!"

Theo looked sadly with pity for a few seconds before sighing, "...Obviously I should have come earlier. We are indeed suffering from a lack of equipment, but I am not here to punish you. Get yourself together, Alfred. We know that this is not your fault."

"...Huh? What do you mean? Aren't you here to make me stand down?" Alfred raised his head in astonishment

"No, we have known the cause of these disturbances for years, but we decided to ignore them and work out short-term solutions to manage the situation in order to focus on the big picture, but they pushed their luck a lot by starting a mass strike when we were ordered to increase production. Obstructing His Excellency's plans is courting death." Theo spoke coldly

Alfred stood up slowly with a disbelieving smile on his face, "Really..? Don't you blame me?! I mean... What are you up to now? The entire continent is behaving strangely, even the factories and workshops run by a member of the Burton family are currently facing difficulties."

Theo replied with cold eyes, "I will hand you 5,000 shadow swords, and there is an army of 50,000 elite law users coming from the Imperial City as we speak, they will all follow your orders. Assassinate whoever you have to assassinate and kill whoever you have to kill. If you feel that you have to exterminate entire families, do not hesitate to do it. And I also want you to force all workers in the field of military manufacturing to recite a strict oath that forces them to produce a specific quantity per month, and whoever refuses, kill him or force him to recite an oath not to forge anything again in his life... Military industrialization is not a place where anyone can tamper with!"

"Five thousand shadow swords? I didn't even know there were that many... And fifty thousand elites from the Imperial City? Do you mean the Greenland veterans?! This... this will set the continent on fire again, it will remind everyone of the old fire whose ashes we have been working hard to cover!"

"...Reports say that those who went on strike, took leave, etc. have not stopped manufacturing. There are large quantities of divine weapons, talismans, and even arrays flooding the black market, but that is not what worries us since we can retrieve those weapons easily. The real problem is that most of the productive capacity of these individuals has not yet appeared on the black market, meaning they are stashing it! What are they collecting military gear for, Alfred?" Theo took a few steps until he reached the window

"Is this production dwindling?! Storing weapons in such quantities..." Alfred opened his eyes to the end, "But there is no other army on the planet Jorah that would benefit from this weapon. Why would they do something like this?!"

"None yet." Theo tilted his head to the side, "Whoever the hidden hand is behind what's happening is planning something big in the near future. We can't turn a blind eye any longer. We have to cut off that hand right now." Then he went back to looking out the window, "You say we're going to light a fire we were trying to cover its ashes, but their actions say they still see the ashes and they don't want to look away... If that's what they want, that's fine, Let's remind them of the past and light them on fire again."

"But..." Alfred clenched both hands

Theo turned to face him, "Don't worry too much. You won't repeat the massacre exactly as it was. Just use the forces carefully, focus on protecting the military production, and provide options for the guilty. As I told you, they just should know that there are consequences and realize that they are not as immune as they think they are. That's all." "

"...You say that I will not repeat the massacre, but this campaign will leave thousands or even tens of thousands dead... The Ancestral Continent will remember again!!" Alfred sat helpless again

"Good, let them remember!" Theo turned to face Alfred again, " I'm not here to put you on the spot or force you to do the dirty work, this is just the job of the governor and this is why I'm addressing you, You can of course refuse and resign if you find that the task is too much for you."

"I... I'll do it."

Chapter 637 The Midnight Disappearances

?Planet Nihari-- Northern Region-- Inside the palace of the leader of the Azil tribe

*Boom*

"What do you mean you haven't found my great-grandson yet?" A Nihari Giant stood up and shouted so loudly that the ears of all the servants in the palace bleed

Although that giant did not have anything special on him, he was a giant of the same race as the Nihari giants, the same height as the rest, perhaps the only thing that distinguished him was his large, untrimmed beard, and his body was full of muscles even for a giant. He also did not wear any clothes that suggested luxury, but rather his upper half was completely naked, and there was no noble aura around him, on the contrary, he emitted a strong thirst for blood. However, he was definitely not an ordinary person. Anyone who saw him would automatically feel the need to kneel.

If Richard had been here, he would have recognized him immediately. He was the leader of the Al-Azil tribe. The person who ordered the killing of his mother... The chief of the Azil tripe, Dawoodar.

"Please calm down, Your Majesty, The search is still ongoing and we may find him at any time." Another giant who was kneeling in front of him responded, that giant's aura said that he had reached the maximum potential of the third stage of the Body Strengthening Divine Tattoo to the point that he was no longer absorbing energy to strengthen himself, meaning that he was at the top of the Dragon Realm.

"The search has been going on for ten days!! My great-grandson Shamson is the loudest person in the city. How is it possible that you haven't found him yet, you scum?!" The leader of the Azil tribe came forward and kicked the person kneeling in front of him *PAAM* The kick didn't immediately kill him but sent him smashing several walls

"Father, our search for him was illogical from the beginning. Shamson is a high leveled Dragon. Who could harm him without him making a sound? In fact, everyone knows who he is. Who would even dare to harm him inside the city? In my opinion, Shamson encountered a very powerful figure and was probably killed. Either that or he ran away to spend a few nights with a few girls somewhere and does not want anyone to know his whereabouts, and in both cases searching for him will be of no use." Another giant sitting nearby spoke. That giant seemed calmer but his aura wasn't much weaker than his father's. It was clear that he was an Emperor as well.

"Shamson doesn't need to hide with some women, he can get any woman he wants from the street! And who in the entire northern region would dare touch a man of my lineage, let alone Shamson!? .. Could they be the scoundrels of the Bazuna tribe? Years have passed since they accuse us of killing a number of their close men and hiding their bodies, they even cut off their relations with us in several ways. Do you think they wanted revenge for this? Damn, who do they think I am?! If this is true, I will burn the entire northern region over their heads!" The tribe leader, Dawdar, kicked his throne and smashed the wall. It was clear that he was almost mad. Shamson is less than two hundred years old and has a great talent that qualifies him to receive a fourth stage of the Body Strengthening Divine Tattoo. Then he turned back to look at the leader of the investigation team, "And you... if you don't find Shamson, I will start my massacre by killing you all, you and all your families!!"

"If I may... Your Majesty... I think I know what happened to him, but..." The giant at the top of the Dragon?Realm that had been kicked a moment ago returned to his knees again with a face covered in blood and began to look at the son as if he was pleading.

"Speak up, no one will hurt you." The son of the chief of the Azil tribe, Salidar spoke up giving him protection in a cold tone

"...There are rumors circulating that Mr. Shamson has become..." The head of the investigation team paused for several seconds to gather his courage, "...Has become one of the Midnight Disappearances!"

"Midnight Disappearances? What is this..?" Prince Salidar furrowed his eyebrows, the tribe leader stopped his agitation and looked interested as well

"This phenomenon began in the city many years ago. Every day after midnight, a few people disappear without a trace. This phenomenon has been repeated so often that the people of the city began to enter their homes and lock themselves in at the moment of sunset, nightlife almost ceased because of this. But this did not stop the disappearances. Every day we find entire families who have disappeared from inside their homes. We do not know the actual number of those who have disappeared in this way, but the initial estimate says that it is more than a hundred thousand, including quite a few Shamans and Dragons..." the head of the investigation team explained with drops of sweat dripping from his forehead.

"You let criminals kidnap a hundred thousand residents of the great city of Azil over many years and did nothing?" Even Salidar, who always looked like a piece of ice, felt his blood boil

"The investigation has been ongoing for years, but we have not reached any results. For example, there are people who heard screams from the places of disappearances, and we found traces of fighting in them, but those traces do not lead anywhere else. We tried to ambush the perpetrators of these disappearances, but they did not fall into any trap, no matter how elaborate it was, it is as if they hear and see everything we do. We even asked for the help of army squads to secure the streets, but they all died in mysterious circumstances as well! ...Everyone says that whoever does this is an angry spirit."

*Step* *Step* The tribe leader stepped forward slowly, as if he couldn't believe what he was hearing, then bent down to grab the investigation team leader's neck, "Are you telling me... that an angry spirit... has kidnapped my great-grandson?"

"Ugh.. arghgh!!!" The investigation team leader grabbed the tribe leader's hand to try to relieve the pressure on his neck a little, but he failed. He felt like his head was about to explode, and his eyes actually began to bulge out!

"Although I do not believe this explanation of the angry spirit thing, we must count Shamsun among this midnight disappearances for now," Salidar spoke calmly as if he did not see what was happening to the person who had given him protection a short while ago

*Bam*

After blowing off the neck of the head of the investigation team, Chief Dawoodar returned to looking at his son while soaking in blood, "You are the head of the investigation team now. Someone who has touched someone of our lineage, Salidar, ... Bring me their head bring me his head even if you had to burn the city on the heads of its residents!"

"Consider it done."

Planet Jura-- Central Continent-- Throne Hall of the Imperial Palace

*Shaaaaaaaaaaa*

*Boom*

Flora fired an arrow of red flame, piercing a wooden doll. The doll turned into charcoal in the blink of an eye

"Amazing... Amazing... Yes, keep this pace, small, quick attacks using the fourth stage of the major Heavenly Law of Fire, and try to change the limb from which you launch your attack each time." Robin clapped and took another look around Flora, his golden eyes roaming over her body

*Shwaaaaaaa* *Boom!*

Flora fired another fiery arrow with her left hand, then another with her horn, then another and another~ but she seemed disturbed by something and couldn't bear it any longer, "For heaven's sake, would you please stop observing my body like an expert pervert and just observe the arrows for once? Isn't the fourth stage of laws what you want!"

"Hmm? Haha, is this still bothering you again? It's been two years already and you haven't gotten used to it yet?" Robin laughed loudly, but he did not stop or even lift his eyes, which were still roaming over Flora's body

Chapter 638 The variable molecules again

?Robin's eyes were still roaming over Flora's body like crazy

To be more specific, he lowers his golden eyes below the navel area, then raises his eyes slightly upward, passing through her visible navel and up to her full chest, then her beautiful neck, then her red lips, passing through her charming, angry red eyes until he reaches her horns, and sometimes he turns behind her or to her side to see the same energy path but from different angles~ And of course the path his eyes takes changes with every limb Flora intends to use

"I will not get used to your perverted gazes even after a hundred years!" Flora spoke annoyed and shot another fiery arrow from her right leg

"Haha, don't worry, my eyes don't even see your skin. In my view now, you are a bag of blood veins and arteries." Robin laughed, but his eyes were following the path of the energy from the energy gathering center, past her shapely thigh, and until the attack came out from her fingertips, "You should know by now that I do not care about the fourth stage of the law itself, but rather the way you use it, If I want me to observe the fourth stage of the law of fire I would have asked Evergreen to make an entire volcano for me."

"Evergreen again, you mentioned her several times, aren't you going to tell me who she is?"

*Shawalaaa*

"Well, our time together is coming to an end soon, there is no harm in telling you. She is the spirit of Planet Greenland. Now I want you to gather the energy in your limb for a second before you release the arrow."

Flora opened her eyes to the last of them, "Planet spirit? Planets have spirits of their own?" *Boom*

"Of course the planets have spirits! The spirits of the planets have a tremendous amount of information that goes beyond what they should know, and they also have a dangerous mind capable of plotting scenarios behind your imagination, and patience that would last for hundreds of thousands of years." Robin laughed, he seemed quite happy today

"Does our planet have a spirit too?" Flora tilted her head to the side slightly

"Sure! And whoever controls this spirit will be the owner of the planet in word and deed! ...Now shoot the arrow from your right leg."

"Oh... Aren't you afraid to tell me this?" Flora smiled a charming smile before shooting the arrow as she was ordered

"Haha, please go ahead and search for it, I hope you find it! The planet's spirits live in their own domain, and from what I understand, the location of the domain differs from one spirit to another. Why do you think I didn't try to communicate with the spirit of your planet? When I decided to contact Evergreen for the first time, I knew her precise location, yet it took months to reach it. So what about the spirit of a planet I don't know anything about? Just searching for its domain could take years, let alone refining it! And I don't have time for this." Robin spoke as he carefully followed the movements of the energy paths, "Actually, the spirit of your planet is very interesting in my opinion. I used to believe, and I still do, that the spirit of your planet has something to do with that sacrifice thing you're doing, although I have no evidence yet, I cannot think of a second option. "

Flora smiled, "You're not even close to the truth.."

"Oh? Why don't you tell me the truth then.." Robin stopped observing the energy path in Flora's arm for a moment to look into her eyes.

"Hehe don't even dream about it, seeing you try to come up with an explanation is more fun, but I'm sure you'll never be able to guess right!" Flora put her hand to her mouth and laughed

"Interesting..." Robin shrugged her shoulders slightly before returning to what he was doing. Although his relationship with Flora had developed a lot over the past two years because he did as he promised and never humiliated her or even touched her, their relationship had not developed to the point where he would believe anything she said!

*Shawlaaa* "...Why do you keep monitoring the movement of energy in my body anyway? If you see me as a bag of veins as you claim, weren't the first few days enough? Over the past two years, you've made me almost destroy the entire palace several times." Flora remained silent for a few seconds before changing the subject

"It's not that easy. You might see me passing my eyes from the center of the energy pool to your limbs, and you think it's easy, but in reality, I'm monitoring the actions of every variable molecule in that path. Do you know the number of those variable molecules in the blood? I don't think they named a number that can describe what I see yet!!" Robin shook his head, then motioned for her to shoot an arrow at another doll

"variable molecules? What is this?" *Shawla*

*Boom* "To be honest, human Emperors with pure lineage cannot move much energy within their bodies, but I was surprised the day I visited the Orphan Blood Planet that you half-humans could do it easily, so I had to get one of you to run some tests, and my initial suspicion was correct... The variable molecules in your blood are what enable you to transfer energy easily." Robin pointed towards another doll before continuing, "The variable molecules pull the strands of energy away from their regular paths, forming a complex pattern using energy. This pattern is what gives you your physical and psychological properties, but after examining you, I found that the shifting molecules have a much greater importance.. They increase the capacity of energy pathways."

Robin straightened his back and put his hand under his chin, "I'll give you an example. If I gave you a string and told you that you have to connect point A and point B, you would need, for example, one meter if you used the string straight, but if you used the string zigzag, you would need ten, twenty meters or even a hundred meters to connect the two points, even though it is the same distance. Of course, reality is much more complex, but you can understand it in this way. The variable molecules, and because they pull the strands of energy towards them and make them move in a complex manner, indirectly caused an increase in the amount of energy that the regular paths can carry."

Then he raised his shoulder, "I had a similar idea two years ago when I forced the paths to carry a greater amount of energy through the Superior Energy Control Technique. It worked, but the user's energy paths were severely exhausted. As for these variable molecules, they work indirectly to do the same purpose but in a natural, automatic way that does not leave any side effects behind, I don't know if it was the planet spirits that thought of those variable molecules or a higher entity, but it is truly the work of an artist."

"....." Flora stared with half-open eyes and put both hands on her waist

"...What? You are the one who asked! What does it have to do with me if you don't understand?!" Robin laughed out loud then let go of her and walked towards the throne, the only thing that hadn't been burned down in the palace yet

"Whatever~ How long will these monitoring sessions last?" Flora waved

"The observation sessions were long because I discovered that your variable molecules work differently with each type of attack as if preparing an ideal path for the required energy." Robin explained as he collected a number of scrolls lying on the throne and placed them in His ring, before turning back to face Flora and then clapped, "The good news is that we have finished, there is no longer any pattern in the body of the Red Flame Dragon race that I do not recognize now, and most importantly, I fully understood the idea of how the variable molecules work in terms of energy transfer."

"Really? Can I go home now?!" Flora shouted excitedly and even clapped several times, she hadn't taken a step outside of this palace for two years now!

"Return home? Ahahaha... Absolutely not."

Chapter 639 I will help

"What do you mean by no? You said you would only need me to do your research, didn't you say you were done just now?" Flora put both hands on her waist in annoyance

"I'm not done. All I did during the two years was study the work of your variable molecules in different offensive and defensive positions. Now I have to get into seclusion to find a way to do the same to humans without changing them physically or psychologically and making them become rootless monsters like you, no offense, well you understand what I mean~" Robin laughed, harassing this girl has become a daily habit for him, "As for you, you indeed no longer needed in my research, but that does not mean that I will return you to your planet! Five years means five years, you still have three left. "

"What am I supposed to do during the three years?"

Robin shrugged his shoulders, "What does that have to do with me? I will tell the palace servants to obey you and bring you whatever food and supplies you want. Play yoga or something like that, but you must not leave the palace no matter what. I don't know what problems you might cause, and no one here can beat you down but me."

"....." Flora furrowed her eyebrows, obviously not satisfied with playing yoga for three years on a strange planet.

"..." In front of that angry look, Robin scratched his head for a few seconds. The idea of leaving someone like her unwatched for three years on the planet Jorah did not appeal to him either, "Okay, there is another option. I will send you to Planet Greenland. I will allow you to explore it alone as you wish, but if you receive an order from Governor Alexander that he needs you in battle, you will have to obey him and participate, what do you think?"

"...Help them in battles? You have another army of demons invading another world right now?" Flora didn't know how to deal with this information. Maybe Robin meant those demons she saw in front of the gate? Are they fighting in another world? well, there were more than a hundred thousand Saints and Sages among them, it's quite possible... But if this is true, this means that they cannot help the demon army in the Orphan Blood World if there is a war. This is big news!

"What? Of course not, the human army is taking over Greenland." Robin waved dismissively

Flora opened her eyes to the last of them, "You have an army of humans too?!" Until this moment, she had not seen any human force. The civilians in the imperial capital seemed strong, but in the end, there was not a single martial emperor among them. She also did not see any standing army in the city except for a few guards on the wall. Aren't the humans present here the entire human population in this world? And demons inhabit the rest of the planet?

"Of course, I have an army of humans! Never mind, Just tell me what you think. Do you want to stay here and do yoga or go hiking on a new planet to expand your horizons?"

"Expand my horizons or help you expand your empire further?"

Robin shrugged his shoulders at Flora's sarcasm, "Take it as you want, just give me your decision."

*Inhale*

As soon as Robin took a step outside the palace gate, he inhaled deeply, a big smile appearing on his face, "Have you noticed?"

Flora looked around for a few seconds before nodding, "You mean the natural energy density? Yes, I noticed a while ago."

"Since Alexander broke through to the Martial Emperor's Realm, I have received reports that the level of natural energy in the atmosphere of Planet Jura has begun to rise slowly, and even now it is still rising. I believe that the planet will need a few tens or even hundreds of years for the energy to return to stability at its new density level. What is strange about this is that it has begun even though Alexander was on Planet Greenland when he broke through to the Martial Emperor's Realm, cool, huh? I wonder if the energy level will continue to increase until it approaches that of planet Nihari... That would be nice." Then he looked at her, "Although I didn't stay long on the Orphan Blood Planet, this should be happening there too after you and Aru broke through. Even though it was a scam breakout, I think it still counts~"

"Oh?" Flora raised her eyebrows. She actually felt that the energy around her was slowly increasing after she had broken through to the Martial Emperor's Realm, but she did not know that the *Planet Spirit* had a hand in this!

Robin took a long look around, "...Let's go~"

A little later-- Planet Greenland-- Over the steep hill

*Pzzzzzt!!*

"Dad!" As soon as Robin passed through the space portal, he found a familiar shadow throwing itself into his embrace. Who could it be but Zara?

Behind her were Alexander, Emily, Old Man Gu, and a large number of other Martial Emperors and senior advisors who had come to greet him, "Welcome back, Your Excellency."

"Oh, everyone here?" Robin smiled as he patted Zara on the head. Being away for two years wasn't a big deal for people their age, but seeing Alexander and all those emperors here means that nothing big is happening in Greenland right now.

"Of course, Dad! Uncle Riley Burton personally came a few minutes ago and told us to get ready to receive you! .. Who is this?" Zara pointed towards the girl behind Robin, her sexy appearance and powerful aura were always eye-catching wherever she stepped.

"This one?" Robin looked to his side and found Flora with her eyes wide open and even her mouth slightly open. He did not know if this reaction was because of the new planet or because of the number of human Emperors in front of her, but he did not ask, "This is a guest."

Then he looked at Alexander and Emily, "This sweetie over here is called Flora, from a planet called Orphan Blood. She understands the language of Planet Jura very well after a long war with the demon army, so you will not have a problem communicating with her. Let her move inside Greenland as she pleases, but give her a voice ring to summon her when there is any big battle to help you. If you find her trying to harm us in any way or refusing to obey the summons, there is no need to be nice to her. Send a Warlord to knock her head off, okay?"

"Yes." Alexander smiled and nodded. He had many questions, but he knew that now was not the time

"Hey! Which warlord is going to knock my head off? Bring him to me and I'll crush him for you!" Flora's pride woke her from her shock

"Hehe," Robin laughed and did not answer her directly, but continued his conversation with Alexander, "Why are you all here? Is the war over?"

"In response to your Excellency, Tree Father Labikan was killed in the war a few years ago and we benefited a lot from him, but currently the rest of the Tree Fathers and the Human Alliance are in an intense defensive position around our borders. Caesar, with half of his army, and Warlord Julian are fighting in the east and south to expand our influence, While Victoria, along with the other half of the army, and Warlord Eric are fighting in the north and west, the war is rather cold but still our borders are expanding regularly."

"Good, appoint someone to take Flora to Caesar and let her play with Julian for a bit. Tell him not to be too hard on her." Robin laughed and patted Flora on the back twice, "Go with him, don't worry, Julian won't kill you."

"Your Excellency, I will take her myself." Alexander bowed slightly and looked back at Flora with shining eyes, then motioned for her to follow him. Through the distance between the hill and Caesar's army, he would be able to ask her everything that was on his mind.

"Hmph! Even Aru and Sakaar wouldn't dare declare that they can kill me that easily, I want to see what that human Julian can do!" Flora blew some red fire out of her nose and followed Alexander with a mixture of apprehension and aspiration toward this new world.

After Flora and Alexander disappeared from sight, Robin clapped twice, "Okay, okay, you can all disperse. I'm starting a new seclusion, which might take some time, so there's no need to waste your time with me here. You can go back and continue what you were doing. Oh, gentlemen Emperors, I might need your help with some tests coming soon so be prepared!" Then he patted Zara on the head again before leaving her and walking towards his palace as if nothing had happened

After Robin left, Emily took a few steps to stand next to Zara, "...sigh~ Won't he catch his breath or even spend some time with you? I heard from old man Riley Burton that His Excellency has been conducting daily examinations for the past two years without rest, and now he will start another seclusion. He didn't even stop to ask for reports..." His Excellency is putting a lot of pressure on himself, and I fear that he will collapse at this pace."

"..." Zara clenched her small hands tightly, then turned and walked away

"Where are you going?" Emily called out

"I will return to the Heaven Opening Tower. If I cannot help him while I am by his side, I will see if my little mind can help in some other way!"

Chapter 640 Three years

?Three years later-- Above the steep hill-- The headquarters building

*Sooof* Alexander took a long sip of the hot drink in his hands, "The time limit His Excellency has set for us is fast approaching..."

Emily rubbed her forehead for a few seconds, "Yes, he has given us several tasks to quickly strengthen the army before that day arrives... There are approximately four years and ten months left? I don't know if we can do it in time, we still have a long way to go until the army reaches the degree of armament and readiness that His Excellency expects, especially since production stopped for a long period in the factories and workshops of the Ancestral Continent after the war against the rebels began..."

Alexander nodded, "You're right... The Ancestral Continent has been burning for three years. Although there was no war between regular armies, there was not a single city that was not affected by an assassination or a military operation against both sides. The death toll has accumulated to two million so far and is still there continuing! Although the rest of the continents have their own factories and workshops, the number of residents of the Ancestral continent simply exceeds the number of citizens in the rest of the five continents combined by several folds, and so its outbreak of war reduced production by more than half! But at least the factories returned to reopen a year ago under heavy guard and all the new workers took an oath to perform as hard as they can and now production has doubled compared to before. Perhaps we can compensate for those years of war if the factories were well protected, and it would be even better when the war ends..."

"Frankly, I don't see an end to the war on the Ancestral Continent anytime soon, especially since most of the old Rune Masters and Divine Blacksmiths refused to take the oaths and a large portion of them managed to escape... Secondly, even if production is resumed now, this does not mean that production that was halted for two years did not affect the armament plan. No, the production of weapons and talismans, the provision of minerals, and even the mission of the academies to double the number of saints and sages is still a headache for everyone, as if we are trying to fill a bottomless well! ... Even Jabba after he succeeded in Completing his array, is still working day and night to form at least one battalion before the time limit expires, and he is also still teaching about improving the array to make it work faster!" Emily shook her head and looked at Elizabeth

"Jabba's success was an expected surprise, after all, he is His Excellency's only disciple... Now everyone who cannot practice the laws in the internal energy system can take the path of strengthening the body! Of course, it will take some time until more arrays are built and the process, in general, to be improved to be an independent system, but the future is bright for this direction..." Elizabeth nodded smiling

"Even with the facilitation and acceleration of the process, I still don't think it will rival the internal training system..." Alexander waved, "Have you seen that array? It really tests the limits of endurance, there are many people who died inside it during the process of destroying the muscles and severing the entrails, and the result is not that pleasing. If a person has the physical strength to withstand attacks from a saint, for example, does not mean that he can fight a saint. Come on, they cannot even fly!! I still see that the best use of this array is to apply it to the Saints and Sages from the internal energy system to make them stronger... Other than this is a waste in my opinion."

"I see your judgment is a bit harsh, Alexander. The body-strengthening system has barely begun. Who knows what surprises await us?" Emily shook her head, "Secondly, the current users of the Body Strengthening System are those who have no familiarity with the laws, that is, they would have been farmers or canned factory workers somewhere. Are you telling me that giving them such enormous physical strength and equipping them with divine armaments will not help us in wars? at the very least, they can be used as infantry, and they are happy about it."

Alexander shrugged, "If that's what you think~"

But she quickly furrowed her eyebrows, "I just hope he stays calm for a while longer..."

Emily and Alexander looked at each other, they knew what Elizabeth was talking about...

During the last two years, Jabba always seemed nervous and always shouting at his followers. He tried to communicate with Robin more than once to urge him to go to Nihari, but he refused and said that he was busy.

Then Elizabeth seemed to remember something, so she suddenly looked at the two of them and asked in surprise, "Hey... Do any of you know what will happen when the time limit arrives?!"

The answer is that the two raised their shoulders together... No one knows what will happen four years and ten months from today.

Everyone knows that something big is going to happen and everyone is sitting on their nerves waiting. They also know that it is something related to Planet Nihari, from which Jabba and the Demons came. They know that Robin has a strong feud with the Giants there because they killed his beloved wife, Mila. They also heard Jabba speak about enemies coming to invade the planet Nihari, but what exactly will happen? no one knows

Will His Excellency attack Planet Nihari to take revenge? How would he attack and why didn't he tell them any plan!? Then will he help them resist the invaders coming to attack Nihari? If this was his intention, why had he not gone to Nihari yet to assess the defenses and coordinate with the local residents? ...Does this have anything to do with the planet Nihari at all?!

"Making war decisions is not the responsibility of the army, but rather the leader of the nation. His Excellency will tell us what to do when the time is right. What is important is that we be ready to be sent to fight anywhere and at any time." Alexander took another sip of his drink

Emily nodded seriously and gently raised her glasses. She understood Alexander's words and was already working with full energy to fulfill His Excellency's requirements in a timely manner.

"Oh? Interesting, you seem eager to take orders?" A playful smile appeared on Elizabeth's face

"Eager? Who knows what we'll encounter out there." Alexander shook his head, "But His Excellency's wish must be obeyed."

"Haha, there's no need to hide it. I see the flame burning in your eyes! I wonder... During the Great Hill Agreement, who stressed that we would only obey Emperor Robin in peace and that we did not have to listen to his orders in case he called us to go to war? Now look at you, you look like you want to encourage him to start wars just to follow him!" Elizabeth laughed out loud

Even Great Alexander blushed a little, "Weren't you with me that day too? Let's leave the past..."

"Hmm, that man really has his own charm~" Elizabeth leaned her back on the sofa and murmured, her eyes sparkling slightly.

"Don't even think about it." Emily looked at her from above

"Oh? Do you want to take him from me? I'm afraid the competition will be one-sided." Elizabeth giggled, her smile at this moment was deadly

"Me?! Don't get me into your fantasies, I know my worth." Emily blushed and stood up shouting, then sat down quietly and adjusted her glasses, "Plus, His Excellency is not interested in women anyway. In the last three years, he has not met anyone other than the old men and women from the research and development department, especially those who are interested in chemistry and the others responsible for the recordings of the four planets, for three years he did not even sit with his adopted kids, go to a restaurant, or even take a break for a single hour..."

"Hehe, if he was the lazy type, he wouldn't have gotten to where he is~" Elizabeth shrugged, "But I wonder what he's been up to with the R&D team for three long years..? Hmm, well I guess we'll know in time, since when can we predict what does His Excellency want anyway~ Even the research and development department members who are helping him don't know what they are helping with!" Elizabeth covered her small mouth and giggled.

At this moment, Emily heard a voice message and quickly stood up with her arms latched on her thighs. Only after a few seconds did she breathe a sigh of relief.

Alexander put down his drink and quickly stood up, followed by Elizabeth, "The only one who makes you act like this when you receive a message from him is His Excellency, what did he say?!"

"...He said he wanted me to send a few Martial Emperors to the Green Dawn Mountain to try something!"
