

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband

Chapter 151 Obvious Jealousy

Emelia lowered her head and whispered to the kitten. Although the kitten was not used to this strange environment, it did not show too much anxiety and uneasiness.

Julian looked down at the person squatting on the ground. Her eyes were so gentle that they were beyond words. He couldn't help but wonder in his heart, if they had a child at that time, wouldn't they have to get divorced ?

With such a good personality, she must be gentle and patient to their babies.

Yet...

What was he thinking back then ? How could he say that she didn't deserve to have his baby ? Maybe now even if he wanted to have a child with her, she wouldn't want to.

When his thoughts back to reality, he said again, 'I still have a lot of things like cat food and cat sand in my car. I'll get them up.'

In order to make little cat better adapt to the new environment, Julian brought the cat basin, cat nest, and so on. With the familiar smell around, it could fit in faster.

'Yeah.' Emelia nodded gently. 'Thank you.'

Julian wanted to say something but stopped on second thought. Then he went downstairs to get something.

He had been busy for more than half a day and had not eaten yet. He wanted to ask for lunch, but he didn't know if she could let him eat.

No need for too much. A bowl of home-cooked noodles was enough.

Julian was busy running back and forth twice before he carried all the things he had brought for the cat from the car to Emelia's place.

The reason why he had prepared so many things was that he was worried that Emelia would receive this kitten as a gift too suddenly. There was nothing about the kitten at home, which would make her flustered, so he bought the whole set.

There was everything the kitten needed, including the drugs, so Emelia didn't need to spend time shopping for the cats for a while.

After receiving the items, Emelia began to clean up. She settled down the cat beds and litter boxes. And then she took Fluffball to familiarize itself with her place. Mimi, who was already familiar with this place, would go to her from time to time for hugs.

Chapter 152 I Want to Go After You

At this point, Julian felt that he could not bear it any longer.

Therefore, he put down the chopsticks in his hand and looked at Emelia who was sitting opposite him seriously. He solemnly declared, 'Emelia, I don't want to endure anymore.'

Emelia was completely confused. 'What?'

Julian's voice was loud and clear, 'I'm getting you back.'

Emelia was slightly startled.

Actually, he had admitted that he had fallen in love with her in the warehouse where she had been kidnapped last time.

But at that time, she was in the panic of being kidnapped. She was not in the mood to think about what he said at all. She even vented a lot of negative emotions on him because the person who kidnapped her was Caroline.

When they were at the hotel in the Capital, he said that he should tie her up and re-marry her. She only thought that he was drunk.

This time, he unexpectedly said he wanted to chase after her...

Emelia came to her senses and replied calmly, 'I have a boyfriend now.'

Julian simply said, 'So what?'

Emelia was speechless.

Julian said angrily, 'We can get divorced after getting married. So what if you have a boyfriend? You two will break up sooner or later!'

If they didn't break up, he would make them break up! Julian swore in his heart.

Emelia was so angry that he couldn't say a word. Although she was only a nominal male and female friend of Viggo, was it still a person for Julian to curse others to break up like this?

At first, she was moved because he gave her a cat, but now she quickly got up from the table and said unhappily, 'Eat quickly, and leave after you finish eating.'

Chapter 153 Backfire

The Old Time Cafe and the Fleur Club that Julian often went to all belonged to Ezra. They were also the places where they met with important people.

In addition to their daily work, every staff in these two places was very good at martial arts. Once something happened, they would come forward to protect them as soon as possible.

After what Caroline had done, Julian was very concerned about Emelia's safety.

Emelia could sense something from Julian's solemn tone. In disbelief, he asked, 'Those shop assistants don't know kung fu, do they?'

Otherwise, why would he say that they could protect her?

Julian replied indifferently, 'What do you think?'

Emelia sucked in a breath of cold air, and then asked vigilantly, 'Julian, are you doing legal business?'

A coffee house where the staff were all martial artists? She thought this was only possible in films or TV dramas.

Julian was so angry that he laughed. 'If I'm not running a legal business, could I be ranked as one of the top ten excellent young men in Riverside City?'

Hearing this, Emelia let out a sigh of relief.

Julian and Ezra had been selected as the top ten young talents in Riverside City year after year. If they were recognized by the government, they couldn't be reckless.

Julian explained, 'Every industry has its own dangerous side. We did this for our own safety.'

Not everyone could accept failure. Some people would take risks if they could not get what they wanted. They would do anything, and the more money they were involved in, the more unsafe they were.

They were also doing this for self-protection and self-defense. It was their learned experience to prepare for unexpected situations.

'Sure.' Emelia nodded, and then said, 'What about Annie, whom I learned from how to make coffee, she knows how to fight too?'

Chapter 154 Creating Obstacles on Purpose

Yvonne would never have thought that Emelia would be so familiar with the chief barista of this cafe. One had to know that when she ordered coffee, the girl had been indifferent to her with a cold face.

If it weren't for her serious business today, she would have complained about her.

Also, she thought that Emelia, a bumpkin, had never been to such a high-end cafe.

Just as she was about to flare up, the coffee maker patted her chest and said loudly to Emelia, 'Today, you can chat as much as you want. It's all on the house.'

Emelia was surprised. 'For free?'

The barista smiled and said, 'Yes, it's my treat.'

Yvonne's nose was almost out of joint.

She deliberately came half an hour in advance. The coffee she ordered was still the most expensive in order to make Emelia spend more money. As a result, the barista said that she invited Emelia today...

Yvonne's chest was choked with anger. She was so angry that her stomach ached.

Emelia said to Annie with embarrassment, 'That's so kind of you.'

'What's wrong with that? Aren't we close friends?' As Annie spoke, she raised her arm and wrapped it around Emelia's shoulder.

Annie's character was so carefree and straightforward, but although she behaved like a tomboy, she was very quiet and scrupulous when she made coffee, and her skills were superb. She had won almost all the champions in various coffee competitions.

It was hard for Emelia to refuse. 'Then I should thank you first. You go ahead with your work. I'll be there.'

Chapter 155 People Do Change

Yvonne's scream made Ezra, who was watching the battle through the monitor screen in the staff office deep in the cafe, took out his ears.

Yvonne's voice was so loud that he felt his eardrums were almost deaf when he put on his headphones.

Julian was worried that Emelia would come to see Yvonne alone, so he told Annie and the others to protect Emelia, and then he came here early in the morning. Ezra had always liked to watch the fun, so he naturally followed.

Just now, Emelia and Yvonne had a verbal battle, and both of them had heard it clearly through the surveillance camera.

Clearly, Emelia had gained the upper hand the entire time.

However, it was easy to be cautious. He didn't expect to hear Emelia say that she would sleep with Julian every day. He took off his headphones and teased Julian, 'Sleep every day? Julian, you're energetic.'

Julian's eyes were still fixed on the monitor screen. When he heard this, he didn't even look at Ezra and said, 'What? Are you tired of it?'

Why he had to be so sharp-tongued!

Hearing these words, Julian felt his mouth grow dry. He couldn't help but think back to their three years of marriage.

In fact, as long as he was at home every day, they had the sex, but didn't do it frequently.

He was busy with his work, and he had at least one week off on a business trip every month. If omitting that woman's period every month, they could only be together for half a month.

The days when he just came back from a business trip were indeed more frequent, but every time he went for a business trip, there would be a long period of time.

Therefore, for Julian, this was not a matter of physical strength. Ordinary men had this kind of requirement.

Outside, after being splashed with coffee on Emelia's face, Yvonne screamed and raised her hand to wipe the coffee on her face. She had put on delicate makeup today just to be superior in front of Emelia.

As a result, her makeup was ruined, and she looked as embarrassed as possible.

Chapter 156 Battle for the Affection

'Julian, you have nothing better to do??' Emelia asked, her head aching.

Julian frowned and said unhappily, 'I bought Fluffball for you. What's wrong with me going to see him?'

For a moment, Emelia was at a loss for words.

If she had known earlier that Julian would give her a cat so as to make so many contacts with her. Emelia would never have accepted Fluffball, but now she couldn't say anything else.

She really liked Fluffball. Fluffball looked very beautiful.

She didn't know where Julian bought this cat. It was really beautiful and soft.

In truth, Emelia was also part of the Association of appearances. Otherwise, he wouldn't have been fascinated by Julian's appearance back then. Now that Fluffball looked so beautiful, how could she not be fascinated?

On the other hand, Emelia felt that her personality was also very similar to hers. She was quiet, warm, and did not fight for anything.

Emelia looked at Fluffball as if she had seen her past self. Her heart ached and she felt pity for her. Because of these complicated feelings, she could not leave Fluffball at all.

Because Julian insisted on going back with her to see Fluffball, Emelia had no choice but to take his car and leave.

‘I heard your conversation with Yvonne,’ Julian said as he drove.

Emelia was speechless.

She thought he couldn’t hear her, but when he said he could hear everything, her face turned red in an instant. She felt as embarrassed as she could.

She was already in this state, but Julian continued to tease her. ‘I don’t know. You remember what happened to us before, especially in that aspect.’

Emelia rolled down the car window to let the wind outside cool down her face. Then she hesitated and explained, ‘I just wanted to attack Yvonne...’

Chapter 157 We Can’t Go Back to the Past

‘Don’t scare him.’ In time, Emelia stopped Julian.

Although he was a bit reluctant, after listening to Emelia’s words, he still straightened up. However, he still said, ‘If he hides all day, when will he become familiar with you?’

Emelia wasn’t in a hurry. ‘He loves quietness. Why force him?’

Julian glanced at the cat in her arms and couldn't help saying, 'Don't tell me you don't care about him because you already have Viggo's cat?'

Emelia put Mimi down and let her play by herself.

Then she looked at Julian resignedly and said, 'Am I so ruthless in your eyes,?'

Julian snorted and said, 'I don't know how you treat others, but you are ruthless to me.'

She decided to divorce and so she did, with no room for discussion.

Now again she intended to ignore him and so she did. She even didn't smile at him.

Feeling that he was being unreasonable, Emelia did not want to talk to him anymore. She simply changed the topic. 'If you want to see Fluffball, I'll try to call him out.'

Julian simply said, 'Forget it.'

He was not here to see the cat, but to see her.

Emelia then said, 'Then hurry back to the company.'

What?

He had just arrived and she was about to kick him out before he sat down?

Chapter 158 Be a Nominal Daughter

In the evening, Vincent called Emelia and asked how she and Yvonne talked during the day.

Emelia told Vincent as it was. Vincent was very angry. ‘She bullied you like this just because she thinks you don’t have any backing and can’t do anything to her!’

Emelia hadn’t expected Vincent to be so angry. She said gently, ‘It doesn’t matter. I’ll give her two more chances.’

Emelia wasn’t a little girl who didn’t know anything. She naturally knew that Yvonne, as well as Caroline, bullied her because she didn’t have any backing.

If she was from a prominent family, they would hurriedly curry favor with her. How would they dare to bully her?

‘It’s useless to give her ten more chances!’ Vincent said angrily, ‘Do you know? Her father asked someone to talk me into going easy on her. Isn’t it obvious that they are bullying you and don’t want to apologize to you?’

‘They asked someone to talk to you?’ Emelia was utterly stunned.

Vincent snorted, ‘Yes, he reached me through his connections in the Capital.’

Because Vincent was in the Capital, Randolph Sullivan directly relied on the connections in the Capital. Obviously, Randolph was really powerful.

They only cared about Vincent’s attitude. As long as he let go of her and did not have Yvonne apologize to Emelia and did not notify the industry of Yvonne, they did not care about Emelia’s feelings at all.

Emelia muttered apologetically, ‘I’m sorry, Mr. Longerich. If you’re bothered, I will let it go.’

Emelia knew that the worldly customs could not be avoided by anyone in any society.

And the higher the status of a person, the more he would be bound by these worldly customs.

Chapter 159 It Has Nothing to Do with You

Emelia then told Nina about this, who was even more excited than her. On the phone, Nina kept screaming, ‘Ah ah ah ah ah ah...’

‘Emelia, you do have charm! You got yourself a rich dad after you went to the Capital!’ Nina said happily, ‘Let’s see if Yvonne dares to bully you this time!’

In terms of family background and reputation, Vincent was much nobler and more prominent than Randolph.

Vincent was a big shot in the circle of writers and screenwriters, and the Longerich family behind him was even more prominent and influential in the Capital. How could Randolph be comparable to Vincent?

Emelia sighed in distress. Nina immediately guessed what she was worrying about. She continued, ‘Don’t tell me that you are not good enough to be their daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Longerich have met various people for so many years. Why do they choose you as their nominal daughter? It must be because you’re good.’

Nina gritted her teeth angrily and said, ‘Silly girl, you’ve really been hurt too badly by that scumbag Julian. You don’t have any confidence at all.’

Nina proudly encouraged Emelia, ‘You are the most gentle, beautiful and talented girl in the world. Nobody else should be Mr. Longerich’s nominal daughter except you.’

Emelia was amused by Nina. She straightened her back and said half-jokingly, ‘Alright, alright, I know. I am the most beautiful in the world!’

Only then did Nina become satisfied. ‘That’s right, that’s right. You should have such an attitude and confidence.’

It was all Julian’s fault. The three-year marriage had destroyed Emelia’s confidence. She had been the campus belle and the most beautiful talented girl in the University of Riverside City. In terms of appearance and temperament, she could directly start a career in the entertainment circle.

‘Thank you, Nina.’ Emelia thanked Nina softly.

With Nina’s comfort, Emelia felt that she was not that stressed. Nina’s personality had such a charm. She would always affect those around her unknowingly.

Nina joked, ‘There’s no need to thank me. In the future, if you become somebody, don’t forget that I’m your best friend.’

Emelia promised, ‘I’ll write a story specially for you in the future to thank you for accompanying me for so many years.’

Chapter 160 They Dare Lay a Finger on You?

Of course, Emelia could see Heather's anger, but she ignored her. She walked over and sat down opposite them as if nothing had happened. She asked flatly, 'What are you for coming to me today?'

Gerhard replied in a kind tone, 'Well, I know what Caroline did. She really went too far.'

Emelia didn't speak, waiting for Gerhard to continue.

Gerhard added, 'After all, you two used to be sisters-in-law. In view of that, can you give her a chance to reform?'

After saying that, Gerhard looked at her quietly. Although he seemed to be negotiating with Emelia all the way, the pressure and faint warning in his eyes were daunting.

Emelia calmly looked into Gerhard's eyes for a few seconds before she suddenly chuckled.

At first, she thought that she might not sue Caroline or not if Gerhard and Heather could be a little more sincere. But it was obvious that Gerhard and Heather wanted to force her to compromise.

Their arrogant was exactly the same as that of Randolph and Yvonne. The two families were indeed worthy of being relatives.

Emelia smiled and asked Gerhard, 'Did Caroline consider that I was her sister-in-law when she did it?'

Gerhard was rendered speechless by her words on the spot. Emelia said mockingly, 'Don't plead with our past. Caroline never treated me as her sister-in-law, and you two have never truly regarded me as your daughter-in-law!'

Emelia said sharply.

Gerhard was a little embarrassed. In his memory, Emelia was dull, not good at words, reserved, and introverted. When did she become so eloquent?
