

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 441 She will do Everything

The person standing outside the door was the woman he had been missing all the time.

She was so beautiful and tender.

Julian was so excited that he held her at once. Kicking the door open, he fell into the big bed with her in his arms.

They couldn't help kissing each other. There was no time for Emelia to say a word.

They kissed passionately and hugged tightly.

They hadn't seen each other for a while. The room became messy...

Hours later, Emelia leaned tiredly in Julian's arms and complained, "You are really—"

But Emelia didn't continue, because she didn't know how to describe what he had just done.

Julian ruffled her hair and smiled in a low voice, "What's wrong? Don't you like that?"

Emelia glared at him annoyedly and thought he was becoming more and more shameless.

Julian held her in his arms, saying in a gentle and affectionate tone, "Thank you for your surprise. I love it very much." He liked it so much. It was wonderful that he would like to experience it again.

He thought he would meet her after he hurried to Riverside City and then took a plane to Beijing. He didn't expect to see her as soon as he got up.

After thinking of this, he was so moved and then kissed her again on the bed.

Emelia was too tired to stand this, so she had to quickly push him and changed the topic, "Well... I have something to tell you." Julian narrowed his eyes.

He stared at her, "Are you getting used to asking me to do something after having sex with me?"

Emelia was shy, "No!"

Whenever she wanted to talk to him, he got her to bed first. After that, he would think of what she said as "request after sex".

Julian leaned sideways beside her and said calmly, "Tell me, what's the matter?"

Emelia glanced at him and felt guilty.

But she quickly had second thoughts that she had nothing to do with Harry. Why was she guilty?

They just had a meal, except that Harry still showed affection for her in his eyes and advised her to deliberate on the decision for getting back together with Julian at that time.

Emelia didn't know why Harry had to pursue her who was six years older than him. He was so young and there were so many beautiful girls who were his age.

Julian didn't have to think about it. By looking at her expression, he knew there must be something wrong.

He squinted slightly and asked her, "What, say it?"

When Emelia summoned up the courage to say it out, her mobile phone rang.

It was Nina's call. Emelia's eyelids jumped up in an instant.

She was afraid that Nina would tell her that Tara made an action. After all, Nina surfed online all the time and read gossip. It was Nina who read all the news about her and then told her.

After she answered the phone in fear, she heard Nina's voice, "Did you watch the news?" Emelia had a feeling of impotence, "Was it about Harry and me?" Nina was surprised, "How do you know?"

"I guessed so. I dined with Harry that day, which was seen by Tara." As soon as Emelia finished, she felt a terrible chill over her head.

Emelia was so nervous and hurriedly said, "Talk to you later."

Then she hung up in a hurry.

With a slight cough, Emelia raised her eyes to look at Julian.

Julian said coldly, "What happened to you and Harry? Did you two eat together behind my back?"

Emelia wanted to roll her eyes.

Why did he have to put it that way?

She explained, "What do you mean by saying "behind your back"? He happened to be in Beijing and was officially announced to be the hero. He had to thank me and invite me to dine. I felt difficult to decline his great hospitality and then agreed."

"Well." Julian sneered, "Didn't you deliberately choose the time when I was in the United States for not letting me know?" Julian was so jealous. In a panic, Emelia flung her arms around his neck to kiss him, because she didn't know what to say.

Julian was almost going to laugh.

Now she knew how to coax him. Sometimes she confessed something after having sex and sometimes she took the initiative to kiss him.

After Emelia felt that Julian had eased down, she loosened him and said, "We just had a meal. Who knew that Tara was there!"

"As soon as I saw the way she looked at me, I felt something wrong. I didn't expect that she took action." Emelia was embarrassed to say that Tara looked like catching her adultery in the act.

Julian didn't say anything more. He took his mobile phone out and opened the Twitter to see what they had written to blacken her name, who was paid by Tara.

Emelia got close to seeing it together with Julian. As a result, after reading a few words, Emelia broke down and raised her hand to cover her face.

Did Tara have some problems? It was said that Julian was cuckolded by her and that she was lascivious that she hooked up with a young man when Julian was abroad.

Was Tara talking about herself about getting someone being cuckolded?

Emelia heard from Nina that even though Tara used to be with Trevor, she kept having inappropriate contact with other men.

Emelia didn't know whether Trevor didn't know or just turned a blind eye to this.

Being cuckolded was a bad word for a man. Julian looked terrible after reading that.

Emelia slid under the cover, feeling a little desperate.

She wanted to tear Tara's mouth.

After Tara spread rumors about her and Harry, she could imagine how Harry's fans would scold her.

Julian was so angry that he took her out of the quilt, getting close to kissing her hard as a punishment.

Emelia covered her painful lips and complained, "Are you a dog? Why do you bite?"

Julian squinted and asked, "Are you afraid now?"

Emelia said with an unpleasant face, "Don't be sarcastic. Hurry to think about how to deal with it."

Now the people on the network were talking about Harry and her, which had not only affected her and Julian's reputation, as well as Harry's, but also indirectly affected the show "I Gotta Find You".

What if people believed that Harry acted as a hero because of his affair with her. What would they do if the gossip triggered a boycott towards the show?

This was also the ultimate goal of Tara, to retaliate against them in this way. Tara planned not only to make her infamous but also to result in the cancellation of the show.

Julian loosened Emelia and leaned back against the head of the bed, "I have an idea. It depends on whether you want to do it or not."

Emelia hurriedly said, "As long as I can quell the scandal, I will do anything." Julian raised his eyebrows and asked her, "Are you sure?"

"Yes." Emelia agreed.

Julian got up to get out of bed, "OK, I'll make a call."

Emelia pulled him, "But you haven't said what you want me to do?"

Although she said she would like to do anything, he should tell her his plan at least.

"You don't need to do anything. Just keep silent. Of course, you have to remember what you just said, that you are willing to do anything." Julian then bent over to kiss her lips and went to make a phone call with a happy smile.

Somehow, Emelia thought his smile was with bad intentions.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 442 Julian's Future Wife

Julian put on his clothes and went outside to make a call. Emelia didn't know how he would quell the scandal, and she couldn't know his way.

She didn't pay attention to it. After all, Julian wouldn't cheat her.

She was so bored that she took her mobile phone to look at the online comments, lying on the bed. She had to admit that some people's words were worse.

Harry's fans were madly scolding her, saying that she robbed the cradle and was shameless.

Emelia couldn't help rolling her eyes. The word was also suitable for her, but she was the cradle because Julian was the one who robbed the cradle.

Some scolded Harry for his bad character. He even sold his charms to get the role. Others went to the official Twitter of "I Gotta Find You" to complain that Harry used improper ways to get the role and asked the crew to change him.

Emelia was even more speechless about this. Harry's family had a factory. He was a second rich generation. No matter how he would not be reduced to relying on sleeping with someone to get his role.

If Harry wanted to act, in an impolite manner, he could invest in the crew.

And this time, although she recommended Hero as the hero, the final decision was made by Trevor, the director, and the mysterious investors behind Trevor. Her current position in the screenwriting industry was not enough for her to manipulate the cast.

Even a famous figure like her teacher Kelaina Salkowski had to compromise with the investors sometimes.

What Emelia didn't expect was that there were still some people who shipped Harry and her. They also said that the young but sexy boyfriend portrayed by Harry in the romantic drama with Nina had left a deep impression in their hearts.

Now, in reality, it was the same kind of sister-brother love as in the drama. They felt excited, so they strongly support Harry being with her.

When Emelia was looking at these comments, Nina called.

"Have you discussed with your Julian how to do public relations?" Nina asked this because she knew that Emelia and Julian had a good relationship now. When Emelia was involved in this trouble, she must discuss with Julian how to deal with it.

Emelia answered truthfully, "He went out to make a phone call. I don't know what he would do."

Nina said, "People who worked in magazines called and let me ask you what's going on. The magazine with the cover of our photograph will be pre-ordered soon. They are worried that the gossip will affect the sales."

If Nina didn't say it, Emelia would have forgotten the magazine. She was so shocked that she quickly got up from bed and asked, "If it has a bad influence on the sales, what are our responsibilities?"

Nina smiled and said easily, "Of course, we don't have to bear the responsibility. We're not responsible for their sales." However, although Nina said so, Emelia also knew that if it reduced magazine sales, GLAUCOUS would lose face.

Nina said jokingly, "You don't need to have the pressure of sales at all. As long as you ask, Julian will buy all of them. At that time, they will be sold out during pre-order."

Although Nina comforted her, Emelia still felt guilty, "I'm sorry. I didn't expect such a thing to happen at such a critical juncture.

Please say sorry on my behalf to the magazine."

"Didn't you say that Julian takes charge of handling this matter? We should believe in his ability that he will solve it." What was Julian's identity? If he couldn't handle this little thing well, how could he lead the Hughes Group to go through difficulties?

"When I meet that bitch Tara next time, I have to tear her mouth." After Nina thought of Tara, she was so angry. "She's not only against you but also me."

"Last time, Tara and I both fought for the endorsement opportunity of Lorlene Jewelry. She was certainly upset for losing to me.

She kept thinking of some tricks against me. It happened that the magazine is going to be ordered in advance. It can be said dealing with two people at one stroke."

Emelia knew that, but she didn't expect Tara would seek revenge for the smallest grievance like this.

"Tara is in such a situation and she doesn't practice her acting skills. She even wants to deal with us, who is so stupid. How long can an actress be young?" Nina despised Tara very much.

How long could an actress who relied on beauty stay in the showbiz?

After the beauty became old, who would let her act if she didn't have acting skills at that time?

Nina knew this truth from the first day of her career, so she never complained at the beginning of her trough. She just acted in many crews without saying anything to constantly improve her acting skills.

Emelia said, "I heard from my father that Trevor is completely broken with her now. He is now pursuing his ex-wife, but Tara has not given up and found him many times."

After listening to that, Nina immediately laughed with schadenfreude, "Is it true? Did Trevor break up with her? Haha..." Nina laughed loudly and then said, "But she doesn't lack men beside her, especially old men."

Emelia had to admit that Nina had a sharp tongue.

Outside the room.

Julian called Harry's agent for the first call. After the phone connected, he directly asked, "Was his contract duration up? Is he interested in signing with the Hughes Group?"

Harry's contract with the original company just expired some time ago, and he did not renew it.

Because this gossip was so hot on the Internet, Harry's fans were saying that the original company was too bad for him and that the distribution of resources was extremely unfair. If Harry didn't work hard, Harry wouldn't have been famous at all.

Harry's agent quit to follow him, so Julian directly said he wanted to hire Harry.

The agent of Harry was so worried because of the gossip between Harry and Emelia. At this critical time, it was said that he had an affair with the screenwriter. How would the gossip end?

After listening to Julian's words, the agent was confused, "Mr. Julian, what, what do you mean?"

Julian said in a deep voice, "It means that if he signs with the Hughes Group, the fact that he had dinner with Emelia can be interpreted as my future wife having dinner with the actor in my company. Because I was on a business trip abroad, she rewarded Harry for him getting the character in the show.

Harry's agent opened his mouth wide like a circle because there was too much information in Julian's words.

First, Julian admitted Emelia as his girlfriend and used the word "future wife" to describe her. It seemed that good things were coming.

Second, Julian had the intention to sign on Harry, which would promote Harry's future development.

"He must be willing to sign, must." Harry's agent decided for him, "Even if he doesn't want to, I'll persuade him." Were you kidding? Only by following the public relations plan given by Julian could end this scandal.

If Harry didn't want to end his career, he could only accept this proposal.

"Well, I'll call the counsels of my company now to ask them to draw up a contract for you." Julian arranged in an orderly way, "The department of public relations will issue an announcement later. You can respond at that time."

"OK."

After the agent's promise, Julian hung up.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 443 What Shows That You Love Someone

Julian made the second call to the manager of the HGH to tell him to prepare to sign with Harry.

Although the manager was surprised, he didn't say something more since it was the boss's decision. It was good news for the Hughes Group to sign with Harry who was a popular celebrity now.

Julian then told the manager of the department of public relations to prepare a document, which should make clear that the relationship between Emelia and Harry was as Julian's wife and the actor in his company.

After doing all this, Julian put away his mobile phone and returned to the room.

He was so happy that he even felt it was necessary to invite Tara and Harry to eat together. If there weren't Harry's willingness to ask Emelia out and Tara's revenge, he couldn't have had the opportunity to publicize his relationship with Emelia so soon.

Once the news that Emelia was Julian's future wife was released, he would be her boyfriend openly.

When Julian returned to the room, Emelia had just finished the call with Nina.

Seeing him back, she quickly asked, "Are you finished?"

Julian nodded, "Almost."

Now he was waiting for the news from Harry. After Harry agreed to sign, the announcement could be sent out.

He was not worried about signing a contract. Only Harry had a little conscience, he should take this opportunity to let Emelia get tid of being scolded like him.

Harry was a famous idol who should not fall in love or have an affair with any woman.

Otherwise, why did so many idols date secretly?

Unless Harry didn't want his acting career anymore.

Emelia asked curiously, "What did you do?"

"You'll know soon." Julian didn't say his plan out.

Emelia asked again, "Can't you tell me?"

"Yes." Julian kept it secret.

Of course, he couldn't tell her that he would publicize their relationship. What if she objected? He deliberately acted first and reported afterward. Anyway, this matter was troublesome. This was the only way to solve it.

Harry's studio.

After listening to Julian's words quoted by his agent, Harry was very angry, "Julian is not helping us deal with the scandal at all. He is just using it to open his relationship with Emelia."

Perhaps because they were both men, Harry read Julian in an instant.

"I won't sign." Harry was so angry.

If he did sign with Julian's company, Emelia would be the person he couldn't love and miss.
He wasn't ready.

He didn't want to give up.

Where couldn't he compare with Julian?

No matter his appearance or family background, he was no better than Julian. As long as he persisted, Emelia would be moved for him sooner or later.

Harry's agent did his best to convince him, "Can you see it clearly now? Julian and Emelia love each other. It's useless for you to insist anymore."

"Emelia loves Julian all the time. She was too sad to be with him because Julian didn't value her before."

"Now Julian has turned back and tried so hard to pursue her back. Do you think there can be any room for the others?" Harry closed his pretty lips and said nothing.

"It's not that Emelia doesn't love Julian anymore. In that case, you still have a chance to get her love."

"She still loves Julian! Otherwise, why did she go to Riverside City Hospital, who said she wouldn't fall in love before, when Julian was injured and in the hospital? "

"Wasn't it because she loved Julian?"

“As soon as Julian was injured, they made up again. Why can’t you know that even I can see through?”

Harry moved his eyes after a series of questions. He turned and wanted to stride away.

His agent yelled behind him, “You’re not blind, you’re stubborn!”

Harry paused after listening to the scold. His noisy agent seized the chance to say, “Well, if this can’t be solved, do you want Emelia to be scolded all the time because of you?”

“She doesn’t want to have anything in common with you. You insist to invite her to eat with you. Now she has been involved in this trouble, but you didn’t do anything. Is this the way you love her?”

“You think it doesn’t matter if your career is ruined, but what about her? What’s her mood if she can’t work?” “Harry, you’re still too young. The way that Mr. Julian handled this matter was the expression of loving someone.” “Julian uses all his means to protect her. Even if he has his idea, at least he won’t hurt her.”

After listening to the agent’s last few words, Harry was sad and hopeless.

He turned back to the office and sat weakly on the sofa.

After a long time, he murmured, “I’ll sign.”

If he agreed, he and Emelia would never be together.

Harry wished Julian could cherish her in the future, otherwise, he would spare Julian.

After getting his answer, Harry’s agent told Julian firstly

At this time, Julian was dressed up and ready to go out to eat with Emelia. After receiving a call from Harry’s agent, he just said he knew it and hung up.

Later, he informed the people in HGH and the department of public relations through WeChat. The statement prepared in his name would be sent out soon.

After finishing, Julian contentedly took Emelia’s hand and went out for dinner.

Just as Emelia was getting ready, Julian took out the bag that Heather gave to her.

Emelia was so shocked when she heard that Heather bought it for her.

After a while, she looked at the bag that was not her style and said, "Why don't you refuse it for me?"

Julian said bluntly, "Why? You can take it for free."

Emelia was speechless.

Julian added, "You helped her. If she doesn't thank you, she will be tactless."

"Please say thank you to her for me." Emelia put the bag away. She had no desire to use it, nor to make friends with Heather.

They had a leisurely meal. When they were almost finished, Emelia received a voice message from Nina.

She listened to the message for a while, which includes Nina's happy voice, Hi, Julian's future wife.

Emelia had been eating, so she didn't watch the hot news on the Internet.

She was so scared by Nina's words. She hurriedly exited WeChat and looked awkwardly at Julian who sat opposite her.

What was wrong with Nina?

Why did she suddenly call her like that?

Did Julian think she wanted to marry him all day, so he told this to Nina? If so, she was too embarrassed. Say in all honesty, she never thought of being called "Julian's future wife".

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 444 Propose

Emelia typed on her phone angrily, sending a message to Nina. "What? Stop calling me that!" After hitting send, Emelia was too embarrassed to look at Julian. He must have heard Nina calling her "future Mrs. Hughes".

What Emelia didn't know was that the saying had already been spread all over the Internet by Julian. She was the only one kept in the dark right now.

"Hey, um, don't mind Nina..." Emelia tried to come up with a more convincing explanation. Just then, Nina called.

Emelia walked out of the private room to answer the call, afraid that Nina would say something misleading over the phone.

Nina's voice sounded the second the call was through. "Don't tell me you don't know about this."

Emelia was puzzled. "What are you talking about?"

Nina didn't answer her. Instead, she asked, "Where are you?"

"I'm out at dinner," Emelia replied.

"With Julian?" Nina asked again.

"Yeah."

Nina chuckled. "No wonder."

"My silly Emelia. The rumor starter is right under your nose, yet you have no idea." Nina sighed.

"What?" Emelia let out a mumble.

Mr. Julian Hughes had already announced his intention after Mr. Zink's contract was up. However, Mr. Hughes had to fly to another country to attend an emergency meeting.

Therefore, Miss Emelia Jones was entrusted to discuss the partnership with

Mr. Zink. Mr. Hughes also stated that Miss Jones, as the future Mrs. Hughes, had every right to make this decision on behalf of the Hughes Group.

As is mentioned above, Mr. Zink and Miss Jones was only having a business dinner. The Hughes Group is making this clarification so that you won't be wrongly informed.

Additionally, we have reached an agreement with Mr. Zink. Mr. Zink is now officially signed to the Hughes Group. To show appreciation for Miss Jones' effort, Mr. Hughes will be signing HGH over to Miss Jones."

After reading the post, Emelia finally knew why did Nina call her future Mrs. Hughes just now. It was Julian that started all this.

No wonder when she asked him about his plan, he said nothing. It turned out that his countermeasure was to disclose their relationship to the public.

Now, Julian and her getting back together was made known to everyone. Emelia was rendered momentarily speechless when she saw Julian was going to give her HGH.

She didn't know how to run a company. The thought of her running a business all by herself had never crossed her mind. Julian just made the decision without asking her.

Emelia pinched the bridge of her nose, did know what to say.

However, she had to admit that Julian's post was a nice way to clarify the relationship between her and Harry and end the rumors.

Emelia stood outside for some time. Julian walked out of the room, afraid that there might be something wrong.

Emelia glared at him. "Look at what you've done!"

Julian wrapped his arms around her waist and pulled her in. "You don't like it?"

Emelia bit her lower lip and remained silent.

Julian continued seriously, "I had to do this. The only other way is to make everyone know that Harry is in a relationship. You and me both know that he has feelings for you. Also, if I do that, his career will be destroyed."

“If I don’t make our relationship public, who knows how long I have to wait before you do that yourself.” Julian thought.

The ship had sailed. Emelia didn’t cling to it.

The two returned to the private room. “I’ll get you in HGH’s chat group later,” Julian said.

Shocked by his words, Emelia almost choked on the food. She took a swig of the water and asked Julian in confusion, “Are you really going to give me HGH?”

Emelia thought he didn’t mean it in the clarification. She thought it was just an expediency.

Julian replied solemnly, “I mean every word I said in the clarification.”

“But I don’t want it.” Emelia was vexed. “Why would you give me your company? I don’t know how to run it! What if I destroy your business?”

Vincent once offered her a management position in his company, but she turned it down.

Julian explained patiently, “You are a screenwriter. With HGH’s support, your career path will be much easier in the showbiz.

Don’t let the fear of failure get to you. I’ll ask people to help you out. You don’t need to do anything.”

Emelia continued, “Then I would be taking advantage of you. I definitely can’t accept that.”

Julian chuckled. “Our relationship is out in the open now, silly. You will be taking advantage of me even if you don’t want to.” Emelia was speechless.

Julian was right. Now that everyone knew that Emelia was the ‘future Mrs. Hughes’, people would definitely treat her differently.

People were already being extra nice to her after knowing that she was Vincent’s daughter.

Sensing that Emelia was a little down, Julian motioned for her to sit with him. Emelia walked over and was pulled onto his lap.

He coaxed the woman in his arms, “You’ve already made a name for yourself. People didn’t treat you differently because of our relationship. They treat you differently because they think highly of you. They know you are talented.”

After he was somewhat enlightened on subject love, Julian felt like he could read Emelia’s mind.

He knew that Emelia wanted to get out of the shadow of Vincent and him. She was afraid that their influence would eclipse her talent.

Since it was a private room, Emelia just sat on his lap. She leaned against him, fondling his cufflink. “I hope so.” Emelia sighed.

Emelia didn’t brood over it too much. She obviously couldn’t just break it off with Julian and Vincent. She had to accept the impact these two giant figures brought on her, both positive and negative.

Julian tightened his grasp on her waist, thinking about when he should propose to her.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 445 Public Display of Affection

The clarification caused quite a stir all over the Internet. The rumors about Emelia and Harry’s nonexistent love affairs completely disappeared after the Hughes Group made that post.

The term ‘future Mrs. Hughes’ implied that Emelia and Julian had already gotten back together and that Julian would remarry Emelia sooner or later.

Also, the post mentioned that Julian entrusted Emelia to discuss the partnership with Harry, which further cleared up the rumor.

Emelia’s relationship with Harry was purely professional.

Comments flooded the original post.

“Who spread the rumor? This is such a slap on the hater’s face!”

“People who trolled Emelia and Harry because of that rumor should apologize to them. All the rumors that Emelia is embroiled in are about Mr. Hughes. It seems that Mr. Hughes is Emelia’s true love from beginning to the end.”

“Emelia had been trolled to the trending page several times now. Did she cross somebody somehow? But she is so nice. Haters are going to be hating. I won’t believe anything the haters say from now on.”

“Why do I feel like this clarification is nothing but PDA?”

“Public display of affection, right? I feel it too. He doted on Emelia so much. He calls her ‘future Mrs. Hughes. He is even giving HGH to her as a gift. Mr. Hughes is so dreamy!”

“Wow, Mr. Hughes is like a totally different person when it comes to Emelia.”

“No! Don’t forgive him that easily! I want to see grand romantic gestures! Emelia is so softhearted.”

“LOL, are you serious? Don’t let Mr. Hughes see your comment. He will probably beat you up if he sees that.”

When Julian saw that comment, his face darkened.

All people talked about was ‘grand romantic gestures’, especially when he and Emelia were in a piece of news together. Julian was confused.

Julian wrapped his arms around Emelia’s waist and asked, “What is it exactly?”

As a screenwriter, Emelia could go on and on about all the examples of grand romantic gestures. “If I tell you, there will be no fun,” she answered instead.

“Okay, fine. Forget about it.” Although Julian was still confused, he didn’t push Emelia to explain something she didn’t want to.

Therefore, he simply let it go. He raised his head a little to look at Emelia. “We’ve already gotten back together now. Even if the world didn’t approve of us, I’ll betray the world as long as you are by my side. I’ll never let you go.”

“I know.” Emelia got off of him and returned to her seat. She had never thought about leaving him, either. She only got the divorce because she had no other choice.

After the dinner, they briefly stopped by the hotel before they drove back to Riverside City.

The scandal could have destroyed both Emelia and Harry’s career. However, Julian’s clarification stemmed the tide. Seeing all the blessings people gave Emelia, Tara was green with envy.

“How could this be?”

I heard with my own ears! Harry definitely has feelings for Emelia. Are people blind? Can’t they see the adoring look on Harry’s face in the picture?”

Tara vented her anger in her apartment. Her agent didn’t know how to comfort her.

After some time, her agent suggested, “Why don’t we hire some trolls and ask them to mention Harry’s look in their comments?” “No need.” Tara was clearly in a bad mood. “Julian had already made that clarification. There’s nothing we can do to turn things around.”

Tara thought she had the perfect plan. The two were both working on the show, “I Gotta Find You”. If she could start a rumor about Emelia and Harry’s affair and ruin their reputation, no one would tune in to watch it.

Plus, Trevor was planning on making a comeback through this show. The scandal would surely make Trevor suffer as well.

Tara was still brooding over the fact that Trevor had dumped her.

She would do everything in her power to make Trevor’s life miserable.

Most importantly, she wanted to get back at Nina.

Tara had personal vendetta against Nina. Tara wanted to seek vengeance but couldn’t find any chance. Nina’s magazine would also be implicated in Emelia’s scandal.

However, all her plotting had gone to waste.

Tara stamped her feet in frustrated rage.

Just then, her agent passed her the phone. After reading the content on it, Tara almost fainted from fury.

It was a tweet posted by Nina. It read, "Wrongdoers are doomed to destruction. You dug your own grave."

Tara knew Nina was cursing her.

Tara gritted her teeth. "Good times don't last long.

Nina Sanchez, brace yourself. For I will ruin your life!"

Tara punched the pillow on the sofa, trying to let off steam.

Just when she was blinded by her burning anger, her phone rang. Her eyelids twitched when she saw the caller ID. It was Trevor. He had never called her since the breakup. She had been waiting for his call for so long.

Now, however, Trevor was the last person she wanted to talk to. Because if he called her, it meant that he had found out that she was the one who started the rumor.

Tara picked up the phone even if she didn't want to. "What on earth do you think you are doing?" Trevor's voice was gruff.

Tara was a little intimidated by his serious tone. "Tara White, I don't owe you anything," Trevor continued before Tara could voice a word.

"All the resources I provided you. All the houses and apartments I bought for you.

Did you forget about all that? I didn't take them back for the sake of our past relationship. What have you done for me? Don't push me, Tara White. You know what I'm capable of."

Trevor almost shouting. With that, he ended the call.

Tara wept with rage.

This was not fair!

She's a victim here!

Trevor and her were fine before "I Gotta Find You"! Now she lost everything! It was all Emelia and Julian's fault!

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 446 A Sense of Belonging

Tara wiped away her tears and said to her agent, "Do you remember what Polaris said? She once told me that Emelia has been seeing an OBS-GYN doctor in a village. I need to get to the bottom of that."

Her agent, Maisie Brennan, asked in confusion, "If she is infertile, Julian will dump her, right?" Tara froze for a second. "That makes sense."

The Hughes family needed a successor to inherit the family's fortune. Julian wouldn't be with Emelia if she couldn't give him a baby, would he? There were plenty of fish in the sea.

Women would fight for a chance to bear his child.

Tara said, "Maybe Julian know she is infertile but still chooses to be with her?" "Do you think Julian really love her that much?" Maisie asked disdainfully.

Tara and Maisie had been staying in the showbiz for too long. They had witnessed too many breakups and too many fake relationships. They didn't believe true love existed in this society.

Tara herself didn't be with Trevor because of love. She was still a young girl when she met the middle-aged Trevor. What could she be after?

Tara had seen too many love affairs happened around her. Those rich men would still cheat on their wives even if their wives were perfectly fertile.

Therefore, Tara didn't believe that Julian could love Emelia unconditionally. Maybe her thinking was pure sour grape.

Tara continued, "Even if Julian really loves Emelia and is willing to be with her knowing that she is infertile, his family won't approve of that.

Especially his mother. As far as I know, his mother is a tough woman to please. Anyway, we are still making assumptions. Let's sound Julian out. If he really didn't mind Emelia's infertility, we break the news to his family."

"Sounds good." Maisie nodded. "His family definitely won't approve of this. Even if we can't make Julian break up with Emelia, their relationship won't get his family's blessing."

While Tara and her agent were plotting against Emelia, Emelia went to visit Grandpa Hughes with Julian after they got back to Riverside City.

At the dinner table, Grandpa Hughes said sincerely, "Since you've gotten back together, cherish each other. Don't care about what other people may say.

It's okay if you don't have kids."

Grandpa Hughes knew that Emelia didn't want Julian to be childless his whole life because of her. He was afraid that she would blame herself for it and push Julian away.

So, he pointed it out.

"People say when your children grow up, they will take care of the old ones. Look at me now. Am I old enough?" Grandpa Hughes quipped. "But that son of mine only brings me trouble."

He shrugged. "If you have the time to make babies, why not spend it on making more money. You can take care of most of the troubles in the world with money."

Emelia was amused by Grandpa Hughes' words. She didn't expect that a man of his age would be so open-minded.

Compared to Ezra's sexist father, Grandpa Hughes' attitude was so liberal.

His words reassured Emelia a lot.

Julian held her hand and said gently, "Grandpa is right. Let's just focus on advancing our careers and leave all other problems behind."

“Okay.” Emelia nodded.

Seeing their intimate interactions, Grandpa Hughes smiled. That grandson of his finally learned to cherish the woman he loved. Hopefully, they would live happily ever after.

Julian definitely didn’t take that from his father. Gerhard never knew how to compromise, even to the lobe of his life. Instead, he just waited for Heather to break the ice.

However, Heather was not someone who would deign to show her vulnerability to Gerhard. Therefore, their relationship was completely irreparable and ended at an impasse.

After the dinner, Julian drove Emelia to their old house.

When they were in bed, Julian said to the woman in his arms, “Why don’t we move back? It’s the only place that gives me a sense of belonging.”

He never felt at home when he was at his grandpa’s or Heather’s place.

“Sounds good.” Emelia agreed.

Julian continued, “You made this place home the first day you moved here.”

His words tugged at her heartstrings.

She was very happy to know that she made him feel at home.

“Do you remember that time when I have to go on a business trip for two weeks? Actually, I planned to stay there for a month because all I wanted was to get away from you back then.

On the trip, I felt like something wasn’t right. I didn’t feel well, but I wasn’t physically ill. I just wanted to go home. Then, David and I worked extra hard that week. Finally, we finished the work early and were able to come back a week in advance.”

Julian heaved a sigh. “Funny how I couldn’t live without you, but still pushed you away.”

Emelia looked at him, a little shocked. She didn't know that he came back early that time because he wanted to see her. What came as more of a surprise was that Julian would dissect his past mentality and tell her about it.

Julian rested his head on her shoulder. "I'm really sorry that I hurt your feelings. I was a cocky bastard."

Trevor's incident made Julian reflect on himself. He deeply regretted what he had done to Emelia in the past. If he had broke her heart really bad, Emelia would have left him forever.

Emelia quietly wrapped her arms around his waist.

Emelia explained, "I Gotta Find You' will begin shooting soon. The director says he wants to go through the whole script with us."

Julian knew how important it was to get familiar with the script before filming a TV series. Trevor valued this show very much.

That's why he arranged a preparation session like this.

Screenwriter's elucidation was indispensable for actor's comprehension of the script.

Emelia had to be there to help.

Although he knew very well why Emelia had to go, Julian still didn't want her to leave his side.

He muttered, "When can we be like normal couples?"

They were both busy people, always on their way of business trips, leaving them very little time to spend with each other.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 447 Build a Movie Center

"Aren't we a normal couple?" Emelia asked.

Julian grunted, "Of course not. Couples spend time with each other. We never do."

Emelia pondered for a second. "But this is my job. I have to be on set. I have to follow the crew." Julian lay down next to her, looking despondent.

He thought that they would never be apart since they had gotten back together.

But that would be difficult if they were both going on business trips all the time.

"HGH is all yours now. Why don't you get all the crew members to work here, in Riverside City?" Julian said to Emelia moments later.

Emelia was amused. She lay on her side to face Julian and chuckled. "You really think that's going to work? Riverside City doesn't have a movie center. How are they going to shoot a TV series here?"

Julian replied slowly, "Then I'll build one for all the projects the Hughes Group invested in so you don't have to be away all the time."

Emelia was momentarily speechless. "Is he for real? Build a movie center in Riverside City? He is really made of money, isn't he?"

Didn't wait for Emelia's response, Julian suddenly sat up from the bed, looking serious, "I think this may really work. I have to make some calls."

With that, he grabbed his phone and went to the study.

She thought he was just kidding. But now, she was not that sure.

Emelia was thinking about talking him out of it when he got back.

He couldn't just make a decision on a spur of the moment. Building a movie center was a major project that needed him to really put some thought into.

However, Julian didn't get back from the study until Emelia had fallen asleep.

The next day's morning, Emelia woke up in Julian's cuddle. He was still sound asleep.

Emelia gently wriggled free of his arms, didn't want to wake him. However, Julian pulled her in before she could get out of the bed. "Are you getting up?" He sounded exhausted.

“When did you go back to bed last night?” Emelia asked.

“Around 2 a.m.” Julian called an emergency meeting with the higher-ups of the Hughes Group to discuss his proposal. At first, they were strongly against the idea of building a movie center in Riverside City. However, Julian convinced them eventually.

Julian was a go-getter. After the meeting, he studied the siting of the movie center. When he finally got the time to take a break, it was already 4 a.m.

Afraid that Emelia would be worried, he told her a white lie saying that he went to bed at 2 a.m.

“Go back to sleep, then.” Emelia’s heart softened. She didn’t expect that Julian would really put that absurd idea into practice.

Julian responded with a grunt, then fell asleep. Emelia tiptoed out of the bedroom.

Nina called right after Emelia had her breakfast.

“I didn’t call you last night because I didn’t want to disturb you guys. How did it go? You two are officially a couple now. How was he in bed?” Nina probed cheekily.

Emelia pinched the bridge of her nose. “I sometimes wonder what goes on in that head of yours.”

What did she mean by “how was he in bed”? Julian was barely in bed last night.

Nina giggled. “Julian’s clarification was awesome. Such a slap in Tara’s face. It definitely puts her nose out of joint.

Such a brilliant move. Kills two birds with one stone. Not only did he end the rumor, but also told the world that he is your boyfriend now.

Sherlyn also said that Julian’s post is a text-book PR move.” Nina was beyond happy because Julian’s clarification fouled up Tara’s plan.

Emelia also thought that Julian’s move was clever.

She suddenly remembered reading the tweet Nina posted before going to sleep.

The words Nina posted soon became trending. People were guessing what was Nina insinuating and who was Nina's words aiming at, or specifically, which female celebrity was her words aiming at.

Emelia was a little worried. "I saw your tweet. Isn't it a tad aggressive for a celebrity? You were using your official account." Emelia was afraid that Nina's rant tweet might harm Nina's public image.

Nina didn't take it seriously. "Why? I didn't do anything bad. I would be freaking out right now if I were Tara White. I've already seen through her dirty tricks. If she does this again, I'll surely teach her a lesson. Right, I'm calling you to ask you out for dinner. My reality TV show is going to start shooting soon. I won't be in Riverside City for a long, long time. I thought we can go out and grab a farewell dinner."

Emelia was surprised. "You are not going to film that dating show, are you?"

Nina chuckled. "No. My boss won't let me. It's a singing competition show. Maybe I'll get eliminated in the first round. Maybe I'll come home with championship. Who knows."

"You've got this." Emelia knew that Nina actually was a good singer. It was just that Nina had been focusing on her acting career these years.

Now that Nina had already accomplished so much in her acting, it was time for her to explore her talent in other fields.

Emelia was happy for Nina. Many people had the impression that Nina was stereotypical eye candy.

Emelia knew it wasn't true.

Nina was goal-oriented and full of wisdom. She knew clearly what she wanted to do with her life.

At the beginning of her debut in the showbiz, she put all her mind on honing her acting skills. Years gone by, she stood the temptation of the glamorous lives of the entertainment circle and the pursuit of those rich men.

Now that she had great acting skills and unblemished reputation, she started working on her singing career. This mysterious girl was truly full of surprise.

If people get to know her a little more, they would find out that she was a gold mine.

Emelia replied, "Okay. Let's meet up in the afternoon. Julian was all worn out yesterday. He is still asleep. I'll tell him when he wakes up. I have to cook lunch now."

"Julian was all worn out yesterday?" Nina repeated slowly, making sure she enunciated every word.

"For real?"

How many times did you do last night? He is only in his thirties. How can he be 'all worn out'? Is he... still functional?" Nina probed.

Nina's concern about her sex life almost drove Emelia crazy.

"Hey, can't you be serious just this one time? He spent his night working in the study. That's why he was 'all worn out!'" Emelia explained.

"Speaking of which. Do you know what he was working on last night? He suddenly thought of this ridiculous idea that he wanted to build a movie center. Isn't he out of his mind?" Emelia continued.

Hearing that, Nina drew an inhalation dramatically.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 448 Sorry I Wasn't Around Last Night

Nina knew very well where did that idea come from. It must be for the convenience of her work.

That was why Nina was shocked. She murmured, "Gosh, Julian is really rich!"

"But he is being irrational," Emelia elaborated, "Last night, when I talked about my business trips and all that, he suddenly rushed into a decision that he wanted to build a movie center so that I don't have to be away all the time.

How can I talk him out of it?"

Emelia wasn't really fond of Julian's idea. He was going to build a movie center just to keep her around. What if the news spread out that the movie center was built for her?

How would the people think of her?

"Why would you want to talk him out of it?" Nina backed Julian up. "It's nice. It will save a lot of time and hassle.

And when it's completed, you can name it 'Julia Movie Center'. Get it? Julian and Emelia." Nina cackled.

"Come on..." Emelia was not in the mood for a joke.

"What if the movie center couldn't yield that much profit? What if he loses money?" Emelia was concerned.

"I think you are worrying for nothing. Julian is an experienced businessman. If he knows that it is a money-losing project, he wouldn't have invested in it. I bet the will go through all the evaluations and assessment. If he decided to do it, he must be confident that it can bring him tons of profits," Nina said.

"That does make sense." Emelia was convinced by Nina's words.

She did know that the Hughes Group had flourished under the leadership of Julian. Julian had always made the right decisions. And building the movie center must be one of them.

"Take it easy, girl." Nina chuckled. "When the movie center is completed, I won't have to fly all the way to other cities to film a movie or something."

"Let's grab a coffee this afternoon. We can go shopping after that and have dinner together," Nina changed the topic.

"Sure," Emelia replied.

When Julian got up, it was already 11 a.m. Emelia was cooking lunch.

After washing up, Julian went downstairs to the kitchen, still a little tired. He hugged Emelia from behind and mumbled, "Sorry." "Sorry about what? Everyone has to sleep, right?" Emelia thought Julian was apologizing for his sleeping in.

"Sorry, I wasn't around last night. I left you unsatisfied."

Emelia was momentarily speechless.

Couldn't he just say something normal and sweet?

Julian leaned in to kiss her on her lips. "I can make it up to you right now."

Emelia pushed him away. "I'm busy cooking."

Emelia's coy reaction made Julian chuckle. Seeing that, Emelia pushed him out of the kitchen.

All sorts of feelings welled up in Julian's mind. This banter between them was so natural. This was what a couple was supposed to be like.

He didn't know how Emelia put up with that lifeless and basically non-interactive lifestyle in the past, and he didn't know how he allowed that to happen.

Emelia made some of her signature dishes for lunch. When the two ate at the table, Emelia said, "I'll go out shopping with Nina after lunch. She's leaving in a couple of days to shoot a variety show. So we want to have dinner together."

Hearing that, Julian felt a little left out. "Just you two? What about me?"

"Order takeout? Or you can go out with Ezra and Arthur if you want," Emelia suggested.

Julian shook his head without hesitation. "I'll go with you. We three can have dinner together."

Emelia pinched the bridge of her nose. "It's a girls' date. Don't you think it's a little weird if you come with us?"

“How come?” Julian explained, “Just pretend I’m not there. I’ll pay for you and carry your bags.”

He added before she could say anything, “Emelia, you’ll leave for the Capital in a couple of days. I want to spend more time with you.”

Hearing that, she compromised, “Fine.”

However, even if Emelia agreed to take Julian with her, Julian was still unbalanced. “Emelia, we have the day to ourselves for the first time in months. And you are going out without me?”

In Julian’s opinion, she should stay with him every day until she left for the Capital.

Now, she was going out with Nina thus whole afternoon.

The proud Julian had never thought that he would be jealous of Nina one day.

Emelia sensed that Julian was jealous. She was used to it now. She kept her eyes on the dishes and said calmly, “I just said you can come with us. I’m not going out without you.”

Her words almost broke Julian’s heart.

She definitely doesn’t love me like she used to.

She would pay attention to my subtlest mood change in the past, but now she is so indifferent.

Julian stared at the woman having lunch as if nothing had happened, then took a deep breath and shook the thought out of his mind.

Emelia was in control of this relationship now. There was nothing he could do. He had to know when to stop.

Otherwise, what if she was so annoyed that she dumped him? He couldn’t live without her.

Emelia knew what was Julian thinking about. But she deliberately ignored that. She still loved Julian as much. It was just that she didn't want to spoil him. She couldn't let him get everything he wanted every time he threw a tantrum. She wanted him to know that her life wasn't always about him.

Although she cherished the relationship with Julian, she also needed to spend some quality time with her friends.

She wouldn't try to please Julian at the expense of drifting away from Nina.

The two continued to eat in silence.

Julian broke the ice, "Which cafe are you going to with Nina?"

Emelia went on with Julian's deflection and told him the name of the cafe.

Julian was relieved that she wasn't mad at him for being overly possessive.

He took a mental note to not overdo it next time. He knew now. When she was in a good mood, she would coax him no matter how unreasonable he was being. But if she didn't want to talk to him, she would just leave him to sulk.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 449 How About Taking Wedding Photos by the Way

After lunch, they two went out. But when they arrived at the café Nina told them, Emelia was a little surprised.

Because it was not Nina alone in the café. Sitting opposite Nina was the photographer who took her magazine photos last time.

Nina asked Emelia out for coffee, mainly for this photographer. He always wanted to do a photo shoot on Emelia. But because of Julian's gloomy face last time, he didn't dare to ask Emelia directly, so he asked Nina for help.

Nina deliberately asked Emelia out alone, just so that the photographer could talk to Emelia without distraction from Julian.

But she didn't expect that Julian would also follow here, which was embarrassing.

However, Nina had always been very thick-skinned. She stood up to greet Emelia and Julian, "You guys are here."

After pulling Emelia to sit down, Nina smiled again and said, "I didn't expect it to be such a coincidence. I was waiting for you here. Then I met the photographer who did a magazine shoot for us last time."

Emelia laughed awkwardly. She couldn't talk nonsense like Nina so naturally. Julian next to Emelia glanced at Nina with a sneer. How could he not know Nina's thoughts?

Fortunately, he came with Emelia today. Otherwise, Emelia would probably be persuaded by this photographer. She had always been soft-hearted and kind. If the other party was too enthusiastic, she would agree to take the photos.

But Julian didn't expose Nina's and the photographer's attempt. He didn't have to embarrass Emelia face, didn't he?

He sat down with Emelia expressionlessly. Because of his uninvited presence, the four of them sat opposite each other in the bright café. They didn't know what to say for a while.

It was Nina who broke the deadlock first. She didn't hide anything anymore, but just said directly to Emelia, "Didn't he just want to invite you to take photos of the vintage style when he shot the cover of the magazine for us last time? This time he wants to invite you again sincerely."

As soon as Nina finished speaking, Julian's eyes fell on the photographer.

The photographer felt nervous. But there was no way out now, so he had to bite the bullet and looked at Emelia, while expressing his demands nervously, "Miss Jones, I really want to shoot vintage style photos for you. With your temperament and appearance, you can convey the charm of that style very well. Besides, you will also play an extraordinary role in promoting culture for us."

This photographer was originally a big shot in the photography industry. He had status. But because Emelia was sitting next to Julian, who was very imposing, he was nervous.

Hearing the photographer's words, Emelia was a little moved. Everyone would be willing to contribute to the promotion of the culture.

But she also had her own worries, "I don't have any fame. I'm afraid I will let you down."

The photographer shook his head and said, "None of these matters. What matters is your temperament and charm. Those two are enough."

After the photographer finished speaking, he quickly looked up at Julian. Emelia also looked at Julian, and naturally so did Nina.

Julian spread his hands, "Why are you guys looking at me? You guys didn't invite me to take pictures."

Nina rolled her eyes, despising his hypocrisy.

If it wasn't for his cold face, this matter would have been decided last time.

Nina raised both hands in favor of Emelia for taking the photos. In Nina's opinion, her best friend's beauty and temperament were no less than that of any female stars in the entertainment industry. Such beauty should not be hidden.

The photographer thought for a while and then said, "The relationship between the two of you was officially announced yesterday. I think some good things are coming. In order to show my sincerity, I can shoot wedding photos for you two for free."

The photographer felt that he had already been very sincere. He was usually too busy with all kinds of commercial shoots. The wedding photos were time-consuming and laborious. He had long since not taken those photos.

Now, in exchange for Julian's agreeing to Emelia taking photos, he was willing to shoot wedding photos for free.

Julian's face softened a bit because photographer's words.

He turned his head to look at Emelia, and said thoughtfully, "If that's the case, why don't we take the wedding photos by the way when you take vintage photos?"

Emelia was speechless.

Nina gritted her teeth.

Julian was really scheming. He actually added the condition that he wanted to take the wedding photos.

Emelia just got back with him, but didn't agree to marry him again. He proposed to take the wedding photos. Didn't that mean that he was indirectly forcing Emelia to marry him?

It was Julian who made the relationship public by himself using the pretext of public relations. He had already tricked Emelia once, and now he wanted to do it again.

Getting back together and remarriage were completely different!

But Nina couldn't say anything about Julian on such an occasion. After all, there was still a photographer here. So Nina could only hope that Emelia would not lose her rationality and judgement once again after falling in love and was tricked by Julian.

Emelia was smart, so she naturally knew the meaning in Julian's words.

So she gave Julian a slight smile, and then replied to the photographer, "Sorry, I may still not be able to accept your invitation." The implication was that she was in no rush for wedding photos or anything.

Emelia didn't want to be tricked by Julian again and again. Besides, dating was different from getting married. She even felt that it was a bit fast that Julian made their relationship public yesterday.

Julian didn't show any disappointment on his face. But secretly, he gritted his teeth.

He failed.

Remarriage was temporarily hopeless.

He also didn't understand. After a woman had a loved one, she should think about getting married quickly so that she could stay with him every day, shouldn't she? Why did Emelia have no intention of getting married at all?

On the contrary, he himself was like a woman who couldn't wait to get married and wished Emelia would marry him right away.

The photographer was disappointed when he heard Emelia's words. But he still maintained his demeanor well.

He got up and said goodbye with a smile, "If that's the case, I won't disturb the three of you. I'll leave first."

After the photographer left, Nina rolled her eyes at Julian. She despised his narrow-minded streak. He didn't let Emelia show her own beauty.

Julian took a sip of coffee gracefully, "If there is something wrong with your eyes, just go to the ophthalmologist. As an actress, it's not a good thing to have too many whites of your eyes."

"Heh." Nina sneered at him, "It's you who should go to see a doctor."

Emelia had a headache, "How old are you both? Is it interesting to bicker like this?"

Nina and Julian looked away and made it clear that they didn't want to talk to each other.

Emelia got up and said to Nina, "Let's go shopping."

Then she took Nina away without waiting for Julian. He squinted slightly and stared at Emelia's back.

Was she unhappy?

Was it because he didn't want her to take photos? Or was it because he wanted to trick her to get married?

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 450 Unconditional Compromise

Emelia was really unhappy. Julian guessed right.

She really wanted to take pictures of vintage styles. But it wasn't because she wanted to debut or become how popular. Being able to promote the culture was one aspect. The most important thing was that she was a writer. In fact, she liked ancient things very much and craved that quaint culture.

If possible, she would like to create a period drama by herself.

Although “Princess Leilania” was also a period drama, the general idea and framework of the script were not hers, while “I Gotta Find You” was a purely contemporary drama.

Besides, “Princess Leilania” focused on plots and politics. The period drama she wanted to write was about fights among rich family. Although it was not a popular topic nowadays, it had a successful example before.

Nina had been friends with Emelia for many years. Seeing Emelia dragging her forward without saying a word, Nina knew that she was in a bad mood, so she stopped and said, “Since you are not happy, why don’t you tell him?”

Emelia calmed down a bit, shook her head gently and said, “I don’t want to quarrel with him. It’s even more boring to argue.” Nina sighed and said, “You are just too gentle and obedient. If it was me, I would have to fight against him.” Emelia explained with a smile, “In the final analysis, I don’t have such a strong desire to take the photos.”

If she really wanted to shoot those photos, she would also be angry with Julian. But she wasn’t grumpy as Nina. Maybe she wouldn’t talk with Julian for a few days.

Nina was so angry that she laughed angrily, “You still speak for him?”

“No.” Emelia said helplessly, “I just think he’s annoying recently. He always clings to me like that. See, it was the two of us who made an appointment today, but he insisted on coming with me.”

Emelia wasn’t really angry with Julian. Maybe she was annoyed and a little impatient because he always followed her.

It was also possible that her period was coming, so she was emotionally unstable.

Nina said angrily, "What did you say? You are annoyed because he clings to you all day long. Have you considered the single women like me? I also want to have a man to cling to me, but I don't."

Emelia was amused by Nina's words, "Alright, alright. Let's stop talking about this annoying topic. Just go shopping."

Nina walked with her, while saying, "Fortunately, you weren't tricked by him. I was really afraid that you promised to take wedding photo with him. He didn't even propose."

In Nina's opinion, Julian had to make up for what he once owed Emelia this time after they two got back together. Besides, he had to make it up solemnly.

Emelia smiled to reassure her, "Don't worry. I know it."

Nina said, "Really? Who got married with him without any care, and then suffered a lot?"
Emelia was speechless by Nina's words. She seemed to be like this before.

"It won't happen." Emelia said again.

People always learned to grow up after being hurt.

They two did not continue chatting, but started shopping.

In fact, Emelia and Nina had a lot of clothes. Emelia now had the brand sponsorship of her cousin. As soon as a new product was released, her cousin would send it to her. So she had too many clothes at home.

Nina was sponsored by various brands, but she still liked to go shopping and buy some clothes by herself. In Nina's words, the feeling of spending money was different.

Julian called them twenty minutes later to ask where they were. Emelia told him that they were at the women's clothing store on the third floor.

After hanging up the phone, Nina said proudly, "I think he must have noticed that you are not happy, so he didn't dare to follow up just now."

Emelia said, "Why didn't he dare to follow? I guess there was something that stuck him."

It seemed inappropriate to say Julian didn't dare.
Facts had proved that Emelia was still not confident enough about her relationship with Julian. He really didn't dare to follow.

After Emelia pulled Nina away without saying a word, Julian sat alone in the coffee shop and struggled for a long time. Finally, he took out his mobile phone and asked someone for the photographer's number, and then took the initiative to call him.

"She can take pictures." Julian lightly explained to the photographer on the other end of the phone.

The photographer was startled for a moment, then excitedly said, "Great, great!"

"Then I'll ask someone to start planning the style and theme of this shoot now, as well as your wedding photos. Take time to come over and then we can take you guys' measurements first, so that we can make all kinds of dresses."

The photographer thought that Julian and Emelia had reached an agreement just now, which was that the wedding photos had to be taken by the way.

"We don't need the wedding photos yet..." Julian was a little embarrassed, so he hung up the phone after explaining this.

The photographer couldn't help laughing while holding the phone. He seemed to understand something.

So Mr. Hughes was a little afraid of Miss Jones?

It was obvious that Miss Jones wanted to shoot those photos, but Mr. Hughes just wanted to hide her beauty, so he showed displeasure. But in the end he still compromised and unconditionally agreed to the shooting.

Gee! This was love!

It really made people lose their status.

Julian didn't immediately tell Emelia that he agreed to her photo shoot, mainly because Nina was present. If he spoke out now, Nina would definitely laugh at him.

Emelia and Nina spent most of the afternoon shopping and bought a lot of stuff.

Julian walked behind the two and carried their stuff. After raising his hand to look at his watch for hundreds of times, he looked at the two girls in front of him who were still in high spirits. His feet hurt!

Damn it! Why didn't anyone tell him that it was so tiring to go shopping with women?

If he knew, he wouldn't come out.

When were they going to end?

The sky was getting dark. They had no intentions to end yet.

Taking a deep breath, he walked over and looked at Emelia, casually reminding, "Is it time to have dinner?"

Nina answered with a smile, "What? Mr. Hughes, are you tired? If you are tired, go back to rest first, or go to the cafe and wait for us."

Julian thought that considerate Emelia would speak for him, but she also nodded sincerely and said to him, "Yeah, why don't you find a place to sit and wait for us? We still have a lot of things to buy."

As soon as Emelia finished speaking, she saw the collapse of Julian's eyes. She dropped her eyes slightly and almost laughed out.

In fact, she and Nina deliberately kept shopping. They planned to make Julian tired this time, so that he wouldn't follow her when she went out with friends to go shopping.

Julian must never have imagined that it was Emelia who thought of the idea to trick him.

When Nina heard Emelia's idea, she almost laughed madly and raised her hands in favor of this wicked idea.