

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 671 A Happy Family

Next

Colleen smiled and said, "I've been basking in the sun for along time. You can have as much as you want."

"Thank you." Nina took a few more sips of scented tea and then motioned for Cameron to bring over the gifts she brought for his family. She gave Colleen and Randall the silk scarf and tea set respectively, which were both in line with their preferences.

Colleen immediately put the silk scarf on her neck and praised Nina. "I went shopping a few days ago and saw this silk scarf. I liked it very much at that time. I didn't expect that you would give it to me today. It seems that we have a tacit understanding."

Nina smiled and replied, "When we have time in the future, we can go shopping together and buy things."

Colleen was very happy. "Then that's a deal. You have a good taste. You must be an expert in fashion. Please help me pick some nice clothes."

Colleen generously praised Nina. Of course, Nina's clothing quality was recognized by the entire entertainment industry and even by most women. Basically, the clothes she was wearing would be popular immediately. Her ability to make goods sell well was not ordinary.

Seeing that the two of them were chatting quite happily, Cameron was standing to one side, silently heaving a sigh of relief.

Nina was a little nervous about this dinner party. In fact, his nervousness was no less than hers, but he hid it very well. If he showed something, Nina would definitely be more panicked.

Nina's grandparents and her uncle's family were not present at the dinner party in the evening. Randall and Colleen also thought that Nina could be uncomfortable in front of a large family of people, so there were only four of them tonight.

During the meal, Colleen drank some wine with Nina. On the other hand, Randall and Cameron, the two men, didn't drink.

Colleen was good at drinking, but as a woman, she seldom had a chance to drink to her heart's content. She didn't expect that it was Nina who accompanied her to drink. Thinking of how she used to make things difficult for this girl, Colleen, who was drunk, took Nina's hand and cried.

She had never expected that this girl whom she had never taken a fancy to would fall in love with.

"I was really blind in the past. Extremely blind." Colleen scolded herself. Then, with reddened eyes, she said to Nina, "You have to forgive me."

"If I didn't forgive you, why would we sit together and drink tonight?" Nina who was also drunk hooked her arms around Colleen's shoulders and regarded her as a friend like Sylvie and Sherlyn.

"Don't worry. I'm not a hypocrite. If I say I've let it go, that means I've really put the past behind."

Colleen was extremely moved. She raised her wine glass and clinked it with Nina's. "It's our family's blessing that my son can marry such a perfect girl like you."

Cameron and Randall looked at each other. They both agreed that the more Colleen saw Nina as her daughter-in-law, the more she liked her. She even said something like that.

Nina shook her head like a rattle. "No, no, no, I'm not perfect at all. I have many shortcomings, for example, I don't know how to cook."

Nina knew very well that she would never become that kind of traditional wife who dedicated herself completely to their family.

“What’s the big deal? Cameron can cook.” Colleen waved her hand and pushed her son out. At the same time, she discussed with Nina, “To be honest, Cameron’s cooking is really good. A lot of dishes he made are more delicious than the food outside. In the future, let him cook whatever you want to eat.”

.” Cameron didn’t know what to say.

His mother had arranged everything for him.

However, even without his mother’s arrangements, he would still take good care of Nina. After all, his cooking skills were all learned because of her. He knew that she didn’t know how to cook and didn’t like cooking, so he was willing to take the responsibility.

The dinner was very harmonious. Finally, the drunk Colleen was helped upstairs to rest by Randall, while Nina was carried into the car by Cameron.

Randall wanted them to stay here for one night, but Cameron refused. “She drank too much, so it’s not very convenient. We can stay here another day.”

He knew very well that his girl would go crazy if she got drunk, so it was not suitable for her to stay under her parents’ eyes.

Hearing his words, Randall did not say anything any longer. After all, he also had to take care of a drunk woman, so he drove Nina back to his place.

However, not long after the car drove out of his parents’ house, he noticed that there was a car following him, and his expression immediately became cold.

The car that was following them was most likely aimed at Nina. He did not know when they had started following them, nor did he know what they had captured. He thought about it carefully. Just now, when they came out of the house because Nina was drunk, she was held in his arms.

In addition, due to the darkness of the night, these paparazzi or stalker fans should not be able to take clear photos of Nina’s face.

Although he and Nina did not reject to make their relationship public, it was one thing for them to take the initiative to make it public, but it was another thing to be exposed after being photographed by these people.

He turned to look at the girl beside him, who had fallen asleep because of being drunk. Then, he looked at the rearview mirror with a more murderous look in his eyes. First, he deliberately turned a few corners and stopped at the roadside for a while to confirm if the car was really following them.

The last time he found a parking lot on the side of the road and came to a halt, the car also slowly stopped not far behind.

Cameron took out his mobile phone and called Sherlyn. "Nina and I were on our way home, but I found someone following my car."

Sherlyn was so angry that she scolded, "These stalker fans really have nothing better to do. It's her private schedule these days, but they're still following her. They're so wicked!"

After scolding them, Sherlyn said helplessly, "What are you going to do? To be honest, we can't do anything with these people.

You said that they secretly took photos and followed you. But it doesn't count as a crime. If we call the police, the police will only educate them verbally and then release them."

"Especially some of them are teenagers. The police can't do anything to them. It's just verbal education."

Sherlyn was telling the truth. The group of stalker fans was really annoying in the entertainment circle. Almost all famous stars had been followed and intercepted by them. In fact, these people were not true fans at all. They just wanted to satisfy their selfish desires in the name of fans.

Most of the real fans would stay away from their idols and watch or send blessings from a distance.

Nina had encountered this kind of situation countless times before. Once it was so bad, that the car almost rear-ended. It was enough to piss a person off.

Sherlyn continued, "How about this? Don't go back to your place. Otherwise, you won't live in peace after your residence is exposed. You drive Nina back to her house first. I'll ask Sylvie to go there."

Sherlyn's purpose was to protect Cameron, but he refused her proposal. "I'd better call the police directly."

Nina was very drunk and felt very uncomfortable in the car. His current route was to go to his house, so he would arrive soon. If he turned around and went to Nina's place, he would have to cross half of the city, which would be too much torture for her.

And he didn't want to let go of these stalker fans. Even if it was just verbal education, he would send them to the police station.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 672 Spiritual Torture

Chapter 672 Spiritual Torture Hearing this, Sherlyn was stunned for a moment, and then said, "Are you sure?"

"Yes," replied Cameron. "We shouldn't spoil them. In the future, as long as we find them, we'll deal with them!"

Sherlyn said, "I support you."

Indeed, he shouldn't spoil them. Although he couldn't completely stop these people from following the car, at the very least, it could have a certain deterrent effect, so that they wouldn't dare to provoke Nina easily in the future. After all, no one wanted to be sent to the police station at any time, didn't they?

Sherlyn asked again, "Do you need me to go there?" Cameron refused, "No, you rest."

Sherlyn was now a pregnant woman, so it was not suitable for her to come out and get involved in this trouble in the middle of the night.

“If you need anything, contact me at any time.’ Sherlyn couldn’t rest at ease. She didn’t know what the person was going to do, but she believed that Cameron would be able to stop them.

After Sherlyn hung up the phone, she saw Viggo coming out of her kitchen. That night, he came to her house, cooked dinner, and they had dinner together. After that, he went to the kitchen to clean up.

Sherlyn was in a trance for a moment and felt like she was in a dream.

Only in her dreams, the handsome and perfect man, who was like a fairy from heaven, would appear in front of her, cook for her personally, take care of all the housework, and become her child’s father.

Viggo had heard her call before, but now he saw that she was in a trance, so he asked in a low voice, “What happened?”

Sherlyn came back to her senses and said, “Oh, Nina’s car was stalked, and Cameron told me that he wanted to call the police.” Seeing that he was still standing where he was, Sherlyn added, “Well... it’s getting late. You can go back.”

They had just talked about the child and the marriage, and they had not registered their marriage yet. She was not used to the presence of a man in the house at night, so she took the initiative to ask him to leave.

The expression on Viggo’s face was a little complicated for a moment. After a moment of silence, he said tactfully, “I heard that pregnant women are all very tired and need someone to take care of them.’

The implication was that he could help her when she needed it in the evening, such as by pouring her a glass of water.

After hearing what he said, Sherlyn smiled and waved her hand repeatedly. “You are talking about pregnant women with morning sickness. I don’t have those symptoms at all. I’m very good, I can eat, drink and sleep, so I dont need anyone to take care of me.”

Viggo was silent, a bit speechless.

Realizing that she really didn't want him to stay, he didn't force her. When he took his things and left, he asked Sherlyn who was walking him to the door, "When are we going to get our marriage license?"

Sherlyn was a little confused. "You don't have to worry about it, do you? Cant we just get it before the baby is born?"

"Oh?" Viggo raised his eyebrows. "So that's what you're thinking. Do you just want to give the child a legal household register and identity?"

Although Sherlyn was used to being fierce and vigorous, her aura was inexplicably weak in front of Viggo at the moment.

In fact, she was only a few years older than Nina. But she was only thirty-two years old this year, and she was still a little younger than Viggo. In addition, Viggo had become famous at such a young age that he could not be easily defeated today. Therefore, she couldn't handle Viggo's stern gaze.

After stunning for a while, she asked him with a guilty smile, "When do you think it's appropriate for us to get the marriage certificate?"

Viggo smiled back at her. "I think we can do it tomorrow.

Sherlyn was speechless.

If she had known his answer earlier, she wouldnt have asked.

Seeing her like this, Viggo simply gave an order. "At nine o'clock tomorrow morning, I'll pick you up and take you to the city hall. Get your ID card and other things needed ready."

After saying that, Viggo turned around and left. Sherlyn was so anxious that she shouted behind him, "Hey, Mr. Johansen—"

In fact, she was not mentally prepared to get the marriage certificate. She had never thought of getting married. All she wanted was to have her own child.

Because Viggo insisted on getting married, she weighed the pros and cons and agreed, but she had never thought of getting married so soon.

Just as she had said, she thought that it would be fine as long as she got the marriage certificate before the child's birth. In this way, she could slowly get used to getting along with Viggo during the pregnancy period. She felt that it was good tonight.

The two of them ate together and chatted for a few days. It was too overwhelming for her, to live with a man intimately.

Viggo had wanted to leave her alone and give her some more time to get used to it. Who knew that she would call him Mr. Johansen and that he would leave without looking back in anger.

He had to get his marriage certificate tomorrow.

She did not call him Mr. Johansen the whole night. Instead, she put her arms around his shoulders and called his name.

Sherlyn watched as the man entered the elevator without looking back. She stomped her feet a few times angrily.

She finally realized that men were all jerks. She had worked with Viggo for so many years. He used to be the boss and she was his agent. When they were in this relationship, they got along very well. He was very gentle and considerate, always good-tempered, and responsible for every employee.

Now, they have an intimate relationship, and they were getting married and even had children. How could he ignore her words?

Hadn't he just heard her calling him in a hurry and motioning for him to stop? Did he leave without looking back? Sherlyn took a deep breath and comforted herself. She was pregnant now, so she shouldn't be angry.

However, after she closed the door and went home to sit down, she thought of Viggo asking her to get married tomorrow, and she buried herself in the pillow on the sofa in frustration.

She shouldn't have agreed to get married. She didn't know if it was too late to break off the engagement now.

In the car, after talking to Sherlyn on the phone, Cameron called the police. Soon, the police came over and surrounded the car behind him. Two people got out of the car. One was a man and the other was a woman. They both looked young.

The man was driving, and the woman was holding a camera in her hand. Cameron also got out of the car, and the police also came to his side.

"When I came out of my parents' house with my wife, I found that someone was following us. I was worried about our Safety, so I called the police.'

Cameron deliberately made the matter a little more serious and deliberately didn't say that his wife was a star. After all, when he mentioned Nina's identity, the police would definitely know that the person who was driving the car was a stalker fan, so they wouldn't pay too much attention to this matter.

He deliberately wanted to let the two persons be interrogated by the police. He didn't believe that they were not afraid in their hearts. Anyone would be weak in the face of the police.

This could be regarded as a kind of mental torture for them.

The policemen on his side then walked over to the two policemen. After a short conversation, they began to interrogate them.

Cameron stood far away, looking coldly at the two people nervously and anxiously explaining something to the police. The smile on his face was cold and vicious.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 673 Cameron's Method

Chapter 673 Cameron's Method

"Mr. Dauster in front called the police and said that you were tracking him." One of the policemen asked the two.

The man argued, "Tracking him? We're just driving our own car. How did it become tracking him?"

Another policeman said with a serious look, "What's in the camera? If you turn it on, let's have a look."

The woman was obviously a little flustered. She took a step back and retracted her camera. "Who took them? The camera is our private property. Why do you have to check it?"

The woman's words were exposing herself.

Because the policeman just asked what was taken in the camera, and he didn't directly point out that they had taken a picture of Cameron. However, the woman said that she didn't take photos of them. The self-detonation indeed proved that they took photos of them.

The policeman sneered and said, "We are doing official business, not just checking."

At this time, Cameron also came over, raised his mobile phone, and took a picture of the man and the woman's faces.

The two held their heads in panic and covered their faces with their hands.

At the same time, they also angrily accused him of taking photos of them. "Why are you taking photos of us? You're violating our rights of privacy!"

Cameron sneered and said, "Why did I take photos of you? Don't you know the reason yourself?"

"Also, not only do I have to take photos of you, but I also have to make your faces public so that everyone will know that people like you are harassing other people's daily life!"

As he spoke, he continued to take pictures of them. Seeing that they could not escape, the woman stretched out her hand and tried to knock off his phone, but he dodged it. His phone was still firmly in his hand, and the woman's face was even clearer in the camera.

The woman was so angry that she pounced forward and shouted, "The woman beside you is Nina! She is a public figure. What's wrong with us taking photos of her?"

After the woman called out Nina's name, the two policemen looked at Nina in surprise.

It should be known that Nina was now a very famous celebrity. Just now, what Cameron told them was that he and his wife left his parents' home. If what the two people following them said was true, wouldn't it mean that Nina and he were married?

"Which one of your eyes saw clearly that she is Nina Sanchez?"

She was sure that they wouldn't be able to capture Nina's face in the dark at night, so he dared to say that.

After listening to Cameron's words, the two policemen immediately determined that they were talking nonsense. After all, they had never heard of Nina's marriage.

As a result, the next second, Cameron said, "Even if she is a public figure, now it is her private schedule, isn't it? In the middle of the night, you have been following my car, threatening our safety and causing our inner panic. Of course, I have to call the police. Of course, I have to take photos of your faces.'

The two policemen looked at each other and each of them was a little confused. So, was the so-called madam in his car Nina?

But now didn't seem to be the time for them to gossip. It was more important to do official business.

So one of them said to the two, "Take out the things in your cameras and have a look. If you really follow them and shoot photos, it's illegal."

The two men's expressions were obviously very resistant. They did not want to hand over their camera.

But they couldn't say anything else, because the photos they just took were really vague. They really couldn't see Nina's face clearly. However, according to their general understanding of the figures and outline of all the stars, they could conclude that the woman who just got in the car with Cameron in his arms was definitely Nina.

"Hand it over, delete it. I can pretend that nothing happened tonight." It was getting late, and Nina was still sleeping in the car. She didn't want to talk nonsense with the two of them. "It doesn't matter if you don't hand it over. My lawyer will contact you tomorrow.'

With hands in his pockets of trousers, Cameron said in a cold and decisive manner, "I believe that the lawyer team of Camcien Lifetech will make you be honest from now on."

The two men were obviously panicking when they saw that the man was so determined that he even wanted to use his lawyer's team. However, they still argued, "We, we didnt do anything illegal. What right do you have to sue us with your lawyer?"

"Do you need me to teach you the law?"

When the two people heard that it was about the law, they were a little confused.

They had been stalker fans for so long, and they also encountered some celebrities who fought with them.

But at most, they would be scolded and asked to delete the photos. this was the first time that someone used criminal law to deal with them. It was the first time in their lives that they had encountered such a situation.

"That..." The man wanted to say something, but he was directly interrupted by Cameron.

Cameron said calmly, "Tell me, who ordered you to follow us and even go to my parents' place?"

Cameron had already made a judgment. Other than his and Nina's good friends and family members, no one in the outside world knew that Nina was married to him, so no one would go to his parents to wait for them.

However, since the two of them had gone there tonight, someone must have told them about their relationship with Nina.

And the outsiders were either Melanie Blanchard or her agent, Rebecca Young.

When Melanie learned about his marriage with Nina from Michelle Byrd, she would definitely tell Rebecca.

Now it seemed that Rebecca was going to capture the evidence that he and Nina were together, and then it would be exposed to make Nina embarrassed.

The two of them were stunned by this sudden question. They originally wanted to hand over the camera and apologize to him, but they didn't expect that he would ask them to tell the people behind them.

The two were shocked and a cold sweat broke out on their backs.

This man was extremely thoughtful. It turned out that he had just aggressively asked them to hand over the camera, which was just his cover. His real purpose was to find out the person behind them.

Naturally, the two of them did not want to recruit the people behind the scenes. After all, they had received the money.

However, at this moment, their expressions were too flustered and anxious. In an instant, they betrayed that they were indeed ordered by someone to wait in his parents' house and follow him. Their faces turned pale.

The two policemen understood at a glance. These two people were really ordered by someone. Not to mention whether the person in the car was Nina or not, but these schemes in the entertainment circle were also very annoying.

"You two tell us everything. We don't want to waste time with you here in the middle of the night." One of the policemen directly said to the two persons.

Obviously, Cameron didnt want to let these two off the hook. If these two could cooperate with him, he might stop. But from now on, if these two people still argued, they were asking for trouble.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 674 Run Away from The Marriage

Chapter 674 Run Away from The Marriage

The two of them could clearly sense the seriousness of the matter as well. They quickly said, “We, we don’t know who that person is. It was they who called us and said that they wanted us to follow Nina and you...”

The two men tried not to tell the truth, but They did not realize that Cameron’s logic was first-class, and immediately pointed out the flaws in their words “You dont know who the person is? How did you get the money? If you didn’t, why did you wait for us in the middle of the night?”

The two were speechless for a moment.

The two policemen also stared at them impatiently. At this point, they didn’t need to check their cameras to be sure that they had taken a photo of Nina and Cameron.

At the end of the day, they were not sure whether the so-called Mrs. Dauster was Nina or not. After all, Mr.

Dauster had never said that she was Nina, but he did not deny that it was not Nina, either.

In terms of the importance of speaking and thinking, it was really hard to guess itin the middle of the night.

“It’s Rebecca...” Finally, the man loosened his mouth. “We have been working together before. If she has any internal information in the entertainment circle, she will tell us as soon as possible, and then we will stalk the stars.’

Cameron had already guessed that it had something to do with Rebecca and Melanie, so he was very calm all the way. He ordered the two people directly, “The photos in the camera have been deleted. Let’s call it a night.” At this point, the two of them could only delete them, and then ran back to the car and left.

Cameron thanked the two policemen and then got in his car.

When Nina woke up from her sleep, she happened to hear the sound of him opening the door and getting in the car. She rubbed her eyes and asked him in a daze, “Are we home yet?”

“Not yet,’ Cameron replied in a gentle voice. “You can sleep a little longer:

“Ok.” Nina adjusted her posture and fell asleep again.

She had drunk too much, so she didn’t know that there was a scene outside where he dealt with stalker fans for her.

While driving Nina home, he was thinking about how to deal with Rebecca and Melanie. Rebecca was his agent. After Jillian Harrison, the general trend in this circle was gone.

In addition, she also had a bad reputation after being exposed as a pimp with Jillian. The boss of Allstar Entertainment was also a very snobbish person. He would never give Rebecca a chance to train new people.

Melanie was now everything to Rebecca.

Melanie did not have any advantage in this circle. It was estimated she wouldn't bring any benefit to the company, except for pulling some investment for Allstar Entertainment by sleeping with men.

Therefore, Melanie and Rebecca were now focusing on how to make Nina's reputation bad. They couldn't become popular, so they didn't want Nina to have an easy time.

Cameron sneered. He wanted to see who had a hard time.

When he got home, he took Nina back. He was still wondering why Nina, who was drunk today, was so quiet. As a result, as soon as he took a shower and put her on the bed, she began to make trouble for him.

The woman's slender arms hooked around his neck to prevent him from leaving. He endured the tight pain in her body and said in a hoarse voice, "I haven't washed up yet..."

Just now, he was busy helping her wash her face and was about to go into the bathroom again after putting her down.

"Why are you so slow?" The woman's charming eyes were like silk, and she snorted with dissatisfaction.

Before he could say anything, she suddenly raised her hand to touch his cheek and said with a chuckle, "Do you need my help?"

In fact, she was still drunk at the moment. It was because she was so drunk that she dared seduce him like this. She even deliberately poked his chest with her slender index finger.

“There’s no need for you to help me,’ said Cameron in a low voice, gritting his teeth as he grasped the hand that had done something evil.

After that, he pulled her down from his body and said, “Let’s see how I’ll deal with you when I come back.’

Then he hurried to the bathroom.

However, when he came out of the bathroom, he found that the person on the bed had fallen asleep and slept soundly.

Cameron took a deep breath, walked over quietly, turned off the bedside lamp, held her in his arms, and fell asleep together.

It was rare for them to have a peaceful and quiet night.

The next morning, Nina was woken up by the ringing of her phone. Still dizzy from the hang-over, she was struggling to fetch her mobile phone. Someone beside her was ahead of her. The person took her phone and put it beside her ear, holding her in his arms.

Nina leaned comfortably against the man’s chest and picked up the phone. “Who is it?”

She couldn’t open her eyes at all, so she didn’t know who was calling.

At the other end of the phone, it was the voice of Viggo, who was gnashing his teeth. “Where’s Sherlyn?”

Nina was not very clear-headed in the first place. When she heard Viggo’s question, she became even more confused. “What do you mean?”

Wasn’t Sherlyn his woman? Why was he asking her?

Viggo paused for a moment and then said in an annoyed tone, "I made an appointment with her to register the marriage today, but I can't find her now. Her phone is turned off.

There is no one at home, and there is no one in the studio."

Early in the morning, Viggo came to Sherlyn's house with breakfast. As a result, no one came to open the door after he pressed the doorbell for a long time. He called her and found that her phone was turned off. He drove to Nina's studio again, but she was still nowhere to be seen.

Viggo couldn't believe the fact that Sherlyn had run away, so he called Nina.

After hearing Viggo's words, Nina became a little soberer.

She knew that Sherlyn would marry Viggo, but she didn't expect that they had an appointment to get married today, and she didn't expect that Sherlyn would escape.

Yes, although Nina didn't get any information from Sherlyn, based on her understanding of Sherlyn for so many years, she directly concluded that Sherlyn escaped from the marriage because she didn't want to get the marriage certificate.

Thinking of this, she couldn't help laughing and said faintly, "This is so typical, CEO's girlfriend running away while carrying their baby." She had also performed in several soap operas, and this kind of stories were nothing fresh to the ear.

"How can you still laugh?" Viggo said angrily from the other end.

Nina changed her position and continued to lie comfortably in Cameron's arms. She then began to argue with Viggo. "Our best actor, Mr. Johansen, you didn't notice, did you? Actually, she didn't really want to get married.

I'm afraid it was because you wanted to get married today. She was startled, so she fled.'

Viggo pursed his lips and didn't say anything.

He was not a fool. How could he not notice it?

What annoyed him now was that she didn't pay attention to her safety of herself at all. As a pregnant woman, wasn't she afraid that something would happen to her and the baby if she kept hiding?

Fortunately, Nina consoled him in time. "However, you can rest assured. Based on my understanding of her, she definitely doesn't have any problems with her personal safety. Right now, she just wants to calm down.'

First of all, Sherlyn would never do anything rashly. Second, she was always calm and would not do anything she was not sure of. Since she had decided to escape first, she should have arranged a stronghold for herself.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 675 I Love Him So Much

Chapter 675 I Love Him So Much "I understand, thank you.' Viggo knew that he couldn't get any results from Nina, so he thanked her and decided to hang up.

Nina stopped him. "Mr. Johansen.'

Viggo paused for a moment, and then he heard Nina continue, "It seems like there isn't much emotional foundation between you and Sherlyn right now, so there are many things that should be done slowly.'

What Nina meant was that Viggo and Sherlyn were entangled after drinking, and it was a little hasty for them to get married today. She indirectly suggested that Viggo should slow down. If he can do this, maybe Sherlyn would not run away from the marriage in such a panic.

Nina was kind to say these to Viggo. She wanted to make it easier for the two of them to get married.

However, Viggo replied to her with an extremely light sneer before hanging up the phone.

Nina was confused as she held her phone. She turned her head and asked Cameron, who was beside her, "What does he mean? Why did he sneer at me? Is there anything wrong with what I said?"

Cameron took away her mobile phone, turned it over and pressed her under him, and answered her question, "We are not them, so it is impossible for us to see through what they are thinking. Our suggestion is just our subjective opinion. His cold snort means that your words are different from his thought.'

Nina's head was already uncomfortable before the call. With Cameron's talking riddles with her, she immediately felt her headache worsened.

However, she still frowned and tried her best to analyze his words. In the end, she widened her beautiful eyes in shock and said, "You beat around the bush. Do you want to tell me that... Viggo likes Sherlyn quite a lot?"

"What do you think?" Cameron laughed in a low voice. Mrs. Dauster had always been smart and lovely.

Nina continued to be shocked. "When did he fall in love with Sherlyn?"

"It doesn't matter when it started. What matters is that he loves her, don't you think so?" After saying that, he lowered his head and kissed the woman's soft lips.

One day's plan lay in the morning. Such a good time should make up for what they missed last night, instead of spending their energy on other people's love affairs.

As for when Viggo fell in love with Sherlyn, as far as he knew, it should be that after Viggo and Sherlyn spent the night together, Viggo carefully reflected on that night, and suddenly realized that he had feelings for her.

Otherwise, how could a restrained person like him have an affair with Sherlyn that night?

What's more, the drunk person was Sherlyn. He was always the one who was sober.

Originally, Nina was curious about the gossip that Viggo had feelings for Sherlyn.

However, the man's kiss.

was hot and powerful, which made her unable to think about anything else.

However, she didn't forget to protest in a daze. "Don't talk to me in such a roundabout way in the future!" Can't he make it clear that Viggo loves Sherlyn? Why does he have to let her guess? “You’re so annoying!” She scolded the man and took a bite on his shoulder.

Of course, she did not really want to hurt him. On the contrary, her little strength added a bit of affection to the intimacy between the two of them on such an occasion. The small bite she took in exchange for the man’s big bite. Nina did not doubt that her neck was going to leave a mark on it again.

Fortunately, she usually wore a military uniform in this play, so it didn’t affect her acting. The two of them spent most of the morning together in bed. In the end, Nina didn’t even have a shred of strength left. She lay in Cameron’s embrace and didn’t want to move at all.

“You must be starving, aren’t you?” Cameron asked as she hugged the person in his arms. Then, he said in a low voice, “I’m going to cook.’

Nina was afraid that he was too tired. “Why don’t you order takeout? Aren’t you tired?”

“You’re trying to provoke me,” said Cameron, who immediately raised her chin unhappily.

Nina immediately gave in and raised her hand to push him. “Then go. I’m starving to death.’

Cameron was amused by her expression. Just as she was about to get out of bed, Nina suddenly pulled him back and asked nervously, “By the way, did I make a fool of myself in front of your parents last night?”

She then bit her lips in annoyance. “I didn’t want to drink, and I didn’t even think that I would drink too much.

I was so drunk. I’ve lost my composure.’

It was only now that Nina had the time to recall what had happened last night. The moment she thought of how she had gotten drunk the first time she saw Cameron’s parents, she couldn’t help but curse herself in her heart.

In the dinner last night, she had expected a polite and somewhat strange dinner party. After all, it was the first time for her to meet his parents for a meal. Unexpectedly, after that, she and Colleen had a good talk, and they even drink together.

After drinking too much, Nina couldn't remember what had happened next at all. So she asked Cameron if she had been uncontrolled.

Cameron noticed her nervousness. He raised his hand and rubbed her head, with a doting smile in his eyes.

"You didn't make a fool of yourself at all. You're perfect.'

Nina looked at him with a look of suspicion. "Really?"

"Of course." Cameron nodded seriously. "My mother was also very drunk. She lost herself, so you don't have to worry about what she will remember at all."

"As for my father, you don't have to worry about his opinion. He has always admired you."

These words greatly comforted Nina. She heaved a sigh of relief as she slipped into the blanket and lazily ordered, "You can go cook now."

Cameron smiled, got up, put on his clothes, and went to the kitchen.

After Cameron left, Nina lay quietly on the big bed. She only felt that the happiness and sweetness in her heart were about to overflow. She, Nina, had no right to meet such a good man like Cameron in this life.

Whether it was mentally or physically, he had always placed her in his heart and doted on her.

It was as if he wanted to give her all the love she had lost in her parents' family in the past years. It was him, the love he gave her filled the emptiness of her life.

She truly loved him.

She was happy to be loved by such a good man.

After recalling her sweetness, she took out her mobile phone to contact Sherlyn.

Although she knew that Sherlyn had turned off her phone, she still wanted to send a message. Sherlyn would definitely not keep her phone off all the time. As a manager of a popular actress, she was busy with her work.

And according to the principle that Sherlyn's work was above all else, it was estimated that the phone would soon be turned on.

Nina said with a teasing tone, "Dear, where are you hiding?"

Unexpectedly, Sherlyn had turned on the phone. Soon, she replied angrily, "I'm a pregnant woman. Where can I hide? I'm in my house in the suburbs.'

Sherlyn had her own house in Riverside City, and she also bought a hot spring villa in the suburbs of Riverside City. It was an investment and also a reward for her because she can spend time here on vacation.

However, for so many years, Nina had never seen this able woman go to her villa to take a vacation. She did not expect that she would go there for such a reason this time.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 676 The Happiest Person

Chapter 676 The Happiest Person

For a moment, Nina didn't know what to say to her agent who ran away from wedding. She had a flash marriage and her agent escaped marriage. Both of them were abnormal.

After thinking for a while, she said, "It's good for you to stay there on holiday. You can relax yourself during these days. Come back when you want to.'

Nina thought that Sherlyn might not want to come back to meet Viggo for the time being, so she offered to let Sherlyn take a few days off. Besides, Sherlyn was pregnant and Nina had planned to reduce her workload.

However, hearing this, Sherlyn shouted, "Are you kidding? How can I take a holiday at this time? The studio has just been on track, and I'm preparing to do something big. How can you allow me to take a holiday?"

"Besides, I haven't taken a holiday for so many years. I'm not used to holidays at all," Sherlyn's tone became brisk and businesslike, and she was not as careful as a pregnant woman.

Nina had to remind her agent seriously, "You are in a different situation now. You are pregnant. You should take care of yourself and don't work too hard."

Sherlyn was hardly conscious of being pregnant, "Is there any rule that pregnant women can't continue to work hard?" Nina sighed. Her agent was really tough.

She compromised, "Okay, okay. You win. But what about you and Viggo?"

Sherlyn asked rhetorically, "What do you mean?"

"Aren't you embarrassed to see each other again?" asked Nina.

She thought that according to the current situation of Sherlyn and Viggo, it was better for them not to see each other for the time being. Besides, she felt that Viggo was very angry before. She didn't know if the two would have a quarrel when they met each other.

"Why should I feel embarrassed?" Sherlyn was free and easy. "I ran away from the wedding today, which is to give him a hint that I find it too hasty to get married now. If he thinks he can't accept my proposal, we are done.' Nina was speechless.

She couldn't help but roast Sherlyn, "Is that your attitude that shows you want to live a good life?"

"Of course, I want to live a good life,' Sherlyn defended herself. "And just because I want to live a good life, I feel that I need to take it slowly. Otherwise, if I get married in a hurry and I have an emotional breakdown, I won't live a good life, will I?"

Nina smiled, "What you said makes sense. In that case, I will support your decision.'

But then she added, "Cameron said that Viggo likes you, so you two have an emotional basis."

The reason why Nina said these words to Sherlyn was that she wanted Sherlyn to let her guard down.

Sherlyn always thought that Viggo didn't love her at all, so she refused to get the marriage license with him so soon.

After hearing what Nina said, Sherlyn kept silent for a while on the other end of the phone.

Then she denied with self-mockery, "It's impossible. Cameron is teasing you. How is it possible that Viggo would fall in love with me? We have known each other for so many years. If he does like me, he should've had feelings for me long ago"

Without waiting for Nina to say anything, Sherlyn said, "Well, I won't disturb the two of you. I'll have a rest and go back in the afternoon.'

"By the way, the studio has been decorated and software has been installed. Should we invite everyone to celebrate, or choose a lucky day to open up our studio?" Sherlyn suggested.

Nina thought her suggestion was very good. "You're right. There is no time like the present. Since I'm still in Riverside City today, let's invite everyone to dinner.'

She would fly back to the crew tomorrow afternoon. She didn't know when she would come back next time.

If Nina wanted to stand treat, tonight was the only choice.

"I'll arrange all these things. Have a good rest and calm down,' Nina was afraid that Sherlyn would be busy preparing the dinner party again, so she decided to arrange it herself.

Sherlyn didn't know whether to cry or to laugh. "Did you include me in the key protection list? Then you do it. I'll just wait for dinner.'

“Okay,’ Nina agreed and she threw a task to Sherlyn. “Can you invite Viggo?” Sherlyn was speechless.

But she also agreed, “Of course I can invite him. I’m afraid that he is not willing to come if he is angry and wants to break up with me.”

“It’s okay if he won’t come. If he doesn’t contact you, I won’t contact him either, Nina was definitely on Sherlyn’s side.

Sherlyn was moved, “Thank you, Nina.” The two of them then hung up the phone. Lying lazily on the bed, Nina was mulling over who she should invite.

After thinking for a while, it seemed that she couldn’t invite anyone else, because Cameron must attend the dinner with her, and she couldn’t let too many people know their relationship. Therefore, in the end, she could only invite her close friends.

During the dinner, Nina told Cameron that she wanted to invite the folks to dinner to celebrate the establishment of the studio.

Cameron nodded and said, “Indeed, it’s time to celebrate.”

Then he said to Nina, “Wait a moment.’

Then he stood up, leaving the dining room, and went upstairs. After a while, he came down with the box that was filled with diamond rings before. Seeing the box, Nina felt a headache, “Are you going to give me rings again?”

Cameron opened the box and said, “Since your studio is founded, I have to give you a gift to congratulate you. I know you wont want all rings. You can choose one you like.”

Nina was amused. She pointed at the box, “Do you want to give me a ring every time there is something important until you give them all to me?”

This time, Cameron didnt let her choose. He took out a hexagonal diamond ring and put it on the ring finger of her left hand. “I have no choice. Mrs. Dauster is always unwilling to accept my gift. I can only give it to you with different excuses.’

“This ring is simple. I’ll give it to you this time. You can wear it tonight.’

Nina looked at the ring. Is this still called simple? The light on the diamond ring was about to blind her eyes.

Touching the dazzling diamond gently, she sighed, "Mr. Dauster, to be honest, I am not after your money.'

"I know,' Cameron nodded in agreement. "You're after my killer-hot face and body."

Hearing that, Nina burst into laughter. Then she stood up, put her arms around his neck and murmured, "I like the diamond ring very much. Thank you.'

Thank him for giving her so much love. She was the happiest woman in the world now.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 677 Being Jealous Again

Chapter 677 Being Jealous Again

After lunch, Nina badgered Cameron to play pool with her. She was familiar with these things when she was a student. She did all the things that students shouldn't do when they were in school, and she was even good at them.

Otherwise, she would not be the so-called bad student or bad girl, because she was too wild.

The reason why she badgered Cameron to play pool was that she liked the way that people like Cameron, who looked very gentle and decent, played pool. In particular, she liked him more when he unbuttoned his white shirt, showing his good-looking collarbone.

Then he would roll up his sleeves, uninhibited and charming. He was full of jade-like temperament, which made her want to jump him.

When she was a student, she often asked him to play pool. Since she had seen him play pool once, she had been fascinated. Every time she finished her homework, she would drag him to play one or two rounds. According to what she said, she was tired of studying and wanted to see a handsome man to relieve her mood.

Cameron knew what she was thinking about. He really wanted to satisfy her and be jumped by her. But now their status was different.

He looked down at the woman in his arms, "What if we are photographed? Anyway, I don't care. I'm willing to go public with our marriage immediately, but you said you wanted to wait till you've finished shooting this play?"

Leaning against him, Nina snorted, "The pool room is owned by my friend. I'll let him clear up that place." Cameron narrowed his eyes and lifted her up from his arms, "Your friend? What friend? Why didn't I know?"

Without waiting for her to say anything, Cameron gritted his teeth, "Don't tell me it's that Edwin Hodge, your classmate at high school?"

"Yes, it's him,' said Nina frankly.

"Interesting, Cameron sneered.

Edwin Hodge was a well-known hooligan when he was a student. He fought with others all day long without paying attention to his study. After the college entrance examination, no one had seen him. It was said that he had left Riverside City without being admitted to university.

Cameron didn't expect that he would come back again and open a pool room. He was still so idle.

Cameron despised Edwin in his heart. As for the reason that he was so hostile to Edwin, it was self-evident that Edwin also liked Nina. Before Cameron officially dated Nina, almost everyone in the school said that Nina and Edwin were in a relationship.

Of course, Nina knew why Cameron was so sarcastic. She couldn't help but glance at him, "Are you done with it? We're married. What else are you jealous of?"

In the past, Nina had nothing to do with Edwin. It was Edwin who had a crush on her, but she didn't had feelings for him.

Before Cameron transferred to her school, she had always regarded Edwin as her friend, and she was also a recognized bad girl at that time. No one would like to play with her except Emelia at that time. If she didn't hang out with people like Edwin, what other choice did she have?

So, she didn't care about what other students thought. Since she was with Cameron, she had kept a certain distance from Edwin because Cameron was jealous.

Being accused of being jealous by Nina, Cameron admitted it.

He was jealous. He didn't like all the men who admired her, but she was a famous female star and a goddess in all men's hearts.

Cameron felt that it was a torture for him to fall in love with such a woman.

Taking a deep breath, he calmed himself down and asked again, "Didn't he leave Riverside City? When did he come back? And when did he contact you?"

"He left Riverside City just for self-training. After that, he'll definitely come back. This is his hometown, isn't it?"

After graduating from high school, Edwin left Riverside City for a big city in the south to see a bigger world.

After he accumulated money and experience, he returned to Riverside City last year. And then he invested in an entertainment city and a bar. During these years, Nina and Edwin actually started meeting each other from the beginning of last year.

But they had only seen each other a few times in total. She basically worked all year. Her schedule was.

packed with all kinds of jobs. Occasionally, she had some free time to spend in Riverside City.

Cameron asked again, "When did you two get in touch?"

Nina opened her mouth and avoided eye contact with Cameron.

Could she say that she had never lost contact with Edwin? Nowadays, everyone had a cell phone. Even if people graduated from high school and were not in the same city, and even if they didn't meet each other, they could still keep in contact with each other with phones.

Unlike someone who had never been heard of since he went abroad and hadn't said a word to her for so many years.

Cameron saw through her mind in a second, and his face darkened. "You two have been keeping in touch?"

Nina simply admitted, "Yes, but nothing more. He just returned to Riverside City last year to start his own business. We only meet a few times.'

Cameron pressed his tongue against the back of his teeth.

Because of her special identity, every time when she went to Edwin's game room, Edwin would definitely clear the room in advance.

Cameron instantly imagined the scene of the two getting along. There were only the two of them in the huge pool hall. A man and a woman played the pool while talking and laughing. The atmosphere was as intimate as it was, and as romantic as it was.

The scene Cameron imagined was exactly the same as the one in reality when Nina met Edwin. The only difference was that Nina didn't feel romantic. She just went to Edwin's place to play pool and relax.

She was also glad to have a friend like Edwin who could open such a place for fun and she could relax without scruple.

She liked to play, and now she needed to relax because she was under endless pressure in the entertainment circle every day. If she went to other places, she would inevitably be surrounded or pictured.

However, if she came to Edwin's place, at least Edwin could guarantee her safety.

She had already made it clear to Edwin that the person in her heart was always Cameron. She wanted Edwin to stop thinking about her and not to delay himself because of her.

At their age, everyone was clear and calm. Edwin was no longer an impulsive and reckless young man.

They were just good friends.

She also found that Cameron was the only one who was restless now.

Cameron was the only one who was jealous sometimes and who was even more jealous than those young boys.

If she had known that he cared about Edwin so much, she would not have mentioned playing pool.

When she was about to take back her proposal, Cameron in front of her suddenly pulled her to himself and kissed her hard.

Nina's lips hurt and she let out a groan. The man held her more tightly.

Cameron couldn't control himself at all. As long as he thought that she was alone with Edwin, he felt jealous. Only in this way could he relieve his inner restlessness.

Fine, no pool, no Edwin! Nina regretted mentioning this thing. She just wanted to play pool but her mouth was swollen due to Cameron's kiss.

What a nut!

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 678 Willing to Do Anything

Chapter 678 Willing to Do Anything After Cameron let go of her, Nina beat him angrily and said, "I won't go, okay?"

With these words, Nina broke free from the man's arms and turned around. She intended to leave and didn't want to talk to this crazy man anymore.

Unexpectedly, Cameron grabbed her wrist, "Let's go. We have to go."

He had to meet Edwin. He had to let Edwin know his existence and let Edwin know how much he loved Nina. And in this way, Cameron intended to let Edwin give up on Nina completely.

If he could defeat Douglas Cleveland, then he could defeat Edwin Hodge.

Nina was speechless. She stared at him and couldn't say anything for a while.

Didn't he mind Edwin? Didn't he dislike her to meet Edwin? Why did he suddenly want to go?

Cameron didn't explain. He just took her upstairs, "Let's change clothes."

"Are you sure?" asked Nina suspiciously.

Cameron nodded seriously, "Yes, I'm sure. I haven't played pool for many years. It's good for me to relax." Nina raised her eyebrows, "Really? Are you a good boy abroad? Don't you go out to play?"

Cameron stopped and pressed her into his arms, warning, "If you keep suspecting me like this, I'll make sure you won't be able to get off bed for a while."

Nina was speechless

He was being so serious.

Cameron seemed to see through her mind. He stared at her and explained seriously, "Every day when I was abroad, I only focused on my study and missed you. How could I have time to go out for fun?"

"I don't dare to go out. I know better than anyone else that your heart is smaller than a needle when dealing with love. If I made a mistake once, you'll definitely abandon me.

When he said this, he could feel tears welling in his dark eyes. It seemed that he had suffered a lot.

Cameron was indeed aggrieved. She knew that he was a man of self-esteem, and knew that he wouldn't look at other women. However, she always liked to joke about his "unhinged life" abroad.

Being stared at by him like this, Nina felt a little guilty. She quickly looked away and said, "What you said makes me feel that I am a fierce woman. It's okay if you didn't indulge in dissipation.'

Nina didn't know why a man who was about thirty years old could be so jealous one second and poor the next second. He changed his face so quickly that she didn't know what response should she have.

She thought to herself that she won't make such a joke at him anymore. Before the two of them changed their clothes and went out, Nina called Edwin first. The phone was put on speaker all the time, because Cameron strongly requested.

As soon as Nina said that she was going to play, Edwin replied on the phone, "Just come here directly. I haven't opened the pool room since you came last time, so there's no one at all. There's no need to clear the room in advance."

"What?" Nina was surprised. She didn't know this thing. She said worriedly, "But will it affect you to make money?"

The pool hall occupied a large part of Edwin's entertainment city. If he said that it was not open again, it meant that the hall was directly closed. Nina thought that it would make Edwin lose a lot of money.

Edwin didn't take it seriously, "I don't need that money.'

Then he sighed, "Besides, you have recommended so many customers and friends to my gym and bar. I have already earned money from those places.'

As soon as Edwin finished his words, Nina sensed pressure around her.

Cameron had already been jealous because she had contact with Edwin. Now Cameron knew that Nina had helped introduce business. Cameron must be jealous this time.

In fact, she didn't deliberately help Edwin. Most of the time, she just casually recommended it. After all, almost all the celebrities in the entertainment circle had to keep fit. When they participated in activities or talked about fitness in the crew, she would tell them that her friend had opened a gym.

Or when there was a party, she would also casually mention Edwin's bar. She was also surprised. She was really good at marketing. As soon as she said this thing, everyone swarmed to the gym and the bar, which boosted Edwin's business.

Due to stress from Cameron, Nina didn't know what to say on the phone. Edwin seemed to have felt something and asked in a low voice, "Is there someone by your side?" Nina was amused, "Yes."

"Is it Cameron?" Edwin immediately guessed the answer, and then he said with self-mockery, "A few days ago, he claimed that he was married. I knew that Mrs. Dauster was you."

In fact, Nina had never told Edwin about her current relationship with Cameron, but she didn't expect that Edwin had guessed it.

Edwin seemed to be extremely depressed in an instant. Before she could say anything, he said, "I won't say anything on the phone. See you later.' Then he hung up the phone. Nina held the phone and sighed.

She didn't want to hurt others one after another, but she had no choice. She only had Cameron in her heart, and Cameron was always the only one in her heart.

"He seems to have some self-knowledge,' Cameron commented on Edwin's attitude.

Edwin immediately guessed that Cameron would only marry Nina, and he also knew that Nina would marry Cameron. That was to say, Edwin knew in his heart that Cameron and Nina would be together.

It was sure that Edwin had self-knowledge.

Nina raised her hand and gently lifted the corner of his mouth, "So, since he has known our matter, don't pull a long face anymore. We are just friends."

Cameron didn't say anything. He just held her fair hand and gently stroked it. It would be best if Edwin had self-knowledge as he showed.

The two of them then drove to Edwin's pool room, but they didn't go with each other. Instead, they drove their own cars, one after the other, in order not to be photographed again.

Cameron arrived first because he didn't want to let Nina arrive first and stay alone with Edwin.

Edwin was waiting at the door of the pool room. When he saw Cameron get out of the car first, he raised his eyebrows and said, "It seems that it's not good to have a relationship with a female star. You two are behaving like special agents and you can't show up together.'

Cameron locked the car and said to Edwin, "I'm willing to do it. It's not like I have to keep our relationship a secret all my life." Edwin ground his teeth secretly, and all the wine he had just drunk rushed to his head.

When entering the pool room, Cameron passed by Edwin. With a keen sense of smell, he immediately smelled the alcohol from Edwin. He glanced at Edwin, "Why did you drink so much in the daytime?"

It was neither at night nor at dinner time. The strong smell of alcohol from Edwin obviously showed that Edwin was irritated by what happened between Cameron and Nina just now.

Indeed, Edwin drank because he had just confirmed that Nina and Cameron had rekindled their relationship. He had been depressed for so many years, so he could only use alcohol to numb himself.

He was the first one to meet Nina. It was widely acknowledged that he and Nina were a perfect match before Cameron appeared. He didn't expect that he would become an ordinary friend as soon as Cameron appeared.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 679 She Didn't Love You

Chapter 679 She Didn't Love You Nina was recognized as a beauty and the most beautiful girl in the school.

But because of her unreliable parents, bad grades and bad temperament, her reputation in the school was not good, just like Edwin at that time.

Edwin had never thought that he couldn't have Nina. Although Nina refused him every time, he didn't take it seriously. He thought that they were still young, so he didn't have to force her to do anything.

After graduation, he wanted to marry her and live a happy life with her.

He never had thought that there would be an exception, Cameron. Not only did Nina improve her academic performance greatly for Cameron, but she also loved Cameron so much that she had to marry him.

With his heart broken, he went to the south, thinking of making his way in the world to pursue Nina again.

Hearing that Nina had no news of Cameron in the past few years, Edwin was sure that Cameron had changed his mind. Therefore, after accumulating a certain amount of wealth, he returned to Riverside City, started his business and took his time in chasing after Nina.

The so-called "take his time" was a kind of contact that didn't cause too much trouble to Nina.

Another reason was that Nina was so busy that he couldn't keep an eye on her every day.

Unexpectedly, Cameron suddenly came back and announced that he was married. Edwin had a bad feeling when he saw the news, but he felt that he still had a chance.

But just now, Nina acquiesced the fact that she had married Cameron on the phone. Edwin felt that there were no words to describe his mood, so he drank the whole bottle of wine sulkily.

At this moment, the resentment in his heart surged crazily when he saw Cameron's indifferent attitude to him.

He sneered, "Cameron, do you think that you can be together with Nina after getting married?"

People can divorce even if they get married, right?

No one knew who would accompany him for the rest of his life until the last moment. Now the person beside Nina was Cameron, and it might be someone else in the future.

Of course, Cameron understood what Edwin meant. He stopped and looked at Edwin, asking, "Do you think that you still have a chance even if she marries me?"

Edwin raised his chin and replied coldly, "Of course."

Edwin had a pretty face and he was a somewhat wild and charming man. But there was an obvious scar on his chin. It was said that the scar was left after a fight in the past.

He had a buzz cut with an ear stud on his left ear and extensive tattoo on his arms. That's why he was a man who looked very difficult to trifle with.

But Cameron didn't take him seriously. He said word by word, "Edwin, you think you have a good relationship with her, but in fact, you don't know her-at all."

"She will try her best to win what she likes, and she will never take a look at what she doesn't like. And she will never be sloppy."

"For so many years, she has never liked you from beginning to end. All was your wishful thinking."

"Do you think you lost her because of me? You are wrong. Even without me, she won't choose you, because she doesn't love you"

Cameron's words hurt Edwin's heart. He stepped forward and approached Cameron, "What the fuck are you talking about?" The two were about the same height, but Cameron had been calm. He lazily said to Edwin, "I'm telling the truth. If you don't disagree, come on."

Edwin was so angry that he gnashed his teeth and his eyes turned red.

Damn it! Cameron was so arrogant just because Nina loved him.

But what Cameron said was right. It was the original sin that she didn't love him. If Nina didn't love him, he had lost the game.

It took Edwin a lot of effort to restrain his impulse to slap Cameron, because he didn't want Nina to see their fighting later. He had been out for a long time. If it were someone else who provoked him like Cameron, he would have beaten that person to the ground.

So, it was not easy for him to control himself not to start the fight.

But Edwin didn't expect that Cameron would punch him back first. This totally ticked Edwin off. He could no longer restrain himself, dodged Cameron's fist and started to fight with him.

When Cameron suppressed Edwin with his arm, he said, "The reason why I hit you is that you don't respect her."

With a deafening sound, Edwin suddenly turned over and restrained Cameron, "When did I disrespect her?"

Cameron sneered, "You said that you still have a chance after she got married, which doesn't respect her.

Because she is a single-minded person and she is serious. Since she chose to marry me, it means that she'll live a good life with me.

Edwin was almost pissed off by his words. He said that just to annoy Cameron. He didn't mean to disrespect Nina at all. Who could have thought that Cameron would interpret it this way?

Was this the mindset of a Straight-A student?

And when Edwin was absent-minded, Cameron once again suppressed him on the ground and gained the upper hand.

This was what Nina saw when she entered the pool hall. If she hadn't seen the two men with bruises on their faces, she would have suspected that the two had clicked with each other and wanted to do it right on the floor.

“Are you crazy?” Nina stepped forward and pulled Cameron aside to keep the distance between the two.

Nina was pissed off. She didn't expect that the two men would fight with each other within a short time.

With his body free, Edwin got up from the ground. When he was about to complain to Nina that it was Cameron who attack him first, he saw that Cameron, who was pulled by Nina, suddenly covered his chest, with a painful expression on his face.

Nina was shocked and asked, “What's wrong with you?” Because of too much worry and tension, Nina's voice trembled. And Edwin also frowned slightly.

Did he hit Cameron too hard just now that Cameron was injured?

But judging from the strength of Cameron's fists, he knew that Cameron must have been trained, or Cameron had done a lot of exercise. So, it was impossible for him not to resist the fists.

As a result, Cameron said to Nina, “My chest hurts. I don't know if my ribs hurt?”

Edwin was speechless.

Damn it! It was him who had broken his ribs. He even felt that the bridge of his nose was about to break. At this moment, the bridge of his nose was burning, but what did he say?

Cameron was so scheming.

Cameron acted as if Cameron was hurt and he himself was the one to blame.

Because of Cameron's serious expression, Nina's face also changed a little. She hurriedly said, “It might be a broken rib! Let's call an ambulance right away.”

As she spoke, she took out her phone and was about to make a call with her trembling fingers.

Cameron stopped her, "It's not that serious. I don't need to go to the hospital." He just pretended to be pitiful and won her sympathy. It would be too much if he went to the hospital.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 680 Because I Love Him

Chapter 680 Because I Love Him Edwin couldn't stand it anymore and sneered.

Today, he finally understand what a scheming man Cameron was.

Because of his sneer, Nina turned around and stared at him. When she saw the bruise in his eyes, her anger was ignited again. She scolded Edwin rudely, "How dare you laugh?"

Edwin flinched. He had known Nina's temper since high school. Now he took a step back instinctively to avoid her attack.

He didn't have the strength to fight back if she hit him. On the one hand, Nina was good at fighting. On the other hand, even if he could beat her, it was not appropriate for a man to hit a woman. So he had no choice but to be beaten passively.

When he was in high school, he had experienced this kind of thing for several times. One time, he insisted on fighting with others and he didn't listen to Nina's advice. Then he was scratched by the other party with a knife. When Nina knew it, she beat him up.

He was so young at that time and he accepted the fact that he was beaten up by her. But now he was almost thirty years old, and it was really shameful to be beaten by Nina.

Nina crossed her arms and glanced at Edwin, who was spineless and took a step back. Then she turned around and glared at Cameron, who was covering his chest with her hands. She continued to roar, "Are you two still kids? Aren't you ashamed if the news spreads? Don't you have any self-restraint?"

Cameron cast a disdainful glance at Edwin. This man was really ungrateful. He pretended to be injured just now in order to transfer Nina's target, so that he wouldn't be scolded, and Edwin wouldn't be scolded either.

Now, all his efforts were ruined by Edwin's sneer.

Edwin was scolded, and so was he.

That's to say, a weak teammate does you more harm than a strong enemy.

He put down his hand which was covering his chest and walked over to hold Nina's shoulder. He apologized without any temper, 'I'm sorry. It's all my fault. Don't be angry.'

Edwin was so shocked that his eyes almost dropped. He didn't expect that Cameron had been so cold and ruthless to him before, and now he began to apologize in front of her without any backbone. And the tone of Cameron's voice was so disgusting that he got goose bumps.

To his surprise, Nina didn't give Cameron an overarm throw. If he had provoked her before, he would have been thrown out directly.

At this moment, Nina even allowed Cameron to put his arm around her shoulder.

Indeed, different people had different lives.

Maybe this was the difference between love and not love.

She loved Cameron, so she was willing to tolerate him.

Edwin looked away dejectedly.

Nina allowed Cameron to get close to her, which didn't mean that she was not angry.

But because Cameron's phone rang before Nina got even with Cameron. Therefore, she asked him to answer the phone first.

However, after Cameron answered the phone, his face suddenly changed. Then he said to the other end of the phone in a low voice, "I'll be there soon." Then he hung up.

Cameron's arm was wrapping around Nina's shoulder. At that moment, she could feel the tension from Cameron's body. She immediately asked with concern, "What happened?"

Cameron tried his best to control himself and replied in a low voice, "My mother had a car accident and she is being rescued in the hospital."

“How could this be?” Nina’s heart twitched all of a sudden. Her hand, which was originally drooping under her body, wrapped Cameron’s hands. In this way she hoped to give him the most primitive comfort.

Regardless of explaining too much, Cameron held her hand and walked out, “Go to the hospital first.”

“Wait a minute,’ Edwin stopped them. “Neither of you seem suitable to drive now. Take my car.’

After saying that, Edwin turned around and rushed out. Nina agreed with Edwin’s suggestion. Cameron’s face was extremely pale at the moment, and she was so nervous that her hands trembled. She couldn’t drive at all.

Cameron had no objection. The two of them went out and got in Edwin’s off-road vehicle.

After the car was started, Nina took out a mask from her bag and handed it to Cameron. She said with concern, “Wear a mask for fear that everyone would worry about you if they see the wound at the corner of your mouth.”

“Later you just tell them that you caught a cold. It’s very serious. You don’t want to infect others, so you wear a mask.”

Cameron had a fight with Edwin just now. Edwin’s eyes were bruised, and Cameron’s mouth was injured. If Colleen woke up and saw him like this, it was inevitable to increase her psychological burden.

Fortunately, as a female star, she had many masks in her bag.

Cameron took the mask and put it on honestly. Edwin, who was driving, glanced at the two people from the rearview mirror and he silently grabbed his sunglasses and put it on to cover the bruises at the corners of his eyes.

Edwin didn’t expect that Nina would be so considerate. The first thing she thought of was to cover the wound at the corners of Cameron's mouth. In his impression, Nina was careless, as if there was nothing in her heart.

But at this moment, her eyes were fixed on Cameron.

After tidying up Cameron's mask, Nina held his hand and asked, "What happened? Why did your mother have a car accident?"

Cameron's voice was as cold as ice, "My father just said on the phone that Melanie had an appointment with her before her accident, Melanie told her the two years when I had been doing scientific research for my mentor abroad."

Confused, Nina asked, "The two years?"

Cameron lowered his eyes, "In fact, I didn't have a good time in those two years. I had suffered a lot. When the research fell into a bottleneck, those dangerous people had also tried to harm us..."

Cameron had never mentioned his life in the two years to anyone, not even to Lucien. In fact, Cameron and his mentor had been treated unfairly.

Those who caught his mentor to do scientific research were violent terrorists. Those terrorists urgently needed a kind of medicine and locked his mentor up to force him to do research. His mentor's energy and ability were limited, and his mentor had to ask Cameron for help because of gruesome torture from those terrorists.

He agreed to help, so he was taken to be locked up with his mentor.

However, it was not easy to do scientific research. When they were stuck in a bottleneck or simply failed in their experiments, those people would attack them. Fortunately, he was not a man to be trifled with. Later, those people did not dare to use force anymore, but Cameron and his mentor were not allowed to eat or drink. Those terrorists tortured them in this way, forcing them to speed up their research.

Then they succeeded and finally got their freedom.

The reason why he didn't mention it to anyone was that since it had been a long time ago, he didn't want to make those who cared about him feel sorry for him. Therefore, he chose to skip the two years easily.

But Melanie knew, because his mentor had told family about it.

Melanie deliberately ran to Colleen and said these things. It could be said that she was extremely vicious.

Knowing that her son had suffered a lot, Colleen almost fell apart on the spot.