

Thrive 19

Chapter 19 The Death of Yun Dachuan (1)

In the last life, Yunshang had been wearing a lock-shaped jade pendant on her neck. Gu Shinian remembered it very clearly. After Yunshang was born, Uncle Yun personally wore it on her neck. It was not taken off before crossing.

At this time, when he asked about Yupei, he just tried it out and didn't hold out much hope. After all, this is another world with too many variables.

Unexpectedly, when Widow Wang listened to Gu Shinian's words, her whole body immediately trembled uncontrollably, her eyes were even more like eating people, she stared at Yun Chang, and there was a swearing sound that was almost roaring in her throat.

Gu Shinian stabbed with an electric baton without hesitation, "It seems that you don't just want your tongue anymore, you don't even want these two eyeballs anymore, Ah Chang, give me the knife."

Yun Chang hesitated for a moment, and immediately handed a western knife to Gu Shinian's hand, and Widow Wang seemed to have pressed the pause button, and there was no sound in her throat. Struggling to push back with both feet.

"Can you talk properly?" Gu Shinian asked again lightly.

Widow Wang nodded again and again, tears streaming down her face, she looked really frightened.

Since Yunshang came back from the county town, Widow Wang has been in a nightmare, and the whole person has been on the verge of collapse.

She never imagined that the little bun that she had been holding in her palm would one day turn into a big rock that pierced her hand, and now the big rock hit her back so that she couldn't resist, and she almost died.

Whether it was Yunshang digging a hole for her at the entrance of the village, ruining her reputation, or taking her from home to that strange place in the blink of an eye, giving her medicine, or suddenly appearing at home and having insight into Yunshang's life experience Unfamiliar boy, all this is too bizarre, too unthinkable.

Without the influence of the brain-opening web articles of later generations, with the pitiful brain capacity of Widow Wang, I can't figure out what the hell is going on anyway.

In the end, she could only attribute what she had experienced to being a ghost, and the sudden transformation of Yunshang to being possessed by a demon.

Now another evildoer is pressing her to ask her about the jade brand, which has been explained by the frightened Widow Wang very wisely.

"Lost, lost."

The voice was still indistinct, and Gu Shinian thought it was too hard to hear, so he reached out and closed Widow Wang's chin.

"When was it lost, where was it lost, and who lost it?"

"My man... that year when Dachuan went up the mountain, he lost it."

Widow Wang glared at Yunshang again as she spoke, tears streaming down her cheeks. It could be seen that when she mentioned Yun Dachuan, Widow Wang was really sad and she really hated Yunshang.

Gu Shinian didn't miss Widow Wang's eyes, and asked in a frightened and intimidating way for a long time, and finally figured out what it was all about.

Consistent with the guesses of the two, Yun Chang is really not the child of Widow Wang and Yun Dachuan.

She was picked up by the widow Wang from a wooden tub that had drifted down the river when she was washing clothes by the river.

At that time, Widow Wang was still nine months pregnant. She took Yun Chang home before dawn in the morning. Before noon, she had a stomach attack. Because of the abnormal fetal position, it took several hours to give birth to a male child. It's a pity Born to die.

In this way, Yun Chang, who was originally going to be sent to Widow Wang's second brother's house to be a daughter, stayed in Lao Yun's house and became the daughter of Widow Wang and Yun Dachuan.

The family also announced to the public that Widow Wang gave birth to a daughter, and the dead male fetus was quietly buried.

Yun Chang was born fair and lovely, Yun Dachuan loved her very much, but Widow Wang was not so comfortable. She always felt that her son was killed by Yunshang. If Yunshang hadn't taken away her son's blessing, her son might not have died.

Widow Wang didn't like Yun Chang, but at the insistence of the old Yun family and Yun Dachuan, she unbuttoned her clothes and became a nurse for Yun Chang.

Take care of Yun Chang with all her heart.

On the day of the full moon for Yunshang, Mrs. Wang came to visit with her two daughters-in-law and four eldest grandsons.

From the moment she entered the door, Mrs. Wang's eyeballs stuck to the jade plaque on Yun Chang's chest and never pulled it out.

The jade brand is white and warm, and it is still shiny, and it looks like a good thing of the old age.

Looking back at the four eldest grandchildren standing one by one under the kang, with bare necks, Mrs. Wang felt uncomfortable.

Her golden grandson didn't even have to wear a copper lock piece, how could such a girl wear such a good thing!

Besides, everyone in the village said that the Lao Yun family was very poor, but looking at the quality of this jade card, the Lao Yun family still had some wealth.

Otherwise, I would be willing to wear such a good thing for a girl's film.

The old lady Wang was not polite, she took Widow Wang's hand, and opened her mouth to ask for the jade plaque around Yunshang's neck for the eldest grandson.

Widow Wang refused, and her words were not very pleasant.

Although she doesn't like Yunshang either, but compared to her nephew, Yunshang is also surnamed Yun.

Besides, Yun Dachuan said it early in the morning, this jade card was hung on Yunshang's neck when he picked it up. It is an important physical evidence related to whether Yunshang can find his father and mother in the future. It must be collected. , can't be lost.

Widow Wang and Yun Dachuan's relationship was just when honey was mixed with oil. With her fiery and fiery temperament, how could she do things to please her family and make Yun Dasheng angry.

Mrs. Wang was pushed back by her daughter, and she lost face. She immediately turned gloomy, dragged her eldest grandchildren, and went home without even eating.

The four grandchildren of the Wang family were all born to the widow Wang's sister-in-law. Seeing that the little sister-in-law was reluctant to give the jade token to her son, she also drooped her face and followed her mother-in-law with a murmur.

On the other hand, the second sister-in-law, who had been married to the Wang family for 7 years and had not been happy, stayed for a meal as her mother's family, which was considered to be the face of the widow Wang.

When Yunshang was eleven months old, Xinglin Village was going to build a stage. The strong laborers in the village had to go up the mountain and carry stones every day to contribute to the construction of the stage in the village, and Mrs. Wang was also in the name of watching the fun. Once again led a few grandchildren to the door.

It was probably because the jade brand she was thinking about was not available to her eldest grandson. When Mrs. Wang was at home, she often talked to a few grandsons. This time, a few people came to the door, and the eldest grandson of the Wang family rushed to the kang with a clear goal when he entered the door, and grabbed it. The jade plaque on Yunshang's neck was pulled down, and before the big guy could react, he pulled Yunshang off the kang so hard, and kowtowed to the point of bloodshed.

Yun Dachuan just entered the door. When he saw that his daughter was injured, his eyes were red, and he didn't care about asking Wang's family for a theory. With Yunshang in his arms, he went to the barefoot doctor in the village to apply medicine. After returning home, Mrs. Wang had long been Slipped away with a few grandchildren.