

Thrive 49

Chapter 49 Bring you something delicious

The old lady Han took a few more chicken cakes, a small packet of milk powder wrapped in oil paper, and a handful of red dates, all of which were stuffed into the military bag that Yunshang had put aside.

"Hurry up, your second uncle and your aunt ate a bowl of fried noodles. Now I can't make it for you. These things are for you and Comrade Gu Xiao to bolster their stomachs on the road."

Yun Chang held the military bag, and her heart blossomed with joy.

The old lady Han gave her red dates, and when she went back, the red dates in the space could be taken out as snacks in a fair and open manner.

But after being happy, Yun Chang was worried again.

Since she entered the door, she has eaten and took so many delicious foods from Mrs. Han, and they are all fine foods that are rare in the market. What kind of gift should I take in return?

Small cakes are definitely not good. They are similar to the chicken cakes that Mrs. Han gave her. You can't return the gift like this.

It's not enough to cook cakes either. This stuff is expensive and expensive, but given the circumstances of the old Han family, it is estimated that there is no shortage of them.

Big Apple?

Not even more!

At present, no apples of this type have been introduced in China, and even if they were sold at the Friendship Store in the provincial capital, they would not reach her and Gu Shinian's hands.

After all, the two of them have never even gone out to Qinghe County.

After thinking about it, Yun Chang raised her head and said to the old lady Han:

"Grandma Han, you gave me so much delicious food, and I will bring you delicious food when I come back from the provincial capital." When she returns from the provincial capital, the things in the space can be taken out as gifts in return. Give the old lady something good!

As soon as the old lady Han sat down on the chair, she heard Yun Chang say this, and quickly asked her, "Shangnan is going to the provincial capital? What are you going to do in the provincial capital?"

Yun Chang looked left and right, jumped off the chair, and whispered on the body of the old lady Han:

"Grandma Han, I'm going to take my mother to see a doctor in the provincial capital. Second brother Gu knows a doctor who can puncture needles. I want to take my mother to get the needles, and my mother will be fine if the needles are punctured."

Yun Chang didn't mention Widow Wang since she entered the door. The old lady Han thought she was too young to pretend to be worried. She didn't know the seriousness of Widow Wang's condition. The idea of taking the widow Wang to see a doctor in the provincial capital.

Where is it that you don't pretend to be in your heart? It's already done in your heart.

It is very rare for such a small person to not care about Widow Wang's harsh treatment of her, and to plan for the Widow Wang with eyes full of eyes.

Yun Chang was also very helpless in her heart. If she didn't say, "I'll bring you something delicious when I came back from the provincial capital," she would have no excuse to visit the door again to make connections.

Say hello to Mrs. Han now, and it will be logical when she comes back from the provincial capital.

Otherwise, if you leave without saying a word, and then suddenly come to the door, wouldn't it be too discordant.

She is still young now, and if she wants to pull Gu Shinian to have a good relationship with the Han family, she has to do it step by step and come and go slowly.

Mrs. Han didn't know what Yun Chang had in mind, she only cared about whether the Yun family would agree with Widow Wang to go to the provincial capital to see a doctor.

If you agree, with the Yun family's wealth, can you spend the money to go to the provincial capital to see a doctor? Will the Lao Wang family also provide some of the money for medical treatment? Also, what is the origin of that little doll surnamed Gu, and what he said can't be trusted...

Just as she was about to ask for clarity, the three people who set up the car outside entered the house, and when the old lady Han reached her lips, she swallowed it, and planned to go back and talk to Han Shan about it.

"Auntie, it's getting late, let's go back now, and come to see you and my uncle when we're free next time!"

"Hey, okay, remember to bring the emboli next time you come over!"

Yun Erchuan came in to greet the old lady first, and then called Yun Shuilian. When Yun Shuilian took Widow Wang out of the back room, Yun Erchuan and Gu Shinian had already spread the bedding rolls on the car.

Han Shan walked to the gate, bent down, removed the threshold, and the ox cart drove out smoothly.

Yun Chang was half-kneeling on the ox cart, turned back and waved to the old couple of the Han family who were standing at the gate.

"Grandpa Han, Grandma Han, it's cold outside, come in! I'll see you when I come back from the provincial capital!"

Han Shan was a little confused, and turned around and asked Mrs. Han, "What are you doing in the provincial capital, little girl?"

Mrs. Han didn't speak, watching the bullock cart drive out of the alley, turned back to the house, and said after entering the door:

"The kid just said that he would take the Dachuan family to see a doctor in the provincial capital, saying that Comrade Gu Xiao knew a doctor who could inject needles."

Without waiting for Han Shan to speak, the old lady continued, "Why do I think it is so mysterious, what is the origin of Comrade Gu Xiao, and why did you marry Chang Nan?"

Han Shan said, "I think Erchuan and Shuilian believe in that baby very much. I guess there is no problem. Besides, what is the good plan of the old Yun family's family background?"

The old lady nodded, "If that's the case, the Lao Yun family might really take the Dachuan family to see a doctor in the provincial capital."

Han Shan held up the dry tobacco pot and took two puffs, "It is estimated that Erchuan will take someone to the provincial capital again."

"There's no one else but him. By the way, Erchuan should come over before he leaves. Then you can ask Wei Hong to call the boss and let him take care of him over there."

...

On the ox cart, Yun Chang had his back against Gu Shinian, a quilt was covering his legs, and he began to stare at Yun Shuilian again.

"Auntie, Grandma Han said that you ate a big bowl of fried noodles. Is the fried noodles delicious?"

Yun Shuilian was teased by Yun Chang a few times, and she had a general understanding of her temperament. This time, she was not shy, but looked at her with a smile and said, "Delicious! White noodles are added to the dough, but it's delicious! It's a pity that Chang Nan My little glutton didn't eat."

Yun Chang pursed her lips and continued with a face of accusation, "Aunt, you and the second uncle are carrying me to eat delicious food, I'm so sad."

"...Then what should I do to not be sad?"

"I won't be sad if you make new clothes for me and second brother Gu."

Yun Chang said, turned the bamboo basket behind her to Yun Shuilian, lifted the military bag on it, and motioned her to look at the fabric inside.

The bamboo baskets are not big, but there are quite a lot of fabrics, and the small baskets are stuffed to the brim.

Yun Shuilian was stunned for a while before she came back to her senses. She stretched out her hand and touched the soft cotton cloth, "Shangnan, where did this old cloth come from?"

"Second brother Gu bought it!"

Yunshang pointed to a piece of red cotton printed on a red background and said, "Auntie, when the old Wang family brings the cotton, you can use this to make me a new cotton jacket to wear."

Without waiting for Yun Shuilian to speak, she pointed to the red and white fine plaid fabric underneath and said, "This is a small skirt for me to wear on a hot day, and that piece of yellow fabric, also make a skirt for me, and the white cotton fabric underneath is for Gu Gu. The second brother makes shirts."

In the past two years, we can still see brightly colored fabrics on the market. In a few years, the fabrics on the market will be dominated by black, blue, green, and gray, so Yunshang is now working hard. Wear floral clothes.

Yun Shuilian was taken aback by Yun Chang's words, and finally she put the basket aside and told her about the compensation sent by the Wang family.