Chapter 31 A Drama Queen

William took a cold bath for half an hour before coming out. He had thought that things would end peacefully, but didn't expect Colin to play this trick.

However, Colin was wrong. He was not so desperate.

After being set up six years ago, William swore that he would not be close to Jane anymore until the end of the marriage.

He was very busy and didn't have any spare time to pay attention to women. Even if a woman threw herself at him, William would push her away coldly.

He didn't love anyone, and he didn't need anyone. The fortune tellers said that his was born to be cold, and would be lonely forever.

"Darling...."

Jane wanted to say something to William. She couldn't waste such a good opportunity. As William said, this might be the last time they met before the divorce.

It was almost impossible for William to change deep-rooted opinion about the female lead soon. What should she do to retain him? She couldn't divorce him!

"You sleep in the bedroom, and I sleep on the sofa in the living room."

William made the distribution. Because the rooms were all large, Colin did not expect that his effort would be in vain.

"Darling, I'm scared."

Being brazen-faced, Jane stressed that she had just been kidnapped and got the sequela. In the hospital, she was accompanied by a nurse. When she returned to her empty room, she could not sleep by herself.

William had known that this woman would never be obedient and she would definitely do something. Even so, his face twitched though he tried to be calm.

“Darling, let’s both sleep in the bedroom. You sleep in the bed, and I’ll be on the floor.”

Jane’s eyes were tightly shut, her eyelashes trembling with bitterness. “I don’t want to divorce, because I realize that I’ve fallen in love with you!”

Immediately, she felt it was so hypocritical to say those words that she was embarrassed by herself.

“I don’t want a divorce.”

Jane’s big eyes blinked. A second later, tears rolled down her face perfectly.

As long as she was in character, it would be easy for her to become a drama queen. Jane cried herself out of breath.

She looked at William. He quickly dressed himself neatly, leaving her no hope to touch him up.

Jane smashed into William’s arms, trembling with excitement, her hands tightly hugging his waist.

“Jane!”

Everything happened too quickly. William did not expect this woman to be so bold. He was totally caught off guard when he was hugged.

He wanted to pull her out of his embrace, but found that Jane was sticking to him like an octopus.

He tried to push her, who refused to let go. William’s tie was crooked and Jane grabbed off two buttons of his shirt. His clothes were messy, but it didn’t affect his handsome appearance in the slightest.

At this moment, the fire flashed in William’s handsome eyes.

“You don’t want a divorce?”

William narrowed his eyes and mocked. “Because Randy didn’t say anything after your accident, you want your family again?”

Jane was more than embarrassed when she heard that. In fact, that was the case, but why was William so sharp and direct!

She couldn’t admit it. She would be done if she admitted it!

Jane had explained about it to William, but it was obviously not convincing.

Jane thought about Randy again and again. Suddenly, she thought of something and shouted. "Honey, I'm serious. Kylie has always coveted you. She and Randy are siblings!"

That was all. It would be hypocritical to say too much. She left some room for William to imagine.

Randy and Kylie tried to sow discord and divorce Jane and William. If they divorced, they would be trapped!^{[1][1]}

Chapter 32 Hard to Know Him

Seeing William hesitating, Jane quickly promised. "Darling, I promise that I won't interfere in your life. No matter how you flirt with other women, I won't mind it as long as you don't divorce me."

Jane spouted nonsense without any principles, making William so angry that he threw her with great might onto the bed.

The corners of William's mouth curled up, and his handsome face was filled with coldness and ridicule.

"Do you think I'm the same as you?"

This was an insult to William! A man addicted to beauty was no different from trash! He had never fallen for stars.

"What?"

Jane was dumbfounded. In the past, when she read gossip, it was all about CEO cheating while his wife bore the humiliation. Why did William get angry when she said that?

It was really hard to know him!

"You just said that you had fallen in love with me. If so, with your temper, can you tolerate those women around me?"

William's eyes were deep, as if a storm was brewing inside, just like the night with lightning and thunder.

Colin, who was eavesdropping at the door, trembled as he steadied himself with Lainey's help.

"Master Duncan, should we open the door?"

Lainey mouthed to him. She didn't approve of such a bad idea at all! As a servant, she could not say much.

"There is just a misunderstanding between them. It'll be fine as long as they explain it clearly."

Colin smiled in a good mood.

Next, he would create opportunities for the couple. He believed that very soon, he will have a great-grandson or great-granddaughter.

"But..."

Lainey hesitated. She even suspected that William was not biological and Jane was the granddaughter of Colin. The difference in treatment was so obvious!

"They are young. As long as they communicate more, there is nothing that can't be solved."

Colin stood at the door for a while before humming a tune and leaving.

In the room, a storm was brewing.

"A few days ago, you said marriage was a fetter and you wanted to divorce me."

William narrowed his eyes threateningly, causing Jane to shiver on the bed.

Looking closely at his face, she found that he was perfect. He was a mature man who was stylish, wealthy, and charming. No woman could reject him! The female lead had really ruined their marriage.

"Shouldn't I help you achieve your aim?"

His cold voice was hoarse, as sharp as a knife.

Since the marriage was a mistake, it was better to end it. He didn't mind divorcing, but he didn't want to be a joke of being cuckolded.

Seeing William's eyes flashed with disgust, Jane felt her heart sinking.

Her words didn't work at all. Instead, they made William even more ruthless. It seemed that there was no affection between the female lead and William. They were like strangers.

And William didn't have the slightest bit of trust in the female lead.

Jane was depressed. When she took over the mess, she thought that she could turn the tables. However, the mess was so messy.

"Remember your duty, and don't force me...."

His body continued to heat up. William tore off his tie and threw it on the ground in an extremely bad mood.

Having the soup with tonic, he found it hard to control himself, especially when Jane was lying on the bed with her clothes messed up, revealing her smooth calf.

Jane's face was really beautiful, but he was still disgusted when he saw her.

Before William could finish his words, Jane quickly jumped up and touched William's chest with lightning speed.

It was elastic. Good.

Since they would break up anyway and she might die miserably, why not do something she wanted and get satisfied before she died?

Chapter 33 It Was a Hard Start

"Let go!"

William instinctively retreated when she touched him up. But behind him was the wardrobe, leaving him no room to retreat.

"Jane, you're crazy!"

Her voice and appearance hadn't changed. Otherwise, he would have thought that Jane was impersonated and turned into another person.

William had a headache and the corners of his mouth twitched.

Perhaps he was stuck in the original impression of Jane. They had been more distant than strangers for these years, and they hardly interacted with each other.

Was Jane so desperate that she showed her true colors?

She didn't want a divorce only for more wealth of the Duncans, or because she was not satisfied with his offer.

"Your stock and estate after the divorce are enough for you to support yourself for the rest of your life, but if you want to use my money to support other men...."

When William thought of this, his face clouded over and his voice was more than cold. Jane instantly felt a chill run through her body.

Jane was shocked. The female lead was having an affair with Randy and wanted to promote him to Hollywood with a lot of money. Apart from the Duncans, where else could the money come from?

Therefore, William was really cuckolded. No wonder he was so mad.

Not caring didn't mean that he liked to be cheated. Thus, William was really pitiful.

However, this was the female lead's fault, not hers! Jane couldn't help but sigh. It was really a hard start.

Jane sighed continuously, which was a sign of guilt for William. Out of anger, he directly picked her up from the bed.

"I said I could sleep on the floor, darling, darling!"

Jane struggled, but William ignored her and threw her outside the bedroom, slamming the door shut.

This woman was not well-behaved, so she had to be isolated to ensure his safety.

William's schedule was regular. When he wasn't busy with his work, he went to bed at half past ten. He couldn't always be vigilant against her groping him.

Jane lay on the sofa in the living room for a long time before she came to herself and rubbed her aching waist.

On the first day of yoga, it was difficult to overload herself, but if she did not force herself, she would never know that her potential was limitless.

She continued to do gentle yoga for one more hour, and her clothes were soaked in sweat.

There was no spare change of clothes in the room, so Jane could only walk around in her bathrobe. She lay on the sofa and sighed, unable to fall asleep.

Nowadays, young people had the habit of playing with mobile phones, but there was no Wi-Fi, which made her miserable.

Jane turned on her phone and thought of some classic cartoons she had downloaded in the afternoon. She leaned on the sofa and watched them leisurely.

Watching the funny part, Jane kept laughing.

“This damned woman!”

Inside the room, William tossed and turned on the bed. He had tried to abandon his distracting thoughts and fall asleep, but he was woken up by a burst of laughter.

This was definitely a trick played by that woman. She wanted him to open the door, but he wouldn't. He couldn't be tricked!

William held it back and fought against Jane's laughter until the second half of the night. There was no sound in the living room, but he still couldn't sleep.

He sat up and opened the door secretly, wondering what Jane was doing.

In the living room, there was a small light. Jane was lying on the sofa and sleeping soundly with a pillow in her hand!

The next morning, Colin kindly asked Lainey to open the door and saw his grandson who had a poor sleep unsurprisingly.

“Grandpa, what are you doing?”

He didn't even tell him and locked the two of them together. What did he think would happen? William did not sleep all night. Only at dawn did he take a nap before being woken up by the alarm clock. His face was gloomy.

Chapter 34 They Had to Be Divorced

Colin peeped at Jane. Her face was red and she was very energetic. He was slightly pleased with himself.

As long as Jane was fine, he was glad. As for his grandson, he was young and energetic, and he would recover soon.

William immediately noticed what Colin was thinking and coldly said. "Don't beat a dead horse. I slept in the bedroom last night, and Jane slept on the sofa in the living room."

He didn't want to say it directly, pretending that nothing had happened. However, there were some things that would be known sooner or later, so it would be better to prepare him mentally in advance.

They had to be divorced!

"You little bastard! You let Jane sleep in the living room and occupy the bed in the bedroom by yourself. Is that true?"

Colin was furious. He looked everywhere for a handy tool and was about to beat him up.

Colin roared, scaring Jane.

The only one who dared to treat William, the president of the Duncan Group like this was none other than Colin. Jane was somehow amused and almost laughed out loud.

"...."

Colin's sophistry was not the point.

William's expression changed for a second, and then he regained his indifference. He glanced at Jane indifferently and stood up to leave.

Jane understood that his glance meant the divorce agreement from his lawyer.

“Are you so fully fledged that I can’t blame you?”

Colin muttered to himself, then glanced at the tightly shut door and muttered softly. “I made a mistake. This room is too big. Next time I should lock them in a small black room, and there will be room for themselves.”

Colin’s intentions were good. He just overreached himself and underestimated their indifference. It seemed that it was useless for her to start with William. He was not a merciful person since he could get the position of president.

In the meeting room on the top floor of the Duncan Tower, a quarterly meeting was being held.

The group of people remained silent as they stared at Frederic, hoping that Frederic would give some hints.

In just over an hour, their boss had rejected more than a dozen projects. His face was more than gloomy, and he was on the verge of losing his temper.

Frederic was restless. If he could, he wanted to escape first!

When Mr. William returned to the mansion yesterday, Frederic felt that something was wrong. Sure enough, seeing this, he knew Jane succeeded in getting his boss angry again.

Couldn’t that woman left William in peace? His upcoming vacation might be in jeopardy.

His girlfriend said that if there was no vacation, he would be single soon.

“Where did you find this trash? Redo it!”

Another proposal was rejected, and several senior executives were listening to the lecture with their heads down.

Mr. William’s roar just now caused their eardrums to tremble.

Time was short, and this was already the result of working overtime. However, William was merciless. At least he should encourage them.

Being stared, Frederic could only build up his courage and persuade, “Mr. William, we still have two days left. If we work overtime, we’ll finish it in time.”

Calming him down was the first priority. Otherwise, they would lose their bonus next month.

William was not a stingy boss. Instead, he was quite generous, provided that the work was done well.

As everyone knew, there was no idle people in the Duncan Group. Who couldn't resist pressure left early, leaving behind outstanding talents with excellent professional skills and good psychological qualities.

"Alright then, work overtime."

After William finished speaking, he stood up and left. As soon as he left, the scene was given the all-clear and the atmosphere in the meeting room immediately returned to normal.

Frederic deliberately dawdled, packing up the documents and listening to the gossip of the senior executives.

"Frederic, you are really Mr. Pacifier!"

Everyone was flattering him. Mr. Pacifier was his nickname in the Duncan Group. Only he dared to face the president's anger.

"Please call me Single Frederic. Thank you."

Frederic shook his head. He stood up and smiled bitterly. Working overtime meant no holidays. No holidays meant a break-up. He could celebrate the Double Eleventh Day this year.

"..."

Frederic was very strange and ordinary people didn't understand him. What did Mr. William's rage have to do with Frederic being single?[1][1]

Chapter 35 Gossip News

After the kidnapping incident, the popularity of it on the Internet gradually faded, replaced by new hot topics.

Newcomer Kylie flirted with a mysterious man, who might be the CEO of the Duncan Group # Under the topic, there was a blurry photo.

According to the photo, the shooting environment was dim, and there was a super luxury car parked nearby. The license plate of the car was mosaic. Jane recognized that it belonged to the same model as William's car.

These luxury cars were limited edition, no more than three in City J.

In the picture, it was already late autumn, and Kylie was still wearing very little. Her white dress revealed her arms. On the other side stood the man in black who was intimate with her.

The man only showed half of his face, and she couldn't see it clearly.

After meeting William last time, Jane didn't have any contact with him. He completely disappeared like an invisible man.

In the past, William would call Lainey to ask about Dayton, but recently, the phone hadn't rung.

"Madam, the mung bean pancakes you made are ready!"

The fragrance of mung beans spread. Lainey sniffed and called Jane hurriedly when she heard a dripping sound of the oven.

"Alright, I'll try it first. If it's okay, serve it to Grandpa."

Jane hurriedly put her phone in her pocket and went into the kitchen.

Steamed mung bean pancake was softer than roasted pancake, keeping the original fragrance of mung bean and xylitol sweetness, exquisite and delicious.

Jane took a bite and nodded.

"Madam, I'll try one too."

Seeing Jane's face full of enjoyment, Lainey could not help but give herself a piece.

At first, when Jane went into the kitchen, everyone thought that she was putting on a show. After a few days, they found that she was totally different after she was discharged from the hospital.

She was not picky, not harsh, very easy-going and always smiling. And she would share the food she made with the servants.

After a few days, Lainey and Jane dispensed with the formalities.

“It’s delicious, much better than what we bought in the shop!”

Lainey took a bite and gave Jane a thumb up.

Lainey saw the news on the Internet. Although the gossip news was just made up, the Duncans had always kept a low profile. It was impossible for William to have an affair with a female star in the entertainment industry. This was the first time.

William had always been cold to Jane. Did William really take a fancy to the movie star?

Lainey had thought that the news on the Internet was nonsense, but then she was unsure after she thought about it.

Kylie was one of the artists at the two film and television companies of the Duncan Group, one of which often cooperates with Hollywood. The investment and productions were both great.

Kylie was very popular, and she endorsed other brands of the Duncan Group. Because of her working relationship with William, it was not impossible for her to take advantage of the situation and get close to William.

The servant chose to remain silent and conceal it for the time being. They were afraid that Colin would lose his temper and blame William.

Before things were clear, it would be better to keep watching.

Just after noon, Melany came to have class and asked, “Mrs. Duncan, you made up your mind because of the news on the Internet, didn’t you?”

The movie star was young and beautiful, with amazing figure. But Jane was dressed no differently from an abandoned wife.

“Anyway, your body is yours. With a good figure, you will feel happy.”

Melany didn’t make it clear. That was all.

Back then, after she gave birth to a child, she was so fat that others couldn’t recognize her. Then, her husband cheated on her. She resigned, and had to take care of her child with no income. She had no choice but to choose yoga.

In the end, she became a private tutor.

Chapter 36 It's Good to Be Rich

Jane practiced with Melany for two hours every night. In the morning and afternoon, she gave herself two hours of intensive training.

In just a few days, her lower abdomen had become tight. On a diet, she had lost a lot of weight.

"You're right. Women dress up for their beholders. No matter what, the person she should please first is herself."

Jane didn't intend to explain despite other people's misunderstandings.

The female lead's marriage was already in jeopardy, and a mistress would only make the relationship with William even worse.

Suddenly, the gossip news appeared. The picture was blurry. If the female lead was still here, she might not get even with William, because she did not dare to do so.

"Mrs. Duncan, your movements are so standard that you can take my job."

In just a few days, Melany had greatly changed her opinion of Jane, and she even admired her. Yoga required a gradual process. Many people complained about being tired at the beginning, but Jane didn't.

"Don't worry. I'm not planning on it."

Jane jested and wiped the sweat off her face with a towel.

"Madame, are you free this afternoon?"

Lainey brought two cups of lemon tea to Jane and said hesitantly.

Just now, Frederic called. William left a necktie in his room last time and asked someone to deliver it.

There was no problem to find someone to do it. However, in these days, Jane had changed greatly. Lainey thought about giving Jane a chance, which was also what Colin meant.

With the necktie as an excuse, if Jane appeared in the Duncan Group, it was an opportunity for them to meet.

"Deliver the necktie?"

Jane's first thought was to find someone else. She didn't want to see William!

A few days ago, she was really embarrassed to get along with William. She would never forget that she was taken out of the bedroom by William and thrown onto the sofa.

Jane was an escapist sometimes. It would be best if they could just live their own lives and leave each other in peace.

"Yes, there is a charity banquet about jewelry tonight. Only that necktie in his room matches his handmade suit."

Lainey explained, reminding Jane. He must have a female companion at the jewelry banquet. If William really went with Kylie, then it would be a big problem!

They must seize this opportunity.

"A charity banquet about jewelry?"

Jane's eyes lit up and she immediately nodded in agreement.

Jane had always refused the madams' invitations to parties and stayed at home. She wasn't interested in those banquets and parties, but it was different as for jewelry.

Lainey was about to persuade Jane when she accepted it. She smiled and said, "Colin said that the mung bean cake is more than delicious and fresh. Why don't you bring some for William? He is busy, so he may not have time to have dinner."

William was a workaholic. He often forgot to have meals. There was something wrong with his stomach, so Frederic took medicine with him for William.

This was her first time to the Duncan Group. Jane put on a light makeup and a smart windbreaker.

Her clothes with jeans and flat-soled shoes were refreshing, but did not suit the image of a wealthy madam.

"Madam, all the haute couture dresses in this season are all ready. Aren't you going to try them on?"

Lainey hesitated. Her clothes looked good, but a little simple.

"Lainey, have you ever seen someone wearing a haute couture dress with casual shoes?"

Jane smiled playfully and drove out with the necktie.

It was November, and on the way down from the Duncan's, both sides of the mountain were covered with golden and red maple leaves.

It was good to be rich!

Humming softly to herself, Jane went straight to the office building of the Duncan Group.

Chapter 37 Meet the Rival in Love

"Excuse me, I'm looking for Mr. William."

As soon as Jane entered, she attracted everyone's attention.

The female lead's figure wasn't good, but her face was beautiful. After Jane came here, her temperament changed. She wasn't sharp, but gentle and charming.

"Do you have an appointment with Mr. William?"

The receptionist was slightly shocked. There were too many women looking for Mr. William, and they basically didn't know him but threw themselves at him.

However, the beauty in front of her did not look like that kind of women.

"There's no appointment. I'm here to deliver him the necktie."

Jane raised the paper bag in her hand. Seeing the expression on the receptionist's face, she quickly explained with a smile. "I'm his wife."

She was the boss's wife!

The receptionist opened her eyes wide. They had gossiped about William secretly. It was said that Mr. William was married and had a son, but his wife never showed up.

Privately, everyone guessed that this was because they didn't love each other and they were engaged in a business marriage.

The receptionist was dumbfounded. To her surprise, Mrs. Duncan was not stagy at all and she looked so easy-going!

Was she really William's wife? She wasn't a liar, was she?

The receptionist thought to herself. Seeing her expression change, Jane felt that she was cute. She did not say anything but waited patiently.

"Madam, you came personally."

Frederic was shocked when he received Lainey's call. Jane had never been to the company before. If she was ignored, she would complain to Colin and they would be blamed.

He finished his work and went downstairs to welcome her.

Frederic helped confirm her identity. The receptionist's eyes immediately lit up and she apologized to Jane.

The Duncan Group ruled that Mr. William was very busy, and they couldn't see him.

"Business, I understand."

Jane smiled and followed Frederic through the VIP tunnel. They went straight to William's office by elevator.

Frederic was silent. He didn't want to say a word.

Recently, he was busy with the project, working overtime. His vacation was up in smoke, and his girlfriend broke up with him.

"There's a jewelry charity banquet tonight. Will my husband attend it?"

Jane tried to get information from Frederic. They were always together, so she might learn something from him.

"Yes."

Frederic resisted the urge to roll his eyes and replied stiffly. Madame asked this because she wanted to be William's female companion.

Afterwards, Frederic fell silent. The two of them did not communicate.

When they arrived at William's office, the tension was obvious.

William looked up and frowned at Jane, feeling even more disgusted. After just a few days, this woman came to enhance her sense of existence again.

“Mr. William, Miss Kylie has arrived.”

The secretary knocked on the door.

Jane raised her eyebrows, handed the necktie to Frederic, and casually sat on the sofa.

Kylie came. She happened to catch adultery in the act.

According to the plot of the book, other than kidnapping, the story of the female lead was vague. But there was one paragraph that she remembered very clearly.

The female lead was pierced through her lower abdomen by the kidnappers and lost the right to be a mother. Kylie, on the other hand, often approached Dayton with her work as an excuse and instilled bad thoughts into Dayton.

What's more, she went to the hospital many times to provoke the female lead. In the end, the female lead lost the motivation to live and died miserably, which was related to Kylie!

Moreover, Kylie was Randy's sister, and Jane did not believe that the two of them did not do anything in private.

She didn't like to fight, but since Kylie was here, she would give this woman a hard time and avenge the female lead. After all, she was Mrs. Duncan!

A pheasant wanted to be a phoenix. With her here, it was impossible.

Time Travel to Become Your Sweetheart Chapter 38

Chapter 38 Almost Taking Over

Kylie walked towards William with a smile on her face, her eyes filled with tenderness.

This man was cold, abstinent, and rich. Unlike those old men, he was the best husband for all women.

A few years ago, when Kylie was a newbie, she couldn't help but fall in love with William. She took great pains to sign a contract with the company of the Duncan Group, so as to get close to William.

Kylie found a private detective and learned that William was extremely cold to Jane. In order to speed up the divorce, she asked her younger brother Randy for help.

Randy was for resources, and she, of course, could see further. What Kylie wanted was the identity of Mrs. Duncan.

With this identity, she could almost do anything in City J.

The matter between Jane and Randy had probably been discovered by William. It was said that William was drafting a divorce agreement.

She was almost taking over.

"Mr. William, I'm ready."

William didn't say anything, his expression cold.

Kylie was already used to it. This was why she loved him! He was different from those rich men who just played with women. His temperament of abstinence was so addictive and fascinating that Kylie wanted to kneel down and untie his belt.

"Is this Miss Kylie? You're prettier than on TV."

Jane crossed her legs, leaned against the sofa, and lazily took a sip of coffee.

The difference between the two of them was that she was sitting and Kylie had to stand.

"You are...."

When Kylie entered, she paid all her attention to William and did not notice others in the office.

She looked at Jane in surprise and almost screamed.

Who was this woman? She looked familiar!

"Madam is here."

As a single man, Frederic didn't like the women throwing themselves to men. He suddenly became Jane's assist and gave Kylie a head-on blow.

"Madam?"

Kylie did not get it, and her expression kept changing.

This was Jane, but didn't Jane like wearing a tight dress?

The person in front of her was wearing a shirt, jeans, trench coat, and flats. This was the simplest workplace outfit. Moreover, her temperament was very good, as well as her figure.

Jane observed Kylie's expression. This woman was not as smart as she had imagined. The people who were smart never showed their emotions.

And she was so impolite. She was not threatening at all.

"Darling, you do your job. I want to take a rest."

Jane yawned and stood up, heading straight for William's lounge.

There was a bedroom, a living room, and a kitchen and bathroom in it. It was a small suite. When William was tired from work, he would go into the lounge to rest.

The door was a fingerprint lock that also allowed the password. Jane input Colin's birthday and Dayton's and entered it, leaving behind the dumbfounded Frederic and Kylie.

Kylie's eyes widened. It was Mr. William's private area, and even Frederic couldn't enter. How did Jane know the password?

Was there something wrong with the private detective?

Kylie's expression was changing, and Frederic was also surprised.

But Frederic was more mature and he didn't show it.

William was busy with his work and didn't have time to explain it. With a few words, he sent Kylie away.

Tonight's jewelry charity banquet required famous people to support, and Kylie was a newly promoted movie star. Her attendance would add luster to it.

After Jane entered the lounge, she wiped her sweat. Just now, she almost lost face.

First of all, if William stopped her, she would be a joke in front of Kylie.

Moreover, if she couldn't open the door, it would be also embarrassing. Fortunately, she had read the novel and knew William's password.

Chapter 39 Women Are Always Double-faced

William sent Kylie away, feeling irritated.

"Mr. William, then I'll go out first."

Frederic was a good reader. Before his boss spoke, he left first.

William stared at the tightly shut door for a few seconds before turning around and typing in his fingerprints, heading straight for the lounge.

In the lounge, Jane had already finished her tour and was sitting on the sofa in the inner room, thinking of ways to deal with it. She had acted impulsively just now and had indeed achieved her goal. However, she still had to deal with the bloody storms that she would face in the future.

The best way was to avoid being questioned by William and leave just like Frederic. But she really wanted to go to the jewelry charity banquet tonight.

Jane thought for a moment, and resisted the urge to run out, clenching her teeth and closing her eyes.

The female lead had too little contact with William. In her impression, William was somewhat silent, but he wouldn't hit women. She should be safe.

The door opened, and there was a mint scent floating in the air. It was the scent of William's perfume.

"Darling, did I make Miss Kylie misunderstand just now?"

Jane blinked innocently, pointing at the news on her phone. "Your reputation is tarnished by the randomness of the news."

William leaned forward with one hand on the sofa, and his tall figure almost covered Jane.

His lips were tightly pursed, his pupils deep, and he didn't say a word.

This was why she felt even more pressure.

Jane shivered, not because she was scared, but because William was really scary. She could understand the female lead now.

"You're here for some boring news?"

William didn't ask about the password. Colin knew his password, so he wasn't surprised that Jane came in.

"Yes and no."

As a woman, no one wanted her man to have an affair with another woman, even if it was a scandal.

The moment Jane saw Kylie, she felt disgusted from the bottom of her heart. Even if she divorced William, she couldn't let that woman off easily.

"Really?"

William stood up, and his gaze became meaningful. He said mockingly. "If I remember correctly, you said a few days ago that as long as I didn't divorce you, you wouldn't mind I flirting with other women."

No matter how many women he flirted with, Jane would ignore them as long as she could still be Mrs. Duncan.

"Do you know that women are always double-faced?"

Jane really wanted to slap herself. What nonsense did she say?

It seemed that it was really cheap to say that she loved him and didn't mind him flirting with other women.

"Jane, I didn't realize that you were quite eloquent in the past."

She could always make sense. William did not think that Jane would fall in love with him. Jane was greedy for vanity. She just wanted to be Mrs. Duncan.

This woman was not smart. She had been tricked by Randy. She must have been sober now and realized that she was nothing when she left the Duncans. Everything she had was given by the Duncans.

"Tell me, why are you here?"

Keeping things in suspense would only make them more complicated. William rubbed his forehead and said straightforwardly.

"I want to attend the jewelry charity dinner tonight."

Jane smiled. Why didn't he ask earlier? The rest was just nonsense.

"Alright."

William agreed very quickly, which shocked Jane for a moment. She was more than happy. William could see her expression. The corner of his mouth curved up, and his eyes were still cold.

Chapter 40 William Is Paranoid

The charity party was held at the West Hill Villa on the outskirts of City J, about an hour's drive away from the Duncan Group.

It was half past four in the afternoon. The banquet began at seven. With the time lost on the way, there was only about an hour left to choose clothes and make up.

"You don't have time to go home and change your clothes. You can find Frederic to deal with it."

After all, Jane was still Mrs. Duncan, and William wouldn't let her be too embarrassing. But he couldn't help but have a headache when he thought of the woman's taste for clothes.

There were some things he shouldn't say. If he given her advice, would this mawkish woman think that he was interested in her?

"Alright, thank you, darling."

Jane narrowed her eyes in a good mood when her little wish was granted.

Before she left, she did not forget to communicate with William. "Don't worry, I won't embarrass you. I just want to contribute to charity."

"..."

Contribute to charity? William's expression was indescribable. He really didn't want to show up with Jane. It was hard to calm down and control himself and he tended to lose his temper when he was with her.

Time was short. Jane asked Frederic for help.

Frederic didn't expect William to agree to her request. He thought that William might want to dispel the rumors about his wife being kidnapped.

"Madam, it's a bit late. The haute couture dress you want...."

If they found someone to pick up the dress, it would take at least an hour, and there would be no time to put on makeup.

Frederic checked the nearest location and shook his head resignedly. William and his wife must go together, and his boss was punctual and he couldn't bear to be late.

"Frederic, I don't need a dress. Just get me a ladies' suit."

Jane pointed at her shoes and teased. "I can't wear high heels now. They will embarrass me."

There must be a jewelry exhibition at the jewelry charity dinner. The purpose was to do charity. Jane was self-aware. She was just a supporting role.

A few days of yoga was not enough to reach a perfect figure. With the female lead's foundation, it would take at least two months.

If she wore a dress, it would expose her body's shortcomings, and Jane didn't want that.

Once again, Frederic was shocked. When did Jane become so easy-going? If she wore suit instead of the dress, they would save at least twenty minutes.

"Dresser...."

Mrs. Duncan had to wear jewelry when she went out, and there was also a dresser with her.

"Make it simple."

Jane nodded and began to prepare for the jewelry charity dinner.

....

An hour later, she sat in William's car. Considering that there might be a traffic jam on the road, William left early.

Inside the car, there was not much communication between them. William closed his eyes and didn't say a word.

Jane kept looking at her watch. When it was about six o'clock, she gave Lainey a video call.

Very quickly, she picked it up, and a big head appeared on the screen.

"Mommy!"

Dayton couldn't wait to call her. Mommy would pick him up in kindergarten recently, but she didn't today.

Dayton was very disappointed. On the way back, he kept asking Lainey.

"Dayton, I'm sorry. I stood you up today."

Jane apologized to Dayton, while William frowned beside her.

In just a few days, Dayton and Jane were so intimate. Was there something he didn't know?

William got paranoid but still maintained his composure. He opened his eyes and looked at the screen of Jane's phone.

Work was the focus of his life, and so was his family. William was strict with Dayton, hoping that his son could grow up and take charge as soon as possible.
