

Chapter 68 Tell It All

"No one informed me to work overtime." Alyssa looked down and saw Hassan looking at Susan's files, "Mr. Wood, can I see those files?"

Hassan didn't move and looked at Alyssa, "This has nothing to do with the case you're working on."

"Susan is Vincent's current wife. Vincent's previous wife died in a car accident. He married Susan not long after. Mr. Wood should have found out that Susan was the former secretary of Vincent's father, and after Vincent's father retired, Vincent became the president of Summit Group. The information I just sent you shows that the top shareholder of Summit Group is not Vincent, but his father."

Hassan looked up at Alyssa.

He knew he had a good eye for people. The financial investment business needed someone with a sharp eye and a fine mind.

"Mr. Wood, in addition to that, I also found out Susan's whereabouts."

Hassan got some interest and looked at Alyssa.

Alyssa saw Hassan's gaze and lowered her head but didn't say anything.

"What else did you find out?"

"Nothing much."

"Say!"

Alyssa heard that Hassan's tone had become anxious, so she told Hassan about her squatting in Vincent's neighborhood last night.

Hassan looked at Alyssa and nodded, "We'll go together this afternoon."

"No need! I'm worried that Susan will recognize you since she's seen you before."

"How do you know I've met Susan?"

"I learned about it yesterday when I checked the information. You seemed to do a project before. Susan just graduated at that time and was arranged by the school in Skyward Asset. You worked with Skyward for a while back then, and you should have met with Susan."

Hassan looked at Alyssa, "You investigated me?"

Alyssa waved her hand, "No, because I looked into Susan, I found out something about you by the way."

She really didn't mean to, and she didn't know that she would find out about Hassan, let alone that Hassan turned out to be so capable and had done so many successful projects.

"Susan and I did meet before. I'll be the driver today." Hassan looked at Alyssa, "When?"

Alyssa didn't dare refuse and said honestly, "What I know before is that Susan will go for afternoon tea every afternoon. I'm not quite sure what her schedule is these days, but I'm planning to keep an eye on Vincent's villa area all afternoon."

"Let's go together after lunch this afternoon."

Naturally, she, a small employee, could not refuse her boss's request.

Alyssa returned from Hassan's office and sat at her desk in a daze.

Trent and Melany were surprised by her dazed state.

In the past, when Mr. Wood received useless information, he would definitely be angry, but Alyssa actually came out safely.

Melany looked at Trent, who also shook his head.

They both knew that Hassan was not a nice guy. Since Alyssa was able to stay at Citic, she naturally had something. Hassan, in particular, had been successful in every case he had worked on for the past five years.

He valued an intern. Even when she did something wrong, he still didn't lose his temper, which was really surprising.

Today, if they had gone to deliver the information, they would definitely be scolded.

But Alyssa got out safely. Trent and Melany were both surprised and amazed.

They both wondered what this little girl had done to make Hassan so tolerant of her.

Eleven o'clock at noon.

Alyssa was called to the office by Hassan himself.

This was a surprise to everyone.

Mr. Wood never came out to call people personally. He had a secretary and an assistant. Usually, he would call his secretary to do this kind of thing.

Alyssa walked into the office and soon came out.

Although she didn't change much on the surface, she was soon busy.

Twelve noon.

Mr. Wood and Alyssa left together.

"What's happening? Mr. Wood didn't call me in today to ask me about the Summit Group case. It's like he forgot about it."

"Yeah, Mr. Wood was supposed to ask me about it today, too, but he didn't come to me."

The most difficult case in the entire Citic right now was the Summit Group case. But this morning Mr. Wood had a rather dismissive attitude toward this case.

He acted as if the Summit Group project wasn't that important anymore.

The entire Citic staff was either surprised or nervous and kept talking about Hassan in secret.

"Could Mr. Wood have already thought of a way to punish us?"

"Don't let Mr. Wood hear you gossip about him. I don't think so. I think Mr. Wood is in love. He seems to be different from before lately. I smelled his perfume when I delivered his papers this morning."

"My goodness! You are so lucky. Mr. Wood is always mean to me, but he is so handsome! You said he wore perfume, so he may be really in love. I've heard that men who are in love are different."

Harley North Street.

"Kerchoo!"

Hassan, who was sitting in the driver's seat, sneezed. The weather recently had been hot and cold from time to time, but he shouldn't catch a cold.

Alyssa glanced at Hassan and smiled at him. He wouldn't catch a cold, would he?

If he caught a cold, please don't give it to her.

Because the last time she met with her two grandfathers, they both urged her to have a baby as soon as possible!

She had no choice but to try to have a baby.

It would be better for her not to catch a cold while she was preparing for pregnancy. She looked at Hassan and asked, "Mr. Wood, do you have a cold?"

Hassan glanced at Alyssa, "No."

"That's good."

Watching Alyssa sigh in relief, Hassan asked, "You wish I had a cold?"

"Of course not, I just worry about you. The weather has been unpredictable lately, so you must take care of yourself."

She smiled at Hassan, feeling that he looked a little upset. She didn't annoy Hassan just now, but why was Hassan suddenly so serious?

Hassan glanced at Alyssa and frowned.

He turned his head just in time to see Susan driving out of the villa, and when Alyssa saw Hassan's gaze deep, she immediately looked over and recognized Susan's car as well.

Hassan immediately followed Susan's car and later stopped by a health club.

"I'll go check it out."

Alyssa unbuckled her seat belt to get out of the car.

Hassan turned his head to look at her, "Don't let Susan know who you are. She's smart."

"I know." Alyssa nodded, pulled open the car door, and walked out.

Alyssa didn't see Hassan staring at her the whole time.

Hassan really hadn't seen an intern like Alyssa before.

She was bold and had excellent perceptions. When they went out at noon today, she even came up with the idea of changing his car.

Susan was smart, but she might not have the upper hand compared to Alyssa.