

HOW TO THRIVE IN THE '60S

Chapter VIII Disputes at the Village

Yun Erchuan and Li Hongmei came back late, and they had to take Yunshang to the county town the next day. The two didn't stay too long, and soon returned to their room with Shuanzi in their arms.

From the beginning to the end, no one from the Yun family proposed to tell Widow Wang that Yun Chang stayed at the old Yun family at night.

Seeing this, Yun Chang didn't understand anything.

The Yun family didn't mention it, indicating that they knew that Widow Wang would not care if Yunshang went home at night, and they knew that Widow Wang would not take the initiative to find Yunshang home.

This also shows that the original owner suffered those sins at the hands of Widow Wang in the past. The Yun family knew that maybe they didn't love them enough, or maybe they were too cowardly.

Yun Chang lay silently in the bed, not disappointed in her heart, whether she didn't care enough or cowardly, she was not the original owner, she didn't have much expectations for the old Yun family, so naturally she wouldn't care about it.

And the Lao Yun family is a little weaker. When Widow Wang is dealt with, she doesn't have to worry that the people of the Lao Yun family will take advantage of her status as an elder.

In the future, when you get along with the Lao Yun family, you can get close, but you can't rely on him wholeheartedly. This family will never be her unstoppable backing.

After tossing for a whole day, Yun Chang could not open his eyes as soon as he lay down. After the lights were turned off in the room, he soon fell asleep.

Early the next morning, Yun Chang was in a daze and was put into a big bamboo basket by the old lady with the quilt. After Yun Erchuan carried the bamboo basket on her back, the old lady carefully tucked the quilt to ensure that Yun Chang would not be caught. When the wind blew, he took a few more nests and stuffed them into Yun Erchuan's arms, and sent the two of them out the door.

Yun Chang was half lying in the bamboo basket. As Yun Erchuan walked, the bamboo basket swayed slightly, as if he was sitting on a cradle, and quickly fell asleep comfortably.

...

Widow Wang lost a chicken, and she couldn't sleep well all night. In addition, she spent most of the night in the village, so the concubine who was hiding in the house had no chance to leave. At this moment, he sent people away before dawn, and was about to go back to make up for a sleepover, but at the head of the village, he met Yun Erchuan who was in a hurry to go to the county seat.

Widow Wang's eyes lit up immediately, and she dodged, blocking Yun Erchuan's way.

"Stop! Erchuan, what are you carrying on your back?"

Facing Yun Erchuan, Widow Wang, as always, was shameless and had no scruples. While talking, she grabbed Yun Erchuan's shirt and threw herself on him regardless.

At this time, Widow Wang's eyes were astonishingly bright, and her usual delicate face was a little distorted because of excitement.

Yun Erchuan was stunned by Widow Wang's indomitable stance. While trying to avoid Widow Wang's slap, he had to observe the surroundings so as not to be seen by the villagers and gossip.

"What are you doing, talk about something, don't do anything..."

Realizing that Wang Guihua's hands were tucked into his cotton-padded jacket, Yun Erchuan's face instantly turned black, he threw off Widow Wang, and scolded her in his voice:

"Wang Guihua! Don't look for me if you want to be dragged to fight with broken shoes, I... our Lao Yun family can't afford to lose that face!"

Because he was too nervous and angry, Yun Erchuan's voice trembled.

"Push!"

Yun Erchuan's dry anger, but he didn't dare to resist, and the way he couldn't scold people amused Widow Wang, she stopped tearing Yun Erchuan, and instead bent down and drilled into his arms, grinning while drilling. :

"What are you afraid of? If people see it, say I plan to go back to Lao Yun's house to live with you, Yun Erchuan!"

Widow Wang spoke quickly and loudly in a series of words, and it was likely to attract all the people in the village, confirming that she and Yun Erchuan had an adulterous affair and wanted to live together.

Yun Erchuan was so frightened that his feet softened, and he sat on the ground in the dodging room, and the basket behind him was tilted, and Yunshang was thrown out just like that.

Widow Wang was also startled when she saw someone get out of the basket. After seeing that it was Yun Chang, she immediately sat down on the ground.

Pointing at Yun Erchuan, he howled.

"Okay you Yun Erchuan! I'm just saying why are you hiding from me, say it! What are you trying to do by hiding the dead girl in the basket? Your old Yun family's hearts are all blacked out, where do you want to send the dead girl? Do you want to sell her..."

Yun Chang fell a big somersault, and before she could react, a series of sharp howls from Widow Wang entered her ears.

Yun Erchuan didn't care about the lawsuit with Widow Wang, and quickly picked up Yunshang to confirm that she was not broken, and then said with a look of resentment:

"You have the guts to say it! If you hadn't recruited a wild man to come to the door last night and closed the door, would she be able to run to our house?"

To say that this honest person also has the power of an honest person, at least Yun Erchuan's honest truth ripped apart the fig leaf that Widow Wang had been deceiving for a long time, making her embarrassed and angry hands tremble, and her face turned green and white. , I don't know how to react for a long time.

At this moment, people from several households at the head of the village came out one after another, and Widow Wang came back to her senses, patted her thigh and started crying.

This time I was really crying, tears streaming down one by one, and sometimes I beat my chest with my hands.

"Ouch! I can't live anymore, my uncle poured dirty water on me early in the morning, this is forcing me to die! Dachuan, open your eyes and see, your parents are going to force your daughter-in-law to death, Your brother is going to sell your daughter, they are looking at our house, oh, I don't live anymore..."

Widow Wang's black pot made Yun Erchuan stunned.

Didn't he just tell the truth, did he take his niece to the county, how did he become a bully who wanted to kill his elder sister-in-law, sell his niece, and occupy his elder brother's property?

Seeing that there were villagers surrounding him, Yun Erchuan was angry and anxious, and quarreled with Widow Wang with a dark face.

"Shangnan didn't go home last night, why didn't you look for it? If you lose a chicken, you will make half the village sleepless. Why does no one know if Changnan is lost? Changnan is my niece, and I bring my own niece. I went to pick up her aunt in the county, why did I have to sell the dress?"

Widow Wang was speechless when she was asked, her eyes were dodging, she saw Yun Chang who was hiding behind Yun Erchuan, she immediately exploded, and rushed towards her, scolding her mouth uncleanly:

"I'll kill you white-eyed wolf who eats inside and out! The old lady dragged you up with shit and pee, you learned to send chickens to other people's homes as filial sons and worthy grandsons..."

With Yun Erchuan guarding her in front, Yun Chang didn't worry that Widow Wang would hit her, but after listening to Widow Wang's words, she couldn't help being irritated.

Widow Wang made a fuss last night that everyone in the village couldn't sleep, because the family lost a chicken, and now the chicken has not been found, but Widow Wang said that Yunshang sent chickens to Lao Yun's family, and the one to Lao Yun's family Where did the chicken come from?

The answer is obvious.

Widow Wang couldn't explain why she didn't find her lost daughter, so she was so embarrassed that she gave Yun Chang a thief's hat. Chicken, to divert the attention of Yun Erchuan and the villagers. Widow Wang played very smoothly with this trick of hitting the west and attracting disasters.

It is a pity that Yunshang is not the original owner, and will not let Widow Wang handle it at will.