The Pinnacle of Life Chapter 2721

Pigsy spoke up. "Has it really lost its effect? Hey Rockefeller, doesn't that mean mine's lost its effect too? Do I not need to slog for this old geezer anymore?"

Mystic Maiden was furious. "Who are you calling old geezer, Pigsy?"

She then activated the restriction spell on Pigsy. Pigsy suddenly felt as if its soul no longer belonged to its body, as if it were being choked by a large hand. His soul was being suffocated, while his body felt like it was going to catch on flames, it was simply a hellish sensation.

It fell to its knees, begging for mercy repeatedly. Only then did Mystic Maiden calm down.

"What about the Dairaionji Temple? Did you manage to get in? Have you done what you needed to?" Daya asked. Although concerned about her father-in-law, she didn't forget about the main purpose of this trip.

"Yeah, you said you were going to find the Ancestral Bodhi Tree in the temple. So did you?" Shirley asked as well.

Everyone looked towards Alex, seemingly curious about the Dairaionji Temple. They even wanted to explore it themselves if they could.

"Yep, I did!" Alex replied. "I already sealed my father into the Ancestral Bodhi Tree, so there shouldn't be any problems for the time being. The most important thing we have to do now is to catch the b*stard behind the Soul Planting."

Alex then briefly explained what happened within the temple to the group, and they all froze in shock.

"The temple was actually conquered by a demon?"

However, Alex didn't tell them about the tree going into his mind palace out of nowhere and unwilling to leave. Not only was it unbelievable, but he also wanted to keep this secret to himself.

The beautiful moonlight shone down, while nightingales roamed the forest, chirping momentarily.

As night fell, Alex and the others decided to camp out in this ancient forest for the time being. He had just come back to the group after all, and since it was getting dark, they decided it best to travel home the next day. The group gathered around a campfire, eating spiritual beast meat and drinking soup made of spiritual herbs.

Tears trickled down Pigsy's cheeks. "Finally, I can eat something good! I might've starved to death if I kept hanging out with these women!"

Alex was surprised. "Why would you starve to death?"

Daya replied that she was on a diet, so she hadn't eaten much usual human food.

Fasting was considered a type of training after all. Mystic Maiden took even more extreme measures. Since she wasn't a mortal, she didn't have to eat.

Meanwhile, Shirley and Ynes followed in Daya's footsteps. Despite having shapely figures, they wanted to go on a diet regardless. Alex didn't understand how much skinnier they wanted to be.

"You guys have to be careful, though!"

"Dieting is tactful work. So don't diet so much to the point your body ends up unevenly proportioned!"

Upon hearing this, all the women in his group teamed up to attack Alex, nearly pouring the boiling soup over his head.

Finally, everyone settled down.

Alex looked up at the starry sky as Daya leaned onto him. The other women around them seemed to be lost in thought as well.

'Dorothy, I wonder where you are right now?' Alex thought of his wife.

When he was still in the Underworld, he and Dorothy had a long talk about how to fight Xienna when she got back. She wanted to at least regain control over her own body. She mentioned that she had a plan and would find a way to get herself home...

Despite this, Alex knew that Xienna had most likely sensed that her divided soul had died. Thus, she would've definitely made some preparations.

'Would Dorothy succeed in fighting back?'

Suddenly, Alex noticed two people missing from their group.

'Where are Neela and Anna?'

Before entering the temple, he told Neela to bring Anna along. If things went according to plan, they should be here right now. Upon questioning the others, it would seem that no one saw them.

"Oh f*ck, no way?"

"Could something have gone wrong with the Pool of Afterlife? Are they trapped?"

Beginning to panic, Alex stood up abruptly. "Go back to California first. I need to go back and look for them."

Shirley grabbed him by the arm. "Are you mad? The Underworld is collapsing! If you go in there again, you won't get out. Besides, the relics need time to recover. You just got out, so you're not about to go back in."

Alex replied, "Don't worry, I have a plan."

Since he had the Ancestral Bodhi tree, along with the emperor of the Underworld's last mental mark, he didn't need Buddhist relics to enter the Underworld. However, it had been quite some time since he first left.

He wasted a month on the ancient Buddhist battlefield, and there were too many variables within the Pool of Afterlife at this point.

'I hope they're okay.'

"If you're going, then we're all going with you," Daya said. "It's best to travel together, you know? We've been waiting for you for a whole month! You're going to make us worry all over again!"

Piggy nodded. "That's right. It's just too boring."

'I could just ignore the pig, but the girls don't want to keep waiting.'

"Okay, then let me see if we can enter together!"

Just as Alex was about to contact the tree and enter the Underworld again, a ball of light appeared next to him. It looked like a glowing egg.

"What is this?"

"Something inside... Some kind of being is trying to get out."

The group was surprised. The egg-shaped light figure was floating over, combined with the sounds of lightning and wind. Some kind of being was howling as well. With time, the ball of light became brighter, as the voice became clearer...

It was a dragon's roar, a loud one at that.

After that, the figure within the light became clearer. It was really a dragon.

"It's Neela!"

Her green and golden scales were glistening with blood, indicating that she was injured. There was a special area on top of her head, protected by a boundary. There was someone in there... Upon closer inspection, it turned out to be Anna, who had just been revived not long ago.

They were using all their might to dash out of the light.

"Neela! Anna!" Alex yelled towards the light.

As if she could hear him, Anna started waving her arms frantically. In a panic, her eyes started welling up with tears. On the other hand, Neela leaped into the air and flung her tail around, creating a large gust behind her.

'What do I do?'

They seemed to be separated by some force, unable to get out of the light.

‘Could the entire Underworld be moving?’

‘No, I have to bring them out of there.’

“Ancestral Bodhi Tree!”

“Earth Escape Technique!”

Alex decided not to waste more time and activated his Earth Escape Technique. He would use energy from the Ancestral Bodhi Tree to force his way back into the Underworld.

When the portal opened up, he couldn’t believe his eyes. The entire world was changing. The Underworld would return to Izanami, causing everything in that realm to morph.

The entire world seemed to be tilting downwards. Demonic Chi was diminishing, while spiritual energy no longer existed. Yet elements within Izanami were growing stronger.

“Revealer Maha?”

“Come out, come out wherever you are... Revealer Maha?”

Alex stood at the center of the plane. It was messy, as if the sky and land had turned into pure chaos, and it was almost impossible to navigate as if they were in quicksand. He called out to Maha since he was the only one who could help at this very moment.

Whoosh!

With the spark of golden light, Revealer Maha appeared. He was shocked to see Alex here. “Weren’t you supposed to leave? Why are you still here? Without the permission of the King of Izanami, or the holy guide of the Dairaionji Temple, you’ll just become a lone spirit if you enter Izanami! Are you done with life or something?”

Alex immediately explained what was happening.

“A Benares Dragon?”

“And a woman?”

Maha then nodded. “I get it now. Your dragon is crossing a tribulation, which caused the environment to change completely, bringing it back into the Underworld.”

“Huh, I actually wanted to take this dragon as my own since it would be embarrassing if I didn’t have a ride in the nether realm. I didn’t think she’d be your friend.”

Alex was speechless. “So this all happened because you were restricting Neela... Not letting her leave.”

“Ahem, well, it was all just a misunderstanding. Follow me!”

Maha led the way and brought Alex into a portal. In mere seconds, they reached an odd foggy space. Alex was able to hear the dragon’s roar even clearer when he arrived.

Neela was trapped in some sort of law power, still unable to break free.

“Take the law power off of her!” Alex said to Maha.

As the law’s power was taken away, Neela regained her freedom. Neela had long sensed Alex’s aura, so she turned around and landed on the ground...

However, her eyes were filled with anger and malicious intent when she looked at Maha as if she wanted to eat him alive right there and then.

Despite the strong urge, Maha was still the guardian of the Underworld, and with the holy mark, he had also become the ruler of this place. Neela’s attacks were just too weak, and he would be able to block it as long as he wanted to.

“Shush, Neela,” Alex spoke up.

Neela then turned back into her human form. Not only was her entire body covered in wounds, but she was also out of breath. It was just fortunate that those injuries were just superficial.

‘Looks like Maha really did just want to tame her, he didn’t actually injure her.’

Neela had been resisting with all her might, unwilling to become Maha’s ride even if it cost her life. Hence, she injured herself badly while struggling.

Seeing her in this state, Alex was heartbroken and frustrated.

Maha seemed to know that he was in the wrong here. “Amitabha. I originally intended to tame her, but it looks like her duties in this life are not over just yet I won’t force her to stay anymore. You may leave now.”

“Hold on!” Alex glared at him.

“Hey there, kiddo. I broke all my principles helping you last time. Are you really going to fight me for a little dragon? Did you forget everything I’ve done for you?”

Alex replied. “I don’t have to. You’d become my subordinate sooner or later. So... By the time that happens... Hehe!”

“Wait, what? What do you mean by that?”

“I meant what I said.”

“No, that won’t do. Explain yourself, or I’m not letting you leave. You’ll have to go to the nether realm with me, otherwise...”

Alex wasn’t worried one bit, he had the Ancestral Bodhi Tree with him.

After using the Chaos Tree to hide from the heavenly tribulation, he whispered to Maha. “I’ll let you in on something. The Dairaionji Temple has changed drastically and is currently ruled by a demon. That guy who told you to guard Izanami is a fake too.”

“You... Are you telling the truth?” Maha ’s face turned pale.

“Of course I am, but don’t freak out. You might just lose your life.”

After a while, Maha asked, “Does Rachel have any plans to deal with this?”

Alex pondered, then said, “Just stay put and follow their orders for now. I’ll contact you when the right time comes.”

In the end, Maha was the one to send them back to Earth. If Alex were their guide, they might accidentally end up in Mount Oro again.

Neela leaned against Alex, seemingly gloomy as they got back to Earth. “Sir, I’m so sorry for embarrassing you!”

“No, you didn’t!”

“The Underworld is his territory. It’s only normal for you to be trapped, especially since you haven’t recovered completely. Don’t push yourself too hard.”

Alex comforted the dragon, then used his divine eye to check on her condition as well. She suffered no major injuries, save for fatigue and scratches from fighting the law power cast on her.

Alex then used a healing spell, combining divine power and The Ultimate Book of Medicine. This spell was quite effective, healing all injuries in a split second. Neela even looked energized after that.

“Anna!” Alex turned to the woman.

Anna immediately leaped into his arms, embracing him tightly.

“Master!” Anna cried, agitated. It was as if she were Rapunzel who had found her prince once again.

Alex didn’t have the time to have a proper conversation with her back at the Pool of Afterlife. Now that they were on Earth and were close to home, she naturally felt calmer.

“You must’ve been through a lot. I’ll be bringing you home soon. Your parents will be delighted to see you.”

Alex said with a smile. He would be excited to see their reactions when Anna returned to the Colemans of Michigan.

They weren't far from Daya and the others.

Although the contract between Alex and Mystic Maiden had expired, their souls were still somewhat connected. Being able to sense Alex's arrival, Mystic Maiden immediately brought the others to welcome him back.

The sky was still dark, and the meat wasn't even wholly roasted yet. It was as if only a few minutes had passed. Everyone was relieved to see Alex return so quickly...

Shirley and the others were familiar with Neela, but they didn't know who Anna was. This was the first time they had ever met. However, they were close to each other's age, and it wasn't hard for the young to get familiar with each other, especially while having food.

Alex said, "We've been out for quite a long time. I think we should head back."

The group then packed their bags and went home through the night.

Piggy engorged itself and carried everyone on its back. After that, it ran towards California at sixteen times the speed of sound. They managed to arrive within an hour, despite being at Mount Oro at the start.

When they arrived at the gates of the Rockefeller manor, nobody could believe their eyes.

There was a long queue in front of the manor. The queue was so long that it could be the tail of a serpent. There were so many people the street was filled to the brim, and the end of the line went as far as the eye could see.

"What's happening?" Daya was stunned and confused.

The queue was relatively dense, with all genders and ages. Most brought their own stools, lining up in a civilized manner. There were also no scuffling or jumping queues involved.

They even noticed some famous faces within the queue.

"Huh? Isn't that... The Hollywood star, Timaeus Cruise?"

Shirley stared at one of the people standing in line, eyes widened with shock. She seemed to turn into an instant fangirl.

Timaeus seemed to be sitting politely on a stool while being in the middle of the line. He was talking to another person at the time.

Alex took a good look at the other person and was surprised as well. "Oh my god. Is that Ronaldo? The famous footballer?"

Back when he was still studying, Alex loved playing football. Ronaldo happened to be his idol at the time too.

The only difference was that Alex was significantly stronger and impactful now.

It wasn't easy requesting to meet Alex, not even for the president. However, Alex still couldn't help but feel surprised to see such celebrities show up at his door all of a sudden.

Since Daya used to be a famous singer, she wasn't unfamiliar with those two. Yet now, with her memories from her past lives, her life was much more different than what it used to be. She was slightly confused to see Timaeus and Ronaldo here but didn't think much about it.

Compared to celebrities and footballers, they were indeed the ones standing at the very top.

Those he idolized in the past were just a bunch of mortals to them now.

"What's so surprising about that? You're a bigger star compared to them."

"If you went over and told them you're the owner of this house, they would surely kneel before you."

Daya's words were correct.

Alex had become a very famous and influential figure after Michelle publicized his achievements. No one could possibly afford to ignore his status and title.

These people still wanted to queue up for the meat, despite it being in the middle of the night. The line wasn't even moving one bit, which was enough to show that these people were desperate.

They stood there, receiving quite a lot of information from the crowd.

"Say, how much more divine beast meat do you think the Rockefeller's still have?"

"Look at how many are lined up here. I don't think there'd be enough, even if they're only limited to half a kilogram per person."

"What are you worried about? Don't you guys know that Divine Envoys from Mount Oro came by their manor recently, but they couldn't defeat the Rockefeller's, and they never came back out. Where else do you think they've gone to, eh? They all became divine beast meat..."

Since it was pretty boring to wait, people decided to chat. So Alex and the others were able to understand the situation after hearing this.

'But... Who's selling the meat?'

'It must be Michelle. Ah... That little girl.'

Shirley smiled. "Hey Alex, your meat stall must be doing pretty good. Even Timaeus Cruise and Ronaldo are buying from you."

Alex raised a brow and replied in a harsh tone, "I'll sell you off. How about that?"

Shirley stuck her tongue out. "Will you? We're battle buddies, though."

The group continued to chat while walking towards the manor.

Suddenly, they were stopped in their tracks by a group of tall, well-built men, all wearing black suits and shades, even though it was very late. One might even misunderstand and think they were blind.

Alex frowned. "What are you doing?"

A man pointed towards the queue. "Line up!"

Alex replied, "This is my house. Why should I line up?"

The man scoffed. “This is your house?! Why don’t you say you’re Alex Rockefeller himself, huh? Run along now, or you won’t be getting your share!”

Slightly upset, Alex rubbed his nose. ‘Is it wrong to want to go home?’

Another woman spoke up, “Some people are just so shameless, their parents must’ve raised them poorly. They lack basic manners and attempt to be the Rockefeller’s.”

“Just look at yourself... Who do you think you are? You don’t even deserve to lick Alex Rockefeller’s shoes!”

Alex was speechless as the ladies started giggling. Daya burst out in laughter as well.

“Whatever. I’m not about to pick a fight with y’all!” Alex rubbed his nose again.

‘Geez. What am I supposed to do here?’

That woman wasn’t done. Likely bored from standing in line, she started murmuring. “You are all really ill mannered for such normal looking people.”

“Everyone here is lining up, so why won’t you? Is it because you guys have horns? Saying you’re not going to pick a fight with us... Do you even have the intelligence to do so?”

“You should get out a little more, learn some stuff, make yourself useful. You should know by now that Mr. Rockefeller could kill you with the flick of a finger.”

“Hah...” Alex huffed.

Just then, the gates to the manor flung open as the Rockefeller’s rushed out.

“Brother...”

A figure appeared from the gate and shouted delicately. Before Alex himself could even react, a warm and soft body hung onto him.

It was actually... Beatrice!

Once, Beatrice was Alex's most hated sister-in-law. After a series of shocking experiences, however, Beatrice had changed her mind about Alex, even having a hopeless crush on him once. Until now, Dorothy was nowhere to be found. As a virgin, she had to raise her sister's children as if she had gotten married for her.

Brother-in-law?

Well, it would be impossible to shout that name now.

Wouldn't that be creating trouble for herself?

So, from the last time Alex came home, Beatrice switched to calling him "brother".

Sometimes, calling each other brother and sister made things less taboo.

The man in the suit and the woman were among the crowd in line. He wanted to teach Alex a lesson. Looking incomparably shocked, they hurriedly closed their mouths.

Beatrice, being in the Rockefeller family, was now considered famous.

Because she had four children around her, many outside worlds had misinterpreted that she was Alex's wife.

"This man is really... Alex?"

"Oh my goodness. I just scolded him, saying that he has horns on his head..."

The two people couldn't help but back up and leave the queue. Looking nervous to escape, they were afraid of being slapped to death by Alex.

In fact, it was unnecessary. Alex's status wouldn't be ordinary for them.

Several of Alex's confidantes behind Beatrice specifically included Princess Fleur and Maya. There was also Dawn, the fairy doctor, Zella, and her daughter Winnie.

Although Beatrice was the first to grab Alex, the few women said nothing. Firstly, Beatrice was young. Secondly, she represented Dorothy, and it wasn't easy bringing up children.

Everyone had to give in to her.

Then, Brittany and Claire came from the gate hand in hand.

"We are back!"

Brittany was still quite particular with her dignity. At this time, her face looked amazingly youthful. Unless someone knew the inside story, no one would've guessed that this woman who barely looked thirty would be Alex's mother.

"Well, morn. You are back..."

"Did it go well?"

"Not bad!"

"That's good!"

It was evident that Brittany had been waiting for Alex's words. How could a wife feel good when her husband had been soul planted?

Nonetheless, there was still hope, at least for now.

"Mom, don't worry, we'll definitely get dad back," Daya said as she held Brittany's hand.

"Hmm!"

A group of people then walked towards the gate. Shirley asked, unable to resist, "What are these people doing here? Begging for meat?"

Beatrice got down from Alex, her pretty face a little pale. Her heart was filled with a fantasy about the future, curious to know how the person who could love her would look like. The person had arrived, though, and it was just that she did not know when the relationship would bloom.

She reached out and stroked her hair, saying, "Before this, wasn't Michelle selling immortal beast meat in the live room? It's been proven that people who eat the meat of immortal beasts will not only be invulnerable and long-lived, but there's the most important advantage now, the chances of awakening will be greatly increased."

"Awakening?"

"Awakening to what?"

"Cultivation. You can consider it a supernatural ability."

After going out for over a month, Alex and the others thought about how the world seemed to feel like it had changed again.

"Let's go in and talk about it!" Brittany said.

"What about these people? What's with them blocking the house?"

"Yes. Even big foreign stars personally come here. Who thought of this?"

"Is it because of the immortal beast meat? Are they all here to buy immortal beast meat..."

Alex nodded and glanced at the long queue.

Today's current situation was the recovery of the aura. In ancient times, the wasteland's layout had finally been envisioned after three thousand years. Of course, the ancient era of the great powers stole a part of the rest of the three thousand worlds' opportunity, but the wasteland was the one that suffered the most. All living things almost lost their opportunity to cultivate...

Now, it could only be said that it was giving back!

Every living thing in the wasteland had a chance.

"Well, let's take whatever's left and sell them to prevent them from blocking! The price does not have to be too high, then... One hundred dollars a catty, and one person is limited to one catty," Alex said.

"What?"

Waltz was the first to jump. "One hundred dollars a catty? You sure you're saying it, right?"

Brittany also froze, "Son, we previously sold immortal beast meat for three hundred million a pound..."

Alex smiled blandly, "Mom, are we short of money?"

"Uh..."

Several people in the Rockefeller family were stunned. During this period, the Rockefeller family could no longer be described as making money every day.

That money was really coming in like a tidal wave. It was too much to count, and often, bank bigwigs came looking for the Rockefellers to deposit their money... This was a premium customer who had more money than the ancient magnates.

Waltz said, "We are now probably the richest in the world, right?"

Alex nodded. "You're the best!"

After a pause, he said, "It is just a hundred pounds. It is useless having more money. The blessing should be shared. We have to universalize all beings."

Waltz charmingly said, "Boss, I know you have lots of money, but you don't have to be such a loser, right? I know you have practiced Buddhist martial arts, but you will not disappear into the void and become a monk, right? I will not allow that to happen. If you go to the temple as a monk, I will still come into your bed in the middle of the night."

These words were said without shame but in line with Waltz's personality. The crowd could not help but laugh out.

Alex said, "Don't worry. The Western Buddha Sect does not prohibit marriage. After becoming a monk, I still can clean up this little pixie."

While they were talking, the crowd lined up next to them boiled over.

"What did they just hear?"

"Immortal beast meat. A hundred dollars a catty?"

“This...Is it true?”

“It couldn’t be a fake immortal beast, could it?” Someone boldly asked.

Alex explained on the spot, “The last clearance is a big deal. One hundred for a catty, but each person is limited to one catty! Selling starts now until we are sold out. After this, we are never selling this again.”

At once, the crowd boiled into a rage.

Brittany faintly glanced at Alex, and ultimately did not say anything. The Rockefeller family was indeed not short of money, and they didn’t even know where to spend it. To them, money was just a number.

Almost instantly, the news spread on the internet. The news had topped the popular hot search topics in the middle of the night.

Many people rushed towards the Rockefeller family. Before this, it was too expensive. Three hundred million dollars for a pound of meat was unattainable for countless people. But now, it was only selling for a hundred a pound, which almost everyone can afford. It was a great benefit, especially for those who lived in California and near Alex’s house.

Many people did not understand Alex’s intention, and only people like Mystic Maiden and Daya, who once stood in a high position, could understand this.

“There is not much time left for you, from the chess piece to the player. What is important is the mindset,” Mystic Maiden said to Alex.

“A chess player?” Alex smiled. “I never treat others as pawns.”

“But you have changed your mentality, and you have a strong aura.”

“My Buddhist cultivation has probably initiated?”

“Buddhist disciple? Hmph, your bride is waiting for you in the room. How dare you not go?”

The bride, Daya!

For many years in the underworld, nature had always been suppressed. Now was the time for its release. However, the two were getting better, but some unexpected guests barged in.

Beatrice and the quadruplets came in. The scene was really awkward!

“Not me! ” Beatrice raised her hand. “They know you met my sister, their real mother, so they must come over to find dad! Brother, what happened to my sister? If I hadn’t stopped them, the ones who just barged in wouldn’t have been four little mischief-makers, but my mother.”

Alex felt a shiver run through his body when he thought about Claire rushing in.

“Your sister, she... ”

The Universe... Stoermer Sect... Ruins.

Dorothy was imprisoned in a mass of light, and in front of her was Xienna.

“You think you can resist me?”

“I am... The current you!”

Though colorful, the light mass imprisoning Dorothy carried Daoist energy. This place was like an ancient altar.

These Daoist rules that bound Dorothy, who could not move in the slightest, were swirling out of the altar.

“Don’t struggle. It’s useless.” Xienna’s soul floated in front, and she spoke indifferently as she looked at Dorothy, who was still trying to wiggle her way out.

Dorothy’s face was already red from exerting herself, more so due to the use of secret power, resulting in meridians swelling and pain. Her skin also appeared in different degrees of chapping. Blood seeped out little by little until it spread all over the body.

However, it was all for naught. She was completely unable to shake off the multicolored pellet.

Xienna looked at the ancient altar that had long turned into ruins. She seemed to be reminiscing, talking to herself.

“You know, I’m about to forget this place.”

Dorothy knew she couldn’t struggle away.

Once, when Xienna squeezed her soul in some corner, she was also secretly building up her strength and sizing her opponent up. When she was in the Underworld, she had a more intuitive concept, and after regaining her body, she had thought of a way to deal with Xienna properly.

However, she never expected that the key was not out of Xienna’s soul. Instead, it was on this damn altar.

She hadn’t noticed these multicolored imprisoning pellets at all, not until she launched her attack on Xienna, attempting to cut off their relationship completely. Suddenly, Xienna let the pellets go, easily confining her.

“Where is this?” Dorothy asked.

Xienna looked around for a moment and said, “Do you remember Stoermer Sect, the appointed platform?”

Dorothy had heard of Stoermer Sect. It was the most prosperous and powerful sect in the ancient era.

“I didn’t expect that this was the Stoermer Sect. Unfortunately, it has actually fallen into ruin.”

Xienna said, “I didn’t expect it either! The scene of colorful blossoms and ten thousand gods worshipping seemed just like yesterday. In the blink of an eye, this place became ruins.”

Dorothy asked, “Is this your birthplace?”

Xienna said, “Not really, in fact, like you, I was born in America. Here, it should be...”

Xienna’s soul slightly stirred.

She covered her head and secured to be in pain, trying desperately to remember something. Finally, she said, "Here is my reincarnation place. Once, there was a reincarnation pool here."

She sighed long and hard as she spoke.

"You may find it ridiculous, but I... Can no longer see. I even want to find the person, but I can't remember what his name is," Xienna explained with a pained expression, "But I can feel that person is essential to me. The meaning of my reincarnation in this life is to find him."

Dorothy replied, "It's a bit ridiculous, but it's also pitiful."

"Yeah, right!"

"You can keep looking, but please don't take me with you! No matter how important the person you're looking for is, it's unimportant to me."

It was hard for Dorothy to imagine if Xienna had really found her man, then taking her to live with him. She might as well die if that were the case.

Xienna sighed, "Unfortunately, there was a problem with reincarnation. You are just an accident."

Dorothy was enraged. "What do you mean my existence is because of an accident? I shouldn't have my own life? Does it mean I can let you dictate where I belong? What about you? What are you? To put it bluntly, you are already a dead person... A ghost, a wisp of obsession unwilling to reincarnate!"

"I am you!"

"Bah! I'm independent and complete, and you... You're the incomplete one!" Dorothy said. "What you just said is ridiculous. You don't even remember who you are looking for, yet you still desperately search for him. Think about it. What if he's perished? Or, he's reincarnated and forgotten the past? By the time you find him, he would've long married another wife, with children and many grandchildren. By then, what will you do?"

Xienna was asked those questions. She froze for a while and shook her head. "I don't know..."

Dorothy said, "I'll help you make a choice. Kill the wife he loves, and then kill his children and grandchildren. Tell him that you were his lover in a previous life, and you found him after many attempts, and you finally can live together forever...With your strength, I guess it should be easy."

Xienna's face turned pale.

Could she do that?

If that were true, that person would hate her for the rest of her life or even want to cut her to death by a thousand cuts.

"I know what you mean!"

Xienna suddenly smiled, "But, no matter who he is, whether he still remembers me or not, I have to find him."

After a pause, she added, "When I find him, I'll return your freedom."

Dorothy was sad because she actually had no choice. She asked, "The person you're looking for... Does he have any characteristics?"

Xienna shook her head, "I don't know, I can't see it, the reincarnation pool wiped the memory of my previous life, and even though I hold the reincarnation stone, the process has deviated because of an unforeseen accident. My memory is incomplete."

What could Dorothy say? It would be unbelievable if he were found.

"Then, can you find any fragments of memory about that person here?"

"No..."

"Nothing, I advise you to give up."

"There's something that might help me get that part of my memory back."

"What is it?"

Xienna flicked her forehead and unfolded a scroll.

It showed half a jade bracelet. Fiery red like blood, it had a faint cloud pattern printed on it.

“You, have you seen it?” Xienna asked.

“No, how could I have seen it. What is it?” Dorothy asked.

“This should be the token I brought during my reincarnation. I can use that token and find the person I’m looking for, unfortunately... There was an accident, and this token was lost on the way to reincarnation.”

“No way..?”

Dorothy was surprised and did not know what to say, “How can you still find such an important thing, which was lost on the way to reincarnation? I think this is providence so that you do not have to look for him. Find a new relationship again, a new life, a new man. If he is so good, you can even find a bunch!”

Xienna smiled, but of course, it was impossible to accept. She asked, “So, are you willing to help me? Actually, we can live together in peace!”

Dorothy said, “I want to see my children.”

Xienna said, “Yes, I plan to go back to America. Even if I don’t find that person, I would have to look for the other one, right?”

Dorothy was speechless, “Look for the other person? Is he also your old lover?”

Xienna glared at her, “He is the master of Stoermer Sect. I think I might have a relationship with him.”

The Pinnacle of Life Chapter 2730

Dorothy could almost accurately guess Xienna’s identity, but hearing what she said, alarm bells started ringing in her head. She had also heard of a master of the Stoermer Sect.

In ancient times, Grand Emperor Rowan had led the League of Cultivators and the entire universe in a fight against the undying clan's invasion. Besides Grand Emperor Rowan, his lover, the Phoenix Emperor, a being of infinite supreme existence, was also present.

Xienna had a relationship with this one?

However, when it came to the Stoermer Sect... Her surname is Stoermer. Perhaps...

Dorothy thought so when Xienna said, "There's no need to think me your enemy. We are not. You were born because of me. Your essence is another part of me, it was just that I woke a little too late, so you fell in love with someone else... Don't worry, if the one I'm looking for is like you, I'll reincarnate again and wait for him in the next life."

With that, she canceled the light mass emitted from the altar. Dorothy's confinement was lifted. She could move her muscles and bones, but her brow furrowed.

She looked at Xienna and felt sudden compassion. "Every reincarnation will damage your memory. You can't even see him now. If you reincarnate again, are you sure you'll remember this obsession from your previous life?"

Xienna stroked her heart lightly. "I can remember that pain."

Dorothy asked, "More than your life?"

Xienna nodded and looked into Dorothy's eyes, "Have you ever really loved someone? I have seen him and know he has more than one woman. Would you still love such a man? Don't you feel pain?"

Dorothy remembered Alex, and she thought about the women around him. She sighed.

"Painful, but still in love."

"Why bother? Love is so humble. "

Dorothy shook her head, "I gave up once myself, but it was a living death."

Xienna sighed, "You are influenced by me, an extension of me. I cannot accept the person I love loving someone else. So, you are also the same."

So, was jealousy inherited?

After a pause, Xienna's gaze suddenly became sharp, and she said, "The world has changed very quickly. I just didn't expect the change to be so great. The universe has been shattered by the undying clan! I just found out that the ancient great powers had laid a great game to steal the Chi of the universe, throwing their hopes in the recovery of America."

"There is a six boundary marker hidden in the projection of America!"

"The whole of America is hidden."

"We are all from America, and we have hope and obligation to go to America and fight for Chi there. Next, I will pass my aura to you. You and I are two souls. Together we are strong, but apart, we die. In this day and age, the Pantheons arc in their twilight. The Biographies of Immortals have fallen, and we have no one to rely on behind us, so we can only rely on ourselves."

"Or rather, the beings of the universe can only rely on us."

Dorothy's expression was unnatural, "Strong together? Are you going to annex me?"

Xienna shook her head, "Do not worry, it is not annexation. Your emotions now, for me, are hazardous. By fusing with your soul, my reincarnation will lose its meaning! We can co-exist! In addition, there is an emperor's power in this Stoermer Sect altar. We need to combine our strength to withstand it."

Dorothy was silent for a long time and finally nodded.

Earth, within America.

The news about the hundred dollar for a catty immortal beast meat shocked everyone outside. In a month, it took the world by storm, which led all the rich and powerful aristocrats to California for the immortal beast meat. Once, due to the high price of three hundred million dollars a catty, it was known as the world's most expensive lunch. In the blink of an eye, however, it had depreciated to such a point. So quickly, its value had fallen to this level.
