

The Pinnacle of Life – Chapter 1307

Last night, the three official departments worked together as well as Norton and the other two human traffickers cooperated on-site for designation. Tracing the clues, they had successfully found the base of the Beggar Gang in California.

They found thirty three human traffickers and related bandits right away while rescuing 178 abducted children.

Earlier this morning, California police released a video. It was footage of the children being rescued. The scene at the time was overwhelming: more than a hundred children were locked in cages like dogs, and more than twenty children were hung on the beams of the house because they were disobedient, resulting in wounds all over their bodies.

There were also all sorts of tools for torture at the scene. The floor was full of dried blood.

And, almost half of the children rescued were already handicapped. Some were brought out to beg for money every day. However, they could not get a single penny from the begged money and had to surrender everything. They could only eat leftovers every day.

Rumor had it that when the official personnel and the four thousand security guards seconded by Thousand Miles Conglomerate present saw the scene, their eyes turned red because they were too pitiful and cruel.

However, this venue was just one of the branches of the Beggar Gang in California. Moreover, there were a few leaders. It was unknown if they had heard the news beforehand or seen the incident of Disneyland, they were alert and escaped first to avoid getting caught. Once the footage was publicized, the entire nation was shocked.

Many people cheered but many also cried bitterly for the broken families caused by the human traffickers. More people rushed to California, hoping to find their lost children among the rescued children.

However, the official announcement stated that the raid operation of “Rescue the Children” would not end there.

As long as the tumor of the society, the Beggar Gang was not removed, it would continue to exist.

All of a sudden, it caused a surge of praise from the people.

It was half past nine in the morning.

Thousand Miles Conglomerate, Waylon Realty, Lush Cosmetics and Rockefeller Group issued a press conference for establishing “The Foundation of Rescuing the Children”. Upon the establishment, the four companies had raised a total of fifty billion dollars.

Various rescue operations would be carried out immediately.

They also established an action team to fight human trafficking. They specifically hired the captain of the Special Brigade, Craig Selby, as the guide. They would cooperate with the officials for a long term, with the aim to fully eliminate the human trafficking industry.

They set up multiple reporting channels. As long as the reports were verified, the reporters would be greatly rewarded.

Once the news was out, it shocked California and the entire America once again.

Everyone kept praising them.

“How courageous!”

“This is a true entrepreneur of the people for being compassionate toward the citizens and the country!”

Some people also pointed out that the girl who was almost abducted at Disneyland was the daughter of Waylon Realty’s boss. This matter had completely enraged Charles Carter and his wife. So, they set up the foundation in such a hurry. However, more people were shocked at Charles Carter’s personal connections. Not only did he have such a deep connection with Thousand Miles Conglomerate, but he even pulled in the recent dark horse of the beauty industry, Lush Cosmetics.

As for the Rockefeller Group, the news was released a long time ago, saying that the company was acquired by Lush Cosmetics. Indeed, they belonged to the same family now.

In the presidential suite of Shangri-La Hotel, a few women from the Melvis family were here. They had finally moved out of Sky's house. At the same time, they also planned to return to Alaska today. Then, they saw the news on TV.

Lexia pointed at Brittany who appeared on TV and said to the juniors, "Do you see it? This is called bold and broad minded. Yesterday, you guys were still worrying that Brittany and her son would share the Melvis family's wealth when they returned to the Melvis family. They don't even care about it."

Stephanie said, "Who would have thought that Lush Cosmetics is actually a brand founded by her. We didn't know it previously. Think about it now, in fact, Ruby has done her investigation properly ages ago. Moreover, she let Tucker come over to California, wanting to snatch Lush Cosmetics away from Brittany. Brittany is truly a business genius!"
