

The Pinnacle of Life –

Chapter 0586

In the end, Benny had to nod sadly as he took up Alex's offer.

He knew just how bad of a situation Assex Constructions was in right now. The bank loans were still on hold, hence they couldn't pay any of their employees. Moreover, some of their important projects were facing various problems. They wouldn't last a month if this went on. They'd go bankrupt.

However, if Dorothy took over the company, the large projects she was handling now would most likely help their company get through this.

The 30% of shares that the Assexes would hold was the best profitable option they had now.

Dorothy pulled Alex aside, whispering. "Hubby, where would we find eighty million to pay them back? All of the projects at hand need money to keep operating. We would have twenty million of working capital at most."

Alex smiled and leaned forward, whispering into her ear. "Don't worry, we won't have to pay a single penny."

"Huh?"

"I have my ways."

Benny immediately had someone print out the contract and signed it on the spot.

With hundreds of people here as witnesses, Dorothy had just taken over Assex Constructions.

She didn't hesitate one bit and turned to Jeremy. "Jeremy, please bring the other employees back. I'll be responsible for paying last month's salary to all of you. You'll receive it latest by tomorrow. The finance department would transfer the funds to your bank accounts once everything's calculated. Also, tell all the directors to head to Dorothy-Alex Constructions tomorrow, we're having a meeting at nine in the morning."

Jeremy bowed to her. "Alright, Ms. Assex!"

Alex, on the other hand, turned to the leader. "Alright, I'll be responsible for the loan then. Follow me to get the money. Don't worry, I won't dare to stall this loan any longer."

After leaving the memorial hall, Claire was still in a daze, confused.

However, thinking back to how her daughter became the owner of Assex Constructions, she was overjoyed and excited.

Beatrice was confused as well. "Sis, those people are asking for eighty million, does Alex... Really have that much money?"

Dorothy was puzzled as well, she shook her head. "I don't think so. I don't know what he's trying to do, but he mentioned that we wouldn't need to pay a single penny to settle this."

Beatrice was slightly worried. "He won't get himself in danger right?"

Claire replied. "What danger could he possibly get into? He's the one who bluffed about it, so it's only right that he takes responsibility for his own words! If he really needed the money, he could always ask his mother, right? She might be hiding some dirty money from back then!"

Dorothy fumed. “Mom, for the love of god, can you not say something like that? What do you mean by ‘dirty money’?”

Claire replied, “If it wasn’t dirty money, then why would William be accused of being a traitor?”

Dorothy explained. “He was wrongfully accused! John Rockefeller made everything up!”

Beatrice nodded. “Yeah, Alex’s family was definitely wrongfully accused. John Rockefeller, Spark Rockefeller and every other Rockefeller in that family are all trash! Scums! They deserved to die! If I were him, I would’ve stabbed them with a knife the moment I saw them.”

Thinking back to what Spark tried to do to her, she clenched her teeth angrily. She was fortunate to have Mask save her at the very last moment.

‘But Mask is already married. How unfortunate!’

Claire asked, “Beatrice, have you gone mental? Why do you keep defending him lately?”

Beatrice replied, “That’s because... I think Alex is pretty reliable now! He’s much better compared to back then.”

At the same time, Alex left with the men in red. Alex smiled at the leader coldly and asked, “Do you still want the money?”

The leader immediately replied, “No, no, you don’t have to pay us. Not a single penny.”

One of his underlings froze. “Boss, are you mad? Why wouldn’t he need to pay?”

Smack!

The leader slapped his underling. “Shut your f*cking mouth!”
