

The Pinnacle of Life –

Chapter 0600

At the time, Bee had already found a jacket to cover herself up, visibly upset.

Anna asked, “Then can you cure him?”

Alex nodded. “It’s not a big problem. He just needs to receive treatment for three days straight and he’ll definitely reach the bar.”

Ellington was overjoyed. “You can cure me?”

Alex responded. “Mhm, but I think you won’t have to use it anymore.”

“What do you mean?”

“I mean the dead don’t need that thing.” Alex walked up to him and knocked him out with a slap.

The female employee screamed.

Ellington’s manager was enraged. “You... how dare you slap him out of nowhere? Do you know where this is? This is a private property and you’re trespassing! Now you’re even trying to kill him! Get ready for jail, you bastards!”

Slam!

Anna threw a black badge out, there was an American logo on it.

The manager could feel her chest tighten as she stared at Anna in shock, picking up the badge.

As one of the official members of Divine Constabulary, Anna would always carry a few badges with her for convenience... Since Divine Constabulary was a special department, not many had heard of them.

This would mean that their Divine Constabulary badge isn't as efficient as it should be, only specific people would recognize it after all.

Hence, this time she took out a DHS badge.

“Cory Blainey is suspected to have violated some national security matters, we're putting you under arrest!”

“If you have any objections, you can come find me!” Anna said coldly.

Alex then picked Ellington up and left. No one dared to stop them.

“I could tell that you're upset!” Anna turned to Alex.

“How did you notice?” Alex said as he threw Ellington to the ground.

Ellington woke up from the impact and started screaming at the both of them.

“You have it written all over your face. You just seem like you're saying ‘Don't talk to me, I'm upset’.” Anna smiled.

She pointed to Ellington. “Are you going to do it?”

They didn't pay any attention to Ellington's screams and protests.

Alex shook his head. “Nah, I don’t want to kill anymore.”

His thoughts were all over the place. He knew that his issue with Dorothy was worse than he thought.

“What? Kill?” Ellington was shocked. “Are you not afraid of going to jail? I’m a superstar! A public figure! I have tens of millions of fans! If you kill me, you’ll be dead meat!”

Bam!

Anna stomped on Ellington’s neck without hesitation, breaking it in half.

Alex looked at her. “Wouldn’t it cause trouble if you killed him just like that?”

Anna huffed. “What trouble could there be? He’s just a dirty, shameless actor, it didn’t matter how I killed him. Do you think anyone would dare to come for me after this? The Stoermer family wouldn’t let him off this easily too, his death was near anyway. Besides, the Stoermer family has been pretty relentless lately. I’m worried that they’d ensue chaos in California, affecting many others, even politics too... So killing him now is definitely doing him a favor.”

Alex was shocked. “Are the Stoermers so powerful as to scare you, of all people, too?”

Anna smiled bitterly. “They have an old monster behind their backs. Oh and, I have to remind you, the Stoermers seem to be arranging Zendaya’s marriage. So please don’t get her involved in any scandals, else you’d be in big trouble.”

Alex froze, nodding without saying a word.

However, the unexpected happened. The next day, an extremely shocking news was broadcasted all over the country.

“Superstar Zendaya is now officially dating a married man!”

Moreover, there was surveillance footage of her kissing the man in public as well.

With this, the whole entertainment industry felt an impact as strong as an earthquake.