

The Pinnacle of Life – Chapter 0852

Chloe's parents were thoroughly satisfied.

Nicholas introduced himself as the second generation of the demolition development in California. He owns several mansions back home that cost a fortune. And as if that wasn't enough, he also received performance shares that probably cost millions or even billions in the future.

The chances of finding a son-in-law like this was one in a million. What more could her parents ask for?

Chad heard all this as he knelt next to them. His heart prickled with embarrassment when he remembered how he had shown off a necklace worth thirty-eight thousand and how he boasted about having a child for twenty thousand. Oh, how he wanted to find a hole to hide in.

Alex and Douglas finally came back.

Douglas immediately dragged Chad up and left, while Alex stayed behind to celebrate Chloe's birthday with her family.

Alex had arrived in a rush so he hadn't prepared any special presents. But after a bit of thought, he took out a blood energy pill, and smiled. "I didn't really prepare much, so here, have this as your birthday present!"

This was Nicholas's time to shine.

Alex felt that if he stayed, he'd be trying to usurp the attention so after eating a slice of the cake, he left with a smile.

Nicholas had been his classmate and friend for many years, so Alex was happy to see that he is now a part of the Zea family with a successful life. Before he left, he congratulated Nicholas. "Chloe is a nice girl. Cherish her. And when you marry, I'll give you a great gift."

After leaving, Alex climbed into Douglas's car but noticed that Chad was nowhere to be seen. It appears that Douglas had already told him to scram.

"Mr. Rockefeller, are we going to see my daughter now?" Douglas asked him cautiously.

"Let's go!"

Susan had been at the Michigan State Hospital recently as her health continued to degrade with each passing day. For almost twenty hours a day, she remained passed out and unresponsive. When she finally awoke, she remained in a daze with her consciousness blinking in and out.

As Douglas drove on, he explained his daughter's situation to Alex.

However, he received a call from the hospital before he arrived.

The call said that Susan's condition was getting worse and her heart was rapidly failing, potentially stopping at any moment. They urged him to hurry to the hospital immediately.

Hearing this, Douglas's heart raced with panic and anxiety. He stepped on the gas.

As he sped, he had a few near misses and ran the red light twice, he may not be able to keep his license after this.

At six thirty in the evening, he finally made it to the emergency room and found two doctors desperately trying to revive Susan who was already in critical condition.

Alex noticed that she was quite a beautiful woman close to thirty years old.

However, with her face pale white, she was barely breathing. Based on the figures on the monitor, Susan was already at death's door. A young female doctor was giving her CPR furiously, but the situation seemed futile.

"I'll be taking over now!" Alex spoke up and placed his hands over the doctor's to stop her.

Looking at Susan's condition, CPR wouldn't help since her failing condition was due to the effect of the negative energy inside her.

"What?" The doctor snapped back as she looked at him, her fury clear on her face, "Who do you think you are? Move aside, don't get in my way of saving someone."

Alex shook his head. "You can't save her this way."

The doctor stared at him in confusion, then she lashed out in anger. "Get out of there, who do you think you are? Do you really think you can bear the responsibility of preventing me from saving a patient?"

Alex nodded lightly. "I can take responsibility!"

Seeing the doctor's expression as if she wanted to tear him apart, Alex could only beckon to Douglas, "Hey, clear everyone out!"
