

The Pinnacle of Life – Chapter 0862

At the same time, Zendaya Stoermer published an unprecedented advertisement for Lush Cosmetics on her official Twitter page. She also announced that Lush Cosmetics' scar removal product would be officially launched next week, and that the effect of Lush Scar Removal Cream was far better than all similar products in the world. Be it surgical scars, old scars, or Caesarean section scars, they would disappear without a trace within two weeks.

Once this news came out, things went wild on the internet.

When advertising beauty supplements, which ambassador would dare to make such a blatant and conclusive statement? In other words, not only was this digging one's own grave, but also attracting hatred for the brand.

Once consumers bought and used the product, and realized that the product was not as effective as expected, it would be embarrassing.

Was the Lush Scar Removal Cream really that shockingly effective?

Many people remained skeptical.

Of course, some netizens were more concerned about whether Zendaya was going to make a comeback.

That's because she made a clear statement that she was urgently preparing for Lush Scar Removal Cream's short advertisement film, and that she'd soon be able to meet everyone.

For countless fans of Zendaya, this was definitely good news.

Soon, an experienced scar removal expert stepped forward with criticism. "Lush Cosmetics is basically making things up. Dealing with scars is a century old problem. In cases where original tissue had already been destroyed and scars have formed, it's impossible to repair the skin perfectly. Even skin grafting has its imperfections. There isn't a single type of scar removal product in the world that could thoroughly remove Caesarean section scars without the use of surgery.”

Some other enterprises that sold scar removal products chipped in to support this expert's criticisms.

In fact, Zendaya's Twitter page had become a battleground for countless people to gather and confront each other, it was a battle against Lush Cosmetics' scar removal product.

That's because if Lush Cosmetics' unbelievably amazing product really took off, it would be a fatal blow to other similar products.

However, Lush Cosmetics was very determined and firm in their sales.

Lush Cosmetics had even declared later on its official Twitter page that it'd be able to heal the scars on the face of Stephen Hendrix, a former film star. After one week, if the scars on Stephen's face were still not removed, Lush Cosmetics would terminate their business permanently.

When the news came out, it was even more shocking than Zendaya's Twitter post.

That's because Lush Cosmetics had already become popular. Even without the new scar removal cream, its previous acne cream and beauty cream had already been able to generate a lot of money for this enterprise. But now, it made such a huge bet.

Indeed, the company was capricious due to its wealth. In fact, countless advocates of Lush Cosmetics were leaving comments under the company's Twitter post They requested for the company to withdraw such a bet. Even without the scar removal cream, these people would still support the company.

It was because they were also very worried.

The scars on Stephen's face were quite serious. Back then, a car accident nearly peeled off the skin of his entire face. He went through cosmetic surgery at least twenty times, but the effects were still very unsatisfactory. Now, Stephen had to go out with a mask on.

Wouldn't it be very difficult to heal the scars on his face?

However, Lush Cosmetics was bent on having its own way.

Ten minutes later, Lush Cosmetics' official page published another post. "Lush Acne Cream can get rid of the white spots left behind after using other types of acne cream."

In California, Claire Assex pointed and laughed loudly at the news. "Brittany has really gone out of her mind. She actually made such a dumb bet in front of everyone. How much money does she think she has? She's already beginning to waste it foolishly! I'll watch how she falls. When the time comes, she'll fall to the ground and have all her bones crushed."

Dorothy Assex was right next to Claire. "Don't you know how many days are left before she has to make Rockefeller Group tumble? Mom, you've underestimated Alex's mother. This is her taking drastic measures to deal with a situation. Now, her major attacks have begun. Rockefeller Group is going down," Dorothy said as she shook her head.

'Going down?' Claire opened her mouth, but no words came out.

She was like a fish that had been washed ashore.