

Triplets On SM 581

Chapter 581-“Is that so?” Alice asked, raising an eyebrow, she cared for her son a lot, but she was also not that easy to be fooled. The higher the status one was, the more cautious one became because one did not want someone to make use of them.

Sharon’s heart skipped a beat, she stroked the hair around her ear, pretending to speak casually.

“Molly recruited a team from somewhere and took over the research, while I can only stare at a pile of data on the computer every day.”

“When it comes to conventional medicine, I’m just as good as the team. I can do research, too.” she pouted, looking a little disgruntled, but it sounded like she was just whining, not worthy of being taken seriously.

At first, Alice did not believe that Sharon, at her age and with her temperament, was completely innocent. Only after hearing this that she completely put her guard down and started to ponder what Sharon had said.

‘She is given a sinecure? It’s my son who founded the research laboratory, and Anderson Corporation is the one that sponsors the lab. How can Molly be the only one in charge? That’s not right. Besides, I was the person who recommended Sharon to work in the lab. Anyone with a bit of sense won’t give Sharon just a sinecure.<sup>1</sup> Alice was disgruntled and felt that Molly was disrespecting her, not even taking her seriously.

Sharon waited for a long while and was relieved when Alice did not harp on the questions.

Meanwhile, Alice’s face was getting graver and graver. In her view, Molly’s intent was to take advantage of the Anderson Corporation and take control of the research laboratory. 1 ‘A conspiring woman like Molly must not stay near my son. If this goes on, maybe even Anderson Corporation will fall into the hands of this woman. No way. I can’t let this happen; I won’t allow her to threaten Anderson Corporation and my son’s place in the Anderson family.’ A hint of ruthlessness flashed in Alice’s eyes, she had a deep misunderstanding, a great deal of prejudice, and not a single bit of good feeling toward Molly at this point, she just wanted to get rid of this woman as far away from her son as possible.

Meanwhile, Molly was concentrating on her work and was unaware of this. She also never thought that things would turn out that way. She just wanted to focus on her work because the research laboratory was starting up, and there were many things to deal with.

Caitlyn just came over and said that there was a piece of data that was incorrect, and she needed Molly to go into the system to correct it. Molly kneaded her forehead and exhaled, trying to get rid of her mental fatigue, she then started logging into the server of the research laboratory.

Before long, the computer screen showed rows of obscure data code, which laymen would think that they were just some garbled codes. Molly kept moving the mouse cursor, and her eyes swept over the lines with great speed, she had been exposed to these things for many years and had long been used to it, unlike the very beginning, when she needed to read the codes at a snail's pace and understand them word by word. And in her eyes, what was displayed on the screen was as easy to understand as Norlonian letters. Molly quickly found the bug and checked the rest. After confirming that it was all correct, she saved the data and restored the research laboratory system to normal before exiting.

After working on it, she did not let up and was in a constant state of work. Because there were many other things waiting f

Chapter 582-She had been too busy to notice anything amiss with Sharon, let alone worry about her secret plan.

At around 8:00 p.m., Molly was still in the research laboratory, discussing her research with other researchers, who were not the kind of people who would think of slacking off and clocking out as soon as the clock hit the off-working hour. Especially when they saw Molly as the director working so hard, they felt motivated and more energetic than ever.

Molly was listening to a researcher analyzing the drug when she suddenly felt her cell phone vibrating in her pocket, she fished it out and glanced at it. 'Why is he calling?' "Excuse me. You go on. I have got to answer a call." Molly took the phone and walked out to answer the call.

"What's wrong?" She asked.

Brycen saw that she finally picked up and immediately said, " Claudia looks like she has a fever. Hurry back." He glanced at Claudia, who was being held in Sawyer's arms. Her face looked as though she lacked her usual energy and vitality, looking haggard. Her cheeks flushed unnaturally, her eyes were in a daze, and her mouth kept murmuring her mother's name. It broke Brycen's heart to see this.

"How did she get a fever all of a sudden?" Molly's usual calm tone suddenly tensed up.

The weather had been a bit cold lately, and it was the height of the flu season, "when you weren't home during the day, we took the three children out to play,"

Brycen told her honestly.

He was not afraid that his sister would blame them for not taking good care of the children. The main thing now was to let Claudia get better quickly. He was aware of the recent flu season and was worried that Claudia's body could not cope with the illness for too long.

Molly heard what he said and replied, "I will be back right away."

With that, she hung up and explained the situation to the researcher team members, then rushed home as fast as she could. She hurried upstairs when she arrived home.

Claudia was lying in bed, surrounded by a group of people. She was supposed to be lying there with squinted eyes and a lifeless look, but as soon as she spotted her mother in the doorway, she immediately opened her eyes with difficulty and called out to Molly. "Mommy, hug." Her voice was all soft and unenergetic.

It hurt Molly to see her daughter like that, and she hurried over to take Claudia in her arms. "Mommy's here."

Molly knew Claudia would try to get her attention and cling to her when she was sick. But this time, she did not want to let go of her hand, so she kept holding Claudia. After coaxing her for a while, Molly turned to look at her grandfather, "when did Claudia get a fever? Has she taken any medication? Has her temperature been taken, and how many degrees is it now?"

She finished those questions in one go as she looked at them. Not that she was blaming them, but Claudia had been physically weak since the very beginning. So, no matter how protective she was of Claudia, she was reasonable. Besides, Molly also knew very well that they were all family, so there was no way they had deliberately made Claudia fall sick.

Brycen was sitting next to his grandfather, and before he had a chance to speak, two kiddish voices sounded in tandem.

"Mommy, we were on the way back when I noticed that Claudia's face didn't look right. So, we took her temperature immediately when we got home and found that she had a fever," Ben said.

Alex then said, "I gave Claudia a fever reducer. It's 37.5 degrees."

They stepped forward and looked at Molly with serious faces, answering her questions one by one as if they had great experiences. They were so intelligent and thoughtful that they almost did not look like children.

Molly felt relieved to hear this and complimented them. "You guys did a great

Chapter 583-Alex and Ben were not complacent, and their expression was grave. "It's our duty as brothers to take care of our sister."

"Not only do we have to take care of Claudia, but we also have to take care of Mommy."

Claudia falling sick caused Brycen to blame himself. He felt even worse when he saw everyone shuffle back and forth busily while he could do nothing to help. "Chastise me, Molly. I feel bad as an adult for not taking good care of Claudia." He thought he should have noticed Claudia's condition earlier, yet he turned out to be not as good as Alex and Ben.

"Are you serious? Why should I chastise you?" Molly laughed helplessly and looked at the self-condemned Brycen. "It's common for children to get sick. It's not your fault. Claudia is fine. All of you just go do what you need to do. No need to stay on guard here."

After the words of admonition, Molly drove everyone away, as one patient in the family was enough. Brycen and Sawyer had not recovered, so Molly would not let them help take care of Claudia. Nor did she need them to help take care of her. Besides, her grandfather was not in very good health. If everyone stayed here, her grandfather might get sick, too.

“Let’s all go downstairs. Let Claudia get a good night’s sleep and sweat it out for her to recover.”

Since Molly had said so, they all excused themselves, so they would not disturb Claudia. Without Claudia around to chatter and play, Alex and Ben were not as active as they usually were, and the atmosphere in the house became less lively.

Sean heard about Claudia’s sickness when he came back from work.

After saying hello to the May family, he went upstairs to see Claudia. The little girl who usually liked to cling to him, play with him intimately, and tell him jokes was now asleep. Her chubby face flushed with an abnormal red, which hurt him to look at.

“Uncle Sean, you’re here.” Alex and Ben stood guard over their sister. This was because they were triplets and both of them were older brothers. They especially felt sorry for Claudia. But now, they sensibly and quietly stayed aside.

“How’s Claudia doing?” Sean just came back from outside, and he did not go close to Claudia to see her. But, he asked Molly in a gentle voice.

“It’s a fever. It hasn’t gone down. Might have to keep watching if it doesn’t go down tonight.” Molly forced a smile when she saw Sean. Claudia’s temperature had not gone down, and she was not in the mood to do anything right now.

“Claudia will be fine. Don’t worry.” Sean, not knowing what to say, patted Molly on the shoulder to assure her.

Molly nodded and looked at Claudia’s flushed face and did nothing. Sean left neither of them as he joined them at Claudia’s bedside. By the time Molly remembered something, it was getting late, other than Molly, there were Sean, Alex, and Ben in the room, she glanced at her phone, looked back at Alex and Ben, and said, "It's late. You two should go to bed. I will look after Claudia."

Children were not like adults. Their immune system was weaker, so staying up late was not good for their health. Even if they were concerned about Claudia's condition, Molly would not let them stay up late with her.

"Mommy, we're not leaving." Alex shook his head. Their sister's fever was still high, and they wanted to keep a watch on her. They could not go to bed without seeing Claudia get better.

Chapter 584-"Mommy, let US stay. Claudia will be upset if she wakes up without seeing us." Ben was afraid that his mother would ask him to leave. Ben's dark eyes were covered with a layer of mist as if he would cry if Molly refused his request.

Molly understood how close these three children were to each other, so she could not bear to ask them to sleep in another room. She got up to help tuck the quilt on the bed and whispered to the two stubborn children, "You two can stay. But, you can't stay up all night. Come lie down next to your sister and go to sleep, staying up late will make you sick, and if Claudia gets well tomorrow, she won't be happy to see you two sick."

After Molly said that, Alex and Ben gave in and obediently lay down next to Claudia. Their idea was that they had to take care of themselves, not let themselves get sick. Hence, they had to sleep well so that they would have the strength to take care of their sister tomorrow. Everyone was exhausted today. The two children took their mother's words to heart and fell asleep within minutes of lying next to Claudia.

Watching them all fall asleep, Molly only then turned around and spoke to Sean, who was keeping watch there. "You should also go back to rest early. Your leg injury doesn't need frequent treatment, but you still need to rest."

Sean shook his head. "I will be careful with it. But, just for the day, let me watch the kids with you." Sean did not move as though he was silently telling Molly that he was definitely not going back tonight. Knowing that she could not talk him out of it, Molly had to let him stay.

In the wee hours, Claudia's temperature had gradually subsided, and Molly was just ready to breathe a sigh of relief. But, the fever was most likely to recur, and when it did, Molly was so worried that she almost forgot what she had to do several times.

Thanks to Sean calming her down and helping her pass things around, Molly rushed to fetch a pot of warm water and wet a towel to wipe Claudia's body, as it might help her body to cool down. The little girl was in a trance, as the uncomfortable feeling of being sick caused her to toss and turn in bed. Before long, she woke up, saw her mother, and could not hold back her tears.

"Mommy, I feel terrible. It hurts so much." The little girl sobbed quietly, as she was afraid of making her mother feel more worried. It killed Molly to see Claudia trying hard to fight back her tears.

How she wished she was the person who fell ill instead of her daughter.

"It's alright. Mommy is here. Mommy will help Claudia get rid of the pain, okay?" Molly took Claudia into her arms and coaxed her patiently and gently. But, Molly knew how terrible it felt to have a fever.

Claudia did not want her to be worried, but she could not stop moving and sobbing in her arms.

"Let me hold her. You should rest for a while." Sean saw Molly holding Claudia for a long time and helped to coax Claudia. Molly did not try to be strong, and she carefully transferred Claudia into Sean's arms before taking out the water that had cooled and replacing it with a warm one.

"It's alright, Claudia, when you get well, I will tell you a story of the little princess, because you're a little princess." Sean leaned over and sat on the edge of the bed, placing Claudia on his lap and letting her lean against him. The huge palm of his hand gently stroked the little girl, and he occasionally patted her a few times to soothe her. His tone was unprecedentedly gentle and patient.

Chapter 585-When Molly returned with freshly made warm water, she saw Claudia, who was feeling terrible earlier, had magically calmed down and was asleep again under Sean's patient reassurance.

"Shh!" Sean put his finger to his lips as a gesture to Molly to keep the noise down to avoid waking up Claudia.

Molly, of course, knew that Claudia would feel better when she was asleep, she nodded in acknowledgment. But, she was worried that Claudia's fever would come back, so she stayed by Claudia's side, not daring to leave. It was not until four in the morning that the fever left Claudia.

Molly was completely exhausted. She had been working in the research lab all day, and she was worried about Claudia's condition when she got home. Now, she was finally relieved but exhausted.

She leaned back on the couch and dozed off in just a few minutes.

Sean had put Claudia to sleep. Because the fever had gone down, she was sleeping soundly without waking up again. So, he put her to bed and covered her with a quilt, when he went back to talk to Molly, he saw Molly dozing off on the sofa. He swallowed back the words that he did not manage to say. It was not important, anyway.

It was early fall when the temperature in the air would drop drastically at night.

Sean took a look at Molly, who was sleeping, reached for the blanket at the end of the couch, and put it on her. His action caused the sleeping Molly to slip and fall onto his lap, but Molly was so drained out that she did not wake up. Sean looked at her weary sleeping face and raised his hand, but he did not help her up, nor did he wake her up. He covered her with the blanket again and let her sleep on his lap like that.

And, Sean, who had already been through a tiring day, propped up his head with his hand while his elbow rested on the arm of the couch, and he fell asleep.

The early morning sunlight shone through the window and illuminated the dim room. Molly slowly opened her eyes, and her consciousness drifted back before she remembered she had fallen asleep from exhaustion last night.

'Claudia!' As the sick Claudia came to mind, Molly bounced up from the couch, not noticing that Sean was beside her. Her action jolted Sean out of his sleep.

Molly then noticed him sitting next to her on the couch. His eyes were closed with one hand propping up his head, and the tiredness of staying up late was on his face.

She realized she seemed to have lain on his lap. "Ahem." Molly was too embarrassed to even think about it and immediately looked away.

"Why are you awake so early?" Sean was completely awake by now.

Molly nodded. "Yeah." She did not dare to mention that she had pillowed his lap, but she asked him with a slightly angry tone, "Why didn't you wake me up when I fell asleep last night? How could you sleep on the couch? You were working all day, and you can't get a good rest on the couch." she did not even notice the concern in her voice when she spoke.

"I saw you were too tired, and I wanted to let you rest. So, I didn't wake you up." This was also the reason he felt sorry for her for not resting well since Claudia's fever was gone last night.

Seeing his evasive response, Molly's heart fluttered, and she could not help but look him in the eyes. "Isn't that silly?"

He had obviously stayed up late to look after the child with her last night, and then took care of her, besides having to go back to work after all this.

Chapter 586-Molly gasped, as she had not been aware all this time that she had slept on Sean's lap for so long.

Even though the two of them had more interactions and had some physical contact that was no longer as awkward as before, he was still a patient.

Molly felt bad for that, she came closer and asked with concern, "Is your leg okay?" 'If you feel tired, you should've woken me up. why didn't you? It's not like you're that stupid.' Sean looked at her with bated breath and froze for half a minute as she came close. He saw the concern in her eyes, which was very unadulterated like a clear lake, reflecting his own face.

As they looked at each other, Sean lost control of himself. His heart was racing.

"It's only a little trouble." Her scent filled the surrounding air, and he found her smell indescribably good and even alluring. He stared at Molly, speaking very slowly as he tried to get the scent deep into his bones and engraved it in his soul. " But, it's okay. I can't walk anyway."

Molly had been looking at him expecting an answer, and this was what she got.

It startled her a bit. 'Can this even be considered a reason?' Then, she saw his half smile and realized that she had almost fallen for it again. She hummed with a smile in her eyes, and she pulled away. "I better give your leg a massage to revitalize the muscles. After having pressure on our lap for so long, you may have poor blood circulation, which isn't good for your legs."

She stood up, put her hands to his leg, and was about to apply pressure to massage it when a strange cry startled her.

"Hey, what are you guys doing?"

Molly paused and pulled her hand back to knead her temples with an annoyed look on her face. 'I'm a doctor. But, why am I suddenly having this feeling that I'm going to get sick if Brycen keeps talking nonsense like this?' In contrast, Sean looked calm and was immune to Brycen after staying here for a while.

Brycen did not even notice that he had overreacted. He just saw his sister and Sean get so close to each other and could not help but be wary; his sister's control potential was triggered, and his desire to protect was soaring. 'The two of them were touching each other. Wasn't he trying to take advantage of Molly?

Everyone knows what Sean is up to. I have got to protect my sister and not let him get away with it.' Brycen spoke up as he glared at Sean, warning him. "How dare you mess around in our house? I will—"

Just then, Sawyer cupped his hand over Brycen's mouth and was embarrassed by him. 'How can I have such a dumb brother? He better not embarrass himself.' "Ugh! Get off me!" Brycen protested, refusing to obey. 'Sean, the villain, has bewitched Sawyer, too!' "Drag him back to his room." Grandpa Dave said, putting his hand to his forehead, as he was too embarrassed to look at this silly grandson of his. He then said with disgust, "Can't you mind your own business?"

Brycen looked at his grandfather in disbelief. But, with his mouth covered, he could only utter some indistinct, muffled sound.' What? Even Grandpa is under Sean's spell?' As his leg had not healed yet, he was mercilessly dragged away by Sawyer. 'Wake up, you guys! You have all been deceived.

That jerk is going to steal Molly away,' Brycen growled in his mind.

Chapter 587-"You're going to get it if you don't stop spitting," Sawyer spoke and warned him coldly.

He clearly felt very uncomfortable with all that saliva on his hand.

That was the hand he used to draw!

Molly did not let what happened to bother her as she massaged Sean for a while. After she was done with it, she stood up and said, "I'm going upstairs to take a look at Claudia. Her fever should be getting better by now."

"I'll go with you."

Claudia was feeling thirsty, she looked at the cup of water, and she was about to reach for it.

Suddenly, a hand as white as snow appeared and gave her that cup of water.

Claudia looked over, and her eyes brightened. "Mommy!"

Claudia did not even want to drink the water anymore as she threw herself into Molly's arms, she said while snuggling up to Molly, " Mommy, why did you wake up so early?"

Molly embraced Claudia and hugged her as she gently said, "Have some water first."

Molly thought that Claudia was getting better after seeing how active she was.

“Okay,” Claudia responded as she held the cup up obediently before taking several big gulps.

Molly looked at Claudia’s delicate and adorable face, and she still felt a little worried. So, she placed her hand on Claudia’s forehead, and she was finally relieved. “It’s gone.”

“That’s good.” Sean was beside her when he took the cup from her and put it back on the nightstand.

The smile on Claudia’s face was very sweet after she knew how Sean and Molly spent the entire night together and how both of her brothers took care of her when she was sick.

Claudia leaned onto Sean affectionately and joyfully said, “Thank you, Uncle!

You’re the best!”

Her heart was filled with joy. She felt completely different from when she was sick. It was a great comfort to her while having Sean around!

It was just a wonderful thing to be loved and protected by her family.

Sean lifted the edge of his mouth and said to her gently while hugging her, “You’re welcome.”

For some reason, Sean felt a lot better after seeing how energetic and vibrant Claudia was.

Molly spaced out a little when she saw how dependent Claudia looked while being with Sean and the intimate interactions between them.

They looked just like father and daughter.

After breakfast.

After washing her hands, Molly came out and said to Sean, "I'm not going to the research laboratory this morning."

"Are you still worried?" Sean glanced at Claudia for a few seconds, who was sitting on the sofa in the living room, before looking away.

"Yeah. I'm worried that it'll come back again."

Molly responded as she looked at him. Then, she stopped talking.

There was a brief moment of silence.

'Do I have something on my face?' Sean could help but think to himself. He had a strong urge to touch his face with his hands that were resting on his legs.

However, he managed to stop himself from doing so as he asked, "What's wrong?"

"What?" Molly asked him back as she squinted her eyes. She felt a little confused.

'How did this guy manage to live until today?

'He doesn't even care about his own health at all!' Sean felt chills creep down his spine suddenly, but he still could not figure out what Molly was trying to do. He held his nose while sitting in the wheelchair and looked at Molly.

Molly gave up after realizing that he could not get what she was trying to say. So, she ordered him directly, "Go back and get some rest now!"

Sean kept himself busy for the whole day yesterday, and he barely got any sleep. Was he made from steel?

Sean exhaled lightly. 'I thought it was something bad...' He smiled after knowing that Molly was just worried about him. Then, he went back to get some rest.

Chapter 588-Molly stayed at home to accompany Claudia, she looked at Claudia and said, "You have to tell me right away if you're not feeling well, okay?"

Claudia was drawing while holding her head down. She nodded obediently. "Okay, mommy."

After lunch.

Molly tested Claudia's body temperature again, she wanted to make sure that Claudia was fine before she left the house. Then, she went to the research laboratory.

Molly parked her car before pressing her car key. "Beep-beep." she locked her car and walked toward the research laboratory. Then, she heard some noises coming from inside.

She looked at the screen at the door and went inside after going through the facial recognition scanner.

Molly could distinctly recognize Sharon's voice among the noisy crowd.

She lifted her brows and walked forward, she calmly went to the location where the noise was coming from. Then, she asked while looking at the people circling around, "What happened?"

Most of the people stopped talking after hearing Molly's voice. They also moved away from Molly's sight.

Molly looked forward and saw Zack, who was one of the members of the research group.

He was standing in front of Sharon, and none of them were backing down at all.

Zack spoke sparingly after seeing Molly, "I gave her the latest analysis report last night to record the data, but she failed to complete it and delayed our group's progress.

Molly turned around and looked at Sharon after hearing what he said.

'How could she make a fuss after not finishing her job?' At that moment, her face darkened, but she kept her silence anyway.

Sharon glared at Zack, and angrily said, "You didn't give anything to me! I don't even know what data I was supposed to record!

"You better not accuse me. You forgot to pass the report to me, and you're the reason why your group's progress is delayed. Why are you putting the blame on me? Is it because all of you know each other, and you're trying to pick on a newcomer like me?!" Sharon felt wronged as she continued explaining herself.

Her eyes turned red, and she was so angry that she started breathing heavily.

Then, she turned around and looked at Molly, she continued to shout in frustration, "He didn't give me anything! what am I supposed to record?!"

Molly's gaze darkened, and she looked emotionless after seeing how Sharon insisted that Zack did not hand anything to her.

She calmly said, "We'll just have a look at the cameras to find out the truth."

Zack scoffed and said to Sharon disdainfully, "I'm not that old yet to forget what I did! People like you could be perfectly described with a word, incorrigible!"

'Cameras?' Sharon was shocked. Her pupils dilated as she held her fists tight.

At that moment, she could not care less about Zack, who was provoking her. Sharon gave Molly a death stare as she felt greatly humiliated.

Sharon looked at her and said in displeasure, "I said I didn't receive it! Didn't you hear what I said?!"

"I spent so much effort passing the tests to work here. Do you really think I'd lie to you about a trivial matter like this?"

Molly's patience was worn out after hearing what she said as she asked Sharon coldly, "why are you so worked up? Are you hiding something?"

She took a step forward, and she felt imposing. Sharon was scared as she stepped back subconsciously before saying in a frightened voice, "What are you doing?"

Molly said coldly and scolded her, "Pack your things and leave if you don't want to work here! I'm talking to every single one of you! " She swept her glance across everybody there after saying that.

They could feel how angry Molly was, and everybody stopped talking after seeing her cold stare.

Nobody dared to make a sound.

It went on for a few minutes, and the silence was killing everybody there.

Chapter 589-Molly broke the silence and spoke to the person beside her, "Caitlyn, check the cameras."

She took it very seriously, and she was not planning to give Sharon any special treatment!

Sharon did not expect Molly would be so vigorous. She watched Caitlyn walk away as she clenched her fists, and her palms were drenched with sweat.

It did not take long for Caitlyn to check the cameras. Molly was the only person in charge of the research laboratory, so they did not have to through any complicated procedures to do so. After a while, Caitlyn returned, and she threw Sharon an indescribable look before handing the recording to Molly.

Molly did not say anything and played the recording in front of everybody.

It turned out that Sharon lied.

“What do you have to say now?” Molly looked at her emotionlessly.

Sharon had already prepared herself and knew that she would get caught, but she could not help but explain herself after she heard what Molly said, “I’m sorry.

I made a mistake.

“He put the documents at the side, and I didn’t notice it. I was wrong.” The truth was revealed after everybody watched the recording. Sharon knew that she could not turn things around anymore, so she humbled herself and apologized to Zack.

“I’m sorry, Zack. I was too careless, and I was wrong about you.” Even though the recording proved that Zack was right, he was still very unhappy with Sharon.

So, he just scoffed and walked away.

It was as if he did not want to talk to Sharon at all.

Other people looked at Sharon and went back to work.

However, Molly looked at her and warned her, “Being careless isn’t an excuse. I don’t want to see anything like this happen again.

Otherwise, pack your things and leave.”

Molly was being very kind to her by not sacking her right away.

Sharon clenched her teeth, she was very unhappy with how Molly treated her.

She was even more unhappy that could only deal with the data from the day she joined the laboratory. Sharon asked Molly directly when Molly was about to walk away, “I’m not interested in recording data, when can I be a part of the formulation development team? stop toying with me!”

Molly could help but look at her from head to toe after seeing how tough she was. Then, she responded flatly, “I have no problem with that as long as you can get every single thing right about a formula within twelve hours with a hundred percent accuracy.”

Molly reminded her again after saying those words, “Besides, passing the tests doesn’t mean that you can be here for good. You’re on one-month probation, and you’ll still have to leave if you failed to meet the requirements.”

She sounded unbiased, she stopped bothering Sharon and left after saying that.

Sharon stood there, looking awful.

She felt like Molly was saying that she was nothing.

Her medical skills that she was very proud of served no purpose here. Molly also did not hold back as she stomped her dignity ruthlessly.

‘It’s just a month anyway! Fine! I’ll get through this!’ She thought to herself. ‘I wonder what that b*tch, Molly, is going to say after I passed my probation!’ However, Molly had no idea that her words fueled her fighting spirit.

Everybody worked late because of what Sharon caused today, so all of their hatred toward Sharon grew even stronger.

But, none of them said anything because they were still working in the same place.

It was already one o'clock in the morning when everybody was done with their work, and all of them were already too tired to even speak

Chapter 590-Molly was no exception, she rubbed her sore eyes and went to the restroom to get changed. It was then she realized that she had unread text messages on her phone.

It was from Sean.

"Are you still working?"

"Are there a lot of things to do in the lab today?"

Molly did not expect Sean would notice that she was still working because she had not gone back home yet.

She received another text message when she was reading it.

"It's already one in the morning, why are you not home yet? Are you okay?"

Sean texted Molly again.

Molly was surprised to find out that Sean was still awake.

She looked at the time and it was already late.

Molly replied briefly as she did not want Sean to wait for her any longer.

“Yeah. I was a little busy today. Only now, I saw your message, and I just finished my work.”

Molly sent the text without mentioning that Sharon was the reason everybody had to work overtime.

Sean sent her a reply after she changed her clothes.

“Are you coming back tonight? Or, are you going to sleep in the lab?”

“I’m coming back. I have to be home since Claudia just recovered.”

Molly thought to herself, ‘I guess Sean is already done with his work now. I wonder how is he doing in his rehabilitation training.’ Molly’s phone rang and interrupted her. Molly swiped on her phone to answer it subconsciously and heard Sean’s magnetic voice coming from the other end.

“It’s not safe for you to drive after working for so long. Wait for me there. I’ll come to pick you up.”

Molly did not expect Sean to call her just to tell her that.

‘Was he waiting for me the entire night?’ For some reason, Molly felt very sweet as she thought about that.

“Sure. Thank you so much, Mr. Anderson.” Molly did not reject him.

She started packing her stuff after hanging up the phone. So, Sean would not have to wait for her after he arrived.

Sean ended the call and told Tony to drive him out.

It was not a very long journey from Terahis Grove to the research laboratory, so it did not take a lot of time for Sean to meet up with Molly.

They left right away as soon as Molly got into the car.

The car light illuminated a silhouette on the side when Tony was turning into the main road.

Tony slowed down the car.

Sharon did not drive that day because she was not expecting anything like that to happen at all. she also had no idea that Molly would insist everybody work overtime instead of letting them off early.

Nobody had a problem with that because they did not want to delay their progress. So, Sharon, who felt dissatisfied, could not request to leave early and had to stay there with everybody else.

She just left the research laboratory not long ago. The mansion was located by the hillside, and it was impossible to get a cab there. And, she tried booking an uber, but none of them wanted to drive to such a secluded place. Sharon had no choice but to hold her nose and walked down the hill.

However, she was surprised to see a familiar car behind her. she looked at the plate...

And, she discovered that it was Sean's car!

Sharon was delighted as she went forward to wave down the car.

Then, the car came to a stop.

"Boss, it's Ms. Newman," Tony said to Sean.

Sharon was already leaning on the car window before Sean could say anything.

“Mr. Anderson, what a coincidence. I didn’t drive today. I wonder if I could get a ride if it’s convenient for you.”

Molly saw Sharon, but she did not say anything.

Sharon noticed that Molly was in the car too because she was just sitting right beside Sean, she suddenly paused as if something popped into her head.

“Who in this room isn’t a graduate of the world’s most prestigious universities? Does she think she is the only one who is the grandest?”

“She really thinks she’s a princess, what a complete, egotistical brat.”

The voices around got louder.

When confronted with Molly’s attitude, Sharon felt more and more like Molly was machinating against her.

“What’s going on? why are you all gathering around here?” Sean had just finished his work at his company and stopped by to pick up Molly. He saw a group of people gathered together as soon as he entered the research laboratory.

When Sharon saw Sean, it was as if she saw a savior. Her eyes were glinting, and she quickly spoke to Sean.

“Mr. Anderson, you came right on time. I was accepted into the research laboratory through the regular procedure. If Dr. May doesn’t like me, she can just tell me, why put me in a dispensable position? I joined the research lab because I want to make a difference, not waste my time here. I hope Mr.

Anderson can help reason this out.”

Sharon looked at those who were talking about her just now as if Sean's presence would give her some fair treatment. But, she did not expect that Sean would not get involved in the research laboratory's affair.

"Dr. May makes all the decisions in the research laboratory. She is the head of the research laboratory, and you are to follow her instruction. If you're not happy with the rules of the research laboratory, you can resign and leave. No one will be forced to stay." Sean did not even ask Molly a question as he spoke directly to Sharon coldly.

Sharon's expression froze, as she did not expect that Sean would defend Molly so much. 'The entire research laboratory is at Molly's disposal. Do I still have a place here?' she was upset, but she did not dare to take it out in front of Sean.

While she was silent, she heard Sean's frosty voice asking her again.

"Do you have any more things to say?"

Sharon looked at the straight-faced Molly and pursed her lips. Then, she responded without any expression on her face. "No. Since Dr. May thinks it is reasonable, I will cooperate."

The hands hanging behind her were clenched together. She decided she would put up with it for now.

When the others saw that there was nothing else, they dispersed and went about their business.

Molly looked at the time, and it was time to leave work. She went to her desk and packed up, then followed Sean out.

"If Sharon's presence is a problem, you can just fire her. Don't trouble yourself."

Molly heard Sean say as soon as she got into the car.

Molly smiled. "You don't really give a damn, do you? She is, at least, someone whom your mother has recommended. You have got to give her some face." By that, she meant she would not fire Sharon so soon and so easily. After all, she knew how nasty Mrs. Anderson was. Firing Sharon was easy, but Molly did not make Mrs. Anderson think that this was a means of her trying to have her son all to herself. The smile on Molly's face grew broader as she thought about it.

But, Sean did not think so. He did not think as much as Molly did.

"The research laboratory was created because of you. You are the head of it, and I care about your feelings." His direct words felt like a drop of water falling into Molly's heart, creating ripples of warmth inside her.
