

Triplets On SM 651

Chapter 651-As for herself and Sean, Molly figured that it was best for them to just share a doctor-and-patient relationship.

Loving Sean had made Molly lose her self-confidence.

The treatment was done, and Molly was about to turn and leave.

But, Sean immediately grabbed her hand.

When Sean's warmth had reached Molly, she wanted to swing his hand away. However, Sean seemed to have expected it, so he grabbed her hand harder this time.

"Let go of me," Molly said.

"No." Sean squeezed her hand even tighter.

Molly struggled, but it was to no avail. She then started to get angry. "You..."

"Tell me, what's wrong? Molly, are there still secrets between US?" He had never expected their relationship to turn out like this. He did not even have the chance to say what he wanted to say.

This feeling was making him panic.

He was not going to let go of Molly's hand as he felt as though he would never be able to reach her if he let go of her at that time.

Molly attempted to pull her hand back a few times but failed. After a few tries, she gave up struggling.

She raised her other hand and covered her eyes as she was feeling rather frustrated.

She remained silent, but Sean was not rushing anything. So, both of them then froze at that exact position.

After some time, Molly let out a long sigh and confessed.

“What was that call?” She came clean. ‘Since I’m going to end things with him, I’ll be completely honest and say what I want.

“Call? What call?” Sean did not understand her.

Molly immediately replied, “I called you yesterday morning, and a woman answered it.”

“I have no idea.” Sean took his phone with his other hand, and he still did not let go of Molly. He swiped his screen and looked at his call log. There was a call from Molly yesterday morning, but he was not the one who answered it.

“I really don’t know about this. I was in a meeting at this time yesterday, so the new secretary might be the one who picked up the phone.”

1 “Could a secretary call you by your name?” Molly was upset about that.

‘I’ve never even called him by his name.

‘No, that’s not the point.’ “I’m not a pestering person.”

She was about to tell Sean that they should not be close to each other if he already had a woman.

However, Sean chuckled, putting a stop to the courage Molly had summoned.

“The secretary is Joelle Herring, she was assigned to be an intern at Anderson Corporation for two months. There’s nothing going on between her and me. she has someone she likes, and I have mine.”

Sean looked at Molly affirmatively. Even though he did not confess his feelings for her, Molly sort of figured something in her head. Her stunned expression was immediately replaced by her flushed cheeks as she looked away awkwardly.

“Is that so?” Even her voice quivered.

“Yeah.” Sean then asked her, “So, you’re acting like this tonight because...”

He did not continue his sentence, but his eyes were filled with affection.

Molly noticed it herself too.

She was jealous!

But, it was impossible for her to admit such a thing because she was not brave, she touched her nose and said, “Nothing. I’m usually like this, aren’t I? I’m just a little tired...”

Molly grew more embarrassed as she continued, she was about to run away as soon as she finished her line and escape the awkward situation.

Chapter 652—However, Molly forgot that Sean was still holding her hand. As soon as she moved, Sean pulled her back to him.

Molly was not prepared. After letting out a short yelp, she found herself sitting on Sean’s lap.

“The things you said... Are they true?” Sean did not hold her hand anymore. Instead, he was holding her waist as he wrapped her in his arms.

Being at such a close distance, both of them could smell each other's scent with every breath. Molly was getting dizzy as Sean's cool woody scent lingered in her nose.

"Y-Yes." She did not know what she was saying anymore. But, she was clear that her heart was beating for this man.

Under Sean's gaze, Molly had almost lost all her rationality, she felt her body warming up, just like her face. All she wanted to do was hide.

As expected, her voice was as soft as a mouse when she spoke.

reluctant.

She sounded so beautiful that Sean wanted to devour her.

Sean gulped as he breathed harder. He stared deeper into Molly as if he had seen through all of her thoughts.

He steadily said, "I'm not letting go."

Molly bit her lips as she batted her eyes, not saying a word.

All she could think of was one thing.

'It's getting really hot...' Sean could tell that Molly was all over the place, so he pulled her tighter into his arms in hopes of pulling her back to her senses.

Then, he said in a serious tone, "We both know very well about the things that are going on between US. Besides, I don't care about your history or your past marriages."

Molly's eyes widened as she stared at him and her heart stopped beating as fast and uncontrollably as before.

But, every beat of her heart pounded hard against her chest.

It was beating strongly.

"As long as I want you, nothing else matters," Sean continued without pausing.

"Because I like you."

Something seemed to have shattered in Molly's ears.

At the very next second, she felt a huge surge of warmth spreading throughout her body.

It was a feeling that she had never felt before.

"I wanted to wait until the day I stand again to tell you this, but it seems like I can't wait for that day any longer now." Sean smiled and his deep dark eyes sparkled, looking ever so enticing.

'Did he plan this for a long time...?

'For how long?' Molly moved her lips as her heart pounded. She had never expected to be in this situation with Sean.

Sean pulled out the necklace that he had prepared and handed it to Molly. For the first time in his life, he panicked. "Molly, I like you. Can we be together?" He asked seriously.

His palms were covered in sweat.

Molly took the box with the necklace, which was delicate yet subtle. She could not describe what she was feeling.

At the same time, she heard Sean's direct love confession.

Molly was immensely moved, and that feeling grew stronger by the second.

She looked down as she responded slowly, "Yes."

Sean was all smiles when he heard her response. He took back the necklace and put it on her as he said with satisfaction, "It's beautiful. It suits you a lot."

"That's good to hear."

And thus, their relationship was official just like that.

Chapter 653-Molly was still in disbelief when she went to bed as it felt like a dream.

She was actually together with Sean... Most importantly, he liked her back.

Molly could not help but smile and was so happy that she could not sleep.

The next day, Sean came to her house to have breakfast.

As soon as he sat next to Molly, he looked at her with a smiling face and gently said, "Good morning."

"Morning..." Molly smiled.

The sweet atmosphere was obvious even when they were separated by the table.

Everyone could tell that something was different about them.

Tony rubbed his eyes as he could not believe it.

He did not expect his boss to be a couple with Molly just like that!

‘Ah, no. I should call her Mrs. Anderson now, right?’ Tony stood behind Sean as he prayed for Sean to remember his effort and hard work all this time.

It was best if his effort could be reflected by an increase in his year- end bonus.

Grandpa Dave squinted as he smiled. His eyes were darting between Sean and Molly.

Grandpa Dave knew Sean’s personality, and he believed in his own perception of him. He would never judge Sean incorrectly.

So, Grandpa Dave remained silent, which indicated that he approved of their relationship.

Besides, everyone should have the freedom to love. Grandpa Dave did not want his granddaughter to find him annoying if he commented on their relationship.

After all, Molly was all grown up.

Grandpa Dave took a sip of his hot tea, looking like a wise old man.

Unexpectedly, the person with the biggest reaction in the family was Brycen.

He had never stopped staring at Sean and Molly. He looked at them displeasingly with a frown.

A thought grew in his head, 'My darling sister has been taken away.

'Who is Sean Anderson anyway?

'Which part of him deserves my baby sister?!

'No wonder he comes over to eat every day. He has been planning something! He has other intentions for Molly!' Sawyer glanced at him and knew what he was thinking. "Brycen, they're in love..."

'Is that so?' Brycen asked in his head. "Are you two officially a thing now?" He asked for confirmation.

He stared at them with a serious look on his face.

Sean looked at him and nodded as he looked at everyone that was present.

Then, he announced to them, "We're together now."

Molly looked at him as she thought, 'We made our relationship public on the second day...' She was extremely delighted to have Sean announcing their relationship.

That marked the end of her crush on Sean.

No one was surprised in the May family. Everyone was smiling with gentle looks in their eyes. They knew how much Sean had done for Molly.

The triplets were overjoyed as they cheered, "Yay! Uncle Sean finally made mommy his girlfriend!"

'Hooray, daddy!!!' 'Our help all this time didn't go to waste!' 'We're a family now; a real family!' The triplets were so happy that they were at a loss for words. They were both excited and moved.

Even Ben, who was the most talkative sibling, was just smiling.

They had worked so hard for their family's happiness, and it paid off!

No one in the family objected, so Brycen's opinion did not matter.

The bad guy had gotten the good girl.

Brycen remained silent for some time before he gave up and warned Sean, "If you mistreat my sister, I will never let you go!"

Chapter 654-r. The more they looked at them, the better they looked together.

Their hard work had finally paid off.

"Rest assured, I've wanted to treat Molly well even before we got together. Now that we're official, she just allowed me to treat her even better rightfully," Sean said sincerely.

Molly's ears immediately turned red when Sean's deep voice rang in her ears.

"Don't worry, grandpa. You can leave Molly in my care. I'll treat Molly well, and I won't let her down."

"D*mn, you're not even married yet, and you're calling my grandpa your grandpa already. You sure know how to take advantage of things, kid," Brycen said bitterly.

"What are you saying, Uncle Brycen? They'll get married sooner or later, so he'll be calling great-grandpa as grandpa eventually anyway." Alex quickly spoke up to stop Brycen from stirring things up.

"That's right, Uncle Brycen. Mommy has a boyfriend now, but what about you? when are you going to give US an aunt? Look, even great-grandpa's hair has turned white already," Ben chimed in worriedly.

Brycen was utterly speechless.

'What does he mean grandpa's hair has already turned white?

'His hair has always been white, okay?!' Brycen was about to speak, but Grandpa Dave warned him with a gaze.

'Fine, fine. I'm a loner. No one will defend me when I speak.

'Sigh, I pity myself.' Grandpa Dave ignored him and looked at Sean as he smiled and said, "You young people have your own ideas. I won't stop you from being together. I hand my granddaughter to you now. Although the May family is not rich or notable, I hope you'll always remember that Molly has her grandpa's support no matter what happens."

His words were not threatening, but it was stern and affirmative. And, everyone knew it.

Grandpa Dave would never tolerate anyone who mistreated his granddaughter.

"I know." Sean held Molly's hand tightly.

Then, Molly felt a warm sensation on her nose.

She always knew how much her grandfather protected her.

His love and protectiveness had never changed, be it six years ago or now.

'So what if I don't have my parents to support me?! I have my grandpa!' Grandpa Dave finally showed a satisfied expression as he looked at Molly and Sean, who seemed highly compatible with each other. Everyone in Molly's house was cheerful and joyous when they heard the good news about Molly and Sean being an official couple.

Brycen and the triplets did not end up celebrating with fireworks and firecrackers, as Molly had repeatedly stopped them from doing so.

They had stored many of them over the years, so they were rather disappointed.

However, Sean had gotten the chef to prepare a feast with everyone's favorite dishes, which satisfied everyone.

Perhaps, it was because his relationship with Molly had finally been settled.

But, Sean and Molly did not turn lovey-dovey after getting together as a usual new couple would.

Sean still had to complete his work.

And, Molly started working at the research lab again after she felt better. They were still leaving the house early and coming home late.

This day, Molly received a call from Benjamin.

After she rejected him last time, they hardly contacted each other anymore. Besides, she was busy with her work, which left her no time to catch up with each other

Chapter 655-This time, Benjamin needed Molly's help. A team in the research lab he was working in had a problem with their data, and Molly was more knowledgeable in that field.

After all, they had been great friends for many years. So, Molly immediately agreed to help him without hesitation.

After sorting out all her work-related stuff, she went over to Benjamin's lab the next morning and gave her all to the work.

The triplets laid their heads down on the balcony as their similar faces showed worried expressions.

"Is mommy and daddy really together now?" Ben was a little dazed as he looked at the blooming flowers in the garden swaying in the wind.

"I have no idea," Alex sighed.

They felt that their parents had not really gotten together even after they became official.

The way they were with each other was nothing like an ordinary couple!

"Daddy and mommy are just doing the same things as before." Claudia did not know about love, but she knew that there were no significant changes in her parents' relationship.

"Maybe it's because they don't go on dates." Alex scratched his head as he made his assumptions.

Ben heard him and said, "But, they have to work, when are they free to date?"

Initially, things were fine when Molly was still working in her research lab as Sean would pick her up from work every day.

But, Molly had been helping Benjamin in his lab these days.

This way, Molly and Sean would have less time together, and Benjamin would still be Sean's love rival.

Although the triplets liked Benjamin, they still wanted their mother to be with their father.

There could never be any changes to that.

The triplets cracked their heads open, as they tried to figure out something to help their parents' relationship.

"Forget it. Since they're both busy, let's just take care of this with our own hands!" Alex said.

It was not the first time anyway.

"Let's come up with a plan for the future of our family!"

"Yeah!"

"Yeah!"

The triplets immediately made that decision and left the balcony, running back to their room.

Alex pulled out his laptop while Ben and Claudia took out their notebooks. The triplets then sat together in a circle on the bed. Alex was doing some online research as Ben and Claudia noted down their ideas in their notebooks.

After a few hours, their notebooks were filled with a huge amount of information. They finished up the plan and gave it to their parents that very night.

"A date?" Molly laughed out loud as she looked at their writings in the notebook.

"Yup, that's right!" The triplets nodded, "other couples have it, so mommy must have it too!"

In a serious manner, Alex said, "Dates can pull two people closer. Mommy and Uncle Sean had known each other for a fairly long time. Going on dates will give you more time with each other, which can make you understand each other more."

“Yeah. Besides, it will give you memories that only belong to both of you. Don’t you want to have beautiful memories with Uncle Sean, mommy?” Ben asked.

‘Uh...’ Molly was at a loss for words.

So, Molly just smiled.

‘I stopped paying attention to them for some time, and they learned things like this? They can’t be this mature at such a young age...’ But, when she thought about it, the triplets were right.

She had never gone on a date with Sean alone.

Chapter 656-Molly seized the opportunity and asked, “So, what have you three cheeky ones prepared for our date?”

Alex grinned and shook Molly’s arm. He said, “Take a look, and you’ll know, Mommy.”

Molly opened the dating guide prepared by the triplets.

Unexpectedly, the words on the first page were densely packed. It was written in detail that the date was this weekend, and the places were a concert, a couple-themed restaurant, and a movie theater.

There were also writings on the character column. ‘Dearest Mommy’ and ‘Handsome Uncle Sean’.

It was like a real dating biography.

And, Molly could see it.

This was why the triplets put a lot of effort into preparing it...

At each location, next to it was marked what the couple should do at which moment and how to get them closer quicker.

There were even a dozen romantic remarks at the bottom of the page for Molly and Sean to use.

But, those words were too cheesy.

Molly glanced at one of the sentences.

'Silliness is my specialty, and stupidity is my ideal type. When both are intertwined, it is the most beautiful paradise in my dream!

Don't laugh at me because I'm obsessed with you. I'll love you stupidly and never stop liking you until I'm old!' Molly could not help but chuckle. Based on the triplets' zero love experience and the quote, it can be inferred that most of these words were copied from the internet.

However, Molly was distracted and thought, 'I wonder what would happen if Sean said this?' Molly pinched the corner of the page with her finger and stared at the words at the bottom. After two seconds, she burst into laughter.

'I can't... The sense of incompatibility is too strong,' Molly thought.

Molly quickly stopped her dangerous thoughts and turned to the next page.

The triplets scratched their heads and looked at each other suspiciously.

The triplets thought, 'what was Mommy laughing at?

'Don't she think that what we wrote is perfect?' This guide was carefully compiled by the triplets. The location, time, and words were taken from the internet, and the ones that were used the most were selected.

The triplets, who knew little about love affairs, could only combine the most objective information to make suggestions for Molly and Sean.

But, the triplets were children, and they obviously did not know that there was another group of people on the internet known as the stupid netizens.

“Mommy, let’s begin with the first part! This weekend, you and Uncle Sean will go on a date according to the arrangement. We’re confident that your relationship can grow by leaps and bounds!” Although the triplets did not know what they had done to make Molly laugh so frequently, none of this mattered!

As long as Molly and Sean were alone on a date and stayed together, their relationship would surely improve over time!

Molly was laughing until she rolled her eyes. She had to admit that her children’s ability to find cheesy love phrases were unparalleled.

The most important thing was that Molly could not help but imagine Sean in that situation.

Immediately, Molly felt that it would be funny and burst out laughing.

If the triplets handed this to Sean, he must have an extraordinary expression when he sees this,’ Molly thought.

Molly’s mood was lightened up by the triplets’ guide.

Besides, this was a thoughtful gift from the triplets. Molly then responded, “Okay, I’ll follow your guide.”

After all, Molly had free time for this week.

Seeing that Molly agreed, the triplets jumped up happily on the spot.

'Hooray! Now that they have our 'secret weapon', Mommy and Daddy will be happy together!' the triplets thought.

After that, the triplets ran downstairs and made a call to Sean.

After the triplets had inquired about Sean's itinerary and confirmed that he could go on a date with Molly this weekend. They cheered with joy and told Sean their plan

Chapter 657-Hearing that it was a date with Molly, Sean did not hesitate and agreed on the spot.

The days passed by very quickly, and it was already the weekend.

The triplets got up early in the morning and began to look forward to Molly and Sean's date today.

After breakfast, the triplets personally saw Molly and Sean out.

The triplets stood outside the car window and cheerfully said, " Enjoy your date, Mommy and Uncle Sean."

Molly tilted her head out of the window, looked at the excited triplets, and said with a smile, "I will. Be good and listen to your Great Grandpa at home."

Sean was sitting beside Molly. He looked out of the car window and said, "Today's lunch and dinner at home will be prepared by the chef at my house. My housekeeper will call you over to eat when the meals are ready."

Sean's caring and responsible gesture had inadvertently moved the other four.

The triplets laughed even happier because they felt good to have a father now.

"We know!

“We’ll listen to Great Grandpa and also to Uncle Sean!”

Molly and Sean smiled in the car, and Tony was their driver.

Molly and Sean both sat in the back seat. They waved goodbye to the triplets and left.

Sean glanced at Molly and asked, “Are we going to the concert now? Have the tickets been booked in advance?”

“If they haven’t, I’ll ask someone to book for US now.”

It was the first time Molly had felt like being a girlfriend, and she felt sweet inside.

Regardless of the privileges of being a girlfriend or the head of the Anderson family, the concert tickets in Northfolk needed to be booked in advance. They rarely sell tickets on-site unless they have a prominent background.

Molly and Sean did not need to worry about such a trivial matter.

The moment Molly and Sean had agreed to go for the date, the triplets had all prepared the necessary items for their itinerary.

This included the couple-themed restaurant and movie theater.

However, Molly did not tell Sean about that. She had thought about it carefully, and it would be wise not to let Sean be aware of the guide.

Molly was worried that Sean would not be able to refuse the triplets, and then she continued in an irreversible direction.

That was true, when a man became mediocre, he could not be saved, no matter how handsome he looks.

Molly turned her head and looked at Sean unabashedly.

Molly thought, 'He's decent looking now, even when he doesn't speak much.' Sean had long felt Molly's gaze. So, he could not help but ask, "What's wrong?"

"It's nothing. Can't I just look at you?" Molly asked.

"Of course you can. You can look at me for as long as you like!" said Sean. His words were full of pampering.

In fact, Sean had recently begun to worry about something.

Sean was worried that Molly would think that he was not romantic enough. He also stressed that the way he spoke was not sweet enough and that Molly would feel bored after being a couple with him for a long time.

Therefore, when the triplets proposed a date with Molly, Sean agreed without hesitation.

Because Sean clearly realized that he needed to know more about Molly.

Sean wished to know everything about Molly and work hard to maintain his relationship with her. He wanted Molly to know that being with him was happy and worthwhile.

Sean was also willing to spend time doing so, even if it took his whole life.

Hence, Sean had cleared all his meetings and work on weekends.

The concert was about to start when Molly and Sean arrived.

The two of them were sitting in the VIP row. The orchestra on stage was playing a brisk and melodious tune. Each audience seemed to be in a quiet forest, following a spirited deer and embarking on an adventure in the woods.

Chapter 658-Molly did not hold back and took out her cell phone to take a picture. Then, she leaned into Sean's ear. she whispered and praised, "It sounds wonderful."

This music piece was enjoyable, and Molly did not dare to speak loudly. She feared that she would disrupt the atmosphere.

In fact, there was a distance between the stage and the audience. So, there was no problem with communicating normally.

Sean felt a burst of heat in his ears, and the music on the stage instantly became the background music. Then, all he could hear was Molly's voice.

"Yes, I feel the same," Sean said slowly and stared from his side.

After Molly had finished speaking, she threw herself back into the concert atmosphere without noticing Sean's reply.

Sean smirked. The performance on the stage changed keys, and the sound of their instruments became low and restrained.

It was as if the music was helping Sean to express his feelings.

At noon, Molly and Sean went to a couple-themed restaurant, and the reservation was made by the triplets.

Molly glanced at the wooden sign on the table and noticed the word “love-dovey”.

Then, Molly found out that there was a wooden sign on each table, and the word on the wooden sign was different.

“So what does “love-dovey” have to do with our table?” Molly expressed the doubts in her heart.

Sean naturally noticed it and asked, “You didn’t know?”

Because coming to this restaurant was Molly’s idea, Sean thought she had arranged it in advance.

That being said, Sean had probably figured out who was the one that arranged the activities.

Molly understood Sean’s expression and told him, “You should probably know. Those three little ones are very enthusiastic about this.”

“That’s true,” Sean responded. He kept looking at the wooden sign and continued to answer Molly’s question.

“The meaning of this wooden sign may be related to food, and each table has a specific couple’s set menu,” Sean said.

Sure enough, Sean’s words came true.

When the waiter finally brought the food, the two laughed in unison.

It turns out that “love-dovey” is just two large plates of shaved ice.

Molly could not help but laugh and shake her head.

Eating shaved ice at noon was something only the triplets at home could think of and do.

It was easy to tell based on the style of the work.

Sean stared at the plate of mango-flavored shaved ice in front of him. He thought for a few seconds and said, "Molly, should we order something else?"

"I think this is more suitable as a dessert after a meal. Looks like we are gonna have a talk with the triplets when we get home."

So that they could avoid this innocent mistake in the future...

"This really isn't suitable to be the main course," Molly said with an affirmative tone.

After Molly and Sean had ordered some food, they did not return the two sets of shaved ice.

If children could think like adults, they would not be children anymore.

Although the triplets were obedient and sensible, they were also much brighter than their peers of the same age. To Molly and Sean, the triplets were still children in their eyes.

They would not forget that they were also three children just because they saw their sensible side.

The three little ones still needed to be cared for and understood by others.

After a while.

When Sean had finished eating, he moved the shaved ice in front of him. It was the first time he had eaten this, so he tried to put half a spoonful into his mouth.

“Mmm, a denser version of a smoothie,” said Sean. He could feel it melting in his mouth and the sweetness of mango.

Sean suddenly thought that this was a carefully chosen location by the triplets and a sweet ‘gift’ for Molly and himself.

Molly smiled and took a spoonful, “This is not bad.”

Molly’s shaved ice was strawberry-flavored

Chapter 659-Molly and Sean were delighted with their meals. After that, Tony sent them home to rest for a while.

In the afternoon, it was about time to head out.

Alex and Ben pulled the two out of their respective rooms and finally brought them to their living room.

“Mommy, Uncle Sean, it’s time to go for dinner.” Alex pointed to the pendulum clock on the wall behind him. He had checked the distance to the venue, and it was just the right time to head out.

“Mommy, we specially prepared this for you!” said Claudia. Her voice was soft and tender, she looked adorable when she showed a big smile.

Molly and Sean spoke in sync and said, “okay.”

The two went out on their own accord without the triplets urging them.

The restaurant they were going to only open in the evening, and it was also a place that had to be booked in advance.

It was because the restaurant had a candlelight dinner theme.

Molly helped Sean to get out of the car and pushed him to the restaurant's door. An 'Open' sign was hung on the handrail at the door. Through the glass, one could see the waiter inside, wiping the decorations at the front desk.

Molly took out her cell phone and glanced at the time.

It was quarter past six.

"We're right on time. Let's go in," said Molly.

"Okay. If the reservation was made, we can decide what to order later," said Sean.

As Molly and Sean approached the door, the waiter cleaning the decorations noticed them.

The waiter put away the things in his hand and wiped his hands quickly. He came over and pulled the door handle to welcome Molly and Sean. The waiter said, "Welcome."

Molly then gave her phone number to the staff at the front desk. After the reservation verification was successful, another waiter came and led them to their seats.

Molly pushed Sean over and let him sit tight. Then, she sat opposite him and said, "You decide what to order. I'll have what you have."

Molly wished to avoid struggling with the menu for a long time. Sean was a picky eater, and the food he chose would certainly not let Molly down.

Molly hoped that since they were together, Sean would not refuse her for such a trivial matter.

Molly pursed her lips slightly. She handed the menu to Sean and glanced at his face secretly.

“Okay, I’ll order for you,” said Sean. He took the menu and looked at it. He asked, “Is there anything you can’t eat?”

Sean’s eyes swept across from left to right. It was as if he was reviewing the documents in his office.

Seeing that Sean took over deciding the food, Molly secretly rejoiced and said, “No, you can just order anything.”

Molly was not sure whether she had become more greedy. All she wished was to rely on Sean more.

After a while, the waiter brought the dishes one after another.

Another waiter took a musket and lit the delicate candlestick on the table.

A beam of light spread around. The flame swayed a few times, and the warm yellow candlelight shone on the faces of the two.

Instantly, the atmosphere became romantic.

Sean felt like he saw a dazzling star in Molly’s clear and agile eyes.

To top it off, the waiter poured red wine for them before leaving.

The dishes Sean ordered were all delicious. Especially the foie gras, which Molly liked.

In such a romantic atmosphere, Molly had lost track of time. All she wanted was to immerse herself in this dinner.

The two would also chat a few times from time to time and enjoy their meal very much.

When they left the restaurant, it was already nine o'clock in the evening.

This was because the restaurant only cooked the food after the order was placed, and they had waited more than an hour for the food to arrive.

"Let's take a walk. I'm a little too full," Molly suggested.

"Sure, let's go then," said Sean.

After all, the next place to go was the movie theater. Since there was still more than half an hour before the movie started, they were not in a hurry.

Molly walked all the way slowly, pushing Sean to the movie theater. They arrived ten minutes before the movie started and collected their tickets.

Chapter 660-It was a midnight movie with a romantic theme.

When they entered the movie hall, Molly found that many young couples came in holding hands.

'Do other couples like to watch this movie? Molly wondered.

Sean could read the situation, when he saw that he had reached their seat, he shouted, "Molly."

Molly heard Sean's voice. Before she had the time to think about what it was, she subconsciously responded, "I'm here."

The next second, she felt a pair of big warm hands wrapped completely around her left hand.

1 Sean was holding Molly's hand. He got up from the wheelchair, sat on the movie theater's seat, and whispered, "I couldn't do that when you were walking, so I did it when we are sitting."

They were able to hold hands like the other couples.

But, Sean was in a wheelchair, and it was really inconvenient for him to be alone. He needed someone to help him.

Molly was led by Sean, and she sat down beside him.

The lights in the hall were dimly lit, and only when one got closer could he see her blushed cheeks.

The movie was over around eleven o'clock, and everyone left the movie theater. And hence, that was a wrap for their date today.

It was even later when they reached home.

Molly yawned and said goodbye to Sean. When she was about to enter her house, she suddenly felt that she was being pulled.

"The three little ones said that today is our first date, so it should be a little commemorative. This is for you," said Sean. He smiled and took out the gift from his pocket.

Looking at the gift that suddenly appeared before her, Molly was a little surprised. Even the drowsiness earlier had been driven away by the excitement.

"That's a beautiful bracelet. Did you choose it yourself?" Molly asked.

Sean nodded and put it on her wrist for her. He said, "It's very late.

Hurry up and go rest. Good night, Molly."

"Good night..." Molly paused, she lifted her head and glanced at Sean quickly. She added, "Sean."

After that, Molly immediately opened the door and walked in. she leaned her back against the door, glanced at the bracelet on her wrist, and then walked to the living room with a smile.

Before Molly could clear the happy mood on her face, she froze when she walked into the living room.

'Why... aren't they asleep yet?' Molly thought.

At that moment, all the Mays were sitting on the couch in the living room and staring at Molly.

Since it was Molly and Sean's first date, the three little ones deliberately waited for Molly to come home to sleep, and they wanted to personally ask if they were happy with their date today.

However, everyone saw Molly's expression just now. Everyone understood it, and the three little ones did not come forward to ask. Only Brycen asked in surprise, "Molly, you're back! Did that brat take advantage of you?!"

It was killing him for Molly to be back so late!

Molly, however, thought that it was funny. 'Why is Brycen still obsessed with Sean taking advantage of me?

'Sean is clearly a patient.' Then, Molly told Brycen truthfully, "He didn't. We just hold hands. II The three little ones were anxious earlier. But, when they heard what Molly had said, their expressions changed, and they were even slightly disappointed.

“Uncle Sean just did that?”

“Yeah, it was such a great opportunity!”

“Well, there’s always next time.”

The three little ones were complaining to themselves.

Brycen was slightly satisfied and breathed a sigh of relief. He nodded and said, “At least that brat is still sensible.”

Grandpa Dave did not seem to care at all. It was as if he did not hear their conversation at all. He drank a cup of tea and thought to himself.

‘Good. I knew that Sean would be a sensible brat!’ In fact, Grandpa Dave knew that his granddaughter’s appearance was very outstanding. He was a little worried at first and even wondered whether Sean could resist himself.
