

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1791

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1791—Anne and Andrew simply refused to believe him. Failing to convince them, Jared shrugged in resignation. “Since you don’t believe me, I’ll just have to show it to you. No wonder people say that women are less knowledgeable. It’s really true.”

No sooner had Jared spoken than he gave his hand a gentle flick while looking at the four groaning men in black. All of a sudden, an earth-shattering aura descended upon the space.

Boom! The four men exploded into mush that was scattered all over the ground, just like snowflakes. It was as if they had never ever appeared in the first place.

Anne and Andrew were subsequently flabbergasted upon watching the instant devastation. A long while passed before Anne regained her senses. It was then that her shock turned into delight.

“... I didn’t expect that you’re really a Greater Martial Arts Marquis. This is wonderful!”

Unable to contain her elation, she gave Jared a hug, followed by peppering him with kisses all over Her sudden display of emotions stunned Jared, who quickly tried to push her away.

This Senerisian girl is just too liberal.

Despite his attempts to keep his distance, Anne refused to let him go. It was during their struggle that he was suddenly gripped by a terrifying aura that sent a shiver down his spine.

With his hair standing on end, Jared had never felt so threatened in his life. When he finally freed himself and turned around, he was greeted by the sight of Lizbeth and the other girls approaching.

All of them were glaring at him, their eyes spitting fire. The terrifying sight simply blew Jared’s mind.

“D*mn it, Jared, no wonder you didn’t want to go shopping with us. It turns out that you’re here to see this Senerisian girl who also happens to be an old friend of yours.”

Lyanna was the first to comment, for she had met Anne before during the international competition one year ago.

Moreover, both of them were in constant conflict with each other when it came to vying for Jared's attention. Now that Anne was hugging Jared and kissing him, Lyanna was, without a doubt, outraged.

As for Lizbeth, she, too, knew who Anne was but didn't mind Jared's association with the latter. After all, she expected someone as outstanding as Jared to have plenty of women.

Nonetheless, Jared's clandestine conduct and the intimacy he displayed still unsettled her.

Other than Josephine, she had been with Jared the longest. Thus, she felt that Anne had one up her in terms of their physical relationship with Jared.

"Jared, it seems that you're becoming greedier," Renee remarked with a sigh.

"Jared, it turns out that you like Senerisian girls. No wonder you couldn't be bothered when my sister threw herself at you," Millie sneered with a pout.

Filled with embarrassment, Cecilia quickly reprimanded her, "Millie, stop your nonsense."

At the same time, Astrid came forward and asked, "Jared, who's this Senerisian girl?" Overwhelmed by the barrage of questions, Jared felt as if his mind was going to explode.

Meanwhile, Colin and Gilbert couldn't help but smirk when they saw the look on Jared's face. Sometimes, it's just a burden to have too many women.

"Hello, ladies. My name is Anne. I'm a friend of Jared's. Just now, I was just showing how happy I was to see an old friend. This is how we greet our friends in this country. I hope that I have not caused any misunderstanding," Anne explained to Lizbeth and the others before Jared could say a word.

"That's right. We were just greeting each other according to the local custom. This is Seneris, after all, and Anne is a citizen here. She was just delighted to see me, that's all," Jared quickly added.

"Mmm-hmm, I have heard that foreigners greet each other by kissing."

Colin made the remark when everyone least expected it. With everyone bursting into laughter, he had succeeded in defusing the situation.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1792

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1792—With that, Jared seized upon the opportunity to order everyone back to the hotel. After learning that Jared was a Greater Martial Arts Marquis, Anne and Andrew joined them with the intention of never leaving Jared's side.

Hence, Jared was worried that Anne would get into a conflict with the other girls. Having underestimated their social skills, he was soon surprised to see Anne fitting right in with the group as if all of them were old friends.

Moreover, they felt indignant on Anne's behalf upon learning of her predicament. All of them wanted to find the King of Herbs and teach Harold a lesson on her behalf.

The next day, Dale came to the hotel first thing in the morning to see Jared. He was to lead Jared in his search for the ancient ruins.

Initially, Jared didn't want the girls to come along. However, he had no choice, as they would be unhappy if Anne—who was looking for the King of Herbs—went alone with him. "Where's Mr. Flaxseed?"

After everyone had gathered, Jared couldn't see Flaxseed anywhere.

"He hasn't left his room ever since he arrived. God knows what he's doing inside," Colin replied. Jared didn't need to guess what Flaxseed was up to, but given his expertise in navigating tombs, they couldn't do without his presence.

Thus, Jared went to his room and knocked loudly on the door. The door opened quickly, revealing the yawning Flaxseed. His eyes had a listless look in them and were weighed down by heavy eyebags.

On his bed were two blond girls lying in it. "Mr. Flaxseed, we're going off to find the ancient ruins," Jared informed him. "Um... So soon?"

Flaxseed was caught by surprise. "If I don't hurry, I would probably find you dead in your bed."

Jared rolled his eyes at Flaxseed, who responded with a chuckle. "These Senerisian girls are amazing. Wait for me while I get dressed."

Soon, Flaxseed emerged after getting ready. From the look on his face, everyone knew what he was up to while being holed up in his room.

"D'mn it, Jared, you're really something! You already got yourself a Senerisian girl in just two days?"

The moment Flaxseed saw Anne, he couldn't help but admire Jared for his charm. "Enough. It's getting late. Let's hurry."

Worried that Flaxseed would start blabbering away, Jared quickly urged the group to set off. With Dale leading the way, they boarded at minibuses toward the foot of the snowy mountain.

When they were about more than ten kilometers away, their bus came to a stop. The tarred road had come to an end, which required them to trek the rest of the way.

After packing some supplies and a simple tent, Dale informed Jared, "Mr. Chance, the weather here can be unpredictable. That's why we'll need to bring some food. Who knows, we might even have to spend the night here."

"Okay!" Jared nodded. After glancing at the supplies, he kept them all in his Storage Ring with a wave of his hand. It was an ability Dale was extremely envious of.

With that, the group trudged on the snow-capped ground as they continued their journey up the snowy mountain. What started out as an adventure was turned into a sightseeing trip by the girls.

Some of them began to fool around and even had snowball fights amongst themselves. Consequently, their behavior rendered Jared speechless.

As for Dale, he was astonished by what he saw. Although the girls appeared weak, all of them were tremendously more powerful than he was.

Along the journey, Jared encountered other groups who were also making their way toward the mountain. They were clearly looking for the ancient ruins too, whereas their members all exuded powerful auras.

Nevertheless, the other groups didn't pay Jared's entourage any attention. From how noisy the girls were behaving, everyone assumed them to be a tour group instead.

As they got closer to the snowy mountain, the weather took a turn for the worse. A thick fog slowly engulfed the mountain, seemingly sealing it away from the world.

When Jared emitted his spiritual sense, he was surprised to find that it couldn't pierce through the fog. Evidently, the fog wasn't a natural occurrence at all.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1793

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1793—"Everyone, be careful. This fog has been created by an arcane array." In that instant, Flaxseed's smiling face was replaced by a solemn look.

As for the girls, they adopted a vigilant state of mind as they carefully proceeded forward. "Mr. Thompson, can you still remember the place you mentioned?" Jared asked Dale.

He was worried that the fog would cause Dale to be lost. "Mr. Chance, don't worry. I can find it with my eyes closed."

Although he had only been there twice, Dale was confident of finding it due to his strong sense of direction. Nodding in acknowledgment, Jared invited Dale: to lead the way.

After walking for more than an hour, they noticed that the fog began to thin, revealing the snowy mountain before them. If one were to look down from the sky, one could see that the mountain was surrounded by a ring of thick fog.

The fog had confused many adventurers, causing them to lose their way.

"Mr. Chance, the eastern foot of the mountain is where many mysteriously disappeared," Luca remarked while pointing to the east.

"All right, let's head over." After nodding in acknowledgment, Jared turned toward Lizbeth and the girls. "All of you should stay here, as the journey ahead is a perilous one. We'll leave the tent and supplies with you, so just stay put and wait."

With that, Jared retrieved the supplies from his Storage Ring and quickly set up the tent.

Initially, Astrid and Lyanna were reluctant to stay. However, Cecilia and Lizbeth, who were cognizant that they would only serve as a distraction to Jared, agreed to remain.

With Dale leading the way, Jared, together with Flaxseed, Gilbert, Anne, and Andrew, headed to the location where the Grandmasters were reported to have gone missing.

“Jared, let me come with you. In the event of danger, I’ll be able to help.”

Evangeline expressed her intention to join them. Since she was a Greater Martial Arts Marquis, she was more than capable of taking care of herself.

Moreover, her broad knowledge would likely be of use if they were to encounter any ancient artifacts. Jared subsequently nodded after taking those factors into consideration. “All right, come along, then.”

Once he had settled on the groups, Jared instructed, “Colin, keep a close eye on them. Just stay here and don’t venture anywhere else.”

“Don’t worry, Jared, I won’t allow them to: wander around unnecessarily,” Colin promised.

After Jared and his group continued on their journey, he could feel a significant change in the spiritual energy within their surroundings..

Evangeline, who sensed the same, furrowed her brows in response. Upon arriving at their destination, they were greeted by the sight of a few large signs.

They read: Danger! Do not enter! Surprised, Jared wondered who it was that erected the signs. “Mr. Thompson, who put all these up?” Jared inquired.

Equally stunned, Dale shook his head. “I have no idea. I didn’t see them the last two times I was here.”

“Someone must have come here. The signs are probably used to scare others away,” Flaxseed commented. “Ignore them. We’re heading in, Jared ordered as he took a step forward.

No sooner had he done so than a ferocious roar of a beast was heard. It was so terrifying that it sent a chill down everyone's spine. "Is there a demon beast here?"

Surprise gripped Jared. Given the extreme cold, it was difficult for any beasts to survive on the mountain. Meanwhile, Dale's expression drastically changed upon hearing the repeated roars.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1794

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1794—"M-Mr. Chance, I think we shouldn't continue walking forward..." Dale said while trembling. Seeing Dale's demeanor, Jared asked in puzzlement, "What's wrong? Are you intimidated by just a few roars?"

"It looks like you don't know about this, Mr. Chance. It is rumored that a tiger demon lived here once. It was extremely gigantic, and it could devour a human in one bite! However, nobody had encountered the tiger demon for many years. Thus, it was slowly forgotten by the people and became a legend," Dale explained.

Dale continued, "But now, it's possible that the roar came from that tiger demon. Besides, the people who disappeared here were likely to be devoured by the tiger demon. I think we shouldn't continue walking forward. It's too dangerous..."

Although Dale knew Jared was a Greater Martial Arts Grandmaster, they would most likely become the legendary tiger demon's meal if they encountered it.

"Is there really such a thing as a tiger demon here?" Jared looked shocked.

"If there is a tiger demon here, then there must be the King of Herbs as well. Whenever there is a stalk of King of Herbs in an area, there will definitely be a spirit beast protecting it.

Maybe the tiger demon is there to protect the King of Herbs." Anne looked excited. At least, the tiger demon's existence proved that the King of Herbs would certainly exist around the area.

Seeing that Jared and the others didn't seem to fear the tiger demon at all and wanted to keep continuing their journey, Dale said with a perplexed expression, “Mr. Chance, my strength is low. I don’t dare to walk further at all. Besides, I’d never been to this snowy mountain before. I guess I can’t lead the way for you anymore.”

The meaning behind Dale’s remarks was clear. He wanted to quit the group and return home, as he was afraid.

“Mr. Thompson, thank you for bringing us here. Please be careful when you go home.” Jared didn’t blame Dale. After all, Dale was merely a Martial Arts Grandmaster. If he were to encounter any danger, he wouldn’t even be able to escape.

“Then I shall wait in town to celebrate your return...” Dale said.

After Dale had left, Jared and the others continued forward. Yet, the path was getting more and more difficult to cross. Not only that, but it was also leading toward the snowy mountain.

Fortunately, they were all experts. If they were ordinary people, they wouldn’t have been able to walk this far. “Mr. Flaxseed, can you probe where the ancient ruins are?” Jared asked Flaxseed.

“Obviously. Have you forgotten what I do for a living?” With that, Flaxseed took out a metal rod that was only a few tens of centimeters long. It was thin and bright.

Casually, Flaxseed glanced around before finding a place to stick the metal rod into the snow.

Then, he stood in front of the metal rod and started chanting a spell. “A geomancer’s spells are never widespread, and the mountain where fortune lies should be identified through the mountain’s shape. There might be highs and lows, and one might circle the same area repeatedly.”

Flaxseed continued, “The mountains will rise and fall like a dragon or a snake. One should bring enough supplies while walking through the mountains, and one should protect their trails while crossing the canyons. There is no end to taking from the mountains and giving something back. One’s entanglement with the mountains is always mysterious.”

He added, “Venus, Jupiter, Mercury, Mars, and Saturn are the five planets that will lead us to the mountains. Jupiter and Mars will create civilization and bring knowledge. Saturn will create minerals and bring wealth. Venus and Mercury will bring prosperity from the mountains.”

Following Flaxseed’s chanting of the spell, a golden glow emitted from the tip of the metal rod. The golden glow was spreading continuously, and the area it covered became wider and wider.

Buzz! Suddenly, the metal rod began to vibrate, and a humming noise echoed throughout the area. The metal rod’s vibration increased gradually. It began to heat up while vibrating, causing the surrounding snow to melt.

Seeing that, Flaxseed waved his hand immediately as his expression changed slightly. “Stop!”

Instantaneously, the metal rod stopped vibrating, and the glow vanished. Then, the rod flew back to Flaxseed’s hand directly.

Jared and the others gaped at Flaxseed’s actions. It could be said that Flaxseed was truly an expert.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1795

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1795—Jared walked over and asked, “How is it, Mr. Flaxseed?” “This ancient ruin is quite huge. However, the entrance is probably destroyed by someone...” Flaxseed responded. “What do you mean?” Jared frowned. “Are you saying that someone had already entered the ancient ruins before?”

Flaxseed nodded in response. “If someone else had been in there, doesn’t it mean our trip here is wasted?” Gilbert said after letting out a sigh.

“That’s hard to say. Even if these people can enter the ancient ruins, it’s not guaranteed that they can get the items inside. It’s similar to the ancient ruins of Skywrath Sect we visited that day. Although we had entered the ancient ruins many times, we almost got nothing from them. Exploring ancient ruins is not the same as exploring ancient tombs.

When an ancient tomb is opened, it’ll technically be destroyed. completely. However, ancient ruins are protected by an arcane array. The items inside ancient ruins can’t be touched by anyone just as they wish,” Flaxseed explained.

“Mr. Flaxseed, can’t you just tell us where the ancient ruins’ entrance is? We’ll find out once we get in, won’t we?” Jared asked anxiously.

Yet, Flaxseed shook his head. “I can’t find the entrance. Someone wiped the traces to the entrance and reformed a new arcane array. Now, we have to search for it slowly.”

“Could it be that those people who broke into the ancient ruins are still inside?” Anne asked. “It’s possible...” Flaxseed nodded in agreement.

“Then, could they be the ones who are spreading the rumors about the tiger demon and causing people to disappear? Maybe they’re doing these on purpose to scare off the people who are searching for the ancient ruins,” Evangeline said after contemplating for a while.

“Yes, that’s possible as well. But no matter what exactly the situation is right now, we still have to find the entrance first...” Jared was eager to find the ancient ruins as soon as possible.

Just when Jared was about to lead the others and continue their journey toward the snowy mountain, they sensed a sudden wave of auras coming from behind them.

Moreover, those auras weren’t weak at all. The weakest aura was one that had a cultivation level of a Greater Martial Arts Grandmaster. Not only that, but there were also several auras coming from a few Martial Arts Marquises.

Needless to say, those people were here because of the ancient ruins. “What do we do now, Mr. Chance?” Gilbert asked as he felt those people’s aura, too.

Jared frowned slightly and spoke after pondering for a while. “Everyone, hide your auras and don’t let them figure out our background. We can let them go first while we follow behind them.”

Jared was planning to let those people walk in front so they could risk themselves first if there were any dangers ahead. After all, nobody knew what kind of danger was in front. Jared thought that instead of risking his own life, it was better to let those people pass through first.

Flaxseed glanced at Jared. “You’re such an evil fellow...”

Jared chuckled. “As the saying goes, a soldier should achieve victory by hook or by crook.”

Jared and the others toned down their auras and went to the side to rest, displaying an extremely exhausted look on their faces.

Soon, over ten people rushed toward Jared and the others. Among those people, a tall man with blond hair and blue eyes was obviously the leader.

Meanwhile, a skinny elderly followed beside that tall man. The elderly seemed to be blind, as he was holding a walking stick in his hand.

As soon as the group saw Jared and the others, they stopped. The blond man sized Jared and the others up and said nothing. Then, the blond man turned to the elderly and asked, “Joel, you said that someone was using Tomb Seeking Skill to search for the ancient ruins. Did it come from this area?”

The elderly named Joel said nothing. He merely took out a bronze handbell and shook it gently. Then, clear sounds emitted from the bronze handbell and quickly began to spread across the area.

The sound waves seemed to be magical as they continuously blasted Jared and the others’ minds. In an instant, a golden beam flashed across Jared’s mind, and it directly forced the sound waves away.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1796

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1796—Meanwhile, the others kept their minds under control and were not affected by the sound wave. Anne, however, was too weak. The sound wave took control over her, and her eyes slowly lost focus.

Seeing that, Jared grabbed her hand and transferred a wave of spiritual energy into her body, which woke her up instantly.

When Anne saw him holding her hand, she smiled and cast him a teasing gaze. Noting that, Jared wanted to let go of her, but she tightened her grip on him and refused to let him go.

Jared was utterly at a loss for words. Never did he expect Anne to misunderstand his intent.

He explained softly, "Don't get the wrong idea. I'm just saving you- "I'm not. Isn't it great that we're holding hands like this? Why bother letting go? Is my hand not fair enough? Is my skin not soft enough?"

Anne's voice was filled with mischief. Flaxseed, on the other hand, was extremely envious when he saw the scene before him. "Young lady, Jared is a dense man. Why don't I hold your hand instead?"

Anne rolled her eyes and ignored him. Nonetheless, Flaxseed did not mind it at all. After all, a man had to be thick-skinned if he wanted to pick up girls.

Just as Jared and the others were speaking softly and not paying any attention to the other party, Joel spoke. "Danny, is there anyone on our left?"

"Yes, Mr. Joel. There are six people-four men and two women. They're probably tourists," said the blond-haired man. "Tourists? Have tourists ever come here before?"

Joel sounded a little angry.

Danny hurriedly explained, "They're not here on a trip, Mr. Joel. The most powerful person in this group is only a Greater Martial Arts Grandmaster, while the others are Martial Arts Grandmasters. Could they be here to explore the ancient ruins with such capabilities?"

"So, there's a Greater Martial Arts Grandmaster as well. Looks like I've miscalculated the situation."

With that, Joel shook the bell again. This time, however, the rings carried spiritual energy into the ears of Jared and the others. After that, the energy began to attack the spiritual sense in their minds.

The attack this time was clearly more powerful than the first. Just as Jared was trying to drive the energy away, he froze.

If we drive the energy away now and prevent ourselves from getting controlled, then the other party will suspect our true capabilities.

Thus, Jared shot them a look. Understanding what he was implying, the others hurriedly pretended to fall into a daze as if they were controlled by the energy.

However, Anne's mind was truly controlled by the spiritual energy, and her eyes dimmed. Joel curled his lips into a smug smile and said, "Come here, all of you..."

At that, Jared and the others rose to their feet and approached Joel obediently..

"What are you guys doing here?" asked Joel. "Traveling, as well as trying our luck to see if we can find the legendary ancient ruins," Jared answered.

Joel scoffed, "Looks like you're really tourists. I can't believe you all wanted to try your luck. How could you take this so lightly? Have you people lost your minds? Do you really think you'd have struck gold if you found the ancient ruins? You have no idea how dangerous the place is. With your current strength, you'd surely die if you set foot in it."

With that, Joel shook his bell to wake them up. "W-What's going on? Who are you people?" asked Jared and the others, feigning anxiousness.

"Don't be afraid. We're from Flaming Sect. This is our leader. It's extremely dangerous here.. With your current capabilities, we'd advise you to return lest you die in vain," informed Danny.

Suddenly, Anne shrieked excitedly, "Flaming Sect? You guys are the ones who are extremely powerful in divination, right? You're the ones who can predict the future and fates!"

Nodding, Danny admitted, "Indeed. I'm surprised you know about us."

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1797

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1797-"Of course, I do! I even know there are many of you among the royal family. You guys are in charge of observing celestial phenomena and predicting luck."

As the precious daughter of Duke Ross, Anne naturally had knowledge about Flaming Sect. Even so, the sect was foreign to commoners, for commoners would not have the chance to come into contact with them.

But as soon as Anne finished talking, Joel snorted. "Don't even mention them. They're no longer a part of Flaming Sect. They've betrayed our sect and broken our ancestral rules. In fact, they've been kicked out of Flaming Sect long ago."

"Ah... I see." Anne was utterly dumbfounded. She wasn't aware that the members of Flaming Sect in the royal family were outcasts of the sect.

"Ladies and gentlemen, as you've seen, someone cast a spell here earlier. They used the spell for searching caves and tombs," said Danny to Jared and his group.

"Oh, we saw a few people in robes earlier, but they've left already," responded Jared. "Looks like someone's going to beat us to it. We need to leave now."

After saying that, Joel dashed forward. Though he was blind, he moved around as if he could see. Seeing that, Danny quickly ran after Joel with his men.

"Jared, what do we do?" Anne asked. "We go after them, of course!"

With that, Jared followed after them. Although the path heading up the mountain was windy, it was a piece of cake for them to catch up with Danny and Joel.

When Danny noticed Jared and the others had caught up with them, he could not help but frown. "Why are you people following us instead of descending the mountain?"

"We just want to enjoy the scenery and see if you guys can find the entrance to the ancient ruins. Don't worry though. We definitely won't fight against you over the things in the ruins. We're just curious," assured Jared.

Danny frowned slightly before glancing in Joel's direction. "Let them tag along. Who knows? They might be useful," Joel uttered coldly.

Hence, Danny had no choice but to say to Jared, "Keep up, then. Don't blame me if something dangerous happens." Jared and company followed the duo and walked a distance up the mountain before Joel suddenly halted in his tracks.

"What's the matter, Mr. Joel?" Danny asked. "There's a restrictive energy ahead of us. We can't move forward until we break it."

As Joel was talking, he shoved both his hands into the ground and chanted something in a crazed manner.

Immediately, a ray of light emerged from the ground and shot ahead before exploding all of a sudden when it was dozens of meters away.

Following the sound of the explosion, a faint glow appeared where the barrier of the arcane array was at. If they had marched forward blindly, they would have been trapped.

Danny was stupefied by what he saw, while Jared was impressed by the blind man. This man's blind, but he can still accurately detect where the arcane array's barrier is.

"Break the barrier!" yelled Danny. Immediately after that, dozens of men behind him gathered around and formed a weird shape. Not long after that, they unleashed their auras, gathering the auras together, and charged toward the barrier.

Boom! A deafening sound erupted, and chunks of snow on the surrounding tree branches were blown everywhere.

However, when the huge wave of aura struck the barrier, the barrier glowed brilliantly. In the next second, waves of rebound energy shot out continuously like a tidal wave on a rough sea..

At that moment, immense pressure broke the group's formation. Some even winced and gritted their teeth, struggling to hold their ground.

Thump! Right then, a powerful force that resembled a huge punch sent the group of people flying. Though they were alive, they suffered from severe internal injuries.

Danny's expression instantly turned grim.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1798

"Hmph! What a bunch of useless fools..." Joel snorted coldly and took out his bronze handbell before he started chanting. The sound waves reverberated through the air and rolled toward the barrier like rising tides, growing increasingly strong as he chanted on.

Boom! Boom!

Boom! The sound waves collided continuously with the barrier, and the barrier trembled under the impact. The huge rebound energy rendered Joel's face pale.

"Let's secretly lend them a hand, or I doubt they'll be able to get in," Jared whispered to Flaxseed. Flaxseed smiled and took out a charm. He then casually scribbled some strange patterns on it.

The moment Flaxseed let go of his hand, the charm soared into the sky and stuck itself on the barrier. In the blink of an eye, the barrier cracked as if it had received a hard blow.

Joel's forehead was covered in cold sweat when the barrier collapsed.

"That's amazing, Mr. Joel!" Danny complimented Joel. "I didn't expect the arcane array to be this powerful. There must be a lot of magical items in the ruins," Joel said.

Jared sneered coldly at Joel's words. In actuality, this supposed arcane array guarding the ruins was not left by Engarder Sect.

If it were developed by Engarder Sect, it wouldn't have been easily destroyed. Instead, the arcane array was rebuilt by someone who had intruded into Engarder Sect.

Right then, a few men in black were bustling about in the ancient ruins inside the snow mountain. A blond male foreigner with a pair of blue eyes was sitting in the main seat.

Sitting beside him was an elderly clad in a black robe.

Right then, one of the men in black hurried over and reported, "Prince Harold, someone broke through the barrier. The intruders are heading in our direction."

The man frowned and cast a glance at the elderly beside him.

The elderly, on the other hand, remained unperturbed by the news. "Release the tiger demon. Send our men to stop them. We must not let them enter."

“Understood.” With that said, the man in black left to carry out the orders. “Mr. Alex, who do you think is capable enough to break through the barrier?” the man asked curiously.

“Prince Harold, there’s no need to be worried. Even if they managed to break through the barrier, they won’t be able to survive the tiger demon’s attack. They would have to tackle dozens of arcane arrays and traps before they could get to us. No one can make it here alive!” said the elderly, Alex, with a confident look on his face.

“Great! We’ve been managing this place for a few months. I wonder when we can enter the tomb of swords? Once I acquire the magic sword, the title of a noble would be mine. Heck, I may even be able to claim the throne,” exclaimed Harold, his eyes gleaming with greed.

“Rest assured, Prince Harold. As long as we have enough crystals, we can break into the tomb of swords in a few months,” Alex promised.

“That’s great. I will ask them to mine more crystals. By the way, my sister may come here looking for King of Herbs. If you see her here, kill her on sight!” Harold said.

“Understood!” Alex nodded.

After Harold left the scene, Alex stepped onto a platform that was built with crystals, and a devious smile appeared on his face.

Meanwhile, Jared and the others had passed through the barrier and were ascending the snow mountain. However, the higher they climbed, the steeper the route was.

A terrifying aura enshrouded them along the journey, and the whole group was constantly on high alert.

All of a sudden, Joel raised his hand and gestured for everyone to stop. “Mr. Joel, what’s the matter?” Danny asked. “We’re in danger. I smell a demon beast...” Joel frowned.

“A demon beast?” Danny’s face changed. “Could it be the tiger demon?” Before Joel could utter a response, a loud tiger roar pierced through the air.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1798-“Hmph! What a bunch of useless fools...” Joel snorted coldly and took out his bronze handbell before he started chanting. The sound waves reverberated through the air and rolled toward the barrier like rising tides, growing increasingly strong as he chanted on.

Boom! Boom!

Boom! The sound waves collided continuously with the barrier, and the barrier trembled under the impact. The huge rebound energy rendered Joel’s face pale.

“Let’s secretly lend them a hand, or I doubt they’ll be able to get in,” Jared whispered to Flaxseed. Flaxseed smiled and took out a charm. He then casually scribbled some strange patterns on it.

The moment Flaxseed let go of his hand, the charm soared into the sky and stuck itself on the barrier. In the blink of an eye, the barrier cracked as if it had received a hard blow.

Joel’s forehead was covered in cold sweat when the barrier collapsed.

“That’s amazing, Mr. Joel!” Danny complimented Joel. “I didn’t expect the arcane array to be this powerful. There must be a lot of magical items in the ruins,” Joel said.

Jared sneered coldly at Joel’s words. In actuality, this supposed arcane array guarding the ruins was not left by Engarder Sect.

If it were developed by Engarder Sect, it wouldn’t have been easily destroyed. Instead, the arcane array was rebuilt by someone who had intruded into Engarder Sect.

Right then, a few men in black were bustling about in the ancient ruins inside the snow mountain. A blond male foreigner with a pair of blue eyes was sitting in the main seat.

Sitting beside him was an elderly clad in a black robe.

Right then, one of the men in black hurried over and reported, “Prince Harold, someone broke through the barrier. The intruders are heading in our direction.”

The man frowned and cast a glance at the elderly beside him.

The elderly, on the other hand, remained unperturbed by the news. "Release the tiger demon. Send our men to stop them. We must not let them enter."

"Understood." With that said, the man in black left to carry out the orders. "Mr. Alex, who do you think is capable enough to break through the barrier?" the man asked curiously.

"Prince Harold, there's no need to be worried. Even if they managed to break through the barrier, they won't be able to survive the tiger demon's attack. They would have to tackle dozens of arcane arrays and traps before they could get to us. No one can make it here alive!" said the elderly, Alex, with a confident look on his face.

"Great! We've been managing this place for a few months. I wonder when we can enter the tomb of swords? Once I acquire the magic sword, the title of a noble would be mine. Heck, I may even be able to claim the throne," exclaimed Harold, his eyes gleaming with greed.

"Rest assured, Prince Harold. As long as we have enough crystals, we can break into the tomb of swords in a few months," Alex promised.

"That's great. I will ask them to mine more crystals. By the way, my sister may come here looking for King of Herbs. If you see her here, kill her on sight!" Harold said.

"Understood!" Alex nodded.

After Harold left the scene, Alex stepped onto a platform that was built with crystals, and a devious smile appeared on his face.

Meanwhile, Jared and the others had passed through the barrier and were ascending the snow mountain. However, the higher they climbed, the steeper the route was.

A terrifying aura enshrouded them along the journey, and the whole group was constantly on high alert.

All of a sudden, Joel raised his hand and gestured for everyone to stop. "Mr. Joel, what's the matter?" Danny asked. "We're in danger. I smell a demon beast..." Joel frowned.

“A demon beast?” Danny’s face changed. “Could it be the tiger demon?” Before Joel could utter a response, a loud tiger roar pierced through the air.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1799

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1799-Everyone tensed up immediately while Jared and his friends were filled with excitement. After all, the tiger demon’s beast core was a superior cultivation resource. Their journey would be worth it if they could run into a few more powerful demon beasts.

Jared glanced at Evangeline, who had mastered the beast-taming technique. If she could succeed in taming the tiger demon, they would gain an additional helper for their team. Right then, a gigantic tiger demon trudged up to them and let out a deafening roar upon spotting.

them, as if trying to threaten Jared and company. The moment the tiger demon showed up, everyone including Joel and Danny panicked. They brandished their weapons, bracing themselves for the attack.

“This tiger demon is as powerful as a Greater Martial Arts Marquis. There must be some good stuff in here, or the place won’t be guarded by such a powerful demon beast.” Jared’s eyes instantly lit up when he noticed the cultivation level of the tiger demon.

However, Evangeline’s brows creased as she said, “This is not the spirit beast guarding this place.”

Confused, Jared turned to Evangeline. “What do you mean?”

“This tiger demon is not the spirit beast that’s guarding the ancient ruins. It’s reared by someone and is not a wild beast,” Evangeline explained.

“It’s reared by someone?” Jared instantly recalled what Flaxseed had just said about others beating them to it. The person who reared the tiger demon must be among those who had entered the ancient ruins before they did.

Hence, in order to prevent others from entering the ancient ruins, the owner released the tiger demon and spread the news to stop people from approaching.

Jared's curiosity was piqued at the moment. He wanted to know who had set foot in the ancient ruins before them.

The owner of this tiger demon must be unimaginably strong since they were capable of rearing a pet with the capability of a Greater Martial Arts Marquis.

Roar!

Seeing that Jared and the rest didn't make an attempt to flee, the tiger demon bared its teeth and howled again.

The roar was filled with a terrifying aura, and the force caused several weaker disciples of the Flaming Sect to suffer severe internal injuries. Their internal organs contorted, and blood gushed continuously out of their mouths.

In the end, they dropped dead, killed by a mere roar from the tiger demon. Danny's expression turned grim as he looked at the dead bodies of his subordinates.

The rest of the disciples were shaking like a leaf despite still holding their weapons. Joel seemed to be the calmest among all, but a layer of cold sweat covered his forehead.

"Mr. Joel, this tiger demon has the power of a Greater Martial Arts Marquis, we're no match for it..." Danny said to Joel in horror.

Their group only consisted of Greater Martial Arts Grandmasters or Martial Arts Marquises at best. None of them had reached the level of a Greater Martial Arts Marquis.

Joel was the strongest among them all, but he was only a Top Level Martial Arts Marquis and was no match for the tiger demon as well.

"A tiger demon with the strength of a Greater Martial Arts Marquis. Indeed, there's no way we can beat it..."

Joel knew that when a demon beast and a human were at the same level of strength, the former would always be stronger than the latter.

Hence, it was simply impossible for them to defeat such a powerful tiger demon. "Mr. Joel, what should we do?"

Danny was sweating bullets. Since even Joel himself admitted that they were no match for the tiger demon, he wondered if that meant they could only give up and wait for their dooms like sitting ducks.

Joel didn't say anything. He scrutinized the aura of the tiger demon and said after a moment, "We can only try to get past it."

"Get past it? How? The tiger demon is faster than us..."

Danny was confused, for he didn't know how. Joel planned to bypass the tiger demon. A malicious look flashed across Joel's face as he said, "There are still people tailing behind us, no?"

Danny was stunned for a moment before he caught on to what Joel meant. "Mr. Joel, are you planning to let them deal with the tiger demon?" Danny asked.

Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 1800

A Man Like None Other Chapter 1800-"Precisely. We'll let these people deal with the tiger demon. Then, while the tiger demon is gobbling them up, we can take another route to get around it."

Joel intended to let Jared and the others become the tiger demon's meal so that he and his companions could sneak past the beast while it was busy devouring its prey!

"Uh... That doesn't sound like a good idea," Danny said uneasily.

"Not a good idea? What's wrong with it? We're in a life-or-death situation now. Don't tell me you're thinking of letting them live and sending us to our deaths?" Joel questioned Danny in a frosty tone while frowning.

Danny did not know what to say in response. Seeing how Danny was standing there motionlessly, Joel personally led the other members toward Jared.

While Jared was feeling frustrated over the knowledge that the tiger demon had been raised by humans and could not be tamed, he noticed that Joel and his men had already surrounded them.

The members of Flaming Sect were all staring menacingly at Jared and his companions while holding weapons.

Joel wore an icy expression as he said, "The tiger demon is blocking the way. Since you chose to follow us, you'll have to pay a price."

"What do you mean?" Jared enquired, feigning ignorance. In truth, Jared had guessed what was going on when he noticed Joel and his gang hemming them in.

"Go and fight that tiger demon," Joel replied bluntly.

Shocked, Anne turned to Joel and demanded, "What? You want us to take on the tiger demon? It's obvious the creature is utterly vicious. With our rudimentary skills, wouldn't us trying to fight it mean certain death?"

Joel whipped out a bronze handbell. Then, a burst of hypnotic aura erupted from his body and instantly engulfed Jared's group.

"If you go and kill the tiger demon, you might have a chance of survival. If you don't, however, you'll undoubtedly perish..."

After he said that, the members of Flaming. Sect glared at Jared and the rest with murderous looks and pointed their weapons directly at them..

If Jared and his companions dared to refuse, they were ready to attack immediately. Infuriated by those words, Anne was about to fly into a rage when Jared stopped her.

"We're not as strong as you, so don't you think that asking us to take on the tiger demon doesn't seem quite right?" Jared asked cautiously.

"Hmph! Right or wrong has nothing to do with this. The law of the jungle rules in our society. Better for you to die than us..."

With that, Joel shook the bronze handbell he was holding, his expression as glacial as ever. The crisp, clear peal of the bell rang out.

Immediately after that, a series of sound waves rippled toward Jared and his companions. "Please stop that! We'll do it!" Jared hurriedly pleaded.

Joel snorted coldly. "Smart choice. You guys go and fight the tiger demon with everything you've got. As soon as we've left, you can escape. That way, you'll at least have a chance to survive."

Anne's face flushed red from anger. I can't believe these are the true colors of Flaming Sect. And yet, they go around promoting themselves by claiming they're all about saving the world and helping others.

Meanwhile, Jared shot the others a look and started approaching the tiger demon. For someone of his caliber, eliminating the tiger demon would be like a walk in the park.

When Jared and the others walked past Danny, the latter turned away in shame and dared not look at them.

Suddenly, the tiger demon let out a terrifying roar as it watched the group walk up to it, and strong gusts of its aura swept through the air like gales.

Jared waved his palm gently in front of him, and a shield instantly emerged, blocking the waves of aura. Joel turned to Danny and urged, "We should hurry up and get away."

We must take this opportunity to escape as soon as possible. Based on those people's capabilities, I know there's no way they can hold back the tiger demon for long.

Danny had no choice but to follow Joel and the rest. After that, they took another route and continued their journey up the snowy mountain.