A Man Like None Other Chapter 2351-Meanwhile, at the Department of Justice in Jadeborough, Arthur was writing something. Down when his hand trembled all of a sudden, and he ended up smudging the paper as a result.

Since he had ruined his perfectly neat handwriting, Arthur put the calligraphy brush down and slowly walked out of the room. "The inevitable is finally here. Are you ready, Jared?" he mumbled to himself while staring at the night sky.

He dashed through the sky at lightning speed.. Moments later, he landed inside a courtyard, which was brightly lit despite it being very late at night.

A few girls could be seen sweating profusely as they cultivated in the courtyard. They quickly got into a straight line and greeted Arthur respectfully when they saw him arrive. Arthur flashed them a satisfied smile and nodded in response.

"Why are you up so late, Mr. Sanders?" asked one of the girls, who wore a white dress and had exquisite facial features. That girl was none other than Cecilia. The girls standing next to her were Lyanna, Millie, and Astrid.

Each of those girls had received Arthur's cultivation technique, which he had passed on to them. The cultivation technique differed for each of them as it was based on their unique characteristics.

"You girls don't have much time left. If you wish to remain by Jared's side, then you will have to work even harder. It's possible that Jared will soon leave this place and head toward a much better one. He has his own responsibilities to fulfill, so you girls must not get in his way. Is that understood?" Arthur said sternly.

"Don't worry, Mr. Sanders! We'll work hard! We're willing to sacrifice everything for Jared's sake!" Cecilia replied firmly. Arthur flashed her a smile before disappearing in an instant.

"Let's keep it up, girls! We need to strengthen ourselves if we are to stay with Jared!" Cecilia said, prompting the other girls to continue their training.

Meanwhile, within the secret realm, Matthew was finally able to cultivate after taking two days to calm himself down. Archer and Skyler remained by his side to guard him and ensure his safety while Jared set up arcane arrays around the cave.”

He also gathered herbs from the surroundings and synthesized pills to help speed up Matthew’s recovery. If Jared remained idle, the elderly man dwelling within his body would nag him non-stop all day.

While Jared was about to head out and gather some more herbs that day, a group of people were approaching the cave. The one leading the group was none other than Great Diviner of Divination Sect. The direction in which Great Diviner’s finger was pointing kept changing as they moved forward.

“Master, are you sure Matthew and the others are nearby? It’s been a few days. They’ve probably gotten far away by now,” asked one of the Divination Sect disciples.

“Shut up! How dare you question Master’s divination arts? Do you have a death wish or something?” another disciple snapped at him.

“They’re not far away. We’ll find them soon,” Great Diviner said. After Jared and the others had escaped, Great Diviner had been secretly pinpointing their location using his divination art.

Great Diviner was extremely curious about Jared’s identity after witnessing his ability to command all those demon beasts. Jared had displayed terrifying levels of strength despite his low cultivation level.

That only fueled Great Diviner’s curiosity toward him even further. When Wrey and the others were not pursuing. Jared, Great Diviner quickly located Jared and led his disciples on a search for him..

Right as Great Diviner and his disciples. approached the cave, however, they were surrounded by a very bright light. The next thing they knew, spiritual energy chains had. appeared and tied them all up.

Great Diviner and his disciples were all shocked. None of them had expected to run. into an arcane array at a place like this. However, that also meant Great Diviner was right about Jared and the others being inside that cave.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2352-“Hmph! Does he really think a mere arcane array like this is enough to stop me? They must’ve forgotten what I specialize in!” Great Diviner said disdainfully while snapping his fingers.

The sky above them turned dark as thunderclouds covered it entirely. A few flashes of lightning then struck Jared’s arcane array, shattering it instantly. The spiritual energy chains that were binding them, too, disappeared after that..

“A puny arcane array like this can’t possibly stop Master, who has the ability to peek into the Heavenly Law and alter the course of fate!” “Exactly! It’s funny how these guys think they can get away from Master!”

“I doubt there’s a single person out there who can beat Master’s divination art!” Great Diviner’s disciples were quick to shower him with compliments.

“All right, that’s enough! I only know a few tricks. or two, so I’m not that powerful!” Despite what Great Diviner said, he actually felt. pleased after hearing those compliments.

It was human nature to enjoy being complimented, and Great Diviner was no exception. Jared was in the middle of gathering some herbs when his body tensed up all of a sudden.

“Oh, no! Someone has broken through the arcane array and made it to the cave! Mr. Campbell is in danger!” Jared mumbled to himself and ran back to the cave as quickly as his legs could carry him..

Unfortunately, he was far too late. Great Diviner and his disciples had already found the cave. “So, I was right! They really are hiding here!” Great Diviner said with a sneer. Archer’s and Skyler’s faces turned gloomy the moment they saw Great Diviner and his disciples.

This is bad... Mr. Campbell has yet to fully recover, and Mr. Chance isn’t here either. The two of us don’t even stand a chance if Great Diviner attacks us now!

Archer stepped forward and said as politely as possible, “Our sects have no grudge against each other, Master Diviner! My master has always been respectful toward you as well, so why must you do this to us?”

“That’s right, Master Diviner! You’re so powerful that you can peek into the Heavenly Law! Someone of your status should not follow in the footsteps of commoners like Wrey!” Skyler chimed in.

They knew how much Great Diviner enjoyed being complimented and how he often called himself a half-immortal. Since fighting was not a viable option, Archer and Skyler had no choice but to try and sweet-talk their way out of this situation instead.

Sure enough, Great Diviner broke into a wide grin when he heard what they said. “Rumor has it that Matthew’s two closest disciples are exceptionally polite and obedient. It seems the rumor is true, after all. Anyway, I didn’t come here to kill your master. I only want to meet that guy named Jared Chance. He has really piqued my interest, you see…”

Archer and Skyler breathed sighs of relief when they heard that. Phew! Thank goodness he’s not here to kill us! There was no way the two would be able to fend those guys off, so Matthew would surely die if Great Diviner decided to attack.

“You’re here to see Mr. Chance? Please come on in, Master Diviner!” Matthew’s voice rang out from inside the cave. Great Diviner was about to make his way into the cave when one of his disciples stopped him. and said, “Be careful, Master! This could be a trap!”

As Great Diviner paused in his tracks, Matthew spoke up once again. “Master Diviner is able to see the future, so he already knows if this is a trap. Isn’t that right, Master Diviner?”

Sure enough, Great Diviner’s huge ego got to him after he heard that. He shot his disciple a fierce glare and yelled, “F*ck off! I know if this is a trap!”

After scolding his disciple, Great Diviner turned around and continued making his way into the cave. “Have a seat, Master Diviner,” Matthew said politely when he saw Great Diviner.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2353-“Where’s Jared, Matthew?” Great Diviner asked when he glanced about and saw no sign of Jared anywhere. “Come on, now. Surely a person of your capabilities would have already known where Mr. Chance is!” Matthew replied with a smile.

“Fair enough...” Great Diviner whipped out a copper coin, blew on it, and spun it in his hand a few times before putting it back into his pocket.

– “Jared is on his way back, so I’ll wait here for him.” “You sure are amazing, Master Diviner! As expected of a half-immortal!” Matthew complimented him. All those compliments made Great Diviner so happy that he was practically grinning from ear to ear at that point.

“Matthew, why would you get on the bad side of all the other sects in the hidden realm because of Jared? It’s not too late to change your mind about helping Jared out, you know? I could help you speak to Wrey and have him spare your life,” Great Diviner advised him.

“You don’t understand, Master Diviner. Wrey’s arrogance has consumed him entirely. All of our sects used to coexist with none being regarded as greater than the other. However, Wrey is now demanding that we all listen to him. Since Flying Star Sect and Stormwind Sect have teamed up, they will rule over everyone in the hidden realm. There’s no guarantee that Wrey will listen to you even if you speak to him in person.”

Matthew had deliberately said that to spite Great Diviner. “Hmph! Wrey might look down on everyone else, but there’s no way he’d dare look down on me! Why do you insist on helping Jared, – though? Does he have some kind of secret or something?”

Great Diviner had come by himself because he wanted to know if Jared had some kind of secret that no one else knew about. He had tried to find out about Jared’s secret through the use of his divination art, but it was to no avail. That was why Jared had piqued his curiosity.

“If I am not mistaken, you must have tried your divination art on Mr. Chance, right, Master Diviner? Did it not work on him?” Matthew asked. Great Diviner nodded. “That’s right. This is the first time I have encountered something like this.”

“I’ll be honest with you here, Master Diviner. It is true that Mr. Chance has a big secret. I once tried to use my divination art on him as well. Not only was I unable to find anything, but it also nearly cost me my life,” Matthew whispered. Great Diviner’s curiosity levels skyrocketed when he heard that, which was exactly what Matthew wanted.

“It’s ridiculous how he was able to control that many demon beasts all by himself! When Jared gets back, I will use my divination art directly on him! We’ll see what secret this guy is holding!” Great Diviner exclaimed excitedly.

Meanwhile, Jared had just returned to the cave. His eyes were instantly filled with murderous intent when he saw the disciples from Divination Sect standing outside the cave.

Realizing that Jared was about to attack them, Archer quickly ran up to him and said, “Welcome back, Mr. Chance! These men are from Divination Sect. Their master, Great Diviner, is waiting for you inside the cave!”

“They didn’t attack you guys or anything, did they?” Jared asked, Archer shook his head. “No. Just so you know, Master Diviner has a huge weakness. He really loves being complimented, so we used that to talk him out of attacking us. Master is currently doing the exact same thing to him inside the cave.”

Jared burst out laughing when he heard that. Hahaha! How amusing! This is going to be a piece of cake! The moment he entered, he saw Great Diviner sitting inside the cave.

“Mr. Chance, this is Master Diviner, the sect leader of Divination Sect,” Matthew introduced. Jared simply nodded in response and sat down at the side.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2354-Great Diviner sized Jared up, hoping to unravel the mysteries that revolved around him. However, he failed to glean any insight from Jared’s demeanor.

“Mr. Chance, Master Diviner possesses the ability to unveil the past and the future. He wishes to find out who you truly are...” Matthew said while looking in Jared’s direction. “Great. I wish to know who I truly am too!” Jared responded with a faint smile.

He had long yearned to uncover the enigma of his father’s identity, and if this purported Great Diviner could provide any answers, it would be truly remarkable. Yet, from the looks of it, Jared did not seem to have faith in him.

Even the formidable blood demon himself turned pale and fell into stunned silence upon discovering my true identity. I highly doubt this so-called Great Diviner can unravel anything of significance!

“Master Diviner, Mr. Chance has graciously given you the consent to proceed,” Matthew said, shifting his gaze to Great Diviner. Matthew was genuinely curious about Jared’s identity. When the Generation Stone exploded, all Matthew could discern was that Jared was no ordinary individual, but he remained clueless. about his true identity.

“Very well.” Great Diviner nodded, then retrieved three copper coins. Muttering an incantation under his breath, Great Diviner tossed the three coins into the air, and they instantly emitted a dazzling golden light.

The three coins floated above Jared’s head, arranging themselves in a pyramid formation and emitting a luminous glow that enveloped him. Jared remained seated calmly, a faint smile gracing his lips.

Great Diviner closed his eyes, his fingers moving swiftly as he murmured unintelligible words. Soon, the three coins began to tremble, and Great Diviner’s expression changed. Perspiration dotted Great Diviner’s forehead, and his body started shaking.

Boom! Suddenly, there was an explosion. The three copper coins on Jared’s exploded into powder. Great Diviner spewed a mouthful of blood, and his aura became extremely weak.

With wide eyes, he looked at Jared in terror and slowly fell to his knees. Matthew, observing Great Diviner’s distressed state, was taken aback. “Master Diviner, are you able to discern Jared’s identity?”

Great Diviner shook his head. “I was forbidden from delving into Jared’s identity. I only took a little peek, and the backlash was so severe that it nearly claimed my life... I’m sorry for my disrespect, Mr. Chance. Please forgive me,” he -humbly begged for forgiveness, still kneeling before Jared.

Matthew was equally astonished. Thankfully, he had only used the Generation Stone to investigate Jared’s identity. He might have put his own life in jeopardy had he done it directly.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2355-Not long after Jared and his group left, Wrey and his followers arrived at the scene. Accompanying Wrey was a disciple from Divination Sect.

The disciple, who had once been a loyal follower of Great Diviner, was the one who revealed the whereabouts of Great Diviner to Wrey and his group. Upon learning that their master had chosen to align with Jared, the disciple and a few others decided to betray Great Diviner and side with Wrey. “There’s no one in the cave anymore, Mr. Lindt,” reported a disciple from Flying Star Sect after taking a look inside..

“D*mn it! Did they find out we were coming?” Wrey entered the cave to investigate and discovered that Jared and his group had just left. “They must have left not long ago. Chase after them! How f*cking dare he betray us?” Wrey waved his hand, and his followers set off in pursuit of Jared and his companions.

Jared and his group still had no idea their whereabouts had been exposed. They continued to move swiftly, following the locations marked on the treasure map.

“Where are we going, Mr. Chance?” Skyler asked curiously. Jared remained silent about their destination and the tasks ahead, as he was focused on leading them on the journey.

“Skyler, let’s not inquire too much. We must simply obey whatever Mr. Chance says,” Matthew reprimanded her. Skyler lowered her head and stuck her tongue out. Jared smiled and said, “It’s all right. I made a promise to someone to take them to a specific – location, so that’s where we’re going.”

Jared did not mention anything about the treasure map, and the others did not press for details either. The group had unwavering trust in Jared as they followed his lead wholeheartedly.

After a full day of traveling, as the sky darkened, Jared led the group to find a place to rest. Just as they settled down for a moment of respite, a disciple from Divination Sect hurriedly. approached Great Diviner and said, “Master, Chandler is missing.”

“Missing? Where did he go?” Great Diviner asked. “Chandler said he had a stomachache and went to relieve himself, but he never returned after that,” the Divination Sect disciple replied.

“What?” Great Diviner exclaimed. “D*mn it. Why didn’t you tell me earlier?” “I thought Chandler was walking in front the whole time...” the disciple explained, his voice trembling with fear.

“Master Diviner, maybe your disciple has fallen behind and is trying to catch up with us. Should we send someone to look for him?” Matthew suggested.

Great Diviner remained silent. He flicked a coin into the air, and it glimmered as it hung in mid- air. Just as the shimmering light flickered into existence, another set of lights appeared in the near distance. Read A Man Like None Other Chapter 2356

Even if Great Diviner stayed back with Divination Sect, they would never be a match for Wrey and his men. The gap in strength was just too huge.

The moment Jared finished, he snapped off a random branch and began drawing all sorts of signs on the ground. As the signs began to glow, it became obvious that Jared was carving arcane arrays.

The sight of how easily Jared did so gave Great – Diviner a shock. He didn’t expect Jared to be so skilled in casting arcane arrays. Once the arcane array had been set up, Jared left quickly together with everyone else.

Soon, Wrey and his men arrived and saw traces of a group resting there. “There’s no escape for them.” Wrey smirked, then led his men in hot pursuit.

No sooner had they made their move than the ground suddenly shook. As if the trees around them had come alive, they began to spin around Wrey’s group, preventing them from leaving. “Hmph, a lousy arcane array like this isn’t going to stop us. This is nothing but a joke.”

Wrey unleashed a tidal wave of martial energy with a wave of his hand, razing everything in front of him to the ground. The arcane array was quickly dispelled as the boulders and trees blocking their way were turned to dust.

Nonetheless, Jared did not expect his arcane array to trap Wrey and his men. All he hoped to do was buy some time for their escape. After traveling through the night, Jared led.

Matthew and the others to the place marked on -the treasure map. Greeted by the sight of a bottomless ravine, Jared couldn't help but furrow his brows, for he could clearly sense a dangerous aura emitted from within it.

The ravine stretched for miles and one couldn't see the end. Moreover, it was so dark that it looks exactly like a tunnel to hell. The stone walls on both sides of the ravine were unbelievably smooth and didn't seem to have been formed naturally. In fact, it looked as if someone had cut it in half with a sword.

"Mr. Chance, who on earth is this person? Why am I getting this creepy feeling?" Skyler asked Jared. "I have no idea." Jared was clueless as to what kind of place this was. The only thing he remembered was that this place was marked on the map.

All of a sudden, a light flashed right in front of Jared, heralding the gradual appearance of a transparent skull floating in mid-air. The sight of it gave everyone a fright and caused them to be on their toes. "Hahaha, you're finally here. This is the place. This is the place..."

-The skull suddenly spoke. "Who is that, Mr. Chance?" Matthew asked as he stared at the transparent skull. Jared shook his head. "Beats me..."

Both Matthew and Great Diviner were rendered speechless. It turns out that Jared brought us here without knowing who we were looking for. Wouldn't we be in trouble if this was a trap?

As if it could read their minds, the skull said with a smile, "The abyss is filled with countless treasures. Now, let's see if you have the guts to go down there."

The moment it finished, the skull flew into the abyss and quickly disappeared into the darkness. Jared and Matthew simply stared at each other and had no idea what to do.

Even though Jared could feel the dangerous. aura down below, he also knew that with great risks come great rewards. Now, it was a matter of whether they had the courage to do it. As the saying goes, fortune favors the bold.

“Master Diviner, Mr. Campbell, what do we do?”

Jared was cognizant that the abyss was filled with countless dangers and they could easily lose their lives in it. He wanted to get Great Diviner’s and Matthew’s opinions on the matter.

“Mr. Chance, we’ll go with whatever you decide. If you want to enter, we’ll not hesitate to follow you.” “That’s right, Mr. Chance. We’ll do whatever you say.” Matthew and Great Diviner left the decision in Jared’s hands.

Jared walked to the edge of the abyss and looked down, only to be greeted by nothing but darkness. Despite that, the sinister aura still sent a chill down their spines. A golden light flashed in front of Jared’s.

forehead as he attempted to explore the abyss below with his spiritual sense. Unfortunately, it was instantly dispelled the moment it entered, preventing Jared from discovering anything. “Mr. Chance, Wrey and his men are catching up,” Great Diviner whispered after walking up to Jared’s side.

Jared turned around to take a look before replying to Great Diviner, “Master Diviner, do you. have any runestones or jade pendants on you?” “What do you need them for, Mr. Chance?” Great Diviner asked quizzically.

“The negative energy in the abyss is extremely strong, and I’m worried that our men might not be able to withstand it. I want to create something that will help protect them.”

“I have some copper coins, Mr. Chance. Will they do?” Great Diviner brought out a handful of copper coins as he spoke.

“Yes!” Jared threw the coins a glance before taking them in his hand. He then proceeded to seal the coins one by one with the Power of Dragons. When he was done, he distributed the coins to everyone.

“Keep the coins on you. If you don’t, your body might not be able to withstand the corrosion caused by the negative energy,” Jared reminded everyone.

As they took the coins, they were surprised to feel the warmth from the supposedly cold metal coin. It felt like a miniature stove that warmed their hands as they held it.

“Be careful, everyone. We don’t know what dangers lie in the abyss, so don’t lose your way down there. Follow me closely. Ideally, we should get a rope to tie all of us together. I’m worried we might not be able to find each other in the event any of us is separated from the group,” Jared said.

The moment he finished, he turned around and jumped into the abyss. Everyone followed him. with no one showing any fear. As his body continued to fall, Jared could hear the eerie wind echoing in his ears.

After an indeterminate amount of time, he knew he had reached the bottom when his feet finally touched the ground. Just as Jared ignited a spiritual fire on his palm to illuminate their dark surroundings, its flame danced momentarily before going out.

Jared tried a few more times but to no avail. The spiritual fire just won’t light up in here! “This place is filled with negative energy. There’s no way you can get the spiritual fire to ignite.”

No sooner had the old voice sounded than the surroundings suddenly brightened up. Jared could see the crystal skull illuminating the darkness with a blistering white light. His surroundings were now as clear as day.

“I thought you left.” Jared was surprised. Why is it still here? I clearly saw it fall into the abyss just now. “I was waiting to see if you had the guts to jump down here,” the skull continued in a raspy voice.

Soon, Great Diviner, Matthew, and the others. landed one by one. Even though the abyss was really deep, everyone arrived unscathed. Since they were Martial Arts God warriors, jumping down from such heights wasn’t a problem for them.

Nonetheless, many of them could not withstand the thick negative energy. Their bodies were trembling uncontrollably. If not for the copper coins Jared had given them, they would have turned into rotting corpses.

Meanwhile, Matthew and the others were puzzled to see that the crystal skull was still around. It was bathing the area with a bright white light.

“Now that you’re here, your fate will determine the outcome of your journey. Shining a light on the path ahead is all I can do. The rest is up to you,” the skull drawled.

“That’s more than enough. We will handle the rest ourselves.” Jared then turned to Matthew and the others. “Mr. Campbell, the dangerous. aura is especially intense down here. All of you have to be on your toes and don’t wander off from the group.”

Matthew nodded in response before the group kicked off their journey. After walking for a long time, they couldn’t see any other routes other than the straight tunnel in front of them that seem to descend deeper underground.

At that moment, Jared and his entourage had no idea how deep underground they were. All they could feel was the negative energy growing more intense. Despite holding onto the copper coin Jared had made earlier, many in the group had begun to succumb to the corrosive effects of the negative energy.

Jared took back the copper coins and carved charms onto them with the Power of Dragons. Everyone felt invigorated when the copper coins were returned to them, and Great Diviner was further awed by the power Jared had demonstrated.

“Mr. Chance, we have lost track of how long we have traveled and how far we have walked, yet there doesn’t seem to be anything here, let alone anything dangerous. I’m just wondering how much longer we should keep this up,” Great Diviner asked Jared.

It was a just matter of time before everyone was driven crazy by the pressures of the dark and sinister environment. “Let’s just walk a little bit more before we decide.” Jared, too, had no idea how long more. they had to go on before encountering something.

Right when Jared had spoken, the supposedly bright skull dimmed abruptly. "What's wrong?" The sudden darkness gave everyone a fright. Unlike the others, Jared was a sea of calm. "On your toes, everyone."

A breeze filled with negative energy blew past them. It was quickly followed by a chaotic screech as if a flock of birds was flying toward them.

Due to the darkness, all they could feel was the turbulent flow of aura around them. It felt as if the negative energy in their surroundings had come alive.

Thereafter countless eagles with sharp beaks flew out from the thick fog of negative energy and began attacking Jared's group. Without a moment's hesitation, Jared activated Golem Body, covering himself with thick golden.

scales that prevented the eagles from hurting him.

However, the rest weren't so lucky. Even though they defended themselves with all their might, the powerful wind had essentially transformed into a wall made of air.

Due to the eagles' overwhelming numbers, their group was bitten incessantly by the swarm. One bite might not be enough to kill, but the rapid attacks by the eagles caused weaker members of Divination Sect to cry out in agony while being covered in blood.

"They're such annoying beasts!"

As Matthew and Great Diviner unleashed their attacks, the eagles fell to the ground like flies. Unfortunately, their efforts seemed futile against the overwhelming swarm.

Meanwhile, Jared was swinging Dragonslayer Sword in every direction he could. Faced with the eagles' small size but huge numbers, everyone was helpless against them..

As the painful cries grew louder, an increasing amount of Divination Sect disciples collapsed onto the ground. The deteriorating situation caused Jared to sheath Dragonslayer Sword as the phoenix mark on his forehead began to glow. Thereafter, rays of blistering golden light gradually ascended into the air and transformed into a giant phoenix that was flapping its wings.

Jared knew that the phoenix was the king of demon beasts. Its appearance would strike fear into the demon beasts and force them into submission.

However, when the phoenix was soaring above everyone's heads and illuminating the entire area, they realized the eagles attacking them were nowhere to be seen, and so were the supposed corpses of dead eagles.

There was nothing in their surroundings other than the disciples of Divination Sect who were lying on the ground in their own blood, a fact that proved that the attack was real.

"W-What's going on?" Matthew and Great Diviner were brimming with confusion. Furrowing his brows tightly, Jared, too, had no idea what was happening.

Did my summoning of the phoenix scare the eagles away? Even then, it would be impossible for them to instantaneously disappear without a trace.

Jared had wanted to ask the old man, but when he looked at the crystal skull, it had fallen onto the ground. With its light no longer shining, it looked as if it had somehow lost its power. Even after picking the skull up, Jared just couldn't get it to speak again. Left without a choice, Jared kept the skull and deliberated on the events that had unfolded.

"What we just encountered probably aren't real demon beasts. Instead, they are demon beasts formed from negative energy who then reverted to their original form. The reason we didn't notice it before was because it was floating everywhere around us," Jared said after analyzing the situation.

This is the only logical explanation. Otherwise, where would the entire swarm of eagles have gone? Also, what about their corpses? "Mr. Chance's analysis makes sense. Demon beasts can't live in such conditions."

Matthew nodded to indicate his agreement with Jared's perspective. Meanwhile, the sight of his disciples wailing on the ground broke Great Diviner's heart. What pained him further was that he had no way of giving them any medical treatment.

“My disciples, I hope you won’t blame me for giving you a quick death to end your suffering.” Great Diviner said. He planned to kill those who were grievously injured.

Considering their dangerous location, he knew that it wasn’t feasible to bring the heavily injured along with them, and leaving them behind was even crueler.

However, right before Great Diviner struck, Jared came forward to stop him. “Mr. Chance, look at the pain they’re in. I just want to end their suffering,” Great Diviner lamented.

“Master Diviner, they may be badly injured, but their injuries are not fatal. We can easily treat them still! Is anyone carrying any medicinal herbs? Give them to me.” Great Diviner gave Jared a look of surprise. “Mr. Chance, do you know how to cure the sick? Are you an alchemist too?”

“Master Diviner, Mr. Chance is not just any alchemist but a high-ranking alchemy master. Even Isaac Bachman of the Alchemical Sect pales in comparison to him!” Matthew revealed to Great Diviner.

Shocked by the revelation, Great Diviner couldn’t help but give Jared another look. Despite Jared’s young age, he had never ceased to surprise Great Diviner.

Soon, everyone managed to bring out so many herbs that they formed a pile. It wasn’t difficult to gather them as secret realms were filled with herbs. With no time to waste, Jared retrieved the Divine Cauldron from his Storage Ring and began mixing the herbs together.

Treating serious incised wounds was a walk in the park for Jared. Within a short time, he managed to produce an ointment that Great Diviner applied on the wounds of his disciples.

The very next moment, the wounds began to heal right in front of Great Diviner’s eyes. It was a sight that blew his mind. “Now that we have some time, let me teach you an incantation that prevents the negative energy from mentally crushing all of you.”

Jared went on to teach them the calming incantation. As he was uncertain about the dangers that awaited them ahead, he felt it necessary to teach them the incantation in the event the copper coins were not enough to protect their mental state.

While chanting the calming incantation, Great Diviner stood frozen on the spot with his mouth agape, for only he knew how powerful the incantation was and Jared had just readily taught it to everyone.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2360

While Jared and the others were taking a break, Wrey and his party arrived at the location above the abyss. Looking at the bottomless chasm, Wrey grimaced.

“Did you say that Jared and the others are here?” Wrey asked Great Diviner’s eldest disciple, Chandler. “Mr. Lindt, my calculations indicate they should be here. If they’re not around, they must’ve gone down there,” Chandler replied.

Hugh peered into the abyss and unleashed a trace of spiritual sense into it, only to find his spiritual sense cut off instantly. He was unable to probe the situation within the chasm at all.

Then, he picked up a stone and threw it into the chasm, but there was no sound of the rock hitting the bottom of the pit. “This abyss is filled with negative energy, and it’s bottomless. Jared and his party wouldn’t be so foolish as to jump in, right?” Hugh was unconvinced.

“I think so too. They wouldn’t jump into such a deep, unpredictable chasm to evade us. Besides, I feel an intense, dangerous aura within this abyss.” Wrey also didn’t believe Jared and his group would jump in.

Hearing that, Chandler hastily uttered, “Mr. Lindt, Jared and his party must be here. Besides, there’s no place to hide in this area, and since they’re nowhere to be seen, they must’ve jumped into the abyss. I can assure you that!”

Chandler was worried that Wrey and the others wouldn’t trust him. In that case, he would lose his value. If that happened, Chandler knew full well what consequences he would face.

“Relax. I have faith in your divination skills. Since you’re Great Diviner’s eldest disciple, you must’ve mastered his teachings.” Wrey stepped forward and patted Chandler's shoulder. Chandler secretly let out a sigh of relief after hearing that. However, before he could lower his guard, Wrey pushed him into the abyss.

"Since you said they jumped down, why don't you go down and take a look for me?" Wrey sneered while gazing at Chandler's falling figure.

"Ahh!" Chandler shrieked hysterically with a terrified expression spread across his countenance. At that moment, Jared and the others had finished resting. The injured disciples of Divination Sect had also recovered. They were about to set off again when they heard a series of agonized screams coming from atop them.

Immediately afterward, a person hit the ground in front of them. Matthew and Great Diviner immediately leaped forward and apprehended the newcomer.

After Chandler landed, he rejoiced in his survival when he saw two figures charging at him. When he saw the person approaching him, he instantaneously broke out in a cold sweat and knelt on the floor with a thud.

"Master! Master!" Chandler groveled before Great Diviner.

Great Diviner was enraged when he saw Chandler. "You traitor! How dare you address me as your master. I will eliminate a dishonorable man like you from Divination Sect today!" With that, he thrust his palm at Chandler.

However, Jared strode forward and grasped Great Diviner's wrist. "Master Diviner, let's clarify matters with him first." Hearing that, Great Diviner questioned Chandler frostily, "Tell me, you b*stard, where are Wrey and the others? Did they jump down too?"

"No. They didn't dare to jump down, so they pushed me down to scout the area. Master, I was wrong, I realize I made a mistake now. Please forgive me this time," Chandler desperately begged for mercy.

"We need to leave at once. If those guys jump down, it'll be troublesome if we encounter them." Jared wasn't inclined to confront Wrey and his party for the time being.

He wanted to devote all his energy to exploring the abyss, figuring there might be an opportunity within it. "All right. Let's go." After saying that, Great Diviner struck Chandler's head without hesitation, killing him instantly. No one spared Chandler a second glance and hurriedly left the scene.

help but frown. "D*mn it! That b*stard has betrayed me." He then turned to Jared. "Mr. Chance, Wrey and his men are on their way. My eldest disciple has betrayed me and is leading them here."

Jared, too, knitted his brows upon hearing that. He had thought they had successfully eluded their pursuers, but it appeared that those men were still relentless in their pursuit.

"What should we do now?" Matthew asked, directing his gaze at Jared. Although Matthew had recovered and Great Diviner, along with his disciples from Divination Sect, stood by their side, Jared was still concerned. Dealing with the other sects, including Scorching Heaven Sect, would prove to be a formidable challenge for their small group.

Unless Jared summoned and unleashed the beasts once again, they would find it difficult to hold their ground against the opposing sects. After a brief moment of contemplation, he said, "We'll press on through the night. We're nearing the location I'm searching for."

"Mr. Chance, you and the rest should proceed ahead. I'll stay behind to deal with this traitor," Great Diviner said to Jared. "We should continue the journey together. It'll serve no purpose for you to stay behind," Jared replied.

It like a rat facing a hunting cat. "You managed to find your way here. How about the others?" asked Jared while looking at Great Diviner.

"They're completely unaware. I didn't divulge anything to them. I can no longer tolerate those individuals who have forsaken their principles to collaborate with Demonic Cultivators. That's why I covertly left, bringing my own trusted comrades. Henceforth, I pledge my unwavering loyalty to you, Mr. Chance. If anyone were to show you disrespect, I'd be the first to teach them a lesson." Great Diviner quickly distanced himself from Wrey and the others.

"If that's the case, we should stay here for a couple more days until Mr. Campbell has recovered, Jared said flatly.

"I'll follow your arrangements, Mr. Chance." Great Diviner nodded. With Great Diviner on board, Jared had fewer concerns. Great Diviner and his team took care of herb gathering and daily necessities, lightening Jared's load significantly.

This allowed Jared to have more time for cultivation, and with abundant resources, his strength improved rapidly. After approximately a week, when Matthew's body had fully healed, Jared took the lead and guided the group to resume their journey.

During this time, the elderly man residing within Jared's body had been nagging him incessantly day after day, growing more and more impatient with each passing moment. Jared, too, was running out of patience..
