A Man Like None Other Chapter 2805-Tyrone wanted to use the rules to restrain Jared since he knew he couldn't win against him and had no intention of challenging him.

"I didn't know that cultivators with lower cultivation levels cannot compete in arenas set for higher cultivation levels. What kind of rule is that?" Jared asked.

"The count of Jipsdale did set cultivation level rules for every arena to prevent high-level cultivators from bullying lower-level ones. However, it was never stated that cultivators with lower cultivation levels can't challenge those with higher cultivation levels," Ghaylen explained loudly.

Upon hearing Ghaylen's words, everyone began to discuss.

"True. I've never heard of it before, but I've also never seen anyone foolish enough to challenge higher-level cultivators in the higher-level arena!"

"We've got one right here. He's just a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm. Yet, he dares to challenge a cultivator at Fifth Level Body Fusion Realm. Isn't he just asking for trouble?"

"I really don't get it. Is this guy out of his mind?"

Tyrone turned to the guards below the arena. "Excuse me. This guy is just a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm. Isn't it against the rules for him to challenge me here?"

These guards not only ensured the safety of the arena but also had the authority to enforce rules. If someone violated the rules, they wouldn't hesitate to take action.

For example, when Jerison tried to climb onto the arena to continue fighting Jared after falling out, they quickly stopped him.

"Um..."

The guards were somewhat baffled. They had established the tiered system to prevent high-level cultivators from picking on lower-level ones.

Such a situation where a lower-level cultivator challenged a higher-level one had never happened before, so they had no idea whether it was against the rules or not.

As the guards struggled to respond, a middle-aged man in a blue silk robe walked over.

Seeing him, the guards immediately greeted, "Mr. Sparrow..."

Hester Sparrow nodded and then turned his gaze to the stage. He said to Tyrone, "Mr. Stone, although the arena has tier restrictions, they're meant to prevent higher-level cultivators from bullying lower-level ones. As for the situation today, it doesn't violate any rules. You may proceed with the challenge."

After speaking, Hester continued to observe Jared, curious about why a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm would dare challenge Tyrone, a cultivator at Fifth Level Body Fusion Realm.

"Did you hear that? I'm not breaking any rules. We can have our match now," Jared said with a cold smile.

Tyrone looked at Jared, his face red with anger. He let out a bitter laugh and answered, "Jared, as a cultivator at Fifth Level Body Fusion Realm, I won't compete with you. Even if I won, it would look like I'm bullying you. I admit defeat. Consider this your win. But remember, Stellaris Sect won't let you off. And you have to share those three heavenly thunder fruits you picked with me."

The crowd was in an uproar when they heard that. Everyone looked at Jared in disbelief, not because Tyrone admitted defeat but because Jared actually had three heavenly thunder fruits! They were utterly shocked.

Heavenly thunder fruits belonged to Thunderhawk, who treasured these fruits very much. Due to the heavenly thunder tree's formidable thunder and lightning defenses, the fruits were not something that could be easily acquired.

Even Hester's expression changed as he stared at Jared. He was clearly astonished.

Sensing the unusual gazes from everyone, Jared understood that Tyrone had deliberately mentioned the fruits to make him the center of attention.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2806-One's talent invariably stirs up envy in others. It was widely known that Jared possessed heavenly thunder fruits now, and this inevitably marked him as a target.

"Since you've admitted defeat, you better leave immediately. If I ever lay eyes on you again, I'll kill you!" Jared spat before collecting his winnings and departing.

He needed to leave this place as soon as possible. If he were to stay any longer, there was a chance that someone might act recklessly, and that would be troublesome.

Upon seeing that, Viola and Ghaylen followed Jared and left hurriedly.

Nevertheless, despite Jared's departure, a considerable number of individuals continued to follow him closely, likely motivated by a curiosity to discover his destination.

Observing Jared's departure with a mixture of unease and anticipation, Tyrone could not help but reveal a satisfied smirk. His underlying intention was to spread the word that Jared was in possession of the coveted heavenly thunder fruit.

After Jared and his group departed, Tyrone, too, wanted to leave with the elderly woman. However, Hester stopped him from leaving.

"Mr. Stone, please stay," Hester said.

"What is it, Mr. Sparrow?"

"Mr. Stone, is it true what you said about that young man named Jared? Does he really have three heavenly thunder fruits?"

Tyrone nodded in response. "Of course! Why would I lie to you?"

"He's only at Second Level Body Fusion Realm. How could he possibly pluck the fruits? He probably couldn't even enter Hawk King Cave." Hester expressed his disbelief. “And what happened to you? Why do you look so disheveled?”

Tyrone hesitated to speak. After all, Jared had tricked him, and he was embarrassed to talk about it.

Upon noticing his hesitation, Hester fished out a spiritual coin from his pocket and tossed it to Tyrone. “Mr. Stone, regardless of the difficulties you’ve encountered, since you’re in Jipsdale, we should accord you respect. Make yourself comfortable and rest here. You needn’t concern yourself with expenses. Just mention my name and all your needs will be attended to.”

“Thank you, Mr. Sparrow!” Tyrone promptly expressed gratitude and then briefly recounted how Jared had managed to harvest the three heavenly thunder fruits.

However, he only gave a concise version, leaving out the details of losing three wyverns and being tricked by Jared.

“He’s merely at Second Level Body Fusion Realm, yet boasts such remarkable physical strength. Isn’t he afraid of the heavenly thunder from the heavenly thunder tree?” Hester was struck dumb. “I suppose Thunderhawk was also careless. How could he not have assigned more warriors to safeguard the heavenly thunder tree when he departed from Hawk King Cave?”

“Perhaps even Thunderhawk didn’t anticipate that someone could easily withstand the onslaught of the heavenly thunder tree,” Tyrone deduced.

“I wonder how Thunderhawk will feel when he discovers his heavenly thunder fruits are missing,” Hester said with a smirk. “Thanks for the information, Mr. Stone. See you.”

Following Hester’s departure, Tyrone caught up with the elderly woman to locate a spot for rest.

Meanwhile, Jared and his group returned to their residence. They tried to persuade those who tagged along to leave but to no avail.

“Mr. Chance, you’re going to be the talk of the town soon. I suggest you keep a lower profile from now on,” Yuven said to Jared.

Ghaylen nodded in agreement. "That's right. We should consider ourselves lucky since we're in Jipsdale, and no one dares to take action against us here. If it were anywhere else, they would have done everything they could to get their hands on the heavenly thunder fruits."

"Looks like this place won't stay peaceful anymore in the future," Viola said with a hint of frustration.

It would create an inconvenience for them, particularly for Viola and Jared, if those individuals continued to stay outside the courtyard. If anyone were to overhear them having sex at night, it would be embarrassing.

"Ignore those people. We'll carry on as planned, and since we're here, they won't dare to make a move," Jared said nonchalantly.

"I'm worried that Thunderhawk won't take it lightly if he learns that you've taken his heavenly thunder fruits. At present, my strength is almost non-existent. Even with our combined abilities, we're no match for him." Yuven expressed his concerns.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2807-"Don't worry. Even if Thunderhawk gets wind of this, he won't dare to take action within Jipsdale. As long as we stay within these bounds, we'll be safe." Jared flashed a faint smile. "I'll find a way to restore your strength and cure you of the poison in your body here."

"If I manage to regain my strength, I'm sure we stand a chance to defend ourselves against Thunderhawk," Yuven said.

"All right, let's get some rest. Things will work out on their own, so let's not overthink," Jared reassured the group, encouraging them to rest.

Jared and the others remained indoors for the rest of the day, and eventually, the crowd that had gathered outside dispersed.

At night, Viola, once again, approached Jared.

Knowing her desires, Jared turned around and pinned her down.

Just as they were tangled up in the bed, with Viola in seventh heaven, Jared suddenly stopped.

“What’s wrong?” Viola asked.

“Someone’s outside,” Jared said, his sharp senses allowing him to notice a presence lurking in the courtyard.

Viola’s face flushed a deep shade of crimson. She was embarrassed by the possibility that if someone were outside, they might have overheard the sounds.

Jared got up, put on his clothes, and headed directly toward the door.

Viola wanted to follow, but Jared stopped her. Since he had no idea who might be outside, he did not want her to rush out and potentially put them in a vulnerable position.

After leaving the room, Jared quickly scanned the courtyard before heading out and into a nearby alley.

“Step forward. Sneaking into someone else’s house at this hour isn’t the behavior of a gentleman,” Jared uttered as he stepped into the alley, quickly turning to face the seemingly empty space.

Suddenly, a burst of laughter shattered the silence. “I originally came for the heavenly thunder fruits, but I was pleasantly surprised to stumble upon such an intriguing spectacle.”

A figure gradually materialized out of thin air.

Dressed in black attire, the man seemed to be in his fifties. He emitted an aura that enveloped his surroundings. It was not difficult to tell that he was at Fifth Level Body Fusion Realm.

His actions seemed to indicate that he aimed to seal off the alley, effectively obstructing any potential escape routes for Jared.

“So what if you heard it? You can’t even see it. I bet it must have annoyed you,” Jared sneered.

The man snorted. “Why would I be annoyed? I’ve had my share of women.” “At first, I wasn’t sure how to get my hands on you, but now you’ve conveniently appeared in this remote place. I guess you’re giving me an opportunity to take you down, huh?” The man stared at Jared.

“You want to steal my heavenly thunder fruits?” Jared asked.

“That’s right. However, I can spare your life if you’re willing to surrender them. We can accomplish this without resorting to violence. Otherwise, don’t accuse me of adopting a more ruthless approach. I’ll end your life and dissolve your body with Erosion Powder. I’ll erase your existence entirely from the face of the Earth.”

Jared paid little heed to the man’s threats. Instead, he cast a scrutinizing glance at him. “You’re an alchemist?”

Jared’s question clearly caught the man off guard, and he responded with a perplexed expression, “You know me?”

“I don’t know you. I was just speculating. So you’re indeed an alchemist.” Jared was surprised by the man’s unexpected reaction to his speculative statement.

The man’s face contorted into a grimace when he realized Jared had outwitted him. “Cut the witty remarks, young man. Now hand over the heavenly thunder fruits!”

“And if I don’t? Would you dare lay a finger on me? Bear in mind we’re in Jipsdale, where physical confrontations are prohibited within the city. You wouldn’t risk breaking the city’s regulations, would you?” Jared spoke without a hint of fear.

“You’re too naive, young man. Do you think the regulations of Jipsdale can shield you and no one will dare to cause you harm? I can end your life here and destroy your body to erase all evidence of my involvement. No one will be aware of what happened,” the man sneered.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2808-“Well, bring it on, then. I’m not going to give you the heavenly thunder fruits,” Jared said flatly.

Seeing that Jared refused to surrender the heavenly thunder fruits, the man was enraged. He pulled out a formation plate and tossed it into the air with all his might. The formation plate exploded midair, enveloping Jared and him in a white curtain.

“This is a forbidden arcane array, kid! I’ve locked down this space so no one outside can see what’s happening here, and you can’t escape! I’m going all in for these three heavenly thunder fruits!” The man smirked, his aura exploding from his body.

Clearly, the man had bought the formation plate at a high price. After all, as an alchemist, there was no way he could have carved his own formation plate.

The man was speaking the truth by immediately unleashing the formation plate. He was prepared to go all in.

“I didn’t want to fight you, but since you refuse to relent, don’t blame me for what happens next.” Jared shook his head.

“You’re just a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm, punk! How dare you utter such arrogant words! It seems you’ll remain ignorant of my might unless I show you some pain!” Upon ending his sentence, the man leaped into the air and sent his fist flying toward Jared.

The man was extremely powerful as his punch immediately tore the void apart, creating loud booms.

Thanks to the arcane array, he needed not to worry about exposing himself.

The man was extremely fast as he arrived before Jared in the blink of an eye.

Jared quietly watched the man land before him. Casually, he raised his palm and caught the man’s fierce punch.

“H-How…” The man was astonished because, realistically, a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm shouldn’t be able to intercept his attack easily.

Furthermore, he was taken aback by Jared’s energy.

“Surprised, aren’t you? Well, there’s more to come,” Jared sneered.

Following that, the Power of Dragons burst out of his body. That immense power swiftly blasted the man away.

“W-What is this power? How can it be so terrifying?” Disbelief was written all over the man’s face as he fell from the air.

Instead of answering the question, Jared arrived in front of the man in a flash.

The man lost his composure and hastily raised his arms to shield himself from Jared's assault.

Unfortunately, he couldn't.

Jared's punches rained down on him like a hailstorm.

Jared threw hundreds of punches, pushing the man backward.

The forbidden arcane array even shattered as Jared continued attacking violently.

The man leaned against the wall fearfully and spat out mouthfuls of blood.

He had never imagined a cultivator at Fifth Level Body Fusion Realm like him would be powerless against a cultivator at Second Level Body Fusion Realm.

If he had known of that outcome, he wouldn't have tried to seize Jared's heavenly thunder fruits.

Looking at Jared's cold eyes, the man trembled in fear and pleaded, "Please, spare me. You and I are alchemists and have a close relationship with Emerald Cauldron Sect."

The man was aware that Jared was from Emerald Cauldron Sect. After all, Ghaylen had been following Jared around. Many people, especially the alchemists who attended the Alchemist Fair, knew Ghaylen.

"If I had been the one who was driven to a corner, would you have spared me because I was an alchemist from Emerald Cauldron Sect?" Jared asked.

At that moment, the man was at a loss for words because he definitely wouldn't have shown Jared mercy in that scenario.

Seeing that the man was staying silent, Jared conjured a flame in his right hand. "Since you were planning to melt me with Erosion Powder, I shall do the same to you with spiritual fire."

A Man Like None Other Chapter 2809-Just as Jared was about to strike, there was a sudden breeze. The spiritual fire in his hand was promptly extinguished.

Then, a figure descended from above. "You are forbidden from killing another person in Jipsdale, my good fellow. Otherwise, you'll be severely punished."

When the figure landed on the floor, Jared realized the person was someone he had met at the arena in the south earlier. It was Hester.

His presence instantly gave Jared a great deal of pressure.

Still, he argued calmly, "He struck first, Mr. Sparrow. Not only did he attempt to rob me, he tried to kill me! Am I wrong to protect myself? If I was the one who was defeated now, I would've lost my life."

Looking at Jared, Hester smiled. "Even if you're defeated by him, do you think he can kill you? Do you assume the laws established in Jipsdale are just for show? If someone can do whatever they please with a mere forbidden arcane array, Jipsdale would've been disgraced long ago."

Immediately, Jared understood something. He was watching us the whole time! I see what he means now. Even if I were defeated, I would've survived because he would've stepped in. He likely didn't interfere at first sight of trouble because he wished to observe my strength.

He broke into a cold sweat.

Even though he was here the whole time, I didn't detect him at all. I can't imagine how much more powerful he is compared to me! In that case, there's no doubt the count of Jipsdale is even more powerful than I previously assumed. Wait, doesn't that mean I'll be in grave danger if the count of Jipsdale is also interested in my heavenly thunder fruits? If I'm attacked by the count, I doubt there'll be anything I can do about it! In fact, I won't be able to escape Jipsdale! D*mn it. Now I'm regretting humiliating Tyrone and allowing him to reveal to others that I possess the fruits!

Upon spotting Hester, the man crawled toward him. "I was wrong, Mr. Sparrow. I was wrong..."

Hester glared at the man. "You're blatantly violating the rules. Since you look down on Jipsdale, don't join the Alchemist Fair. Bring your sect members out of Jipsdale right now and never return! If I find your men in Jipsdale, I won't show any mercy!"

Hester's words paralyzed the man, causing him to collapse on the ground. If the man couldn't attend the Alchemist Fair, the strength of his sect would reduce greatly. When that happened, many other alchemical sects would surpass his sect.

His greed had spurred him to violate the law.

Now, he had to reap what he sowed.

Wordlessly, the man stood up and vanished into an alley.

"Your strength is quite impressive, good fellow. Not to worry. No one can rob you while you're in Jipsdale. I can assure you that much." Hester smiled.

"Thank you very much, Mr. Sparrow!" Jared said.

"No need to thank me. I'm merely fulfilling my responsibility. I treat everyone who enters Jipsdale equally." After finishing his sentence, Hester disappeared.

It was then Jared understood why Jipsdale was so prosperous and that everyone could gamble. After all, no matter how badly one lost, their life would be protected here.

After Hester left, Jared stared at the dark street and walked out of the alley.

There was an icy look in his eyes.
