A Man Like None Other Chapter 3929

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3929-Sneaking A Peek Jared's gaze appeared vacant, as though under some form of control. He spoke slowly. "My name is Axel Chadwick. I've long admired Violet Flame Sect and wished to become one of its disciples. That's why I chose to serve under Mr.

Barclay, hoping to become an inner disciple of Violet Flame Sect." Jared lavished praise on Violet Flame Sect, which greatly delighted the old man.

Then, with a wave of his hand, the old man said, "That's enough..." Swiftly, the mist before Jared dissipated, revealing Carla and her companions once again in front of Jared. Jared noticed that the others were standing around in a daze as if the assessment was not yet complete.

"I once sneaked a peek at Carla bathing, and even dreamt about sleeping beside her at night." "I've killed people outside, been hunted myself, which is why I ended up joining Violet Flame Sect." Upon hearing the robotic-like words of the disciples from Violet Flame Sect, Jared was utterly taken aback.

Clearly, these people had their minds manipulated, spilling all their secrets.

Luckily, Jared had seen through it all long ago. This minor illusion array had no power over him. Otherwise, he probably would have spilt all sorts of secrets.

"I was quite taken with the new junior who just arrived. He's incredibly wealthy, and I have a thing for rich people." At that moment, the sound of Carla's voice was heard.

After hearing this, Jared was left speechless. Carla had just met him and was already dazzled by his affluent status.

Had Carla not been captivated, Jared might not have been able to hear her inner thoughts.

As the assessment came to a close, people gradually began to regain their senses. Observing this, Jared quickly pretended to still be under control.

He couldn't let anyone know that he had overheard all of these people's secrets.

Only after everyone else was fully awake did Jared feign to wake himself up.

"Axel, are you all right?" Upon noticing that Jared had awakened, Carla asked.

"I'm not entirely sure, but it seems I'm okay," Jared stated.

"Don't worry," Carla reassured. "As long as one's intentions are pure, and they haven't committed any wrongdoings, getting through the first hurdle is usually a breeze." As soon as Carla finished speaking, a sudden beam of light unexpectedly illuminated a cultivator.

Immediately after, the monk let out a horrific scream, and in an instant, he was nowhere to be seen.

Jared glanced over, recognizing him as the same guy who had peeped at Carla while she was bathing, even dreaming about sleeping with her at night.

Only this one person was eliminated.

"How did he get eliminated in the first round? What on earth did this guy do?" "Who knows, really? All I know is that he was always acting suspiciously, constantly making trips to the bathhouse every day." "Did he sneak peaks at people while they're bathing?" the other cultivators teasingly said.

After hearing this, Carla furrowed her brows, saying, "Everyone, just keep quiet.

No more nonsense." Jared simply chuckled, not uttering a word.

Because he knew, this guy was eliminated due to peeping on Carla while she was bathing.

Quickly, another gateway of light appeared. Everyone knew that in passing through this light would lead them to their second challenge.

"Axel, be extra careful behind!" Carla said to Jared.

"Follow me closely. I'll lead you. This test is all about your ability to withstand pressure, There's an m incredibly intense force here, and we need to reach the end before it overcomes us. Remember, the faster the better, so you can endure less pressure!"

"Okay, Carla." Jared nodded.

Carla spoke, immediately pulling up Jared's hand.

Clearly, she was trying to get close to Jared.

"Carla, if the pressure here is intense, the faster we go, the more pressure the faster we go, the more pressure we'll face. given one's own speed, coupled with that pressure, it would only make things even more difficult."

Jared didn't quite agree with Carla's point of view, so he retorted.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 3930-You Must Have Cheated "What's the deal with you? How dare you question Carla?" "Do you know, Carla was an assessment deacon. During the inner disciples' evaluation, she was actually among the top three." "You certainly don't understand. Even if you're rich, you can't question your senior at this time!" Upon seeing that Jared surprisingly disagreed with Carla's point of view, the others immediately started criticizing Jared.

After all, in their eyes, Carla was the most powerful and influential person among them.

Seeing the situation, Jared was at a loss for words and chose to remain silent.

However, Carla said, "All right, Axel does make some sense. Let's wait and see how things unfold." Everyone was taken aback to see that Carla, surprisingly, was not angry.

Instead, she was even speaking up for Jared.

It was known that Carla wasn't someone who was easily swayed. Had her fellow disciples questioned her under normal circumstances, Carla would have lost her temper long ago.

Yet today, she seemed like a completely different person.

Carla, holding onto Jared, stepped into the gateway of light.

As soon as they stepped in, the door of light behind them vanished instantly.

What followed was a surge of heat waves as if they were on a mountain engulfed in flames.

Thankfully, everyone had honed their fire-based techniques, which helped them withstand such intense heat.

Subsequently, everyone kept their eyes on the heatwave as they pressed forward.

At first, everything was fine. However, as they delved deeper, the heat waves grew increasingly intense and the pressure became more and more formidable.

Everyone began to struggle, with sweat beading on their foreheads, and their pace gradually slowing down.

Carla didn't have much of a reaction to this kind of intimidation.

Seeing the situation, Jared could only pretend to be struggling, not wanting anyone to notice anything unusual about him.

As a Fourth Level Tribulator, if he appeared too relaxed, it would undoubtedly raise suspicions.

Quickly, several figures whizzed past them.

Jared looked at those few individuals as if the pressure they were under didn't seem to affect them in the least.

"Those individuals were also participants in the assessment, so the previous internal checkpoints didn't pose much of a challenge to them. Truthfully, I could have left as swiftly as they did. However, I promised to take care of you, so I have to stick with you guys." When Carla saw the unwavering gaze of Jared, she felt compelled to explain.

"Many thanks, Carla!" Jared quickly expressed his gratitude.

While Jared was engrossed in a conversation with Carla, Adan and his group approached them.

"What's the matter? Can't move anymore?" Adan watched Jared and the others struggle, and a mocking expression spread across his face as he spoke.

Jared observed that these disciples of the new sect leaders seemed to be unfazed by the pressure. They moved with an ease that suggested no hindrance at all.

"Adan, you've just managed to harness a single fire source and you dare to mock others? Wait until the upcoming trial of the fire source. It'll be your turn to be embarrassed," Carla gave Adan a look and said.

"Hahaha, you won't get to see me embarrass myself later, because you won't even make it past the challenges ahead!" Adan laughed heartily, brimming with self-satisfaction. Then, under the watchful eyes of Jared and the others, he swiftly made his exit!

The pace of these individuals was significantly faster than that of Jared and his group. This realization left everyone feeling utterly disheartened.

Upon witnessing the situation, Jared released a surge of energy. In an instant, he formed a protective shield around everyone, effectively blocking the oppressive force and heat wave.

"Carla, it's clear that these guys weren't hindered at all. They were probably cheating." "Exactly, did they use any means to lessen or completely remove the pressure?" "If they cheat, wouldn't we be certain to lose?" Upon seeing Adan and his companions depart with such ease, everyone was filled with doubt!

These were merely tests for the inner disciples. For Jared, it was as simple as child's play. The ideal of this pressure trying to hold him back was nothing more than a minor.

inconvenience!

After all, the chief examiner for the assessment was one of their own.
